AIR CONDITIONER "FLOODS" STORE

During the extremely hot weather of last week the refrigeration-type air conditioner with de-humidifier at the Red Cross Pharmacy was performing beautifully, and keeping the pharmacy very comfortable.

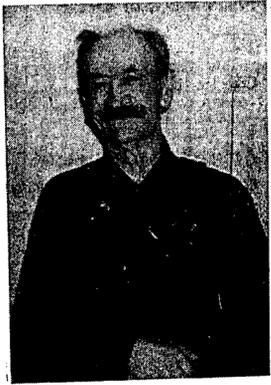

However, when cool air arrived, with its moisture Sunday and Sunday night, Dave Clayton forgot to re-adjust the humidifier — but the machine went right on working. As a result, when he opened the door Monday morning water was everywhere on the floor, and Dave really had to apply a mop for some time in order to dry the floor.

Dave says he is going to put a tube or drain of some sort on the doggone thing, as it's just plain too efficient.

ELDRIDGE
Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Eldridge are the proud parents of a 5 pound 12 ounce baby daughter, born Sunday, July 31, at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lewiston. She has been named Jennifer Ann. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Tom King, and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Eldridge.

GAZETTE'S OLDEST

W. H. LOESER, Southwick — The Gazette's oldest continuous subscriber.

Says Mr. Loeser: "I have been a continuous subscriber to the Kendrick Gazette since the middle of September, 1899. That was the time I returned from a two and a half year stay in Illinois. I subscribed to the Gazette and to the Potlatch Star, which was then published by Wickliffe R. Smith at Southwick."

RAIN WELCOMED

The soaking rain which began falling early Monday morning was one of the most welcomed here in years — although it did stop harvesting operations for two or three days.

Said Norman Lewis, Kendrick Fire Protective District Warden: "I got my first real night's sleep in weeks Monday night. It was certainly welcome."

Said Everett Farrington, Juliaetta logging contractor: "By golly we can log again, at least for a few days, with full crews, and not have the men off fighting fires. It makes it much nicer working, too, being cooler and the air fresh and clean."

Said Walter Wolff of Leland: "It shut us down harvesting for a couple of days, but it's more than worth it to eliminate that much fire danger, and I believe grain will thresh better."

The weather bureau at Lewiston reported a total of 1.36 inches fell during the 12-hour period.

SPRING WHEAT CROP TO BE SHORT

Boise — Idaho's spring wheat crop looks to be 14 percent less than last year, Wayne Robinson, marketing specialist of the extension service says in the July issue of "Economic Facts for Idaho Farmers." The report said the crop is estimated at 17,871,000 bushels, 14 percent below the 1959, and 16 percent below the 10-year average.

The economist said Idaho farmers will produce a little more hay this year than last, but total supplies for the feeding season may be lower. Hay stocks in May were 62,000 tons less than the previous year. Production in 1960 is estimated at about three million tons, an increase of two percent from 1959. Second cutting of hay was good in some areas, but hot weather in July reduced the tonnage in certain areas and also reduced range and pasture prospects.

YES, IT WAS HOT

The "weatherman hit it smack on the nose" this past week, when he predicted "more of the same" for this area, temperaturewise. Wednesday it hit 100 degrees.

Thursday's reading was 102 degrees. Friday it read an even 103 degrees.

Saturday we had an even 100 degrees, but the humidity was climbing and the heat seemed even more intense.

Sunday morning we had a brief rain — just enough to wet the pavement, and the day's high reading was 94, and the humidity high.

Monday morning around 4:45 a real rain began falling — a rain that brought smiles to the faces of weary fire fighters, and to farmers with late crops — and of course the melon and tomato growers! It remained warm, however, the days reading being 70 degrees.

TO HOSPITAL

Sunday afternoon Mrs. Jack Travis was taken to the Grangeville Hospital for medical treatment. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Travis of Grangeville took her over with them, after a visit at the Travis home here.

Welcome Storm Strikes

Early Monday morning a thunder and lightning storm struck here — bringing with it a good rain storm, which lasted all morning and part of the afternoon.

In some ways it was most welcome, as it broke the heat wave, and helped to eliminate the serious fire hazard. Farmers also report it will help with the beans.

Harvest has been going on this past week, with wheat and peas going to the warehouses.

Harvest in this area will be in full swing as soon as farmers are able to get back into the fields.

FIRE SITUATION TEMPORARILY EASED

Deputy Fire Warden Norman Lewis said that the 1.36 inches of rain that fell during a 24-hour period of Monday had eased the critical fire situation — but only temporarily.

Lewis said that if no more rain falls by the end of the week, the fire index will again be at or near the high point at which it was standing last week.

"We still need more rain to put us out of danger," Lewis said. He added that until more falls on the area, no fire permits will be issued, and the same restrictions will remain.

The downpour helped the Kendrick District fires to the extent of putting out all but one. A fire is still smoldering near Potlatch, but is expected to be out within a day or two.

The same fire crew is still being employed by the department, and will remain on duty until the fire situation is in better shape, Lewis told the Gazette.

Rev. F. C. Schmidt spoke briefly words of farewell, wishing them the best in their new home. However, he warned that "the greenest grass is not always over the pasture fence" (in this case sagebrush) — and said all stood ready to welcome them back to Kendrick.

Mrs. Geo. F. Brocke, Sr., in behalf of the W. S. C. S. presented gifts with expressions of appreciation for "Miriam's" years of devotion and service, and to "Ben" for his support on the church board.

WATER RATIONING NOW AT END

Frank Abrams, Kendrick village mayor, announced Monday morning that the water distribution program (some call it rationing) which has been in effect for several weeks — was now at an end.

Mr. Abrams said that with the fine rain which fell Monday — plus excellent gallonage from the new well, and the recovery of the old well — Kendrick residents may now use as much water as they wish — when they wish.

At the village trustee meeting of Tuesday evening the following statement was issued:

"The Council wishes to express their appreciation to the vast majority of the water users of the Village of Kendrick for their cooperation during the time it was necessary to regulate water usage due to the shortage of water, and during the time the new well was being tested. To the few customers who did not cooperate, we are grateful — that there were not more of you."

CRANKERS CLUB PICNIC HERE SUN.

Several members of the Lewiston "Crankers Club" held a picnic in the Kendrick park Sunday — and the vehicles in which they arrived attracted the greatest interest in cars in years.

Oldest of the vehicles was a 1907 Reo phaeton — no top or front doors, of course — and you almost needed a step ladder to get into it. It was a true "cranker," the crank being on the side, the engine "amidships" and the drive, chain. The lights were of the old Prestolite tank type, that were lighted with a match. The tall and side light burned kerosene. Tire size was 30x3 1/2.

The next oldest cars were Model T Fords — both of 1912 vintage. One was a "regular touring car" and the other a "speedster" model with wire wheels! They too were true crankers, with the "armstrong" starter in front. Their radiator shells were of polished brass, as were the side lamps and tail lamp. They also used "Presto-lite" tanks and lite with a match. The side and tail lamps burned kerosene.

Of the nine cars in the caravan six were Ford Model T's. Youngest car was a 1925 Star touring (it even carried 4-wheel brakes). Next to the youngest was a 1923 Chevrolet touring car. The Fords ranged in age from 1912 to 1923.

New to the ear of youngsters inspecting the vehicles was the sound of Klaxons and bulb-type horns — and many a remark was heard: "Did you notice those tires? How about that radiator! Golly, look at those lamps!"

And of course the "hot-rod group": "Wonder how fast that one can go?"

MRS. GEO. MERRICK ENDS LANGUAGE STUDIES AT UTAH

Mrs. George Merrick, teacher of French in the Kendrick High School, has just completed a six-weeks foreign language institute at Utah State University.

The Institute, conducted for secondary school teachers of French and Spanish, was sponsored by Utah State in cooperation with the U. S. office of Education, Language Development Section, under provisions of the National Defense Education Act.

While at Utah State, Mrs. Merrick studied under visiting specialists as well as members of the University staff, completing work in French culture and civilization, observation of new teaching methods, practice teaching, applied linguistics, language laboratory techniques, and special intensive drill in the spoken language. Participants in the institute lived in a special "language house" and took their meals at "language tables" where native speakers of the foreign language helped to direct conversation.

The institute was one of approximately forty held throughout the country this summer. Twenty teachers of Spanish and seventeen teachers of French completed the work at Utah State.

ACCIDENTS DOWN, DEATH RATE UP ON IDAHO ROADS

Fewer drivers were involved in more motor vehicle accidents during June than in May while the number of persons killed and injured shows an increase, according to the Traffic Safety Division.

Last month 2,177 motorists were involved in 1,344 accidents which killed 27 and injured 483 people. In May there were 2,202 drivers, 1,319 accidents, 22 deaths and 462 personal injuries, the monthly report showed. A year ago the June report listed 2,056 drivers, 1,271 accidents, 25 deaths and 520 injuries.

The June, 1960, report tabulated 637 of the cases in rural areas and 707 of them within municipalities. A total of 1,164 indicated violations were committed by part of the drivers involved; some of them were listed as having committed from one to five violations, while a majority had no violations listed against them.

Not having the right of way was a violation attributed to 200 of the drivers while 165 of them drive off the roadway, 113 were speeding, 95 were following too closely and 68 were on the wrong side of the road. Twenty of the motorists were driving on suspended or revoked licenses and 40 had no drivers licenses. Leaving the scene of an accident was charged against 27 drivers.

A total of 34 percent of the accident involved drivers were less than 25 years of age, down from 36 percent reported in May, Traffic Safety officials said.

CONCERN GREAT ON TRAFFIC TOLL

"Lock 'em up and throw away the key," "Give 'em stiffer fines," "confiscate their cars."

These are samples of the spontaneous outbursts sometimes heard about violating drivers when conversations turn to traffic deaths, which have now reached a higher point than they were a year ago.

While the opinions are extreme and unreasonable, they indicate an interested concern about Idaho and the nation's traffic problems.

Almost anyone at one time or another has made such comment when a drunken driver or a reckless one is responsible for the death of an innocent person. Such willful violators, fortunately, are in the minority and are frequently listed among the traffic fatalities. If they are not the victims of their own bad driving habits, all branches of law enforcement attempt to fulfill the obligations which extend only to investigations, gathering of evidence and issuance of citations. From there on out, the matter is in the hands of the courts.

Opinions of law enforcement personnel, traffic safety officials and thousands of interested private groups and individuals are somewhat the same in that better public understanding of the reasons for traffic control laws is needed to reduce accidents. There should be full knowledge that violations lead to accidents and there must be respect for the laws' purpose. Each driver should realize the consequences of failure to obey the law are often death, injury and property loss rather than fear that he will be fined or confined.

Almost without exception, a violation on the part of the driver has preceded each of the fatal accidents this year in the Gem state. Some of the violations were willful and in many instances they were committed by motorists whose driving records were anything but good. Many of them were among the casualties.

In other fatal crashes, there were both unthinking and willful violations committed by drivers whose records showed no previous convictions. Very often their first offense was their last or they hadn't been caught by the law and were apprehended by death.

FORESTRY DEPARTMENT WARNS, APPEALS TO CITIZENS, TO KEEP IDAHO GREEN

ALL FIRE PERMITS CANCELLED EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY

Friday, July 29 — Coeur d'Alene Assistant State Forester, Ed Ring has stated that, effective immediately, all fire permits are cancelled and no further permits will be issued until the present critical conditions subside. This includes fires in incinerators, beach fires, campfires, ect. within State protective districts.

All residents are urged to cooperate and attention is directed to the fact that anyone not conforming is subject to prosecution and fine. The fire situation is extremely critical and the cooperation of all area residents is urgently requested.

Last Wednesday the State Forestry department announced another forest fire started and quickly spread to several thousand acres. The fire was set by a railroad train and is still burning out of control in Lapwai Canyon, East of Lewiston, the report said.

This brings to 9 the total number of large project fires the State Forestry department has had battle already this season. State Forest

Ranger, Roger Guernsey, said, "That is more project fires than we've had in the last dozen years combined." He said all these fires have been in canyons where fires spread rapidly and gaining control is difficult and dangerous because the ground is steep and rocky and crawling with rattlesnakes. The State Forester said that the 1960 fire season is off to a lightning fast start — a frightening start. Guernsey said that as of July 27 there had already been 252 fires on lands protected by the State Forestry Department and the Timber Protective Associations. At the same time last year there were counted only 63 fires. The total area has already reached the alarming total of 18,000 acres compared to only 1050 acres at the same time last year.

The State Forester made the following statement: "There is little question but what we will see additional vast areas of our beloved Idaho blackened unless we get some rain before September or October. No one should think for a minute that 1910 can't happen again. Actually, the state was very fortunate during this last lightning burst and man-caused fires because there was little wind. Winds of 30 miles per hour or greater would have spread fire all over the country. These fires are heaping terrible destruction on the lands in addition to claiming human lives. The losses of resources and property combined with costs of fire fighting and time lost to constructive projects has already run into millions of dollars."

The State Forester appealed to all Idaho citizens for an all-out effort to cut fire losses to a minimum. A few organized men and a million dollars in disaster funds won't begin to KEEP IDAHO GREEN. Every man, woman and child must be exceptionally careful not to start fires and especially alert to pounce on every fire that starts and either put it dead out or hold it until trained reinforcements can arrive.

It only takes two nations to fight, but it takes many more to keep the peace of the world.

Try to live your life so that your neighbor won't consider you a goon.

SAFETY LIES IN RESPECTING LAW

Boise — Respect for speed laws is a desire and not an objection of a majority of the motorists who are concerned about the continuing high traffic death rate.

Invaluable opinions about speed laws are often obtained from drivers who have been hailed into court for exceeding the speed limit. Many of them, whose driving records are being scrutinized and rated under the Driver Improvement program, have logically discussed the speed factor and its relationship to fatal accidents. Those who willingly and cheerfully discuss their own particular problem are inclined to take an overall look at the general traffic control programs and offer highly intelligent "man on the street" opinions that no one dealing with traffic or law enforcement can afford to overlook.

One of the most common criticisms, expressed without rancor, is that the so-called "tolerance" in establishing speed limits in particular areas, has a tendency to instill some distrust of the intent of the law. "Tolerance" is described as "that five or ten miles an hour over the posted limit which you can drive in safety."

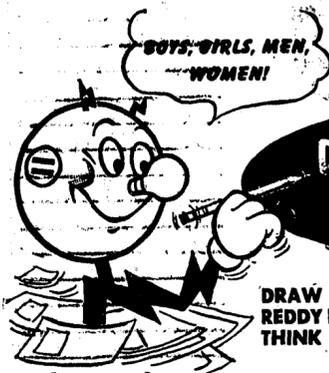

One motorist, who has demerit points on his record after two counts of speeding, made the following observation: "I would like to see speed limits posted so that as an ultimatum, if an area is posted for 35 miles an hour, it could be allowed to drive even 36 miles an hour. As it is now, many of the restricted speed zones in the cities are not very realistic. Some of them allow a 10-mile-an-hour excess in the speed. Then you get on the open highway posted for 60 miles an hour maximum and many of us still take that extra 10 miles an hour excess."

The driver's statement made sense in his suggestion that Idaho follow many other states in increasing the speed limits in home areas, lowering it in others and then "let the driving public know you mean business."

A case of savagism entered the conversation when the irate motorist, with a smile, commented: "Those low maximum speed signs should have a 'P. S.' attached, 'We're just kidding' and a sign should bear the warning, 'we mean business!'"

Returning to a serious view, he went on to suggest that the motoring public's uncertainty about the relationship of posted speed limits and safe driving speeds result easily create a sub-conscious impression that laws concerning stop signs, signal lights, solid white lines and other controls are being enforced with the same latitude of tolerance.

THOUSANDS VISIT QUAKE AREA

Missoula — Over 100,000 sightseers have visited the Madison River Canyon earthquake area in the Galatin National Forest in southwestern Montana so far this season, according to Chas. L. Tebbe, regional forester.

The 100,000 mark was reached the last of July, eleven months after a severe earthquake struck the Madison River Canyon.

Access into the highly popular area is improving but is still limited, Tebbe said. Temporary by-pass roads in the eastern portion of the area have been improved and one has been oiled. Traffic to the head of Earthquake Lake is still limited to afternoons because of continuing work on the by-pass roads.

The recently completed road to the top of the slide near the mouth of Madison Canyon has been surfaced. Parking areas on and near the slide are also being surfaced. There may be traffic delays not in excess of a half-hour each because of the surfacing work.

RECREATIONAL
PARKS PLANNED

Portland — Pacific Northwest Power Company has announced plans for public recreational parks on the shores of a 58-mile long reservoir to be created by its High Mountain Sheep dam in the spectacular mile-deep Snake river gorge between Oregon and Idaho.

In special meetings held at Enterprise and LaGrande, PNP informed Wallowa and Union county residents of the company's initial program for camping and boating facilities along the 200 miles of scenic shoreline resulting from construction of High Mountain Sheep.

Hugh Smith, Portland, a member of PNP's legal staff, predicted 120,000 tourists would annually visit the 670-foot high dam — the highest of its kind in the western hemisphere — and the new lake formed in the wild and now almost inaccessible Snake river gorge.

"The opening of such a vast recreational playground would have the effect of a new $10,000,000 industry that could produce income of more than a half-million dollars each year for communities on access routes to the new lake," he said.

High Mountain Sheep dam, located on the Snake river a half mile above the confluence with the Salmon river, would leave that important Idaho tributary open for major runs of Chinook salmon and Steelhead trout. The $256,000,000 development would produce 2,000,000 kilowatts of new electric power and over 3,000,000 acre feet of water storage.

Smith said PNP's initial plans call for three major recreational parks in the rugged canyons surrounding the High Mountain Sheep reservoir: (1) Near the dam site on the Oregon side; (2) Near the head of the eight-mile long Innaha river arm of the reservoir northeast of Innaha, Oregon; and (3) In the vicinity of Pittsburgh Landing (Pleasant Valley) on the Idaho side of the Snake, some 20 miles southwest of Whitebird, Idaho.

The three major areas would include camping and parking space, picnic tables and boat launching facilities, he said, and other camp locations would be provided at the mouths of several creeks that can be reached only by boat.

Smith said there would be a facility at the dam to lift boats over the towering structure. The reservoir would be maintained at its highest level during the peak months of the summer recreational season.

PNP's preliminary plans for the recreational facilities at High Mountain Sheep are based on reconnaissance trips and studies by company personnel planning the project, and on other studies made by the National Park Service and the U. S. Forest Service.

PNP, organized by Pacific Power & Light, Portland General Electric, Washington Water Power and the Montana Power companies, awaits action by the Federal Power Commission on its long-standing application to build the multi-purpose dam project.

Hearings are scheduled to start August 15 and continue through this fall on both the PNP application for High Mountain Sheep, and a competing application for a dam at Nez Perce below the Salmon river by a group of Washington state public utility districts.

CATTLE PEST

Methoxychlor is suitable as a dust treatment for control of hornflies on dairy cattle. There is no objection to its use, says the county agent, as long as there is no residue in the milk. Regulations of the food and drug administration permit no residue of the chemical, but dust can be applied so there is no violation. With sprays, on the other hand, there can be trouble.

Studies demonstrate, the county agent said, that when methoxychlor is properly applied as a dust to only the backs of dairy cows, no residue occurs in the milk. Entomologists have found that such a dust treatment provides excellent control of hornflies, one of the most costly pests of dairy cattle.

Here's the way to do it: Apply one tablespoonful of 50 per cent methoxychlor powder to each animal, sprinkling it over the back and rubbing it lightly into the hair. This treatment will provide control of hornflies for about three weeks. The methoxychlor treatment, however, will not get rid of lice, other biting flies, or ticks.
