

J. EDGAR HOOVER SPEAKS ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

It is a sad commentary on modern-day law enforcement for any officer to be guilty of a violation of civil rights. In addition to the basic immoral aspects and the attendant public scorn such incidents are all the more regrettable because they are so unnecessary.

But for a few isolated instances the day of police brutality is past. Scientific crime-detection techniques and professional standards have now become the strong right arm of law enforcement and there is no need for any officer to resort to dishonorable tactics. Responsible police officials do not tolerate such methods. They know there is no substitute for penetrative, intelligent investigation, supported by scientific evidence.

In recent years, our Nation has human dignity and welfare. Law enforcement has been most instrumental in these advancements and has been a strong ally of those dedicated to preserving our God-given heritage. Our profession, called upon to protect and help preserve individual liberties, is charged with a sacred responsibility. If we do less than our utmost to live up to this trust, we fail.

We may be proud of our progress, but we cannot be satisfied as long as incidents occur which give justification to charges of civil rights violations involving officers. Some extremists use these incidents as sounding boards. They exploit civil rights - as well as other just causes for self-aggrandizement and personal rumors and hatred, and pit one element of society against another. Responsibility of investigating alleged violations of civil rights. This, of course, has never been a popular role. We are criticized on the one hand by those who cry "national police" and usurpation of functions rightfully reserved to the States. On the other hand we are attacked by those who say we have hedged on civil rights matters involving members of law enforcement.

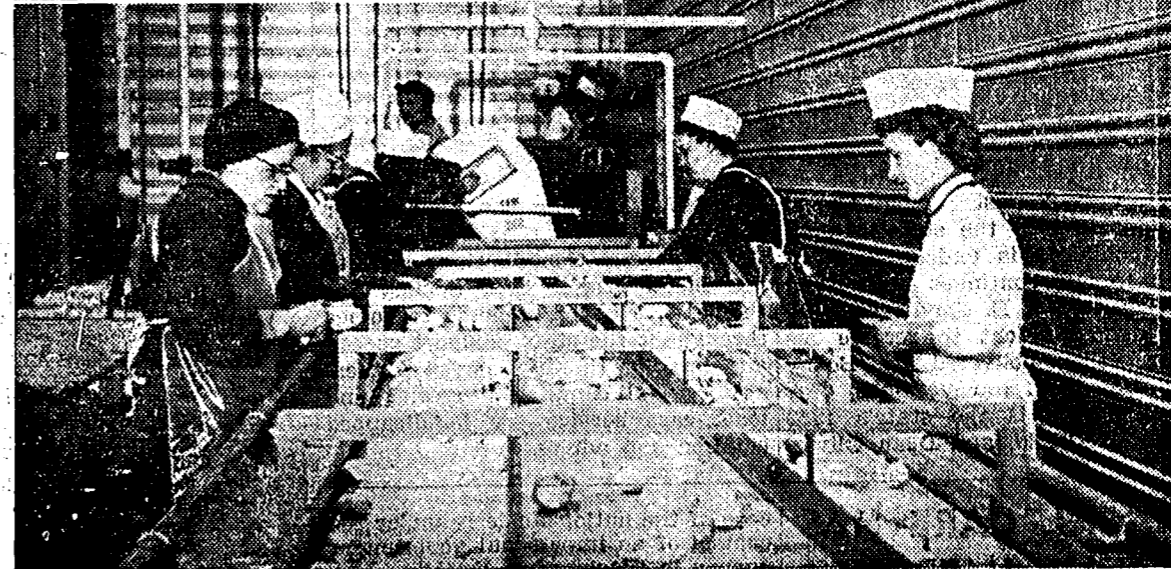

Our position on both points is well known. Over the years, we have consistently given these investigations prompt and impartial attention without apologies to anyone. This will continue to be our policy.

Let me make it abundantly clear that in the overwhelming majority of the cases we have been extended full cooperation from the agencies concerned. Upstanding police officials realize the most effective means of refuting unfounded allegations is to expose them to the light of impartial investigations. Likewise, if the facts prove a violation has occurred, they are equally anxious to rid their agencies of the stigma.

Certainly, law enforcement will not resolve themselves. Where deficiencies exist, corrective action is mandatory. There is no good reason why our profession should continue to be the butt of aspersion cast by the blatant, self-styled Samaritans. Let us conduct our business in such a manner that they must turn

IN IDAHO gold was discovered in the fabulously rich Boise Basin. In the great boom that followed, this area produced more gold than all of Alaska. Breweries, traditionally, became one of the first industries to be built in early mining cities of the West. The pioneer miners enjoyed beer just as Idahoans today continue to find pleasure in beer.

For then, as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation. But beer means more than enjoyment to our state. The Brewing Industry contributes more than 1 1/4 million tax dollars to Idaho each year - money that helps support our hospitals, schools and highways.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

BRUCELLOSIS HALT BEING ATTEMPTED

A national effort to eradicate swine brucellosis began in October. Purpose and methods were outlined this week by Homer Futter, county agricultural agent, who received information from the department of Agriculture. The program in Idaho is coordinated by Dr. P. Schneider, state and federal veterinarian.

Swine brucellosis is similar to brucellosis in cattle. Both diseases cause severe losses of animals every year. The bacteria of either can cause undulant fever in humans.

The first stage in the intensified program, officials said, is based on "validation" of the individual swine herds as brucellosis-free. Validation is earned by following procedures recommended by the U.S. Livestock Sanitary association and approved by USDA and cooperating states.

Herds are validated for one year after all adult animals pass two consecutive negative blood tests. The owner of a qualified herd gets an appropriate sign identifying his herd as a source of clean hogs. Such herds will be known as "Validated Brucellosis-Free." The term replaces "Certified Brucellosis-Free" which has been used in the swine brucellosis program.

The reason for the change is that hog producers generally associate the term "Certified" with certification in production testing of purebred swine associations. There are certified litters and certified sires. The word "validated" will apply to the brucellosis program to avoid confusion.

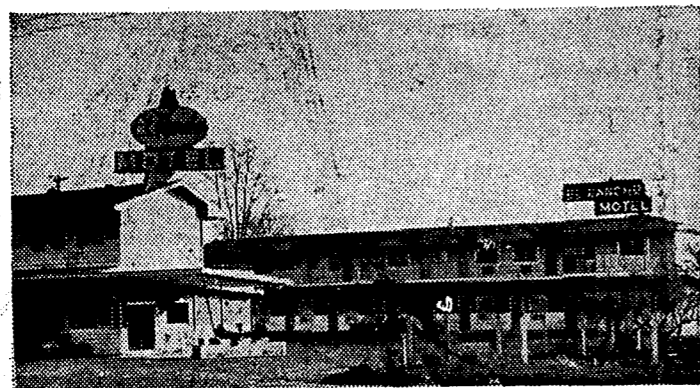

Eventual eradication of the disease in all swine herds is the goal. Emphasis at first will be on purebred herds, source of most breeding boars. Swine brucellosis, unlike the bovine type, is spread mostly by infected males, although contact with any infected hogs or contaminated feedlots and pastures can spread the disease.

Because symptoms vary greatly authorities said, the disease exists in many herds without being suspected.

Teach Your Bird Nursery Rhymes!

To teach your budgie (parakeet) to talk, you must first make him your pal. Do this by sheer love and gentleness which will dissolve away his instinctive mistrust of humans and make you the centre of his daily existence.

Next, teach him his name by constant repetition. Remembering that the bird is only learning to mimic the sound, you make, be sure to make exactly the same sound every time you teach him something. Teach him in a loud, clear voice, speaking with more emphasis than you normally use. And never start a new word or phrase until he can say the old one well.

Finally, let the bird have a good fly around before his lessons. He'll be much more likely to concentrate when he's worn the edge off his energy!

Teaching is best carried out with the bird perched on your finger and held a few inches away from your mouth. If he's not tame enough to do this, he'll never become a really good talker, so it's worth persevering with.

Many people are quite content to have their birds say simple phrases like "Good morning" and "How are you?" but others are more ambitious. I've trained birds to recite as many as fourteen nursery rhymes, word for word, speeches from Shakespeare, and even one that could sing ten pop tunes of the day!

There's a special technique for teaching this sort of thing and it calls for a lot of patience, but it's well worth the trouble.

First of all, the bird must not have his mind cluttered up with the usual little stoked phrases I mentioned earlier. Stick strictly to the piece you want him to learn and nothing else. Suppose you decide on "Mary had a little lamb".

Begin by teaching the first line, and give him nothing else until he's saying it absolutely clearly. Now take on the next line, emphasizing and repeating the new part to be learned. Like this: "Mary had a little lamb - His foot as black as soot, HIS FOOT AS BLACK AS SOOT."

Lessons should take this form all the time until he says the two lines together in one piece. Now repeat this bit - quite quickly, and add on the next line - "Mary had a little lamb. His foot as black as soot; and everywhere that Mary went, AND EVERYWHERE THAT MARY WENT -"

When this part has taken shape, add the last line in the same manner - "HIS SOOTY FOOT HE PUT."

Once the bird can say a whole verse clearly, you should speed him up a bit to make it smoother. Do this by repeating the complete verse to him several times at about normal talking speed. By patient use of this "adding on" method, there's practically no limit to what you can teach a budgie to say.

One last word. Remind him fairly frequently of older pieces you want him to keep up. Like children, budgies soon forget!

Idaho's 1962 Easter Seal Appeal for funds to help the state's handicapped children is underway as of March 15 and continues until April 21. Gov. Robert E. Smylie was the first Idaho resident to receive his Easter Seal, delivered by Bobby Rich, Boise, a four-year-old deaf youngster who is the state's 1962 Easter Seal Child, and Dean Oliver, Boise, World Champion Calf Roper and chairman of the Idaho Easter Seal Appeal. Contributions sent to the Idaho Easter Seal Society for the seals, which are mailed to homes throughout the state, support speech and hearing therapy, physical therapy, special camping programs and local case service for handicapped children and adults.

MEDICAL CARE HAS GREATLY IMPROVED

Boise — Robert E. Staley, M. D., Kellogg, president of the Idaho State Medical Association, said this week that "medical care for the great majority of Americans is a better bargain today than it was 20 years ago." "The people of this country have vastly better medical care available to them today than they had two decades ago," Dr. Staley said. "But while medicines have been improving so dramatically, the hours of work required to purchase a given 'market basket' of medical care has declined almost as dramatically." Dr. Staley said the average factory employee works 38 per cent less time today to buy $10 worth of medical services than he did 20 years ago. He said the truth about the cost of medical care "has been cynically distorted in a clear attempt to drum up support for a project to put health care of the nation's elderly under the control of an impersonal government agency in Washington, D. C."

"No one questions the fact that the cost of medical care, just like everything else the American people buy, has been increasing steadily for many years," Dr. Staley said. "But studies by the U. S. Department of Labor show that the cost of medical care has not risen as rapidly as the cost of many other things the American people buy."

"Twenty years ago, $10 worth of medical care required an average working time of 15 hours and 7 minutes. Today, that same quantity can be purchased for less than 9 hours and 22 minutes of work."

"An appendectomy now can be paid for with 52.7 per cent less working time, a tonsillectomy with 44.2 per cent and a doctor's office call with 44 per cent less."

Dr. Staley said other comparisons are also pertinent: "Physicians' fees, for example, increased 94.6 over the past 20 years, but food costs rose 150 percent. Even more significant, according to the Labor Department, while physicians' fees were advancing 94.6 percent, the nation's per capita income shot up 274 percent."

"The facts deny that the cost of medical care is the tremendous burden on the people that sponsors of government medicine for the elderly claim. The American people as a whole spend almost as much on liquor and tobacco as they do on health care, and three times as much on recreation and travel. Even the retired aged are more self-reliant than they are pictured to be. More than 53 percent of all persons over 65, are protected by health insurance and as a group they have fewer unpaid hospital bills than any other age group."

"It is disturbing to see attempts to deceive the American people in order to put over a politically inspired measure like the King-Anderson Bill, which would force a new tax increase on the working people to pay for medical services, not just for those in need, but for millions who can afford their own medical care."

QUESTION: What's the difference between files and rasps? What are their uses?

ANSWER: Rasps are a species of file. Most files are considered metal-working tools, primarily for maintenance tasks, sharpening equipment, shaping, etc. Rasps are much coarser than metal-working files and are used for finishing wood joints and ends in a quick but rough manner. Sometimes they are used in wood lathes.

Like most other equipment, there are certain files for certain jobs. They come in an assortment of shapes and sizes.

Both files and rasps are available in assorted lengths and shapes. If you're in the market for a file or rasp, there are four things you should consider:

1. Its cross-section or shape; whether you need square, flat, round, half round, or triangular design.
2. The length you will need; lengths vary from 4 to 12 inches.
3. The type of material to be worked—metal, wood, plastic, fiber, etc.
4. The tooth design or cut of the file or rasp—single, double, curved.

Like most other equipment, there are certain files for certain jobs. Mill files are used for fine finishing work, such as sharpening equipment, and usually are single cut. Machinist files are used when speed and not precision or smoothness is important. Curved-tooth files generally are used when working with aluminum.

There are numerous sizes and cuts of files, but the ones listed above are the most common, the ones farm and home craftsmen will be using most.

One file that is growing in popularity is the rotary type, which is inserted in the chuck of an electric drill. Such files usually are sold in sets of cone, ball, oval, and tapered shapes, all of which perform special functions.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER OVER WEEK-END

The weather over the week-end — beginning with Thursday — could best be described with only one word: "Beautiful." The temperature, under sunny skies, climbed up into the high 50's, with some thermometers reaching 60 degrees.

Early Monday morning, with the thermometer reading 44 degrees, a warm rain fell, and one could almost see the grass turn green and grow. The Potlatch river has been steadily rising, and is now running a deep chocolate color, with most of the wash believed to be coming from woods roads, cut by dozers, and where the frost is not yet out of the ground.

STUDIES END

The last of a series of studies on the book "Foundations of Christian Teaching" was completed by the teachers of the Kendrick Community Church Monday evening, in the home of Mrs. Ben P. Cook.

IDAHO ALMANAC PUBLICATION SET

Boise — In observance of Idaho's Territorial Centennial, the Department of Commerce and Development is now putting together in a compact, handy form a collection of facts, figures and other information about the state.

The Idaho Almanac is to be the first such publication in 27 years. It was in 1935 that the old Idaho Blue Book was printed.

Going several steps beyond the usual Almanac and Book of Facts, the new publication will offer in a single volume an exceptionally broad and detailed coverage of the whole Idaho story, according to Louise Shaddock, department secretary.

A good, solid summation of the state's history in comprehensive articles as well as pointed facts and figures about its people, economics, banking, mining, lumbering, manufacturing, and articles from Idaho's fabulous beginning in one of the world's richest gold rushes, through its warring frontier days and rugged early struggles to its present and promising future is to be contained in 500 information packed pages.

YOUTH CAMP PLANS ANNOUNCED

Boise — Idaho's second Youth Conservation Camp, Camp Pioneer No. 2 will be bigger and run longer than last year's camp State Forester Roger L. Guernsey announced this week.

The State Forester said that plans are being made to employ 59 boys on the forestry projects started last year by 45 boys on the Priest Lake State Forest in far northern Idaho.

He said, "Our plan and hope is to take the same number of boys from each county as the county has representatives in the state legislature." Camp will run from June 18 to Aug. 19th.

Guernsey said that every able-bodied Idaho boy between the ages of 14 and 17, as of June 18, 1962, and who is of good character, and wants to work, is eligible. Any boy wishing to try for this camp can secure an application blank from any State Forestry office or from his State Representative. Drawings will then be held throughout the state by the Representatives between May 19 and May 27, inclusive.

"I should like to emphasize that this is not a correction camp," Guernsey said. "This camp is for all good Idaho boys who want to have a wonderful summer working in the forest and who are fortunate enough to be selected in the drawings. The boys will be building trails, planting and thinning trees, clearing brush, and learning many other skills of the woodsman. They will be trained to fight forest fires but will not be worked on dangerous fires — only on controlled sectors of large fires or in mop-up work."

The young woodsmen selected will receive transportation to and from camp and will be furnished food, lodging, bedding, logger boots and socks, and medical care. In addition they are paid $30.00 per month.

The State Forester reported that Ken Bushey, a math teacher in the Sandpoint school system, who served as director for Camp Pioneer No. 1, will be back again in the same capacity along with several others from last year's experienced staff. Altogether there will be nine counselors and three assistant counselors to direct the field work. There will be doctor services available and a registered nurse on duty at all times. In this area blanks may be obtained from: Norman Lewis, State Forestry Service, Kendrick; or from Geo. F. Brocke, Sr., Latah County State Representative, also at Kendrick.

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS:

Spring fever beginning to boil? Itching to climb on the old tractor and go to work? If you are better go out right now and check your supplies of diesel fuel, gasoline, lubricating oil, greases, ect., and then call us at 4251 for Union Products — better, without a doubt!

"No license, lady?" growled the traffic cop. "Don't you know you can't drive without one?"
"That explains everything," said she. "I thought it was because I was nervous and nearsighted that I hit two cars and ran into a fire hydrant."

Let us service your car, truck or pickup. A thorough grease job takes out the squeaks and rattles and makes driving a pleasure again.

We use Union Lubricants — beyond a doubt really satisfactory!

The visitor asked: "Do the people Spring fever beginnin gto boil? whiskey?"

"Well," replied the old mountaineer, "the water was turned off a while back and nobody knew it 'till Hatfields barn caught on fire."

Have you tried Royal Triton Motor Oil — the true all-season oil? It's made for today's high compression, high performance cars — we sell it!

"Doctor" said the pretty nurse, "every time I take a patient's pulse it gets faster. What shall I do?"

Doctor: "Blindfold him!"
Always travel "Union".

True Indian Meal

On March 7, Thelma Meyer, Margie Silflow, Hermina and Dorothy Meyer served Indian food at the regular Ladies Aid meeting. The menu consisted of: Chapatis, Appadams, Curried Cabbage, Dahl Curry, Mutton Curry, Rice, Perugu (similar to yogurt), Pepper Water, Piassum (a dessert) and Bananas.

Following Indian custom the food was served on paper plates (substituted for the leaf plates used in India). Also in Indian custom the guests sat on the floor and ate with their hands.

A fitting background was provided by Indian music played from a tape recorder, and the "saries" worn by the hostesses.

Club Meets

The Cameron Home Demonstration Club met last Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Marvin Silflow. Mrs. Wally Newman led a demonstration on "Snappy Snacks for Weight Watchers." She, assisted by Marlene Bowers, provided several dishes for tasting. Refreshments were served by the hostesses at the afternoon's close.

Performed Wedding Ceremony

Rev. and Mrs. Theo Meske left for Ritzville Friday evening to attend the wedding of her niece, Rev. Meske performing the ceremony. Mrs. Meske baked and decorated the cakes used to serve 200 guests at the reception which followed.
