TRIP AFTER A DECADE PLUS TWO

(By Jerome Pederson)
This is twice the number working today and over four times the number of working hours. The highlight of the Naval Yard portion of the tour was a visit to the U. S. S. Missouri, the battleship on which the truce ending World War II was signed by Japanese representatives. That such a large vessel is capable of floating seems almost impossible. For the remainder of the afternoon (after docking at Seattle) we visited Ye Olde Curiosity Shop, where I bought a cup and saucer for Mom and a necklace for Jillian. You could buy almost anything imaginable.

from a beautiful glass ship of very small dimensions to a six-foot tall totem pole which were rather expensive. If possible, I would have spent several more hours in this store just browsing around.

I walked nineteen blocks Thursday evening to the Greyhound bus depot to catch a bus to Bellevue where I spent the night with my brother Ken, who is an auto mechanic. We had a wonderful "get-together."

Finding no one awake upon my return Friday morning, I got a haircut in the hotel barber shop. Most of us spent Friday shopping. Richard, Denny, Larry and I attended "Don't Eat the Daisies," which was playing at the Music Hall where we had previously seen "Home from the Hill." After supper, again at Ivar's, where I had crab louie, some of us stayed up all night playing pinochle and dozing. We left Seattle at 9:00 o'clock Saturday morning.

I received two types of impressions while on the trip — good and bad. As I retained several good impressions, I can think of only one bad impression on the entire trip. This can be expressed in two words — Yessler Way! This street was overcrowded with bums and drunkards, a large number of whom were negroes who were especially foul-mouthed, even in front of women. It was definitely one of the worst sections of the town. However, all this was heavily outweighed by numerous good points, such as the wonderful meals and the variety of excellent entertainment. Ivar's provided the most delightful atmosphere in which I have ever eaten and the food was excellent. All theaters were showing "top-run" movies which will probably not be available in Lewiston for quite some time. As we rode the ferry from Bremerton to Seattle, I felt a hint of summer which was extra special and, to me, was the most pleasant and relaxing part of the "sneak."

Home is as sweet as ever and I love it all the more.

IMPRESSIONS

The weather on our trip to Seattle was just what we had hoped for. It wasn't raining, the wind wasn't blowing, and for a change the sun was shining. Stopping every two hours gave us a chance to stretch our legs and get ready for another two hours of riding.

— Sandy Cantrell.

Shows for the next three nights were seen, including "On the Beach," "A Visit to a Small Planet" and "Ben Hur." Ben Hur was fabulous. It told of the rivling Romans and Jews around the time Christ was born and growing up. Also, the rivling of two friends, who ended up on two different sides; one, Roman; one, Jew. I can see now why it has won 11 academy awards.

— Lynn Koopp.

The trip to Bremerton on the ferry was also very interesting. Most of us who rode top-side were given quite a thrill when the whistle made its shrieking blast. Some of us spent a great deal of time on the middle deck, where eating and resting were the most popular pastimes. The bottom deck carried about 50 cars.

— Duane Meske.

Smith Tower, forty-two stories high, is the highest tower in Seattle. From the Chinese Room on the thirty-fifth floor, you can see far out over Seattle to the distant horizon, where the mountains seemed to mold out of the sky. I really liked the Smith Tower because when I was on top, the world below looked so small that I felt as if I owned it all. All world problems seemed to fade away.

— Dick Fish.

After returning to Seattle, the class visited Ye Ole Curiosity Shop on the waterfront. One can scarcely believe that so many strange objects exist in the world. Oddities ranged from a whale jawbone to a mummified man called "Sylvester." This shop was so fascinating that I do believe we could have spent the whole day there.

— Diane Benscoter

Standing there, looking at those ships in the Bremerton Navy Yards made me think about all the men and women who fought and especially about those who lost their lives.

— Marga Wilken

The next day we went to Woodland Park where we saw a few of our animal friends which took us from 10 a.m. till 3 p.m. After which we returned to our hotel. A few of us went up on Smith tower where we looked at Seattle. This building is 450 feet high, it is the highest building on the West coast.

— Larry Blankenship

Friday night we again ate at Ivar's. It was raining, but while we were there the setting sun broke through the opaque clouds, casting a golden haze on the white caps in Puget Sound. In this romantic atmosphere I made friends with some fried clams.

— Byron Bowen

The sight of a city such as Seattle is really amazing. This lad, who thought a neighboring city called Lewiston was pretty big, had to stop and open his eyes once more.

— Jerry Armitage.

SENIOR IMPRESSIONS

A lot of planning goes into a sneak, if it is to be a good one. First you have to work hard for four years in order to get enough money accumulated for the trip. Then, if it is to be a successful venture, you must, during your senior year, budget your funds, plan your tours, reserve your accommodations, and secure your chaperones. Finally, all these questions being settled, you are ready to go.

— Denny Abrams

The front window of Fredrick & Nelson, one of the largest department stores, was decked out in spring array with a real fountain of water. At night, colored lights playing on this fountain gave an illusion of a falling rainbow.

— Marilyn Zumhove

When 5:00 o'clock arrived — the hour for departure — everyone, his wallet bulging with money, was full of energy, vigor and anticipation. All of us enjoyed the picturesque scenery, the card playing, and the group singing that occupied the time enroute. After eleven hours of riding on hard bus seats, we arrived in Seattle.

— Richard Nelson

At the break of dawn Tuesday morning a yellow bus bearing the sign "Seattle or Perish" left the deserted Kendrick School house. Inside this bus were eighteen happy seniors and their chaperones. Passing through sleeping towns, we seemed to be in a world all our own.

Mary Ann Pavel.

Ever since I was a youngster, I have thought how much fun it would be to go on our senior sneak. Because it was a time when all my classmates were together for five days, I shall always remember it.

— Shirley McAlister

Perhaps my most thrilling experience was the ferry boat ride across Puget Sound on Thursday. It was rather chilly in the morning, but the view was beautiful. Wind blew across our faces on the open deck, making me feel as though we were sailing on the high seas. When I looked back over the water, it seemed as though there was a road which we had followed, but actually it was just a trail of foam left by the ferry.

— Judy Craig.

Rise Expected In Cattle Prices

Boise — An increase in the price of feeder cattle is expected this spring, Wayne Robinson, marketing specialist of the University of Idaho extension service, said today in the latest issue of "Economic Facts for Idaho Farmers." He said the increase is likely because of strength in fat cattle prices and the growth of new grass. Lower prices are expected next fall because of the larger number of feeder cattle and the prospect for a decline in the price of fat cattle.

The report said Idaho cattlemen increased their beef cow herds eight percent compared with a year ago. Beef cattle have increased about seven percent in all western states.

The number of Idaho sheep, the economist said, is 1,148,000, down two percent from a year earlier. A large part of the decline is due to smaller numbers on feed.

The report said potato processing is likely to increase over the present record season because several more plants are under construction in southern Idaho. Total processing from the 1959 crop increased 32 percent over 1958 on the basis of February figures.

A March report from the Department of Agriculture shows that farmers throughout the nation intend to plant more potatoes this year than last. For Idaho, the intention is a three percent increase in potato acreage.

MAY 1 FISHING

Hale Ebling, district game conservation officer, tells us that Thursday of last week, 7,000 rainbow trout ranging in length from 8 to 12 inches, were placed in the Elk Creek Reservoir (near Elk River), and that this body of water open to fishing on May 1st. It should be borne in mind, however, that the streams above and below the reservoir are closed, and will remain so until the regular fishing season in June. Mr. Ebling states that these fish are not brood stock!

Fishing also opens in Robinson Lake near Moscow on the same date. Here, however, there is a ten-fish limit.

SENIOR DAYS AT U.

U. of I., Moscow — More than 400 high school students from all parts of Idaho are expected to be on the University of Idaho campus April 29 and 30, to take part in Senior Days and Agricultural Science Day activities.

All high school seniors in the state have been invited to attend the two-day Senior Days program, designed to show students the academic and traditional aspects of the university.

Senior will be given a general tour of the campus and will visit with members of the faculty in the colleges of letters and science, agriculture, engineering, law, mines, forestry, education and business administration. Career opportunities and required curricula of the many fields in each study area will be explained.

"Horizons Unlimited" will be the theme for the second annual Agricultural Science Day event to be held at the Agricultural Sciences building. Advances in scientific farming will be illustrated with numerous displays pointing out the career opportunities in agriculture.

The event will begin with an Ag. Club banquet on April 28. On April 29 and 30, there will be open houses throughout the college of agriculture with each department presenting an educational display.

new ALL-IN-ONE PLANT FOOD SOLVES FERTILIZER FUDDLE

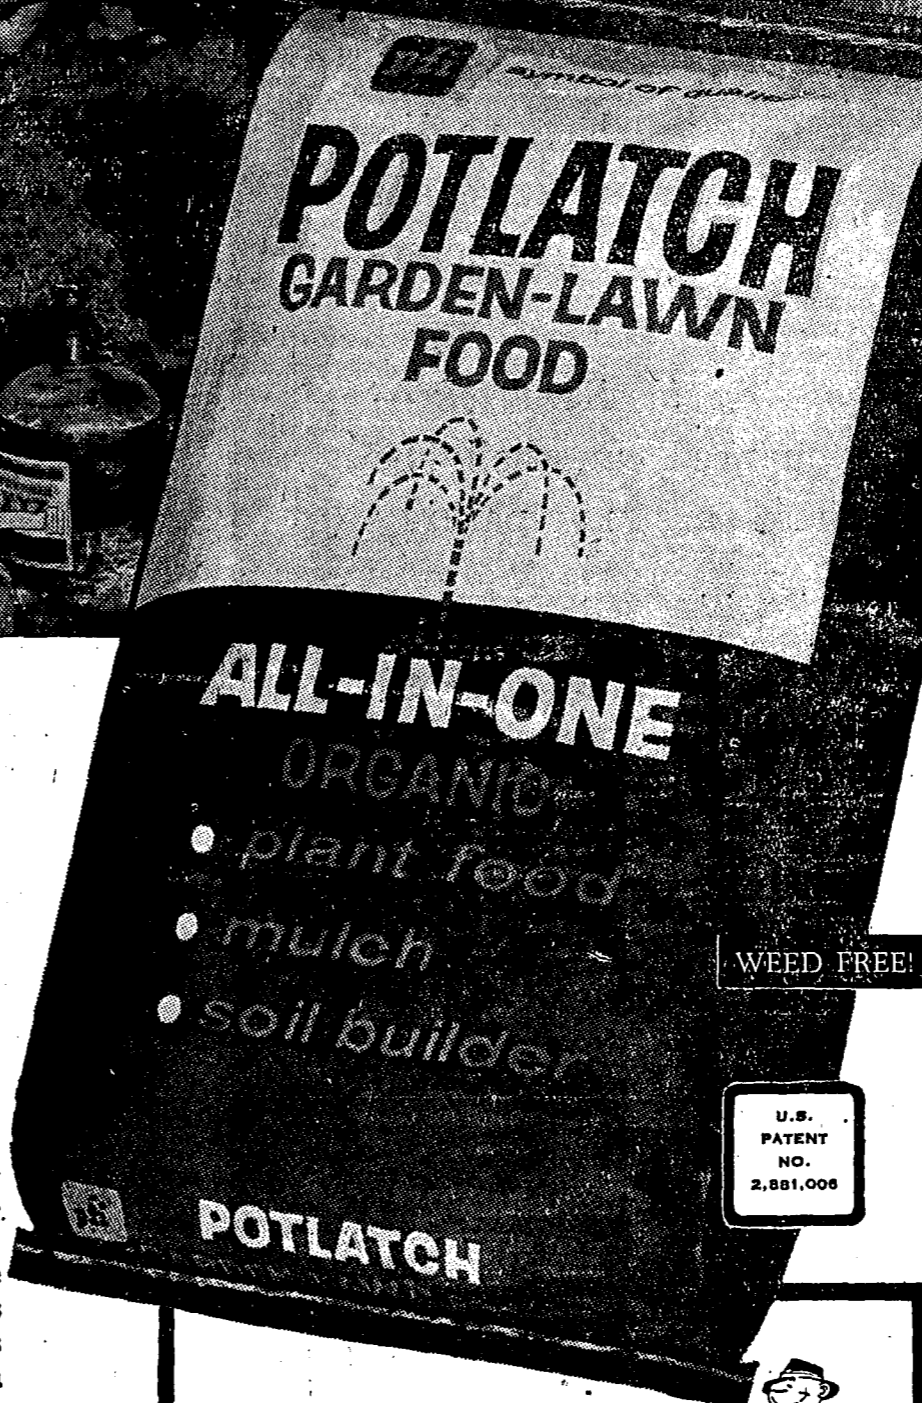

SCIENCE AND NATURE COMBINE TO BRING YOU THE FIRST ALL PURPOSE ORGANIC GARDEN-LAWN FOOD

Until now it took three kinds of plant food to (1) fertilize, (2) mulch and (3) build soil. NOW revolutionary Potlatch Garden-Lawn Food does all three.

A newly patented process gives you a rich organic humus with just the right amount of chemical nutrients heat-bonded to every particle. Tests by a leading Northwest university prove Potlatch lasts longer. Nutrients are slowly released, because the shredded bark humus is activated by a scientific formula of Nitrogen, Phosphorus and Potash.

It's non-burning, easy to apply and economical, because it eliminates the need for peat moss or special soil builders.

THE Bull itin

Published Weekly by the Union Oil Service at Kendrick
W. L. "Bill" Rogers, Editor

HELLO, FOLKS:

A traveling salesman walked into a restaurant one morning and said to the waitress: "Bring me two eggs fried so hard they are edged in black, two slices of burnt toast and a cup of cold coffee. Then sit down and nag me — I'm homesick."

Yes, you bet, we have lubricants for every job and climatic condition — even for this "second winter" we are now "enjoying" — and of course they're Union!

On a flight over the Sahara desert and Englishman looked down at the vast wasteland and remarked: "A beastly place."

A fellow passenger in the plane, an Irishman, commented: "The devil's home."

Another, an American, observed: "What a parking lot!"

It's getting mighty late in the season, so better check your supplies of diesel fuel, gasoline, motor oils, lubricants, grasses, and then call us at 4251 — we'll be there in a flash with Union Products — then you'll be safe, and set.

Driving along a country road, the city woman noticed several linemen climbing telephone poles. "Silly fools," she exclaimed to her companion, "they must think I've never driven before."

Let us service your car. There is no substitute for thorough lubrication — and Union Products — and our know-how, give you complete protection.

Always travel "Union".
