PARK PATER

BY MRS. JERRY SMITH

HEAT WAVE — Area residents have begun to look rather aggrieved as the last few overly-warm nights have made sleeping almost impossible. Usually we can depend on the temperature dropping considerably at sundown, but lately the heat has remained almost constant until nearly dawn.

HAYING PROGRESSING — The Smith, Baumgartner and Daniels families, Charles Gudmunson and Charles Jelleberg can breathe easier now, because their combined efforts have put their hay up. Headquartering at the Smith home, the families kept the machinery rolling steadily for most of two weeks to accomplish the task. Others helping the group with hauling were Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Hunter and children and Art Anderson, all of Lenore. Helen and Roy Lee Weber have remained in Park for a week's visit with the Smiths.

Truck-loads of hay still roll toward the northeast section of Park as the Bohman and Powell Ranch hands finish up small acreages of hay. With the three young men the ranch has employed for the season, and the good weather, this segment of their work should be completed soon.

There is no substitute for good food, and you will find every kind to tickle your palate at Blewett's Grocery in Kendrick. 1-ad

WATCH GAS TAX REFUND CLAIMS

Boise — Farmers, including partnerships or corporations, who claim federal gasoline tax refunds for non-highway farm use are cautioned as follows:

1. Use pre-addressed claim forms 2240 mailed all farmers who filed for refunds last year. Blank forms are only for new claimants.
2. Claims are to cover the period July 1, 1964 to June 30, 1965, and cannot be paid unless filed by September 30.
3. Consolidate all farm use gas purchases into one claim only, regardless of number of farms operated or number of gas suppliers. Additional or amended claims cannot be paid.
4. Oil dealers who help farmers prepare their claims are urged to warn them that purchases for their other farms or from other oil companies must be lumped into one claim. Otherwise the farmer will lose some of his refund.

WORD 'LOBBYIST' IS EXPLAINED

Wasn't, D. C. The word "lobbyist" leaves a bad taste in the mouths of many Americans. It conjures up pictures of vote buying and excessive pressure placed on Congressmen by well-financed, articulate confidence men working to feather somebody's nest.

Is the lobbyist really that bad? Who is he and where does he come from? Webster says a lobbyist conducts "activities aimed at influencing public officials and especially members of a legislative body on legislation and other policy decisions."

Going beyond Webster's definition any Congressman could add:

1. Most lobbyist come from back home or write letters from there expressing opinions and exerting pressure on almost all legislation. In Idaho, for instance, truckers are lobbying right now against proposed excise tax increases that would cut deeply into their incomes. Labor unions are lobbying for repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act. And, it seems just about everyone in Idaho is lobbying against excessive federal restrictions on firearms. If the PTA or the SPCA were against, or for, specific legislation at the moment, they would be lobbying too. So would a lot of housewives.

2. A professional lobbyist in Washington is not allowed to ply his trade in the "lobbies" of Congress, as the label implies. Usually he meets the Congressman he is trying to influence in the Congressman's office by appointment. And he has a tough-air time arranging the meeting than the constituent from Idaho, who is always welcome to get a load off his chest in my office — without appointment.

3. A lobbyist — professional and amateur — is a valuable source of information for the Congressman. He can fill my ears with one side of an issue, but then I can turn 180 degrees and pick up the opposing view from another lobbyist. With both sides of the issue in mind I then can decide how to vote on the basis of what I believe is the best for Idaho and the nation.

Webster could well have continued his definition of lobbyists by adding " . . . any citizen, acting individually or representing an organization, who feels strongly enough about an issue that he is moved to express his views to an elected representative."

Looked at in this way, lobbying is about American as apple pie.

LOCAL NAVY MEN

Pearl Harbor, Hawaii (FHTNC)—Seaman Apprentice Bradley W. Bowen, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard C. Bowen of Jullaetta, is presently serving with the U. S. Naval submarine base, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. The base provides support to all submarine units of the U. S. Pacific fleet.

USS Franklin D. Roosevelt (CVA-42) (FHTNC) — Machinist's Mate Third Class Gerald D. Armitage, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Armitage of Winchester, Idaho, is serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Franklin D. Roosevelt, currently operating with the U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean. The ship serves as a mobile, self-sustaining air base for supersonic fighters and attack aircraft of the Sixth Fleet.

WATER CONFERENCE

U. of I., Moscow — The second Western Interstate Water Conference, bringing together legislators, water experts and public representatives from 11 states, will be held on August 5 and 6 at Oregon State University in Corvallis, with the University of Idaho as co-sponsor, according to Prof. William E. Folz, Idaho delegate on the planning committee.

Participants will take a hard, unemotional look at the region's complex water problems under the theme of "Regional Problems of Water Resources Development."

"We are not advocating or opposing any specific plan, but special attention will be given to questions involving areas of origin," says Dr. Warren A. Hall, director of the University of California Water Resources Center, who will serve as conference chairman. "The meeting's main purpose is to spur public discussion and awareness of our water problems among westerners themselves."

Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon will be the opening speaker at the Corvallis meeting, which is co-sponsored by 11 land-grant universities, each representing one of the western states.

The first conference was held last year in Las Vegas, Nev.

WATCH ANTIBIOTICS

U. of I., Caldwell — Stockmen who use antibiotics to treat their own livestock were advised this week to take special care to use the medicines properly. The warning was voiced by Dr. Floyd W. Frank, associate veterinarian with the university's agricultural experiment station at Caldwell.

"Human health implications make it extremely important that antibiotics be used properly," Dr. Frank said. "Antibiotics used to treat animals are also frequently used to treat human diseases. Improper use of them can lead to human health hazards."

These hazards, he added, are development of resistant strains of bacteria which have the potential to infect man as well as animals, and a buildup of antibiotic residues in meat.

DOVES BANDED

Boise — Over 1,000 doves were live-trapped and banded at the Nampa airport in about three weeks as part of a cooperative program in western states to continue intensive management studies on this game bird species.

Doves like open areas for landing and take-off maneuvers, the reason the Treasure Valley airport was used for trapping, although fields sometimes are leveled and baited before trapping.

Tim Shea, Nampa biological aid for the Idaho Fish and Game department, is here shown putting a band on a dove's leg.

RESEARCH SET FOR WEED ATTACKERS

U. of I., Moscow, The University of Idaho Agricultural Experiment Station has been awarded a three-year contract for research of insects which attack range weeds in Idaho, Dean J. E. Kraus reported today.

The contract, awarded by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, provides $24,615 to study the occurrence, ecology and biology of insects feeding on range weeds of foreign origin now found in the state, Dean Kraus said.

The research will be conducted by the Department of Entomology under the supervision of Dr. W. F. Barr. It will involve a comprehensive study of distribution and feeding habits of insects feeding on range-land weeds, collection and identification of species, and the biology and ecology of those species found to be of major importance in helping to control the weeds. All range areas in Idaho will be included.

Principal objective of the study is to determine the possibility of controlling range weeds biological methods — by insects which feed only on them — rather than by chemical methods.

One biological control program is already highly successful in Idaho, Dean Kraus noted. Goatweed has been brought under control in northern Idaho by the goatweed beetle, an insect which is specific for this weed and does not feed on any other plant.

A new dairy center will be completed at the University of Idaho this summer, providing facilities for expanded research in many phases of the industry.

Idaho is noted for its four season climate.

WRECKER NEEDED The wrecker from the Kendrick Welding & Machine Shop answered two calls last week. The first of these was when a truck driven by Dale Siffow, and carrying several head of horses, left the road near what is known as "Hog Meadow" between Bovill and Helmer, and landed on its left side.

THANK YOU, FRIENDS I wish to say "Thank You" to everyone who sent cards, flowers, get well wishes and prayers during my stay in the hospital. All will never be forgotten. — Mrs. F. A. Wagner 30-1

CATTLE DISEASES TO BE STUDIED

U. of I. Moscow — A $1,000,000 boost to the cattle industry — this is what a new $150,000 contract for calfhood disease studies to be conducted at the Veterinary Research Laboratory at the Caldwell branch station could mean for Idaho. Announcement of the contract, developed with the support and cooperation of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association was made last week by James E. Kraus, Dean of the University of Idaho College of Agriculture. Federal funds provided by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Research service, will step up investigation in Idaho's on-going calf disease program, and add a new phase of work to the project. New cattle isolation pens are planned for construction this fall. Forty head of beef cows will be selected and purchased for inclusion in the study early in 1966.

Chicago — Just about every 4-H girl at some time decides to try her hand at a dairy foods project. This is proved by the large enrollment in the National 4-H Dairy Foods program since its introduction 18 years ago. Peak enrollment was well over 750,000 in a single year. The dairy food project fits in well with other cooking and meal planning programs offered in 4-H, and at the same time develops for the youngsters an appreciation of adequate nutrition and the importance of milk in the daily diet. Girls from nine to 19 years of age are enrolled in this project. Dairy food is particularly popular during the summer months when cooling milk drinks, ice cream deserts, cottage cheese salads, cream soups and cheese sandwiches are so much in demand. In fact, 4-H'ers discover hundreds of ways to use dairy foods the year around for main courses, snacks and party menus. This project usually give the young cooks an opportunity to demonstrate newly learned skills in preparing dairy dishes in competition with other members. The best all-around project can win one of several awards. Up to four county medal winners can be named, and one state winner will receive a handsome wrist watch. State winners can compete for sectional honors which are 18 trips to the National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago next fall. Six national scholarships of $500 each also are offered. The Cooperative Extension Service selects all award recipients.

vision station, KUID-TV, Channel 12 starting at 3 p. m. Wednesday, June 23. Test patterns and back ground music went on the air from the new 80 foot antenna erected atop Paradise Ridge earlier this year. Television viewers within a radius of 80 airline miles should be able to receive the signal, according to Gordon Law, acting head of the department of communications. "The signal, with test pattern and music, will be on the air from 3 to 6 p. m., Monday through Friday, for the next two weeks," Law said. "This is necessary to comply with regulations set by the Federal Communications Commissions. After tests have been completed within this time period we will begin our programming over the educational channel." A grant for $96,299 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for use in developing a site and facilities for educational television in northern Idaho, enabled the actual construction to get under way in mid-November of last year. The station, when on a programming schedule, will broadcast a minimum of four hours a day. Cable feeds will be available as far south as New Meadows and as far north as Bonners Ferry. Law noted, however, that persons south of Moscow will probably have better reception than those to the north. The reason for this he said is that most television antennas are oriented to receive the commercial television stations in Spokane. Because of the direction of the antennas, viewers to the north will be receiving their signal from the back side. He also noted that most sets in the area have not been tuned for receiving channels 7 through 13; and for this reason channel 12 may not be received to its best advantage. "If reception is poor, and viewers wish to receive a better picture, adjustments and modifications on the set and antenna can be made at a very nominal fee," Law said. According to Law, the eventual plan for Idaho is to have educational television stations at Boise college, channel 4, and on the Idaho State university campus at Pocatello, channel 6 or 10. Both campuses have made application to the Federal Communications Commission for construction permits," he said. With relay facilities at LaGrande, Oregon, the Moscow signals would be carried to Boise and from there to Pocatello. The Pocatello and Boise channels would be able to broadcast to Moscow via the LaGrande relay point.

DAIRY PROJECTS HIGH IN 4-H WORK

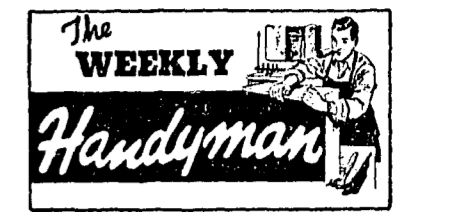

Health projects have grown over the years in knowledge, activities and membership, says the Cooperative Extension Service which supervises 4-H programs. And keeping fit is one important segment of the national 4-H Health program which today enrolls some 677,000 boys and girls. It is easy to keep in good shape during summer months through sports, games, hikes, camping and outdoor work. But, cautions the 4-H Health bulletin, there is more to maintaining good health than strenuous exercise. This recent publication points out the need for three nutritious meals a day, plenty of sleep, periodic physical checkups and a sensible balance of work and play. It also urges 4-H Club members to look for ways to improve family and community health. Individual members and clubs can win awards for doing an outstanding job. Winners are selected by the Extension Service. Award donor and sponsor of the 4-H Health program for the last 10 years is Eli Lilly and Company. The boy or girl judged best in the state will be a delegate to the National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago next fall, and will compete for one of six $500 scholarships. In the county, the best four club projects will be recognized with a certificate and medals will be presented to as many as four top individuals.

HIGHWAY USE TAX DUE AUG. 31ST

Boise — Idaho truckers liable for the federal highway use tax must file their returns and pay the tax by Aug. 31, for the year beginning July 1, 1965. Otherwise penalties are compulsory by law, Internal Revenue officials warned this week. The returns are for all vehicles in use during the month of July. For any trucks later put in use, another return must be filed by the end of the month thereafter, and the tax paid on a proportionate basis. The tax was levied by Congress in 1966 for the nation-wide highway construction program, and ranges from $81 to $180, according to the type and weight of the vehicle. Any truckers in doubt as to their liability should secure information booklets and return form from the Internal Revenue offices.

A Service Of Thor Research Center For Better Farm Living

Perhaps everyone should have two houses—one to live in and the other nothing but closets and cabinets. That might solve the perpetual storage problem plaguing so many Americans. After filling the garage, loading the basement and installing storage partitions in lieu of walls, about the only place left to go is up. Chances are the slanting roof rafters have turned (or bumped) your head away from careful consideration of under-eave storage in the attic. If you have a catwalk or flooring in this area, you can make good use of the space with a built-in storage unit.

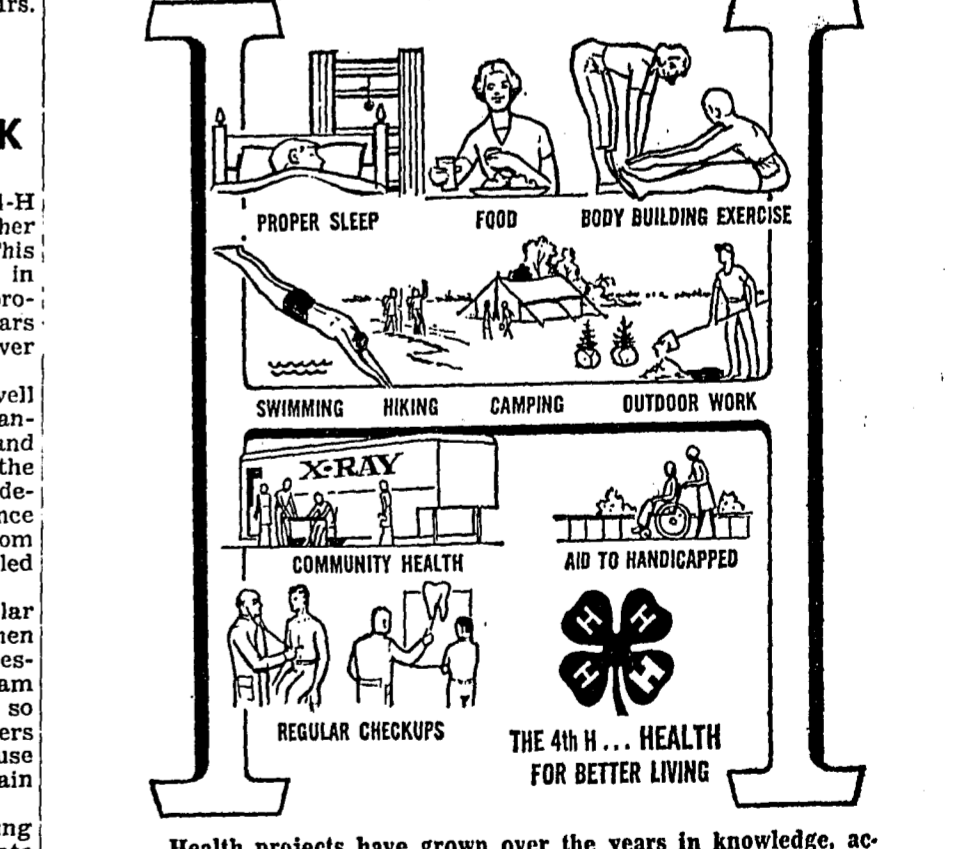

The attic may solve your storage problems.

Because appearance usually isn't too important in the attic, you can get satisfactory results with inexpensive lumber. All you need is a basic framework to hold the drawers, and the drawers themselves. You can build everything in the center of the attic, then slide the unit under the eaves and nail it in place between a pair of studs run vertically between floor and rafters. The depth and number of drawers will depend on how far out you place the studs and the angle of the roof. To avoid bottom drawers of unwieldy depth, plan the frame so there is dead space behind the unit near the floor. Horizontal pieces of the frame are all functional. They are made only drawer separators in front and top strips. One is the bearing strip; the other an anti-tilt strip. Runners nailed to the side of the drawers slide between them. The drawers can be made with grooved or plain butt joints and thin plywood bottoms. Since you'll be building this unit "as you go," a portable electric saw comes in handy for the on-the-spot cutting. (Readers may address handicraft problems to Thor Research Center, 175 N. State St., Aurora, Ill.)

4-H Youths Keep Fit

When boys and girls club work first started in the early 1900's, the emblem was a 3-H clover symbolizing Head, Heart, Hands. Around 1911 the 4th H was added to represent Health. Ever since, both here and in about 75 other countries, this emblem has represented the equal training of "head, heart, hands and health for better living."

Health projects have grown over the years in knowledge, activities and membership, says the Cooperative Extension Service which supervises 4-H programs. And keeping fit is one important segment of the national 4-H Health program which today enrolls some 677,000 boys and girls. It is easy to keep in good shape during summer months through sports, games, hikes, camping and outdoor work. But, cautions the 4-H Health bulletin, there is more to maintaining good health than strenuous exercise. SALES TAX PROVES
BAFFLING TO MANY

Despite the fact that Idaho's very unpopular Sales & Use Tax Law has now been in effect since July 1st — it, as well as reports going to be required, are proving baffling to most residents. Merchants wonder "Am I keeping the kind of records that will be demanded by the new Tax Collection Agency? How long is it going to take me to report? Am I going to be "stuck" for a lot of taxes on so-called "tax exempt sales?" Is this or that user entitled to exemption? And many similar questions.

On the other hand, the farmer, logger and other users of tax-exempt items for "certain causes" is wondering how he is going to keep the records straight, such as tax-exempt purchases of repairs, etc., for the tractor used in plowing fields, pulling a seeder, etc., when it may not be tax exempt if purchased when plowing snow or drilling a well?

There's no "if or ands, but lots of buts" about the situation in its entirety, and a lot of time and many sheets of paper are "going to go down the drain" before the questions can be answered.
