Suffers Back Injury

Doug Shepherd received a back injury a week ago last Saturday, while on his job with the State Forestry Dept. It was determined through X-rays that a couple of vertebrae were broken, and he will have to wear a brace on his back for some time. He left for Spokane Wednesday, where the brace will be fitted.

Freak Accident and Timing

A niece of Mrs. Cecil Gruell, Mrs. Dorothy Butterfield of Saratoga, Calif., was killed in a freak accident either Saturday night or Sunday morning. A deer jumped off the bank in front of the car in which she was riding, causing the driver to lose control, the car plunging off the road on the opposite side, and Mrs. Butterfield was crushed beneath it.

The accident was ironic, happening just at this time, as it was just a year ago that her father, Ernest Lowry of Tacoma, was drowned at Iwaco while deep sea fishing. Her mother, Mrs. Lillian Lowry of Tacoma, was informed of both the accidents as she was leaving church on the two Sundays, just a year apart.

Still A Hospital Patient

Mrs. Onal Cope received word this week that doctors say Mrs. Fern Lindquist Nelson will be alright, if and when she awakens. She remains about the same, and there is no high temperature. She is at Sacred Heart Hospital in Spokane.

THREE ACCIDENTS IN THREE DAYS NO SERIOUS HURTS

The wrecker of the Kendrick Welding & Machine Shop was kept busy for three days with accidents.
Saturday evening a 1963 Chevrolet Impala owned and driven by Jack J. Maynard was crowded into the ditch at the top of the Big Bear ridge grade, and rolled onto its top at the cattle pass on the right hand side of the road. The top and windshield were badly damaged. Luckily Mr. Maynard and his passenger escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Mrs. John Wilson and son John, enroute to Lewiston Monday afternoon, discovered the family car, a 1956 Chevrolet sedan was on fire, near the Martin Grosse-close ranch between Juliaetta and Arrow. They stopped, and with the aid of passers-by, and an assist from the Kendrick Forest Protective District pumper truck, extinguished the blaze. The car suffered heavy damage about the motor and dash. No one was injured.

Monday, when he stopped to open the gates to the Kendrick dump ground, the emergency brake on John DeHaven's truck let loose — the truck rolled backwards, spilling its load. The vehicle was somewhat damaged. No one was injured.

HISTORICAL EDITION AUGUST 20

In order that we of the Gazette, and our faithful correspondents may have a short vacation — the annual "Historical Edition" of the Kendrick Gazette will be put in the mail on Thursday, August 20. It will actually be published on Thursday, August 13 — but since all the material, with the exception of advertisements — will be of a historical nature — the date really makes no difference.

However, no news will be solicited for this issue — thus giving the faithful correspondents and Gazette crew a much needed short rest.

The Gazette will be open for business as usual during that week, however, to receive and handle regular business.

We are not yet certain just what the issue will feature — except news of the past.

WEATHER CHILL, HUMID, RAINY

Weather this past week has given this area a taste of almost everything, from humid, short-sleeve heat to jacket-wearing chill — intermixed with rain storms, a little thunder, a few bolts of lightning. At no time has the heat been above the 80 mark — but unusual humidity made it seem a good deal higher than that.
Farmers say that warm, dry weather is a must in the near future for grains, peas and beans.

RARE BOOKS NOW IN U. OF I. LIBRARY

U. of I. Moscow — Two rare books of Western Americana have been acquired by the University of Idaho Library, Northwest collection. It has been announced by Charles Webber, social science librarian.

One of the rare items is "Among the Indians Eight Years in the Far West, 1858-66. Embracing sketches of Montana and Salt Lake." Written by Henry Boller, the book was published in 1868 in Philadelphia by T. Ellwood Zell.

The Idaho copy, a first edition in its original cloth cover, has a rare map which was inserted in only a few copies. The book has been termed the most authoritative narrative of fur trading among the Plains Indians of the Upper Missouri, for the period.

The second volume is "Oregon Archives" by Lafayette Grover. Printed by Asahel Bush in Salem, in 1853, the book still in its original wrapper, includes journals, governor's messages and public papers of Oregon from the earliest attempts to form a government including the session of the Territorial Legislature in 1849. The book is a source of early Oregon history and is regarded as the most important issue of the early Oregon Press.

WASPS ARE PESTS

Wasps pack a wallop. Their sting is mean, as everybody knows who has been on the receiving end.

Best way to get rid of a nest on the premises is to spray or dust with chemicals, advises Homer Futter, Latah county agent. Do the job at night for two reasons — in the first place, there is less chance of getting stung. Materials to use are chlordane, dieldrin or DDT. Follow the instructions on the label.

Wasps that build nests in the ground can be destroyed by pouring several spoonfuls of chloroform into the hole and plugging it. Again, it is advisable to work at night.

Burning nests is generally a poor practice. Not only are some of the wasps likely to escape and counter-attack, but there is a risk of burning a building.

SCHUPPERS TELL OF EUROPEAN TOUR THIS SPRING

We (Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schupfer and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schupfer) left April 7th on the evening train for Spokane, then left there on the Empire Builder, arriving in Chicago on the 9th. We had planned to go to Washington, D. C., but there, about an hour before departure time, it was announced no trains were leaving that station as a strike was on. We went to the N. Y. Central, and they had a train leaving for New York and arriving in Buffalo at about 1:00 a. m. A trainman came through and announced a strike had taken place and it was not known how long the train would be there. Herman had a pocket radio and heard it announced that a moratorium of 20 days had been agreed upon, so we knew we would soon be moving again. In an hour and a half, with a relief crew, we were on our way. In the morning as we were eating breakfast, the train made a sudden stop, and everything in the diner either went on the floor or in the diner's laps. There was no one on the other side of our table, so everything except the coffee cup that Herman was holding in his hand went on the floor. What a mess of ice cubes, dishes, silverware, food. They did not charge for the breakfast. We arrived safely in New York Friday morning, a few hours behind the schedule.

From New York we went to Washington D. C. to spend two and a half days. We visited the Senate and House of Representatives, Kennedy's grave (from a distance) museums, the Lincoln Memorial, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and also looked up the grave of George P. Barnum, a former Kendrick resident, now buried in Arlington Cemetery. We hired a taxi at the rate of $3.60 an hour for the four of us, and toured the city. The cherry trees were in bloom at the time, and beautiful.

We returned to New York and did some sight-seeing. On April 15 we sailed on the S. S. Rotterdam of the Holland-American line, a new ship (about 2 years old), beautifully clean and well managed. It carried 1100 passengers and a crew of 750. The ship was equipped with stabilizers (the sea was very rough for a few days) but the ship sailed quite smoothly and very few were seasick. Herman and Otto, with a group of men, went down to watch the stabilizers work. They operated like fins.

We stopped at Southampton, England, and LeHavre, France, for several hours on the 22nd, and then on to Rotterdam, where we arrived at daylight on the 23rd. The ship was like a floating city, with a store, a gift shop, beauty salon, etc. The food was delicious and so many interesting people to visit with, so there was never a dull moment during our eight days at sea.

After settling in a hotel we took a sight-seeing bus around town and into the country, seeing the bulb fields of tulips, hyacinths, daffodils — acres and acres of level country in a riot of color. The work in the bulb fields is all done by hand, and the bulbs shipped all over the world.

Saturday there was to be a big flower parade near Amsterdam, but it was very rainy and cold and so was postponed for a week. Wanting to see it, and a week to wait, we took a railroad trip to Denmark, Sweden and Norway (very reasonable in cost). We left Saturday, went through Hamburg and Bremen, Germany, crossing the Baltic Sea on a huge ferry. The train was divided into three sections and run onto the ferry (plus many automobiles and hundreds of people). On the upper decks was a huge restaurant, a bank where you could change your money for Swedish or Danish money, little stores doing a huge business selling chocolate candy and cigars, and a sun deck. This trip lasted 50 minutes and was most interesting.

When we got off the ferry we were in Denmark. We arrived in Copenhagen about 9:00 p. m. and stayed over-night, taking a taxi tour around town Sunday morning. We then boarded the train for Stockholm, Sweden, where we stayed for two days, and on to Oslo, Norway. We then headed back to Copenhagen and Amsterdam. There was always some one in the hotels, stores or post-offices who spoke English well, so we had no trouble in that respect.

Back at Amsterdam we took several trips from there — one by boat to the little town of Marken, where the people live and dress just like they did 300 to 400 years ago. Another day we went to Kinderdyke, a quaint little Dutch village, where there was a group of 15 windmills. The one we visited (for a small fee) was still very substantial. It was built in 1748, and good for another several hundred years! The large gear wheels and shafts were made of wood. The caretaker turned it on for us and we went all through it while it was operating they are not used any more for pumping water, it all being done electrically. It seems odd to stand on a dike there and see the ocean higher than most of the farm land behind it. The operator showed us all through a huge pumping plant, and all he would take for pay, was a request that we send him an American calendar!

SEEMS REASONABLE!
After a hard days work the weary truck driver went into the club to relax and enjoy a drink or two. His fun was cut short, however, when a heavy-eyed entertainer walked over to the piano, placed his beer glass carefully on top and started banging away tunelessly.
When the trucker could stand it no longer he called the "musician" over. "I suppose you know," he said, "you are probably the world's worst pianist!"
"Yes," agreed the man. "I know."
"Well, for heaven's sake isn't there something else you can do?"
"I suppose I could go back to truck driving," was the answer, "but my beer always fell off the dash."

THANK YOU — ALL!
My heartfelt thanks to those who gave of their blood, time, cards, calls, letters and gifts during my recent illness. All were deeply appreciated. May Westendahl. 32-1

PARK PATER
BY MRS. JERRY SMITH

MANY VISITORS — Travelers seem to be taking advantage of cool weather this week to visit Park area residents. Mrs. Oscar Slind, Big Bear ridge and her brother, Mr. Leonard of Seattle, visited Charles Jelleberg, Wednesday. Their grandfather, Ed. Dahl, homesteaded in Park.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and son George, Jr., and Eva L. Smith, all of Lewiston, visited Charles Jelleberg Thursday afternoon, and continued on for a brief visit with their nephew, Jerry Smith and family. George Smith, Sr., is recovering from a recent eye operation, and believes his vision will be greatly improved.

Saturday visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Smith were her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Stone and son Richard of Milton-Freewater, Ore. Accompanying them was his aunt, Mrs. Hazel Galloway of Bovill. They visited briefly also with Charles Jelleberg.

Mrs. Jerry Smith was in Lenore Friday to take their daughter Barbara to the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Roscoe Hunter and family, where she will spend a week attending Bible School. In Lenore Mrs. Smith and sons visited her mother-in-law, Mrs. Vester Daniels, and enroute home, Loyal Weber, Juliaetta.

FRESH WATER FROM OCEAN POSSIBLE

U. of I., Moscow — Water-short California, which has long been eyeing Idaho's Snake river, may eventually have its problems solved by a man who was raised beside it.

Dr. Glenn G. Havens, University of Idaho graduate from Twin Falls, who is now president of Havens Industries, San Diego, Calif., has developed a revolutionary, relatively low-cost process of desalting sea water. Havens was graduated from the university in 1927 with a B. S. degree in physics, and the following year received his master's degree. He holds his doctorate from the University of Wisconsin.

At San Diego he has been operating for more than six months a small demonstration plant, using a process called "reverse osmosis." Although the plant would fit inside a bedroom closet, it produces 300 gallons of fresh water daily.

Sea water is forced through a complex of fiberglass tubing lined with the membrane of modified cellulose acetate. Fresh water filters through the tube membranes under pressure, but salt does not.

As the process directly converts salt water into fresh water, it is unnecessary to heat water up to steam and change it back to water again — with the inherent large energy loss that accompanies traditional ocean water conversion.

Havens, who holds patents on the equipment in 14 foreign countries, developed the process in cooperation with the University of California at Los Angeles, Owens-Corning Fiberglass, and the San Diego Gas & Electric Co.

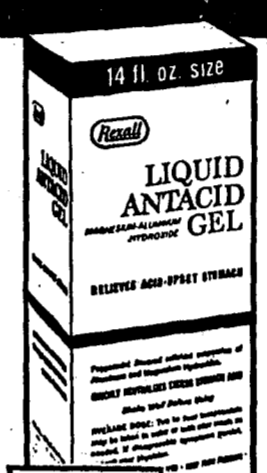

By using his process, Havens says a plant about the size of the average supermarket could produce 100 million gallons of drinkable water a day from the sea. The city of Long Beach, with a population of 360,145, uses about 43.2 million gallons of water a day.

Havens estimates a 100-million-gallon plant could be built and equipped for $6 million, and would produce potable water at a cost of 25 to 50 cents per 1000 gallons, and could be driven even lower in the future. Colorado river water used in southern California now costs about 20 cents per 1000 gallons.

Most conversion plants, including several pilot stations operated by the U. S. government, presently convert water at a cost in excess of $1 per 1000 gallons.
