Potlatch is people

MEET RED McCOLLISTER of Orofino. He hasn't got time to shake your hand right now . . . he's riding herd on 50 million board feet of logs on their way down the Clearwater from the North Fork to Lewiston. . . . 90 miles of water, much of it white as it froths around treacherous rapids.

Red is the man who came up with the great idea of the annual 6th grade forestry awareness trip . . . a three-day trip that lets children visit sawmills, The Idaho State Forest Service, hear speakers on Soil Conservation and in general learn about the vast local resources. Red is the chairman of the sponsoring group; the Clearwater County Forest Advisory Committee. Red also finds time for work with the Society of American Foresters, and is active in safety work.

This shot of Red was made during the annual log drive last May. He's one of the people that make Potlatch a vital factor in Idaho's economy. 440,000 acres of Idaho timberland supply logs like this, which will become pulp and wood products to bolster the state's economy.

Red McCollister is part of a plan; a plan that treats timber as a crop, to be planted and harvested; a plan that involves building roads, communications and buildings. This is a plan that is made by people, carried out by people, financed by people, and done in the best interest of people . . . people like Red and you, and your neighbor.

Sure, Potlatch is a lot of things . . . but most of all; Potlatch is people.

BROWSE GROWTH IS CALCULATED

Boise — Ralph V. Pearson, Salmon, game biologist, measures the annual growth of browse plants on winter range along the Middle Fork of the Salmon river. The annual growth and general condition of the browse shrubs and plants, together with herd trend counts on winter ranges, are two important factors used in determining hunting season lengths and bag limits.

The Middle Fork of the Salmon river (unit 27), and the Big Creek (unit 28) areas will be opened as multiple deer units this fall.

HOG RAISING BY 4-H'ERS POPULAR

Chicago — Raising pigs is traditional in 4-H. Pig clubs were the second project for club members more than half a century ago. Reasons for the pig clubs was to utilize products of the original 4-H corn clubs.

Today boys and girls enrolled in the national 4-H Swine awards programs raise pigs for other reasons. And they produce a much different animal than did their 1910 counterparts, according to the Cooperative Extension Service.

The 1964 meat-type hog is tailor-made for packer and consumer. Modern pig clubs have the advantage of information and practices resulting from years of experiment and research by both the Extension Service and private sources such as the big meat packing firms.

The 4-H'ers themselves often engage in scientific investigations. Attention is paid to breed selection, animal sanitation and nutrition, and marketing. Demonstrations of swine production such as inoculations and weight record keeping, and showmanship also are undertaken.

Persistence and hard work pay off in several ways. The 4-H member in "learning by doing" acquires self-confidence and sound judgment. He or she is conditioned to accept losses along with the gains.

Among the gains are recognition and incentive awards given annually by packers. They include: Gold filled medals for four top members in the country; a trip to Chicago and the National 4-H Club Congress for having the most successful project in the entire state; $500 scholarships for six of the nation's highest ranking members.

Winners will be announced at the close of the 4-H Club year.

THE WASHINGTON WATER POWER CO.

JUNE IS Idaho Dairy Month by proclamation of Governor Robert E. Smylie. With ice cream, presented by Pat Jaworski of Nampa, in hand he officially reinforced the message of Idaho Dairymen's Association that dairy foods are vital to the health and economy.

During June, the month of highest milk production, the industry throughout Idaho and the nation calls attention to the appetizing and nutritional qualities of all dairy products.

Miss Jaworski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jaworski, is a Canyon County 4-H club member. She won a trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago last fall for dairy achievement. The award was made by the Idaho Dairymen's Association. She is a Junior at Nampa High School and will attend the University of Idaho in 1965.

In the proclamation delivered to Cliff Markuson, manager of the Idaho Dairymen's Association, Governor Smylie urged citizens of Idaho to join in observance of dairy month "to the end that we may all increase our appreciation for dairy foods, improve our health and our financial well-being."

NEW CAMPGROUND GUIDE PUBLISHED

A new quick and easy way to locate good spots for camping, picnicking, and outdoor fun is presented in the handy Idaho public campground guide just published through the cooperation of Idaho's State Land Department, Department of Highways, and Department of Commerce and Development. Louise Shaddock, head of the latter department pointed out today. Some thirty new or newly listed areas are presented. However, the advancements certain to appeal to campers are the numerous expansions, improvements, and new developments made all over the state in the areas which always remain top favorites with Idahoans as well as tourists from other sections.

Simplification of the map has been accomplished through close study and cooperation by the three departments, Miss Shaddock said. Where older style maps used sixteen symbols for describing facilities the new Idaho map uses only eight, reducing the reading elements by half. Points of scenic and historic interest are clearly noted as are highways, roads, towns, and cities. However, the total effect is simple, clear, and uncluttered. Ski slopes are now indicated and with information as to which slopes operate lifts during the summer. Boating facilities and places for water sports are designated and the state's well-known hot springs are located too. Whatever the holiday-seeker is looking for, from picnic tables, rest rooms, water, etc., to full overnight and vacation accommodations, are placed prominently before the reader for his ready selection.

CLASSROOM BIDS BEING EXAMINED

U. of I., Moscow, Low basic bids for the construction of the new university Classroom center at the University of Idaho totaled $1,399,656, Financial Vice President Kenneth A. Dick said today. All bids, he added, now go to the Board of Regents for review and consideration.

Low bid for the general contract was entered by Vern Johnson and Sons, Spokane, $953,490; for the mechanical contract by Bingham Mechanical, Moscow, $277,767, and for the electrical contract by Power City Electric, Spokane, $168,399.

The building, to provide facilities to cope with rapidly increasing enrollment, will be financed by Regents' bonds to be paid off with student fees.

In calling for bids on the construction, Dick said that a new procedure, originally introduced at the University of Illinois, was used at the University of Idaho for the first time. Prior to the opening bids by the general contractors, bids were opened for mechanical and electrical work. Then, after the opening of the general contract bids, the mechanical and electrical bids were added to the total cost of the contract. Meanwhile, the general contractors knew who the subcontractors would be - and what their prices would be before they actually submitted their general contract bids.

"This new system was recommended by the architects," Dick added. Architects are Culler, Gale, Martell, Norrie and Davis, Coeur d'Alene.

SCHOOL FEES ARE GENERALLY UP

Surveys completed by the State Department of Education, the Boise Public Schools and the Idaho Education Association show that nearly one-half of the school districts in Idaho have either added or increased school fees since the 1963 Legislature adjourned. Commenting on statistics, Elmer S. Crowley, executive secretary of the Idaho Education Association said:

"Idaho's school trustees have added these fees which range as high as $26.50 per pupil in some school districts because of an inordinately low appropriation for public education by the last legislature.

"Correctly, the trustees indicate that these fees are emergency measures to be eliminated as soon as possible.

"The Constitution of the State of Idaho says: 'It shall be the duty of the Legislature of Idaho to establish and maintain a uniform system of common free public schools.'

"Higher student fees are but another indication of the true condition of the financing of Idaho education. The people of our state must decide whether we shall have fee public schools or free public schools!"
