Farming With Horses...

May Be Out of Date

But their system of pulling together to accomplish results has not gone out of style!

AS AN EXAMPLE: If I trade in town — and you trade in town KENDRICK — we're pulling together to build a better community. The profit from those dollars pay taxes, which in turn build better roads, better schools, better churches, better homes — all of which means a better trading center for you and your family.

Let's put it this way — If you trade out of town, and I trade out of town — how long can we both endure? Dollars spent away from home never return to do their part in building a better community!

FILM BOOSTS IDAHO SCENERY

Boise — Playing to a good-sized and enthusiastic group from an airplane pilots' organization in Highstown, New Jersey, a few nights ago, the popular Idaho State film, "Hell's Canyon" set a new record for realism when its thrilling scenes of bounding and bouncing through the white-water rapids caused one of the flight-seasoned ladies in the audience to become seasick. "It may sound strange," said a spokesman for the organization showing the Idaho film, "but that's just what happened!"

The film, which was produced by the Idaho State Department of Commerce and Development, has had a similar size could well envy. It started at home in Welsler, Idaho, last summer when Gov. Robert E. Smylie of Idaho, and a group of officials and civic leaders gave the picture a real Hollywood-style premiere, complete with music, street ceremonies, footprints and hand-in-the-cement of the theater entrance and all the trimmings.

The career of the film since then has lived up to the send-off. For although simply and economically produced, its realism and color in featuring the big adventure of a raft-trip down America's deepest canyon is a never-failing audience pleaser.

The showing at Highstown, New Jersey, a whole continent away from home is characteristic, stated Louise Shaddock, executive secretary of the state Dept. of Commerce and Development. "Highstown is quite close to some of the most appealing waters in the world, but here's an audience enjoying the waters that only Idaho can boast. Many requests for the film come in from states in all sections. It has had an exceptional popular vogue in showings through Texas and is a top favorite with natives of Idaho, too."

HABITS AND GOOD AND BAD DRIVERS

Boise — Habits — good and bad — are hard to break. The habit of driving on or over the center line has been permanently broken several times this year on Idaho highways where head-on collisions have caused an unproportionately large share of the 1962 traffic fatalities.

Tourists and natives seem to be equally indifferent to Idaho's mountainous and rolling terrain where highways have had to be built with more curves than are found in the flat, open areas of the country. Fear of the right-hand side of the road seems to grip many drivers who demonstrate an abundance of misplaced bravery when it comes to speed.

Far too many cars and trucks, many of them with trailers of varied lengths and width following behind, cut both right and left-hand curves. Since the paved surface is "sauced" at the same angle across the entire width of the road, the center-line lugger gains nothing — not even a few inches of distance traveled.

Even though there is clear visibility for miles ahead with no traffic approaching, it is a poor and frequently disastrous habit to leave one's own lane of traffic. The habit can and does carry over to blind curves and heavily traveled roads where head-on collisions and side-swiping crashes are contributing heavily to the traffic death toll.

It might be well for Idaho's driver training instructors to expand their courses to include driving on a couple of 12-inch planks to test the driver's apprehensions about the right hand edge of the highway.

There are times, of course, when the over-cautious driver can be almost as much of a traffic hazard as the daredevil — when he holds up traffic and causes those wanting to "move on" to take undue chances to get around him.

In any event, the victims of either foolhardy extremist are unable to distinguish between them.

It happened 100 YEARS ago

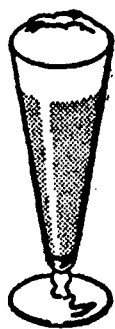

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that

IN IDAHO a steamer carrying 700 miners from the dwindling gold fields of California arrived in Idaho to search for gold in the Coeur d'Alene where E. D. Pierce had discovered it two years earlier. Early day miners enjoyed beer, when available, just as Idahoans today continue to find pleasure in beer.

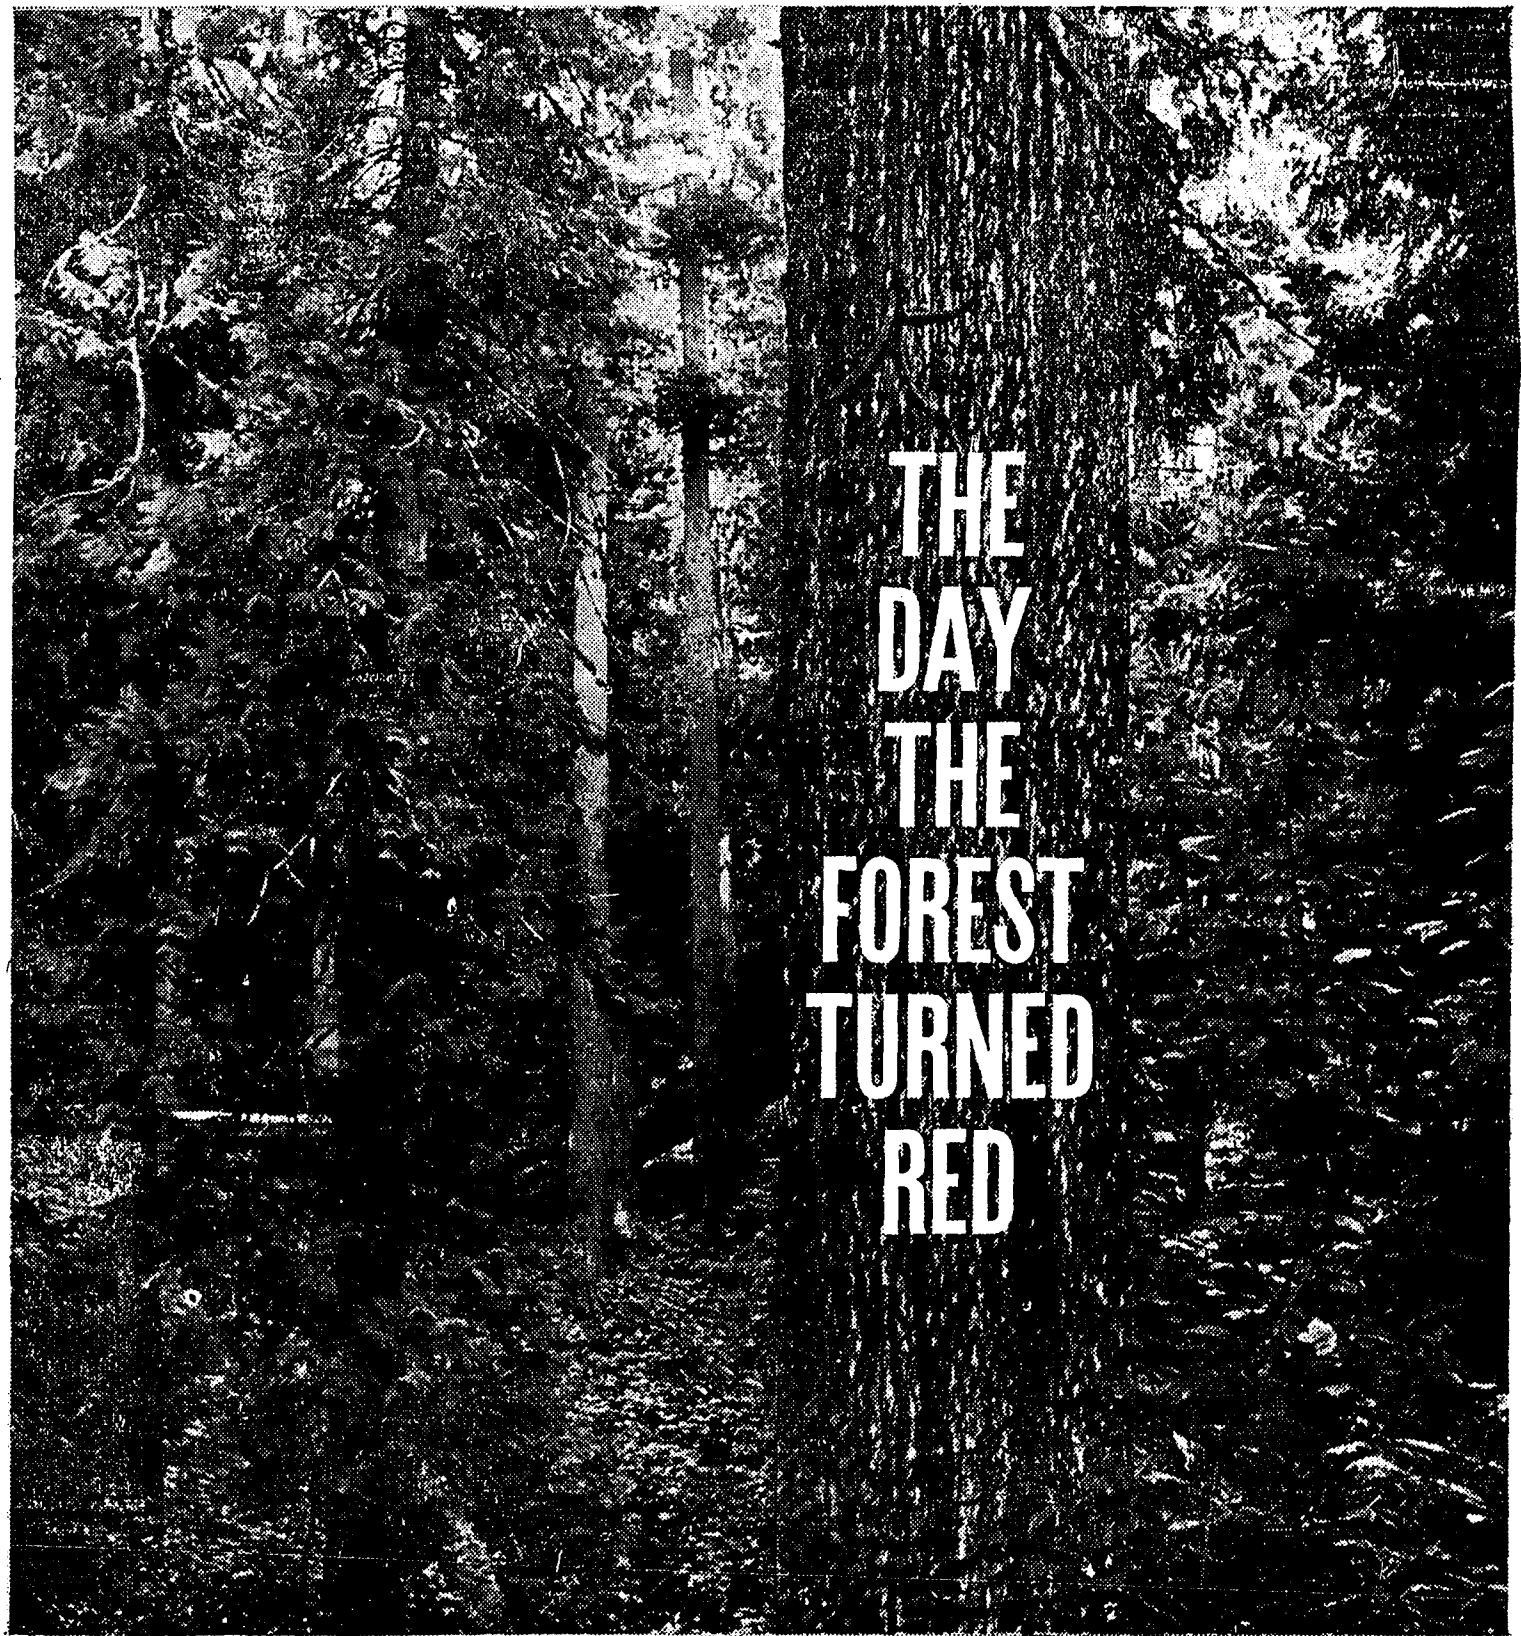

For then, as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation — light, sparkling refreshment that adds a touch of Western hospitality to any occasion. Idahoans have always enjoyed the good fellowship that goes with every glass.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

IDAHO, MONTANA, NEVADA DIVISION

THE DAY THE FOREST TURNED RED

Beneath the fragrant pine and fir is a soft carpet of needles, fern and moss. Filtered sunlight dapples the hidden nest of a doe and her spotted fawn. Nearby, a bear fishes from a sparkling stream and the song of a hundred birds fills the still air. Then . . . a still-burning match or cigarette is tossed to the ground . . . a campfire is left untended.

The Green Forest, once full of life is now GONE! The charred remains . . . a monument to man's carelessness. It happened the day the Forest turned RED.

DEARY MAN BAGS BEAR WITH ARROW

Responding to a call for help from a lone woman, Deary Mercantile owner Donald G. Lawrence, felled a 204-pound black bear with one arrow about 2:30 p.m. Friday.

Using a 56-pound bow and a 546 grain arrow, Lawrence brought down the bear from a large tree at the timberline two miles south of Deary in the Pine Creek area.

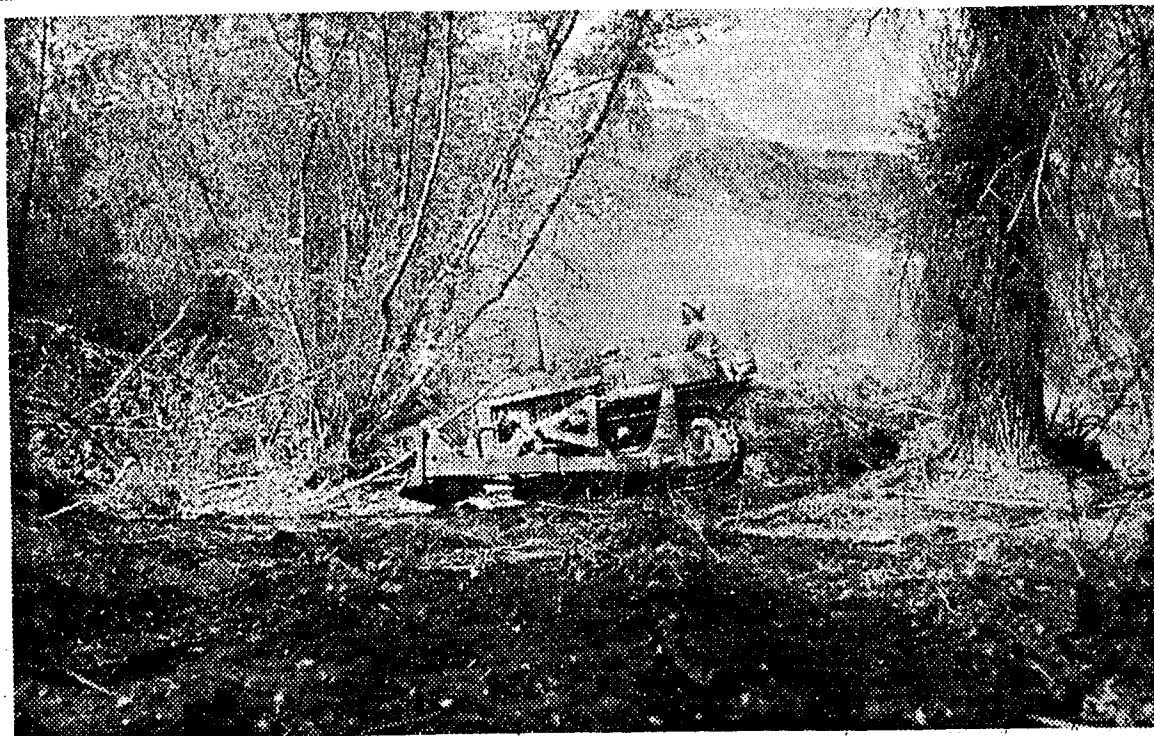

The arrow entyred just behind the rib cage at an angle and severed the spinal cord. For a second the big male bear appeared to be trying to climb up the tree but was not able to do so. The bear was dead when it hit the ground.

as being between 8 and 10 years. He was missing two claws on one left foot and had lost part of the right ear in some past battle.

Lawrence responding to the plea of Mrs. Hulda Johnson, Deary pioneer living alone on her homestead, to rid her place of the predator. The bear had torn boards off her garage, broken a window of her home and caused other damage.

Lawrence became interested in archery three years ago. He is a member of the national field archery club and Boone and Crockett Club. He was not using dogs in the kill. The dogs were with his hunting partner, C. A. Kelso of Helmer, searching in another area.

Lawrence said he was surprised to find the bear in a tree but concluded that the age of the bear contributed to his reverting to the tree climbing instinct and to his predatory actions in molesting Mrs. Johnson's home.

ACCESS ROUTE

Fish and Game Department worker uses caterpillar tractor to grade a public access site to Big Lost River downstream a few miles from Mackay reservoir. This is said to be part of a long-range, state-wide development program to provide better fishing and waterfowl hunting for Idaho sportsmen.

POEM PUBLISHED

The members of the Junior Class of the Kendrick Community Church Sunday School of two years ago (1960) were honored by having a poem which they wrote appear in a recent national magazine, "Trails for Juniors," their weekly paper.

Participating in the "literary effort" were Pat Johnson, Louise Hoffman, Jeanie Gates, Bobbie Meserve, Dannie Fey, Lorene Hazeltine, Janet Westendahl, Gary Renfrow, Patti Watts, Loren Hoffman and Dennis Deobald. Their teacher was Mrs. Robert Magnuson.

Following is the poem: "Worship at Camp" We go to worship under a tree, We pray and sing and listen to Thee. Perhaps we'll praise Thee out in a field

Using Thy word to make us a shield. Maybe we'll sit by a sandy shore Thinking of ways to love and serve more.

Whether the day is sunny or damp, With faithful thanks we've a happy camp.

— Kendrick Community Church, Kendrick, Idaho.

TRUE, ONLY TOO TRUE!

A Texan died and went to his eternal home. Looking around, he commented: "I never expected Heaven to be so much like Texas." "Buddy," the gatekeeper informed him, "this isn't heaven!"

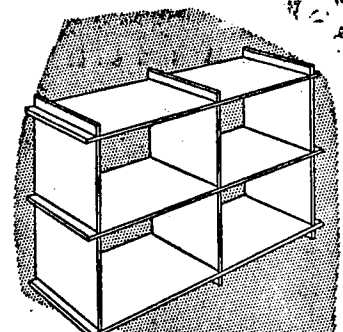

By George Rogers Research Engineer Thor Research Center For Better Farm Living

Lack of adequate closet space seems to be a universal nuisance, judging by the mail from readers who insist Fibber McGee must have built their homes.

Sometimes the only way to correct such a deficiency is to buy or build a wardrobe. Some people regain room by culling out old duds and sending them to a rummage sale. Often, however, a little reorganization does wonders.

Several readers seeking ideas on this subject were troubled by little things—where to put scarves, gloves, purses, hats, boxes, etc.—because dresser drawers and closet shelves had physical limitations.

Only material necessary to build these pigeon-hole shelves is a 3 x 4 section of 1/4 inch tempered hardboard.

Our suggestion was to build simple pigeon-hole shelves which can sit on your closet shelf, doubling and compartmenting the shelf area.

The pigeon-hole shelves use egg-crate construction design with no wood supports necessary. The only material needed to make these pigeon-hole shelves is a 3x4 section of 1/4-inch tempered hardboard.

The shelves, sides and divider can be quickly and accurately cut from this one piece of material with a portable electric saw. Shelves are 2 1/2 feet long, 1 foot wide, sides and divider 1 1/4 feet high by 1 foot wide.

A saw also will be needed to cut three 6-inch slots in each shelf, side, and divider. Once this is done and you have painted the hardboard—put on a coat of primer, too—you are ready to fit the slotted pieces together to form extra shelf space.

If you wish to incorporate a number of these pigeon-hole shelf units into a room divider or a large storage unit, use 1x12 lumber supports.

YOU'RE MAKING A BIG MISTAKE IF YOU'RE NOT DRINKING 80 PROOF GIN!

If you think higher proof means higher quality — that's a mistake.

If you think you have to pay more money to get a better gin — that's a mistake.

If you think the gin most Englishmen drink is more than 80 proof — that's a mistake.

You should know, to begin with, that America is practically the only civilized country in the world that drinks high-proof gin. The British, who perfected gin, know that gin has an ideal taste and flavor balance, and they prefer it at milder, smoother 80 proof. Here's the whole story:

80 PROOF GIN TASTES BETTER
"Proof" is no measure of quality. It's a measure of alcohol content alone. (100 proof means 50% alcohol.) Alcohol itself has no flavor. The pleasant taste of gin comes entirely from the herbs with which it's distilled.

The best test of gin is to drink it straight or on-the-rocks. You'll find 80 proof gin has the big taste advantage of 80 proof mildness — with the same full flavor of higher proof gins.

80 PROOF GIN COSTS LESS
Gins are taxed by the U.S. on their proof or alcohol content, only. The lower the proof — the lower the taxes, and the lower the cost to you. When you buy an imported label, you add the cost of shipping and duties. That pushes the price even higher, without giving you 80 proof quality.

80 PROOF GIN MAKES BETTER MARTINIS
It makes them extra dry, as you like them, but not extra strong. Twenty years ago, the 3-to-1 Martini was standard. Today, with the trend to dryer Martinis, they're made 6-, 7-, even 8-to-1. As a result the modern Martini has climbed from a smooth 76.5 proof to an overwhelming 84-proof! Solution? Mix with 80 proof gin. It gives you the same full, dry gin flavor, but it returns the Martini to its original, more moderate proof.

80 PROOF GIN MAKES BETTER TALL DRINKS
When you mix a tall drink, like a Collins or a gin 'n tonic, you dilute the strength of the gin "to taste." You also mix for balance of flavor. 80 proof gin will give you better balance. You don't have to drown it to drink it.

HOW TO MAKE DRY MARTINIS MAKE MORE SENSE

Using Standard 36 Proof Dry Vermouth	Using 90 Proof Dry Gin	Using 80 Proof Dry Gin (or Vodka)
3 — to — 1 (Traditional)	76.5 Proof	69.0 Proof
5 — to — 1 (Dry)	81.0 Proof	72.6 Proof
8 — to — 1 (Extra Dry)	84.0 Proof	75.1 Proof

(The "standard" proof for today's bottled Martinis is a moderate 67.5 proof!)

OLD MR. BOSTON IS THE FINEST GIN YOU CAN BUY

It's vacuum distilled at an unusually low temperature in special glass-lined stills. Only at such a low temperature, is it possible to capture the most delicate essence of the herbs. This is one reason for Old Mr. Boston's flavor distinction. It is America's first and largest-selling 80 proof Dry Gin!

FOREST AGENCIES READY FOR ANNUAL PROTECTION FIGHT
(By Roger L. Guernsey)
State Forester
Idaho's several forest protection agencies are now at a peak of readiness to lead the annual battle against forest and range fires. The weather has been quite cooperative so far, allowing more time than usual to train seasonal employees, give refresher courses to veteran fire supervisors, and put equipment in top shape.
Idaho and a couple of other western states are unique in that we have four separate types of agencies sharing fire control responsibilities. These agencies are the U. S. Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the Timber Protective Associations, and the State Forester's Department. All efforts are coordinated through the State Forester to avoid duplication, and to get the most effective use of available manpower and machines. Each agency has its own assigned area of responsibility and these areas are selected primarily on the basis that the majority landowner handles the protection. The land districts protected by the state are primarily privately owned.
Idaho has good laws designed to protect our beautiful and valuable forests from fire. Probably the most important is the basic law, Section 38-107, Idaho Code, which makes every owner of forest land responsible for protecting his own land from fire. This is an excellent law but one which no longer recognizes all major factors involved. It is becoming increasingly difficult to control the outbreak of fire on his land because of the increased access and public use of such lands for all types of recreation. Also, it does not seem fair that the owner should have to bear the full cost of protecting resources that yield great values of many kinds to the general public as well as the owner. Likewise, fire fighting has become so expensive that the cost of protection often exceeds the annual income of the land itself.
Actually, most owners do not have to carry the full burden of protection. Most list their lands with one of the agencies mentioned above and in that way contract their share of the burden. The cost of protection has been averaging about 14c per acre through the forests of Idaho the last three years, all of which were bad fire years.
The owners of Class 1 forest land, or land primarily valuable for growing forest crops, have been paying 6c per acre on most districts. Owners of other lands, primarily grazing, have been paying 3c per acre. The balance is paid by the federal and state governments. The larger forest owners who have elected to protect their own lands through forming timber associations pay a bigger share and even as high as 58c per acre in 1959 in one district.
The listing of lands for protection is good, low-cost insurance for the owner. For example, the owner of 80 acres of forest land, by paying $4.80 per year protection, can free himself of the possible liability for paying a fire suppression bill of $1,000.00 or $10,000, or even more.
The second most important law is the one establishing the closed fire season and making it illegal to burn without a permit between May 1 and October 31. This is an essential help to the forest protection agencies in controlling burning and confining it to safe periods. I would like to emphasize that burning is permitted during all these months. The only requirement is that it be safe and by permit. This is the key to effective fire control.
Anyone having questions about either of these basic laws or any others is urged to contact his local Forest Warden or Ranger. Forest owners and the benefiting general public need the full cooperation of everyone to "Keep Idaho Green!"
Fresh and cured meats of all kinds are obtainable at Blewett's Market in Kendrick.

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS:
You know, we've talked so much about our wonderful Union Products, and our phone number of 4251 — and our service at the Station — also, of course, with those wonderful Union Products — that we've decided to give you a rest, and devote this space to the lighter side of life — jokes!

Smith's symptoms were alarming enough to send him to a doctor for a check-up. Having fortified himself at a tavern, he went through the examination and was awaiting the report in the reception room. When the doctor appeared, Smith asked eagerly: "What does the report show, Doc?"

"According to this analysis," answered the medico, "there is every indication that a small percentage of blood is getting into your alcohol system."

A tipsy young civilian breezed into the recruiting station one day and announced he wanted to enlist.

"Do you want a commission?" inquired the recruiting officer.

"No, thanks," was the cocky reply. "I'm such a lousy shot that I'll be better off working on a straight salary."
