

CARELESS DRIVING LEADS TO DEATH SAYS SAFETY DEPT.

May is a month for increased driving. It's the time of year when experimental picnics are held before actual outdoor living gets into full swing. Thousands of motorists will venture onto gravel and dirt roads that might have been closed or hub-deep with mud during the winter and late spring.

This is also the time of year when needless accidents increase and the death toll starts to climb. Past experience indicates that in May the pattern for the year's traffic picture might be set. The unwary motorists often bear down a little too heavy on the accelerator. While they're getting that "new feeling of spring" they might become careless on highway curves, totally oblivious of country road intersections, where there might or might not be stop or yield signs, and indifferent to the car and its occupants just up ahead.

Spring tonic from the very air should be enough stimulant without resorting to intoxicants, but whether it's "just a nip" or "a full snoot-full" the chances of death and serious injury are multiplied many times when liquor is added to other non-sensical driving.

Last May, 20 people died on Idaho's highways and country roads. In each fatal accident there were clear out violations that indicated thoughtlessness and carelessness rather than any willful intent to break the law. Regardless of the motive of each violating driver, 20 people died 11 of them the drivers themselves.

Idaho is a beautiful state for travel, especially during spring months. All of the roads, including four-lane freeways, graveled country roads and Forest Service roads are safe to drive on - - providing the drivers use good judgment and adjust their driving habits to conditions.

Root - crown rot is evident in some fields of winter wheat, according to Harry Finwick, plant pathologist of the University of Idaho extension service. Tests are being made in the University laboratory to identify the fungi responsible.

Fresh and cured meats of all kinds are obtainable at Blewett's Market in Kendrick. 1-adv

EGG LAW WILL AFFECT MOST PRODDUCERS

U. of I. Moscow, A grading law passed by the 1963 session of the Idaho legislature may result in greater consumption of eggs, Robert Black poultry specialist of the University of Idaho extension service, predicted this week.

The law goes into effect July 1. One of the main reasons the poultry industry asked for the law, Black said, was that Idaho has been the dumping ground for "junk" eggs. Neighboring states have had higher standards. Eggs that could not be sold in those states have been offered on Idaho markets. Because they could not be sure of quality, consumers have bought fewer eggs than they would otherwise. This lack of confidence has reduced the income of Idaho poultrymen.

After June 30, all shell eggs sold for human consumption in the state must meet strict standards of sanitation, handling and storage. Regulations are administered by the Idaho commissioner of agriculture. Each establishment distributing eggs will obtain a $10 annual license. The year license for each egg candler will be $2.50. Every carton of eggs will have a state seal.

"The first thing of importance about the bill," Black said, "is the fact that no ungraded eggs can be sold at retail, with certain exceptions. It is also of considerable importance to producers that it may be necessary for them to do their own grading. This will be true if they wish to sell ungraded eggs direct to the consumer who comes to the farm.

"There may be many instances where the producer will also be an egg candler and distributor. Under such circumstances, it would be necessary to buy an egg-grader's license and a distributor's license.

"Cost of equipment for cleaning, grading, and candling depends on the size of the operation. For small flocks the cost of cleaning is small. Hand cleaning devices can be bought for less than one dollar. For larger flocks, egg washers run around $50 and up. Candlers for a few eggs can be obtained for around $5. Automatic graders with candler attached cost about $200. This equipment will handle the eggs from a 2,000-layer flock in about one hour a day."

Two International Farm Exchange students are assigned to Idaho this year. Malcolm Guy of New Zealand arrived in April. Eugenie Feyder of Luxembourg will start her visit in August.

Several readers have written to ask if we have any plans for a handsome yet easy-to-make bookcase. The plan we sent them is simple and can be adapted to space available.

Material can be chosen to match your present furniture if you wish to stain the bookcase.

This is an adaptable and easily constructed bookcase that can be made in any home workshop.

The size of the bookcase not only depends on where it will be placed, but on the size and number of books to be stored. It can be 2 feet high or the entire height of the wall. It can be 3 feet wide or the length of a wall.

Regardless of the size, a few basic portable electric power tools—circular saw, jig saw, sander, and drill—will let you do the work easily and quickly.

Stock for this bookcase should be 1x10 for storing average books. If larger books are to be placed on the shelves, larger stock must necessarily be used.

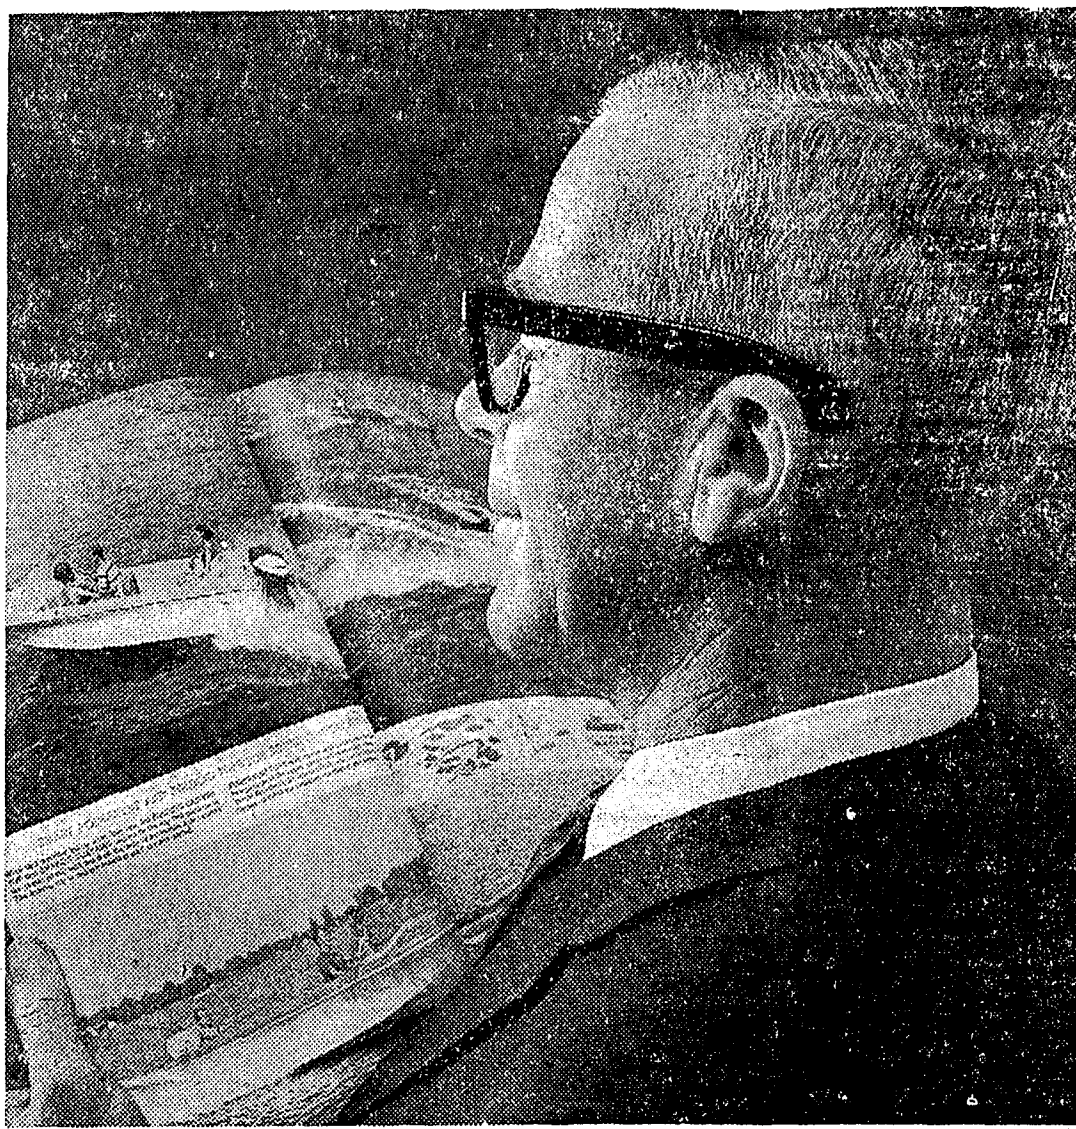

For those who want a three-shelf case and not an entire-wall bookcase, the shelves can be cut to exact dimensions by clamping the wood together, aligning, and cutting boards at one time. The ends can be cut the same way to assure identical lengths for end pieces. The top should be approximately 2 1/2 inches longer than the shelves to achieve the proper overhang of about 1/2 inch.

A provision for shelf adjustment can be added by drilling two rows of 1/4 inch holes 3/4 inch deep in the end pieces, approximately 1 1/2 inches inside each edge. The space between the shelves should be approximately 9 inches to accommodate the average-size book, but these adjustable holes will allow for larger books. Small wood pegs can be inserted in the holes to support the shelves, or hardware can be purchased for supporting them.

Sand all surfaces smooth with your electric sander before assembling and after assembly round off all corners with the sander so there are no sharp edges or splinters.

(You can receive plans for this bookcase, without charge, by writing to the Thor Research Center, Marengo, Ill. Ask for Project No. BC201.)

One of a series of reports by this newspaper and the Print Advertising Association on the advantages of print media

Don't you read before you buy?

Most people generally do. Not only do they read; they cut out and show ads to their family and friends; they clip coupons for information and samples.

When people see an advertisement in print, they can compare designs... features... and prices of nationally known products and services. (And people do compare before they buy.)

Advertising in print is a handy thing. You can always check back; the message is still there even if your attention is distracted.

When you add it up, print advertising—the kind you read in this newspaper—makes sense. And because it measures up to the buying habits of most consumers, print makes sales.

DEATH STALKS IDAHO HIGHWAYS TOLL IS UP

Boise — Idaho's annual count of its traffic dead is almost always marked with an unduly large number of one-car accidents.

For several years the incidence of fatal accidents resulting from driving off the road or hitting fixed objects, such as bridge abutments, has been considerably higher in the Gem state than in the nation as a whole. In 1962 nearly 45 percent of Idaho's traffic deaths occurred in such accidents and the first four months of this year have produced an even higher percentage of such death-dealing wrecks.

LOCALS ATTEND NORTHWEST MEET OF CHURCH

The 22nd annual meeting of the Pacific Northwest Methodist Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service included representatives from the Methodist Church at Juliaetta and the Kendrick Community Church.

The conference met May 8, 9 and 10 at Central Methodist Church in Spokane, with 500 delegates and visitors representing most of the 236 local church societies in Washington and northern Idaho. Presiding was Mrs. John Eby, Auburn, Wash., conference president.

Delegates pledged $97,000 from their local societies in support of national and world missionary outreach. Of this, $5,000 will open a new program, helping to provide a professional rural church worker in the Clearwater (Idaho) Group Ministry, where six ministers serve 12 churches. This worker, Mrs. H. B. Tandy of Moody, Texas, will begin her service August 1st.

A featured speaker was Bishop Everett W. Palmer of Seattle, who cautioned that 25,000 Protestant churches in the United States are without ministers. He said: "Here in the Pacific Northwest we are producing about one-fourth of the ministers we need. The job of a pastor asks of a man more gifts, more talents and more balance than any other vocation on earth, and ministers have to be produced in the hearts of Godly, praying mothers."

Delegates from the local societies were Mrs. Bob Hutcheson of Juliaetta; Mrs. John Deobald and Mrs. A. O. Kanikteberg of Kendrick. Visitors attending were Mrs. Raleigh Albright of Juliaetta and Mrs. Howard Hoffman of Kendrick.

THE F. B. I. DEFINES FREEDOM FOR ALL IN THE U. S. A.

Freedom means different things to different people. To Americans, it means a way of life, the pursuit of individual liberty and happiness under Law, not the rule of man. Our system of government under law is based on a moral and spiritual concept. Its origin and development stemmed from the love of individual freedom and justice. We hold these fundamental rights to be sacred and secure from governmental abuse. Yet liberty and justice cannot survive without orderly restraint. Freedom-loving people believe man is best served under a self-administered rule of law, with a maximum of liberty and a minimum of restraint. Where freedom prevails there must be security. They are inseparable. To be free and to remain free, man must be relatively secure. He must rely on the stability of order created and maintained by the rule of law. Likewise to be secure -- to achieve the stability of order through justice under law -- man must be free. The significance of proper enforcement of law to the welfare of our society -- although often overlooked -- is a paramount issue. It helps to maintain the delicate balance between the rights of individual and the rights of society. In recent years, we have seen an accelerated trend in some quarters to overrun the rights of society. This is particularly true in the realm of organized crime and the underworld. More and more our judicial-legal system is being circumvented by the criminal elite. They hide behind a small battery of lawyers -- criminal bought with blood money to shield their lawless schemes. These persons could not care less for constitutional rights, except as an expedient to avert punishment for their crimes. Communists, too, are an undermining force bent on destroying our rule of law while basking in the light of freedom which it provides. They spew the germs of a godless ideology which seeks the destruction of our free government; however they show no qualms in scurrying to the shelter of our Constitution when it serves their cause. It was Lincoln who stated, "Let reverence of the law . . . become the political religion of the nation." Special observances of Law Day, U. S. A., and Police Week should accentuate our obligations as Americans to promote the "reverence of the law" and to defend our society against all enemies. Law, after all, is the sustaining link between man and freedom. J. Edgar Hoover

BACK IN BUYING MARKET

Moscow -- Four buying points, Kellogg, Troy, Kendrick and Princeton have re-entered the sawlog market since the February Quarterly Market report covering Latah, Benevaw, Kootenai and Shoshone counties. This development reflects an increase in the volume of lumber that is now being marketed, according to Rus Slade, Extension Farm Forester. The May issue of the Quarterly Market Report also shows only a 10c to 50c increase in average delivered values for sawlogs. This condition is in line with the lag on any large price increase on lumber which usually develops in the spring. Douglas Fir and larch sawlogs are wanted in all the following buying points: St. Maries, Plummer, Tensed, Fernwood, Moscow, Kendrick, Troy. 12 Home Handyman Projects New Booklet Shows How To Build Things from Wood Original designs for an even dozen simple build-it-yourself jobs in and around the house are included in this booklet. Created and issued by the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, each design is illustrated and described with step-by-step instructions. Got a hammer? A saw? A yen to make things out of wood? You don't need much else, if you enjoy following instructions for simple but handsome and useful furniture, accessories, minor additions to your home. A new booklet of 12 simple build-it-yourself projects has just been published by the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. All are original designs or adaptations of famous ones. Most of the items have already been published in handyman magazines and syndicated newspaper columns throughout the country -- a testimonial to their good design. Among the projects described and illustrated in the 26-page booklet are: a modern coffee table made from one width of wood, a storage unit for books and phonograph records, one of the finest workbenches ever designed, a room divider with a built-in planter, a utility rack for use in washroom, kitchen, garage; and more ambitious projects such as a child's real playhouse and a wood deck for addition to the house. Every job in the booklet has clear, step-by-step instructions, accompanied by a scale drawing of the finished project and exploded views with all dimensions clearly shown. Also included are the complete hardware and lumber order and the list of tools required. For a copy of "12 Simple Home Projects," write to the Wood Information Center, National Lumber Manufacturers Association, 1619 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington 6, D. C., enclosing 20 cents (to cover handling and mailing costs).

Be sure and attend the Kendrick Locust Blossom Festival -- May 25!

IDAHO EDUCATION LEADERS REPORT ON CONFERENCES

Elmer S. Crowley, executive secretary of the Idaho Education Association, in reporting on a series of educational conferences held throughout the state early last week, said that teachers in increasing numbers are leaving Idaho due to the inability of school districts to pay acceptable salaries and meet other essential costs. He said that this stems from the failure of the 1963 Legislature to bring about tax revisions and provide an adequate appropriation for the public schools. He noted that the Legislature has removed the local tax limit of 30 mills but imposed such stringent regulations on the increase levy that many school boards are reluctant to make use of it. As a result, Idaho is currently in an educational crisis. Unless the taxpayers at the local level are willing to provide more financial support, conditions in Idaho will become steadily worse, he said.

This crisis was the subject of discussion in the six area conferences in which 33 district, state and national educational leaders, including eight staff members of the National Education Association met with representatives of the 100 IEA local education associations to explore avenues of action.

1. Morale among teachers in sections of the state is very low. A great number of teachers are frustrated and see little future for them in Idaho. They are tired of fighting problems which have existed for many years. Other states, aware of conditions, are carrying on intensive campaigns to attract Idaho teachers for the coming year.

2. Many school districts are planning to increase the fees charged to parents for textbooks and other materials, are eliminating some academic programs, delaying improvements, failing to fill some vacancies, increasing class size and contemplating the reduction of special services. Already far too many districts are failing to provide counseling and guidance service, technical education and library facilities.

3. In spite of the restrictions, approximately half of the school districts in southeastern Idaho indicate they are planning for increasing levies ranging from 3 to 16 mills. This is true to a lesser extent in the southwestern and northern sections of the state.

As a result of the conferences, the educational leaders made the following recommendations:

1. That since the state has failed to meet its commitment to education, residents of each community, particularly through their organized groups mobilize support to assure more financial assistance at the local level.

2. That local education associations make use of every resource available through the Idaho Education Assoc-

GAME DEPT. BUILDS BRIDGE, ROAD

New access bridge completed by the Idaho Fish and Game department on the Fort Boise Wildlife Management area is being inspected by Ivot Sies, improvement supervisor, and Howard Kaster, refuge manager. The 60-foot span across Sand Hollow Drain provides public access to the north side of the mouth of the Boise river and the snake river for fishing, and to excellent waterfowl and upland bird hunting areas. The bridge and a new road also permit the public to drive to the vicinity of the original Fort Boise location, a famous historical landmark.

FILM ON BEANS IS VERY POPULAR

Boise — The Idaho Bean Commission announces its promotional film, "Sun, Soil and Water," was among 1962's ten most-viewed television films distributed by the Modern Talking Picture Service, Inc. of New York.

Bean Commission administrator Harold West, Boise said the rating showed that the film on Idaho's famous bean had been shown 279 times on television and had reached a viewing audience rated at 7,086,000 people during the year. Its viewership ranked 9th among 486 sponsored films which were distributed by the New York firm.

West noted that the film had received equally wide circulation during 1961, and total audience of the film is now nearly 15,000,000. Television studios which have shown the film extend from Winter Park, Florida, to Nome, Alaska. "Sun, Soil and Water" sells not only the Idaho bean but promotes all of Idaho with its scenic backgrounds," West said. "We are proud that this the first film produced by the Bean Commission has had such a tremendous reception and are confident that our new film, "Me and the King" will also do a tremendous job for the Idaho bean, the Idaho Potato and all of our state.

GOLDEN RULE

BY ALMA BETTS

May 14 — The Southwick Homemakers Club met with Mrs. D. V. Kuykendall Thursday. Following a delicious dinner a short business session was held. Mrs. Albert Lawrence gave a lesson on "Your Family Can Have Fun Together" all of which developed into a very interesting discussion.

The Southwick Homecoming Day picnic will be held on June 2nd — with dinner at 1:00 p. m. It is potluck, so please bring your own table service.

There will be an open meeting on Friday, May 17th, at the Clearwater Power Co. auditorium in Lewiston. A movie, "The Owl and Fred Jones" a cartoon on weight control, will be shown. A corsetiere will discuss "Foundation Garments." Come out and bring your friends.

Adaline Swanson spent Tuesday with Mrs. George Finke. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Souders were evening callers.

Mr. and Mrs. George Finke and Alma Betts were among those attending the funeral of George Christensen, at Lewiston, Wednesday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Finge attended the funeral of Frances Forest at Orofino, Saturday. Later they visited in the Carl Finke and Jim Finke homes.

In honor of Mother's Day Mrs. Chas. Baack was the honor guest at a dinner Sunday in the George Finke home. Mrs. Gloria Wilson and sons of Kendrick were also guests. Mrs. Elmer Souders and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Miller, the latter of Lewiston were afternoon callers.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilken of Kendrick and Mrs. Marlene Bowers and daughters were Wednesday evening visitors of Alma Betts. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Storch of Lewiston were Sunday callers.

Jane Pishel of Orofino visited her aunt, Emma Hasse, Sunday afternoon.

The next Southwick Homemakers Club meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Darwin Tarry, June 13 — evening — instead of the Aaron Wells home as stated in our books.

Mrs. Wilbur Stalnaker and sister, Mrs. Emil Beyer, called on Mrs. Albert Lawrence, Monday.

TALENT SHOW HELD SUNDAY

The attendance at the "Talent" Show in the Kendrick Community Church Monday evening was only "fair." Those who were present enjoyed it to the fullest, as the talent was exceptional and varied.

Gifts of appreciation were presented by the Woman's Society of Christian Service to Mrs. Herman Schupfer, organist, and Clive Lindsay, choir director, for their faithful service over the past year.

Published Weekly by the Union Oil Service at Kendrick
W. L. "Bill" Rogers, Editor

HELLO, THERE, FOLKS:

Say, are you planning to spend Saturday May 25 at the Locust Blossom Festival in Kendrick — if not, why not? You'll have the time of your life!

Visitor: "Johnny, do you have a piggy bank?"
Little Johnny: "No, but I have a billfold."

When you come in to attend the Locust Blossom Festival stop in for a tankful of Union 7600 or Royal 76 Gasolines. You'll like the power they give you!

Friend: "I bet you think twice before you leave that wife of yours alone for an evening."

Man: "Yup. First I think up an excuse for going out — then I dream up a reason why she can't go along!"

While you're in town for the Locust Blossom Festival stop in and see our new Union Minuteman Tire — the first one good enough to bear our name! Reasonable in price — yet fully guaranteed.

Bride: "Do you still take an interest in everything I do?"
Hubby: "Why certainly, dear. For example I've spent all day wondering what you put in that pie we had for supper last night."

While in town for the Locust Blossom Festival let us grease and service your car. You'll like our service and Union Products!
