Unusual Wedding Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Heath are not only among the best known pioneer residents of this area, but fifty years ago truly made wedding history. From a Kendrick Gazette, dated Friday, April 17, 1914, comes the historically accurate account of their wedding, under the heading: "As They Crossed The Clearwater."

"Because all the Lewiston ministers were engaged Sunday forenoon in conducting their Easter services, it befell the lot of Mildred Kittrell of Illo and N. E. Heath of Lenore to be united in marriage under novel circumstances.

"The ceremony uniting in marriage the happy couple was performed on the Lewiston-Spokane train (No. 314) at 1:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon just as the train was pulling over the big bridge at Spalding, and was witnessed by all the passengers. Rev. F. D. Muse of the Christian Church of Lewiston tied the knot.

"Rev. Muse, after conducting the morning services at the Lewiston church, took the train to Juliaetta to conduct evening services there. Shortly after the train pulled out Johnnie Roberts, the popular conductor, learned that Miss Kittrell and Mr. Heath were in possession of a marriage license, and learned also of their misfortune in not being able to secure a minister in Lewiston.

"Roberts knew Rev. Muse and immediately secured his services with the result that the troubles of Miss Kittrell and Mr. Heath were soon at an end. Mr. Heath had secured the marriage license on Saturday and the bride-to-be reached Lewiston on the 11:00 o'clock train Sunday from Illo. After failing to secure a Lewiston minister, the couple took the train, with the view of getting married in Latah county.

"They will continue their bridal tour to Spokane and other points near that city. They will make their future home on 'Cream Ridge.'

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white wool suit with a blue silk blouse and matching blue accessories. Her bouquet was of white button chrysanthemums and was centered with a cypripedium orchid corsage.

The groom chose a cousin, James Hoduffer of Moscow, as best man. Both wore dark suits. Paul and Joe Stegner, cousins, lighted the candles.

The wedding reception was held in the home of the groom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Cook, following the church ceremony. A beautiful white cake, decorated in delicate blue and topped with wedding bells centered the lace-covered refreshment table. Blue candles in crystal candelabra flanked the cake. After the newly-weds had cut the traditional first piece it was served by a sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Albert Hofeldt. ## ATHLETIC FIELD IS BEING COMPLETELY REMODELED

From the office of Supt. James V. Muscat comes this school information, of interest to all:

Athletic and Playfield
Extensive work is being done on the athletic and play field near the Junior-Senior High school. Crews and equipment from the Kendrick Highway District; Everett Farrington, Logging Contractor; the State Forestry Dept.; Villages of Juliaetta and Kendrick, and Gordon Peters and Emil Silflow farms have contributed greatly to the work being done there.

Hundreds of yards of dirt have been moved and leveled. There has been some rebuilding on the dyke and the road, and the play ground has been extended. The new area is being leveled and refloated with a drag. A bed of chopped straw will be mulched over the area that is not now in turf, and it will be seeded later.

A temporary fence will be put in, and later the grounds will be permanently fenced. Approximately four acres is involved, and within this area there will be all outdoor playfields, including baseball, softball, tennis courts, etc. A pump will be installed in order to utilize water from Bear creek for irrigation. Plans are also underway for lighting this area for night contests. It has been a big operation, and much credit is due those who have donated equipment and labor on this important project.

CLOSE GUESS ON DERBY TIME

Three local folk made very close guesses on the time required for the running of the annual Potlatch Derby — in fact, Mrs. Max Clemenhagen missed the time by only one second.

Running time required was one hour, 28 minutes and 59 seconds. Mrs. Max Clemenhagen guessed the time at one hour, 29 minutes, and thereby was $15.00 richer. Mrs. George Brocks, Jr., guessed the time at one hour, 28 minutes and 13 seconds, to win $10.00. Everett Farrington estimated the time at one hour and 28 minutes — and won $5.00.

The Scouts, who this year "ran the Derby" sold 135 tickets at $1.00 each, and thereby emerged $100.00 richer. Jim Travis, Scoutmaster, and Jerry Brown, Asst. Scoutmaster, say all truly appreciate the help and cooperation of local residents in this, one of that organizations big undertakings.

THINGS ARE NOW TURNING GREEN

After a week in which the local weather could be quite accurately described as "more like March than April" things are really beginning to turn into the green that denotes the arrival of spring.

Lawns are brilliant, and the "sput-sput" or "clack-clack" of lawn mowers has become quite common. Daffodils are in full bloom, and a few early tulips may be seen.

Sunday was a raw, chill day, with a cold rain falling most of the time. It effectively put a stop to outdoor operations by local residents — and of course this latter included motor trips and work about the lawns and premises.

QUAKE AFFECTS WELL WATER LEVEL

U. of I., Moscow — Scientists making a routine check of a water level recording gauge at the University of Idaho let out whistles the gauge at 7:30 p. m., March 27 — time of the first big jolt of the Alaskan earthquake — had gone wild, indicating the water level in the well had fluctuated more than five feet.

Daniel Sokol, hydrologist for the Idaho Bureau of Mines and Geology, and Prof. Robert Jones of the College of Mines said there was no way of telling how much more than five feet the water level had been shifted by the Alaskan quake, because five feet is the maximum fluctuation that can be recorded by the gauge.

The delicate instrument, which records fractional water level changes caused by shifts in atmospheric pressure, is located on the newly drilled University Well No. 3, where regular pumping has not yet started. The well is an unusually deep one — 1,330 feet — but the normal water level is only 256 feet deep. During the after shocks of the Alaskan quake, the well showed water level fluctuations of as much as 3.45 inches.

The further capriciousness of nature was demonstrated by another water level recording gauge which the university scientist had installed at abandoned Moscow City Well No. 7. This well, which is only about a half mile from University Well No. 3, and is about 600 feet deep, showed no appreciable change in water level during the quake.

NEW SNAP BEAN BEING DEVELOPED

The Idaho Agricultural Experiment station today announced the release of a new virus resistant snap bean variety. This bean, resistant to the curly top virus, seed home mosaic, and to the A strain of bean mosaic was developed at the Twin Falls experimental station by plant scientist Dr. L. L. Dean.

Extensive tests of Idelight, the new bean, indicated it will also provide bean breeders with an excellent genetic source of some unique pod characteristics in combination with resistance to curly top and seed-borne mosaic.

Idelight plants, when grown in southern Idaho are approximately 15 inches tall and have an approximate spread of 18 inches. The plants are erect and sturdy. They are slightly short and stemmy and the foliage is dense, but probably can be harvested satisfactorily by mechanical pickers.

Pod Set is concentrated, heavy and situated at mid-height in the plant with occasional pods touching the ground. The pods at prime stage are round, straight, slender and smooth. Idelight pods are medium dark green with a waxy translucency which imparts a distinctive and very attractive color. Harvest should be timed to take advantage of the small sieve characteristics of this bean. Pods should be harvested before becoming 5 sieve size, as after this size they are beyond their peak of quality. The variety has not produced size 6-sieve pods in Idaho. Four - Sieve pods are 4 1/2 to 5 inches long and have acceptable low percentage of fiber and seed. The variety is capable of producing a high yield of 1 to 4-sieve pods of good quality.

Seed will average 100 per ounce. The seed-coat color is brown, which limits processing use to freezing.

DRIVE WITH CARE, EVERYWHERE!

Boise — Idaho's traffic accidents and the number of injured people showed decided increases in 1963 when the number of fatalities dropped to one of the lowest figures in a decade, it was announced this week by the Department of Law Enforcement.

"We recorded a grand total of 20,960 traffic accidents last year to set a new high record that exceeded the 18,270 crashes reported in 1962," according to Duane Alters, traffic safety director.

There were 207 traffic fatalities in 1963 as compared to the previous year's all-time high of 272, which resulted in a decline of 24 percent for one year. This brought a certain amount of favorable attention in Idaho, as well as on national levels, since the mileage, death rate was the lowest in history, and Idaho topped the nation in percentage of reduction.

It was obvious at the end of 1963 that the problem had not been licked. The annual summary just released gives too many of those gruesome figures that indicate that is much more to be done.

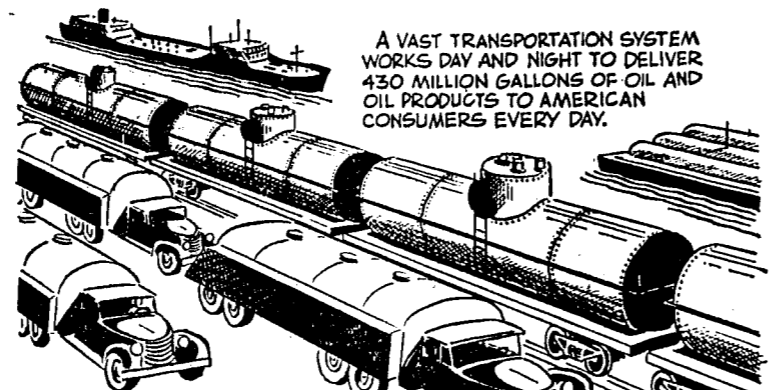

Some of the "new records" showing up on the annual report to discolor the bright side of the picture include 33,730 drivers involved in accidents, or about 12 percent more than the 30,008 reported the previous year. Injury accident totaled 8,138 in 1963, while the 1962 report showed 6,842. There were 737 more people injured last year for a total of 8,363.

Crashes involving only property damage came to a total of 15,680 during 1963, an increase of 2,116 over the 13,764 damage wrecks the previous year.

Idaho's somewhat unique pattern of one-car accidents involving fatalities, personal injuries and property damage continued higher than the national average as it has for several years, the safety director commented. The same consistent high incidence of country road crashes continued to take more than their share of lives, as the record has revealed for the previous five years.

SNOW SURVEY SHOWS MUCH DEPTH

The April snow survey on Moscow Mountain was taken March 28 by Fred Chugg of the Soil Conservation Service; John Holman and Larry Deeds of the University engineering experimental station.

A record snow depth of 75.3 inches was recorded on the Moscow Mountain snow course, which is 10.3 inches more than the 1962 high of 65 inches for this month, and an increase of 17.6 inches over last month. This record fall is 55.1 inches more than last year, and 30 inches above the seven-year average for this date.

The water content of the snow is also at a record high at 28.3 inches, which is 5.4 inches above the 1962 high of 22.9 inches and 22.7 inches above the 5.6 inches recorded last year. The density of the snow is well above the average at 37 percent water compared to 27 percent water for last year at this date.

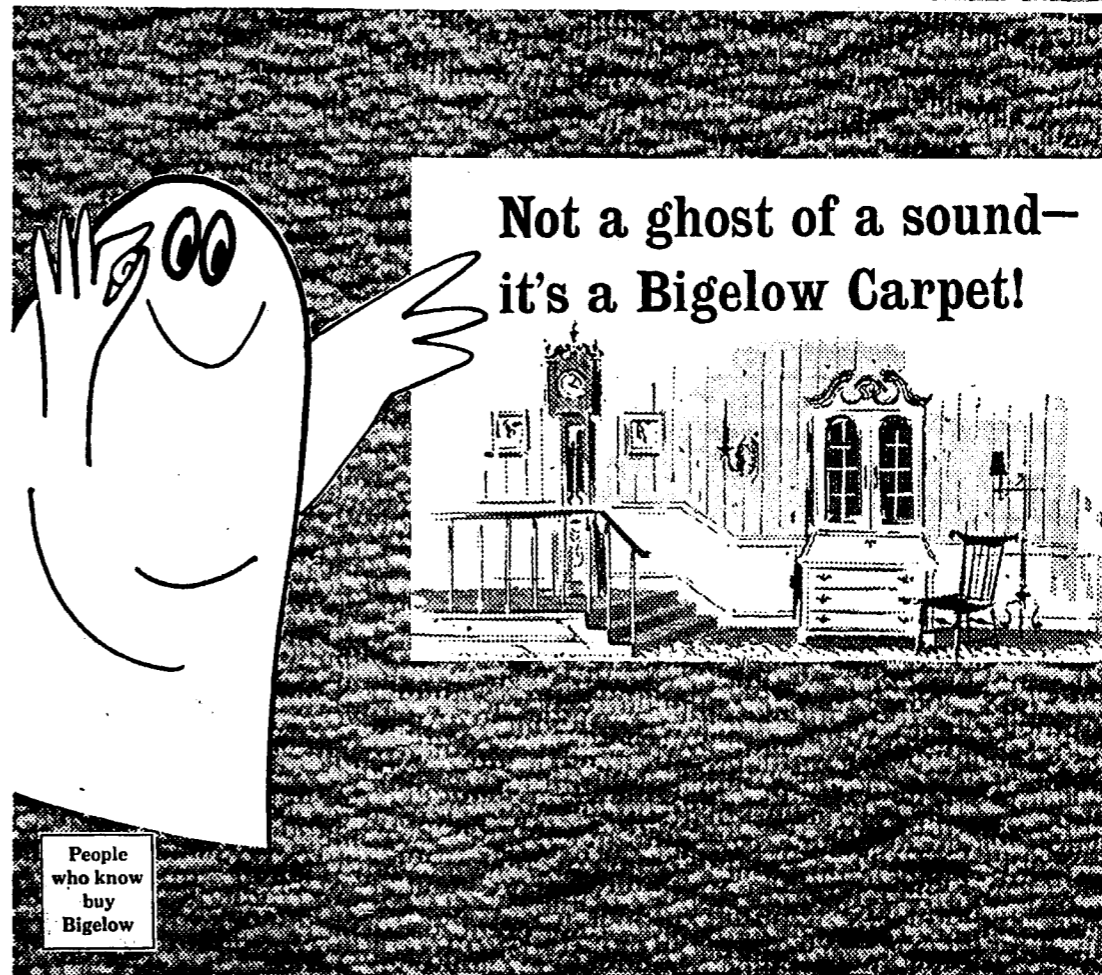

The other four snow courses on the mountain show the same record increase in snow depth and water content. For instance, East Twin has 63.4 inches of snow compared to 2.5 inches last year, and a 14.5 inch increase over last month. The water content has increased 6.9 inches over last month to a high of 26.4 inches, which is 25.8 inches over the low reading of .6 last year for this date.

The Sherwin Snow course, north of Bovill, has 65.9 inches of snow compared to 53.4 inches last month, and 10.1 inches last year. The water content on this course is 23 inches, compared to 18.4 inches last month and 3.5 inches last year.

IDAHO LEADS IN SEWAGE DISPOSAL

U. of I., Moscow — The state of Idaho is well ahead of the national norm in quality of sewage disposal, according to Lester M. Klashman, regional program director, U. S. Public Health Service, Denver, in addressing the second biennial Idaho Sewage Works Operators short session school at the University of Idaho.

Klashman complimented the state for doing a creditable job. "Idaho isn't ignoring the problem," Klashman said. "The state people have taken an aggressive attitude and are doing something."

Purpose of the course is to provide training for sewage works operators to improve the calibre of sewage works protection and assure maximum protection of the state's water resources and returns from the investments in treatment facilities.

Co-sponsors are the Idaho Municipal League, Idaho Department of Health and the Pacific Northwest Pollution Control Association in cooperation with the University of Idaho. Other sessions will be held at Pocatello and Boise.

WHEAT AND THE PRICE OF BREAD

Moscow — Price supports for wheat have had little connection with the price of bread, in the opinion of the Department of Agriculture. Rising costs of marketing make the difference, the report said.

An analysis of the situation in the years from 1950 to 1963 showed the retail price of bread, at the national average, increased each year from a low of about 14 cents for a pound loaf in 1950 to a high of more than 21 cents in 1963. The farm value of wheat in the loaf, however, fluctuated within a narrow range. In 1950 the farm value was 2½c. It was still 2½ cents in 1963.

During the 14 years it varied from a bottom of 2.3 cents in the three years 1958 to 1960, and hit a high of 2.7 cents in 1954 and 1955. Percentage-wise, the wheat farmer got about 17 percent of the retail price of a pound loaf of bread in 1950. In 1963 he received about 12 percent.

Idaho Wheat Commission administrator Harold West took this photo as an example of the primitive conditions which contribute to the terrible poverty which impressed West on his recent inspection tour of Far East wheat marketing conditions.

RESEARCH WORK TO GET AID CASH

Forest and rangeland research in Idaho for the first time will receive financial aid directly under the McIntire-Stennis Cooperative Forestry Research program, which was passed by Congress in 1963 to aid studies in the nation's forests and related range lands.

Funds previously came from the Hatch act and were distributed by agriculture agencies.

Of the million dollars appropriated for the start of the program, Idaho received $20,806. The University of Idaho was designated as the agency of the state to use the funds for research and formal acceptance of the grant was voted by the Regents at their Pocatello meeting this week. Dean Ernest Wohletz of the college of forestry is a representative of the program committee and is also a member of the Cooperative Forestry Research Advisory Board for the West-Central region.

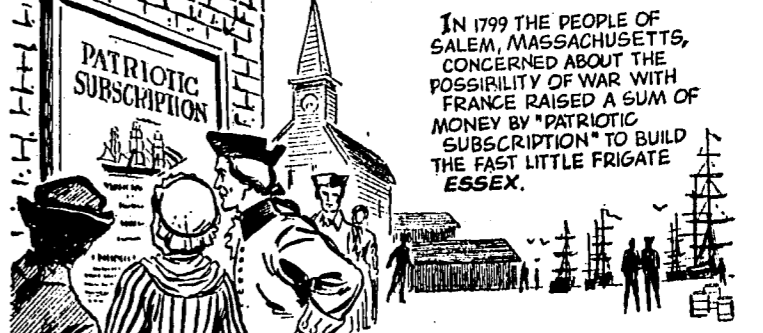

Four new projects have been proposed for the state, according to Dr. E. W. Tisdale, professor and director of the forest, range and wildlife experiment station at the University of Idaho.

"Although these projects are new ones, they fit in the area of research in which we have already been working. The funds will aid in the expansion of research and they provide for three research fellows to work on the projects," said Dr. Tisdale.

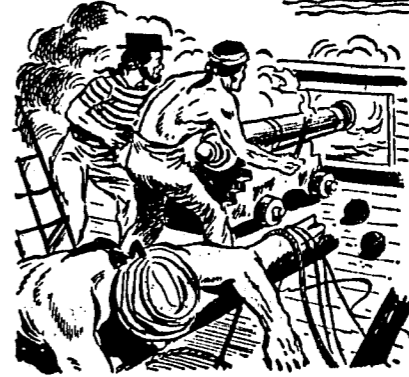

Proposed projects include site relationships and productivity of foothill woodland-shrub grazing lands in Idaho, elongation and activity of root and coniferous seedlings as determined by radioactive tracers, the heritability of important economic characters and population structure of Ponderosa Pine, and methods of estimating recreational visits and use on unattended recreation sites.

America's Famous Sailing Ships

THE ESSEX, BUILT BY ENO BRIGGS, BUILDER OF THE FAMOUS GRAND TURK, WAS LAUNCHED ON SEPT. 30, 1799 AND TURNED OVER TO U.S. GOVERNMENT FOR NAVAL SERVICE.

AFTER A COLORFUL NAVAL CAREER WHICH INCLUDED THE CAPTURE OF TEN BRITISH SHIPS IN THE WAR OF 1812, THE ESSEX WAS CAPTURED BY TWO BRITISH FIGHTING SHIPS IN 1814 IN VALPARAISO BAY AFTER A BLOODY BATTLE IN WHICH HALF OF THE ESSEX CREW WAS KILLED OR WOUNDED.

About 5800 samples were analyzed during the year ending in July, according to a report by Charles Painter, University of Idaho extension soils specialist. The number was 1700 more than the previous year. There were 17,500 tests of various kinds on the soil samples.

The increase, Painter said, is mainly because of deep testing for nitrate and ammonium nitrogen in the northern part of the state.

In southern Idaho, about 9 percent of the 3655 samples tested were acid and 91 percent alkaline in soil reaction. Most of the samples were in a favorable Ph range for production. Only 11 samples were strongly acid indicating possible need for lime, and 33 samples indicated an alkaline problem.

In northern Idaho, including Idaho county, about 96 percent of 640 were acid and four percent alkaline. Thirty one samples were extremely acid. No serious alkaline problem was indicated by soil Ph. Most of the samples, as was true of those in southern Idaho, were in a favorable Ph range.

About 30 percent of the soils tested in southern Idaho had organic matter content less than 1.5 percent. This is lower than the recommended amount for good soil management. In northern Idaho about 19 percent of the samples were below the 2.5 percent desirable organic matter level. Many of the northern samples were from eroded hilltops or sandy soils.

Of 106 samples tested for total salts, 17 indicated a salinity problem.

THOR RESEARCH CENTER FOR BETTER FARM LIVING

An old problem in most homes is to find store space for hunting and fishing equipment, outdoor clothing, golf clubs, horse shoe and croquet sets, and so on.

An easy solution is to build a "sportsrobe" designed with shelf, drawer, and hanging space for a variety of equipment. We suggest this plan adaptable to storage of outdoor clothing, even hip boots and hi-cuts; fishing poles and tackle boxes; guns — well, you just build into the "sportsrobe" the features which fit your family.

"Sportsrobe" provides storage. This "sportsrobe" is roughly 4 feet wide, 7½ feet high, and 2 feet deep. Features are back board and linings of perforated hardboard, which give perfect ventilation plus unlimited choice of arrangements for things you want to hang. Construction is primarily of hardboard with white pine framework. Materials can be easily worked with your portable electric circular and jig saws. Sander and drills make all cuts, grooves, and fittings quickly.

Final flourishes to the "sportsrobe" are a hunter and flying bird, fisherman and leaping fish, or some other combination traces on hardboard, cut out with electric jig saw, and glued to doors before finishing the cabinet.

(The plans for this "sportsrobe" may be obtained free of charge, by writing to the Thor Research Center, Aurora, Ill., asking for Project No. AC-280.)

WRITES OF ALASKA
QUAKE

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Sveve have received word from her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Langhus, of Anchorage, Alaska, that they are all right, and telling of their experiences the day of the big quake — Good Friday, March 27.
 The Langhus family were out for a drive in their car, and we quote from the letter:
 "We were returning home and had just crossed Knik bridge, a good quarter-mile long bridge, and were skirting along the base of Pioneer Peak, a sheer mountain rising to about 3,500 feet above the road when the car started to jump and dance and shimmy all over the road. Evelyn was driving and thought she had flat tires on all four wheels. The slower she went the more convulsive the car became. "Tromp down on the brake", I said. "I am, but it won't stop", she shouted above the rumble and roar. I thought something had gone wrong with the engine so I reached over and shut it off. It still shook and trembled: I saw the trees swaying in all directions and thought by this that it was a strong wind. But then I looked up at the mountain on our left and saw avalanches coming down. I also saw we were parked directly under the main telegraph line poles, just loaded with wires. I said, "Let's get out of here." We quickly like traded places and drove as fast as possible a distance of half a mile where we thought we would be out of range of the avalanches. Looking back where we had just come from visibility was obscured by the snow rolling, boiling and tumbling down the mountain and across the road into Knik River.
 "We had felt tremors before but this was something else. It must have lasted two to three minutes. There were cracks in the road both in front and back of us up to six and eight inches in width. About 40 miles north of Anchorage we saw even larger fissures. By this time we realized the power was off and turning on the radio everything was silent. At Eagle River, a small shopping center 20 miles from Anchorage, windows were shattered and cracks appeared in many buildings. By this time we were beginning to wonder.
 "A few minutes later a radio station operating on emergency power started coming through with the news that a major catastrophe had taken place. Anchorage was without all power, heat, water, light, telephones. No one knew the extent of the damage. As we neared town the traffic became more congested and as the sun had set an hour ago all was in darkness. The nearer the business section we came the more damage. Traffic was slow with all stop and go signs inoperative and police and guardsmen being called to direct traffic. We were getting so anxious to learn the fate of our home that I finally told Evelyn to take the wheel and drive home if she could and I'd get out and run home. A block from home I came to an abrupt stop — the street had just sheered off and dropped a good 14 to 20 feet. Buildings were in one jumbled mess, some standing askew, others settled, apparently intact. I had to detour four blocks before I could cross over to L Street. Words can never describe by surprise to find Evelyn had beaten me home, and was even more surprised to find the house intact. The only damage was a broken chimney. Inside was a mess. I was back to carrying wood for the fireplace and getting the camp stove out and filled with gas in preparation for cooking. The only water was melted snow which we boiled on the camp stove.
 "Labor crews worked all day Sunday and have been working 24 hours a day to restore the roads to a passable situation. Electricity was restored to most parts by Sunday evening so we had heat. We still do not have water or telephone.
 "Our school has not opened, nor any school for that matter. The $5 million West Senior High is a total loss and will be going on shift with East High. One grade school is a complete loss, the others suffering some structural damage. Teachers have reported to some schools to help clean up.

ZIP CODE AND ITS PRESENT USE

Many have remarked that the more numbers we use in our daily mailing — and the higher the postal rates — the poorer the service seems to get. Perhaps this article, taken from a bulletin of the Idaho Press Association, will help to explain the matter:
 "Postal Officials Blush
 "Eyebrows went up a notch or two here recently when the Washington (D. C.) Sunday Star newspaper revealed that after all the publicity about the new ZIP code, it turns out that not only are the machines to sort mail by ZIP numbers not ready, but they haven't been invented yet," according to Star Staff Writer David Braaten.
 "He wrote: The Post Office Department, which for months now has been urging the public to use ZIP-code numbers when it addresses letters, has reluctantly confessed that the mail sorters probably don't pay much attention to the laboriously-memorized numbers anyway. . . . Hopefully, the machines, which will sort 17,000 letters an hour, will be ready to go in two years. Meanwhile, all that numbering you're doing at the end of every address is so much practice — that school teachers like to call penmanship.
 "It is likely that the subject of Mr. ZIP will receive further attention when hearings are held on the Post Office Department's budget for the fiscal year."
