WEATHER RAINY BUT WARM

"Rain, rain, go away, come again some other day", is the comment locally so far as the weather is concerned.

Although temperatures have been comfortably warm, some days in the "shirt sleeve" class, there has been just enough rain to keep fields too wet to permit spring work, and logging roads too soft to permit timber operations.

Lawns are a brilliant green, and "growing like crazy." Lilies are bursting into bloom, cherry and apple trees are in full bloom — and so it goes.

Truly the old saw "April showers bring May flowers" is true in this area — but spring work is behind schedule.

The Potlatch river is about at its usual height for this time of year — but is also unusually clear.

WHEAT SUPPORT PRICE IS SET

The 1963 wheat price support rates have been set at $1.68 per bushel for Latah county by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This rate is based on Grade No. 1 wheat, warehouse stored, and may vary a few cents depending on date of delivery. The rate for farm stored No. 1 wheat is $1.77. The 1963 barley price support rate for No. 2 or better is $36.27 per ton warehouse stored, and $37.50 for No. 3 or better oats. All prices will vary slightly depending on date of delivery. Wheat producers are reminded by Elvin Lindsay, ASCS office manager that written appeals regarding 1964 wheat allotments, or wheat normal yields must be received in the ASCS office by May 7, 1963. An appointment schedule for farmers to meet with the ASCS county committee will be made at a later date, and wheat production records and supporting evidence may be submitted at this time. All proven yields must be based on net production, that is, after dockage has been subtracted. The 1961 allotment notices mailed April 22, to 1219 Latah County wheat producers represent a County wheat allotment slightly larger than that in 1962. There are 431 producers in Latah county with allotments under 15 acres, who are reminded to sign the back side of their MQ-24, allotment notice and return it to the ASCS office prior to May 13 to be eligible to vote in the May 21 referendum.

GROUND-WATER LAW IS CHANGED

Boise Idaho's Legislature, during the Thirty-Second Session amended the Ground Water Statutes which simplifies procedure in establishing "Critical Ground Water Areas" to the extent that the Reclamation Engineer may determine what areas are Critical and also that applications may be processed without the expense and delay of publication of notice of intention to drill a well. The Ground Water Statutes also provides that if, in the opinion of the Reclamation Department, orders or decisions of a local ground water board are being violated, the Reclamation Engineer shall request the prosecuting attorney of the respective county to bring appropriate action for enforcement.

These amendments emphasize the need of well logs, many of them have never been submitted as required by Idaho Code, 42-283. Forecasts indicate a diminishing water supply in many areas. Logs are therefore needed to aid in assessing the possibility of depletion. The Reclamation Department is considering withholding issuance of well drilling licenses until delinquent logs have been submitted. Ground water resources are a great asset to this state and millions of dollars have been spent in developing it. The amendments are designed to safeguard present investments and perhaps prevent expenditures of money in what might be a vain attempt to develop new water supplies. A copy of the statutes may be had upon request to the State Reclamation Department, Room 107, State House, Boise, Idaho.

MANY ANIMALS GRAZE NATIONAL FOREST GROUND

Missoula — A total of 304,181 animals were grazed last year on the 16 National Forests of the Northern Region, Boyd L. Rasmussen, regional forester, reports.

In 1962, Rasmussen said, 142,835 cattle horses and 161,346 sheep and goats grazed these public lands in Montana, northern Idaho, Eastern Washington, and eastern North and South Dakota.

An additional 65,433 animals (56,902 cattle horses; 8,531 sheep and goats) grazed on the Custer National Forest National Grasslands in North Dakota and South Dakota. Most of the Northern Region's National Forest grazing was in Montana where 1,690 paid permits were issued for 118,235 cattle and horses and 105 permits were issued for grazing of 146,074 sheep and goats. Last year sheep grazing on the 16 National Forests decreased while cattle grazing increased over the previous year. A favorable season resulted in an increase of approximately two per cent in grazing use in the Region.

Forest Service grazing fees are deposited with the U. S. Treasury. Twenty five per cent of all National Forest earnings (timber sales grazing, special permits, etc.) are returned to those counties containing National Forest lands. By law, these funds are used by the counties for schools and roads.

DOROTHY MEYER
WRITES FAREWELL TO FRIENDS

Kendrick, Idaho, April 15, 1963
Dear Friends:

The lovely Idaho springtime makes me want to package the fresh breath of spring into my trunks as I prepare to return to India's hot season. How good it is to spend a second Easter at home.

More than a year has passed since Hermina and I gave an account of our trip home. Shortly thereafter we travelled by car, speaking in many churches, Luther League and ALCW conventions throughout the Northwest, and then in North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Illinois and Iowa, where we were accompanied by Duane Meske and Grandma Schmidt.

In June, Mom, Dad, Hermy and I attended the World's Fair in Seattle and Alumni Day at P. L. U., where Loeda is now a senior. Hermy then spent the summer months at the Deaconess Hospital, flying back to India in November. My summer included more speaking, attending the ALCW convention, beginning work on master's thesis, and joining a summer farm activities which included entertaining many guests.

In September I returned to Biblical Seminary in New York City. With present graduate standards sixteen credit hours kept "rusty yours truly" more than pouring over the books. The thesis requirement was another hurdle, the writing of which was not completed until this March and the outcome of which is still not known. Approval will mean graduation with Master's of Religious Education Degree in absentia in May. It was a time of refreshment with much inspirational Bible study and fellowship with students from around the world. Special highlights were "my home away from home" with the Scopes in New York and my coming home to Idaho for Christmas.

Traveling by train enroute home from New York I stopped in Detroit to visit special friends; in Chicago to visit special relatives, and in North Dakota to see Millie, former India co-worker whose work I will now look after -- the Industrial School and Old Folks Home -- along with the Bible women's work and training program.

Even though this has been a very busy furlough, it has been a most wonderful one. It would have been hard to fit anything more into it unless it were time with my precious family -- my parents, brother, sisters, nieces, nephew, grandma, and all the rest. Shopping, packing and visiting will more than keep me busy until April 27th when the folks will drive me to Seattle where I will board a plane on April 30th, at 8:00 p. m. After a short visit with a dear friend in Japan I shall arrive in Madras on May 8th where Hermy will be waiting. As I return for a third term of service I know I carry

SOIL CONVERSATION

"These Renovated Pastures Really are 'Bully'!"

Soil Conservation Society of America

The crows recognize that it may not be the farm for "peaches and cream" nor "milk and honey" -- but it's a "honey" just the same. Economical beef production can be the secret to increased income on your farm. And renovated pastures supply young beef animals with a nutritious diet -- and increased soil fertility at the same time. Get advice on such a practice from your local soil conservation district. Now!

with me your wishes for a safe journey and satisfying years ahead in the service of Him who lived, died and arose that we too might live. God's promise is sure. "I will strengthen . . . help . . . and uphold. . . ." Isaiah 41:10.

CHRYSANTHEMUM
SPRING HANDLING

U. of I. Moscow, A different method of re-establishing hardy chrysanthemums each spring can be very successful in Idaho gardens, according to W. H. Snyder, University of Idaho horticulturist.

"The problem of relying on old plants to reestablish themselves outdoors is that many tender varieties look good during late winter only to wither and die when active growth begins in April or early May," Snyder der explained. "The untimely death of the plant is believed to be caused by root damage from frost heaving late in the winter. As a result, few or no functional roots are available to supply active growing shoots with water and these shoots wither and die."

Often early season cuttings can be made from the new green shoots and rooted indoors prior to the time they might fall out-of doors Snyder said. This involves removing the short, leafy shoots around the outside of the old clump with a sharp knife and rooting in clean sand. Treating the cuttings with a root-inducing "hormone" prior to inserting into the sand is also advisable, Snyder said.

Insert the cuttings about 3/4 inches deep in a large, shallow pot filled with clean sand or a mixture of 50 per cent sand and 50 per cent peatmoss. To keep the humidity high, cover the pot with a polyethylene bag. Place the pot in a shallow saucer contain ing water. Add water occasionally. Place in a north or east window. Check periodically to be sure sand is moist and no rotting is taking place. If rotting begins, loosen the polyfilm bag for aeration.

The cuttings may be potted when the roots are 1/2 inch long. If the season is warm and settled, say in late May, these new plants may also be set out in the garden if the plants are protected from heat and wind. "Here at the university, small mum plants grown from cuttings have bloomed well after planting as late as mid-June," Snyder reported.

Religion is not knowledge, but a direction of the heart.

SCHOOL NOTES

Sixth Grade News

We observed Arbor Day by planting a lilac for each room and holding a general assembly, where through songs, choral readings and individual readings by all the grades the purpose of and the history of Arbor Day was emphasized.

Following the assembly and planting we cleaned up the school yard and finished pruning the trees in front of the school house. By the time this was all completed it was time for the buses and dismissal.

All feel it was a very fruitful day and we wish to thank Willard Bowen for the use of the truck, into which we loaded the tree limbs and trash.
