OROFINO WINNERS OF AAU TOURNEY

Orofino won the Lewis-Clark Empire AAU basketball championship Sunday evening by turning back a Kendrick-Juliaetta rally for a 99-87 victory.

Ahead for most of the game, Orofino built up a 20-point margin, 81-61 by the end of the third period. Kendrick-Juliaetta cut the lead to 9 points, then fell back.

Orofino's Skip Wilson led scoring with 35 points with teammates Bill Mattis and Darrell Olson hitting for 23 and 22 respectively. For K-J Alen Hill scored 21, Kent Marboe 18, Chet Hall 12 and Bob Heppner 11.

Both finalists qualify for the district AAU tournament next Saturday and Sunday at Pasco.

Kendrick-Juliaetta gained the finals with an 89-87 victory over Quality Mill Works of Lewiston. A perfect defensive play by Bob Heppner in checking Jim Naslund's lay-in attempt just before the buzzer, prevented an over-time period.

The winners led 39-32 at halftime. Heppner led scoring with 26 points. Chet Hall hit for 25 and Dale Sillflow 11 for Kendrick. For Quality Naslund tallied 23, Ron Raymond 13, G. Healea 12, Clair Gray 15 and Larry Hardway 10.

Orofino was an 89-80 semi-final winner over Kamiah.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT - IT'S MARCH

One would hardly need a calendar these days to tell that March had arrived — for we have had rain, hail, sleet wind, a few snowflakes — and lots more wind.

Mid-day temperatures the past week have been the mid-40's, although, for a couple of hours Sunday the thermometer hit 55 degrees under the impact of a warm sun — but that didn't last long. Night temperatures had been just about freezing, varying from 26 to 36.

For the first time in months the Potlatch river is beginning to show signs of activity, it went up steadily Saturday and Sunday, dropped a bit Monday morning, and then held about steady. It is now becoming its usual "muddy self", although still far from flood stage, or even high water, for that matter.

The warmer weather and melting snow have all but completely stopped woods work, logging roads being almost without bottom in most areas.

Farmers are generally pleased with conditions, as a snow cover still remains in some areas. In others, it is gone, but freezing and thawing is as yet no problem.

MORE ABOUT NEW PIROLINE BARLEY

Milwaukee — The 2-row variety Piroline was classed as acceptable for malting and brewing by Malting Barley Improvement Ass'n in November of 1965 for production in eastern Washington and northern Idaho. The future use of Piroline will depend on its performance in commercial malting and brewing, compared to other acceptable 2-row varieties.

One of the major quality requirements in malting barley is that it be delivered to market in pure variety lots, unmixed with other varieties. Malting Barley Improvement Ass'n recommends that in order to preserve the purity of Piroline, only seed Certified by the Official Seed Certifying agencies of Washington and Idaho be planted for further seed increases in 1966.

The necessity for planting only Certified seed of Piroline is being emphasized because of the existence of certain lots of seed of Piroline which have no official status and are of unknown purity.

WRONG SIGNATURE

In the big Basketball Tournament booster ad of last week, we goofed on a Deary signature. The Deary Service Station should have shown Esten Lee and Pat Parsons — instead of "Lee Parsons."

Next, Don Cantril was welcomed as a member of the Club.

Yes, Marvin Long did it again — got his garden planted in February! He put his seeds into the ground on Friday afternoon, Feb. 25 — and said the ground was mellow and warm, turning up without a single cloud.

We have yet to hear from Henry Brammer, Juliaetta — as these two generally "battle it out" for the "first planting honors."

WILD TURKEYS

Wild Merriam's Turkey held by Howard Livengood, refuge manager was one of 18 big birds trapped on John Day Creek, a tributary of the lower Salmon River, for transplanting to other release sites in northern Idaho. Eleven turkeys were liberated at McMannon Point on Round Lake in Benewah County near St. Maries, and two others on Craig Mountain in Nez Perce County near Culesac. The five remaining birds were released at the trapping site because they were not needed for these stocking operations. The introduction of exotic species of game animals, birds and fishes where they will not compete unfavorably with other wildlife, is part of the Idaho Fish and Game Department's Five Point Program for the future.

IDAHO SETS SEED SCHOOLS FOR APRIL

U. of I., Moscow, Latest developments in the seed-producing industry will be discussed at the annual Idaho Seed School scheduled April 14-15 at the University of Idaho, announces Pete Olesen, Caldwell seedsman and program chairman.

Discussion will range from an overall look at economic importance and personnel needs of the seed industry in the Northwest to specific garden seed and field seed research, Olesen says.

The school, sponsored by the Idaho Seed Council in cooperation with the University of Idaho and Washington State University, is designed for seed officials and seed processors in the Tri-state region.

Garden seedsman will hear reports from Idaho and Washington researchers covering pollination of vegetable seed crops, seed disease problems, weed control and other current research.

The field crop section will be presented similar research reports on new crop varieties, hybrid barley and wheat, legume and grass production, weed and disease control and insect control.

A tour of facilities at both universities is also planned, Olesen says. The Idaho Seed Council, a subsidiary of the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Seed Association, is composed of seed company executives plus representatives of public agencies interested in promoting the seed industry in the Northwest.

The 11 sites to be included are: Hoodo Creek on U.S. 95; Winchester Hill on U.S. 95; Georgetown Summit on U.S. 30N; Hagerman on U.S. 30; Grasmere on State Highway 51; Birch Creek on State Highway 28; Cat Creek on State Highway 68; Clark Hill on U.S. 26 overlooking the Snake River; Johnson Creek on U.S. 2 with a view of Lake Pend Oreille; Cleveland on State Highway 34; and Greer on U.S. 12 on the Clearwater River.

Robert B. McCall, Administrative Assistant to the Governor, is the State Liaison officer to the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. Caron N. Beard, Landscape Architect, Department of Highways, is responsible for direction of the project.

To establish eligibility for acquisition and development grants, a State must submit a statewide outdoor recreation plan and planning program which the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation finds adequate for purposes of the Fund Act. Idaho's initial plan has been found adequate until April 1, 1967.

The Fund derives revenues from the new $7 Federal Recreation Permit and other entrance and user fees, the sale of surplus Federal real property, and the Federal motorboat fuels tax.

Congress appropriated $95 million from the Fund for State purposes in the 1965-66 fiscal years. Two-fifths of the States' share from the Fund are apportioned equally among all the States and three-fifths on the basis of population and other need factors. Idaho's apportionments for the fiscal years 1965 and 1966 total $932,177.

SHEEP SHEARING SCHOOLS SCHEDULED

U. I. Moscow, Sheep shearing skills will be taught at a series of three schools in Idaho this spring, according to the Idaho Wool Growers' Association and the University of Idaho agricultural extension service, sponsors of the schools.

Ed Warner of Chicago, Ill., a former national shearing champion and veteran instructor, will conduct the classes. Dates were announced today by Wade Wells, extension livestock specialist at Boise.

The first school will be at Moscow April 1 and 2. The next will be at the Caldwell branch experiment station, April 6 and 7. The third will be at the Aberdeen branch experiment station, April 8 and 9. University sheep will be sheared at each place.

Wells said the schools are for men who want to learn how to shear. Some are owners of farm flocks. Classes will be limited to 20 members each. Qualified candidates will be accepted on the basis of priority of application. County agricultural agents will assist potential shearers in preparing the forms.

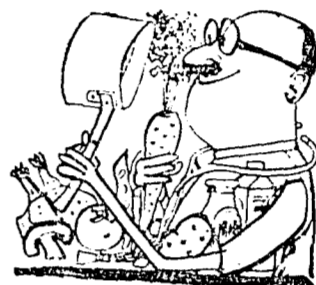

Warner has conducted shearing schools in Idaho several times during more than 20 years as a representative of the Sunbeam corporation in Oklahoma when he won many shearing contests, including the national title.

M. C. Claar, Boise, secretary of the wool growers' association, will assist Warner and Wells at each of the Idaho schools.

RABIES IN EUROPE

Foxes are being blamed for the spread of rabies in Europe. West German health officials say rabies has spread west across the Rhine river and threatens to become a continent-wide problem. They say the number of infected animals has doubled in a decade. About 2,500 persons were bitten last year.

Doctor in the Kitchen

HUSBAND IN THE KITCHEN

At a meeting which I attended recently, one of the ladies present asked me if my knowledge of nutrition was merely scientific, or if I had ever done any cooking. I told her that cooking was a favorite occupation, or rather recreation, with me, and that started the ball rolling.

"I keep my husband out of the kitchen," said one woman with an air of determination. "All he does is mess up a lot of dishes and leave the stove covered with grease . . ."

"And," chimed in another voice, "all men can cook is meat . . ."

"Steaks, chops, shish-ka-bob . . ."

"Oh, no, my husband makes good salads . . ."

By this time it was a chorus, and plainly there was no agreement on the value of a husband in the kitchen. One voice broke through a lull and brought the hubbub to a laughing halt . . .

seems no good reason why men should not share the routine of cooking, especially when they like to do it.

Man's predilection for steaks, chops and other hearty dishes certainly helps to assure a goodly supply of protein, and if they like to experiment with exotic dressings for the salad, that doesn't interfere with the food values in the necessary basic vegetables. The lady of the house can round out the basic four food groups with her contribution of whole grain or enriched rolls or bread, with fruits for dessert, and dairy products. A tall glass of cool milk goes well with steak and salad, and of course, butter and baked potatoes are natural twins.

Works All Day

A husband in the kitchen from time to time might not be a bad idea. I know one who works all day at a desk, and comes home, eases his wife out of the kitchen, and prepares dinner. He can cook almost anything with a reasonable chance of success. To him this is a welcome change of pace, and comes under the heading of relaxation. "Foods can't talk back!" he says laughingly, after a day of dealing with people who can.

There's one caution, though. Usually, a husband in the kitchen wants his wife somewhere else. What better excuse for a lady to relax and enjoy a dinner she didn't have to prepare?

FEBRUARY SNOW REPORT COMPLETED
Moscow — The March 1st snow survey was completed Feb. 27 by Fred Chugg, Elbert Moore and Larry Daniels of the Soil Conservation Service, and Larry Deeds of the U. of I. Engineering Experiment station. The survey consists of measurements taken at five snow courses on Moscow Mountain, and the Sherwin Course between Bovill and Clarkia. The results show 56 inches of snow on the highest Moscow Mountain course, and 42.4 inches at Sherwin near Bovill. The snow on Moscow Mountain contained 19.4 inches of water and the snow at Sherwin contained 13.4 inches. This compares with last year's March 1 snow depths of 54 inches and 49.3 inches, respectively, and water contents of 18.3 and 17.3 at each course.

This year's snow pack is 12.1 inches above the past nine-year average of 44.1 inches. The highest March 1 snow depth recorded on Moscow Mountain was 57.4 inches in 1964. While the lowest snow pack was in 1963, when 13.6 inches were recorded.

ELECTRONICS THAT ARE ON THE WAY
Spokane — Imagine relaxing comfortably on your patio on a cold winter day. Consider the convenience of telephoning your empty home as you drive back from a vacation. You instruct it to have itself cool and have dinner ready by 6:00 o'clock.
Carry that hand power tool anywhere that you have a do-it-yourself job — it's cordless. So is the vacuum cleaner, but you may be using it in an entirely different way. Dust, dirt and pollen will be filtered from the incoming air. Thermoelectric wall and ceiling panels will heat your home without dust or soot.
Your patio is kept warm in the winter by electro-luminescent panels, which also provide light — and for good measure, cool the outdoor living area on hot summer days. Electronic wands will keep annoying mosquitoes and other insects away.
That welcome-home from vacation meal is prepared by a thermo-electric appliance which either heats or cools, depending on the direction of the current.
All these are just some of the future developments envisioned by leaders in the electrical industry as 1966 National Electrical Week is observed.
It is commonly predicted that we will see many times more electrical progress during the next ten years than took place in Thomas A. Edison's entire lifetime.
Within the next decade, some experts say, black and white television will have become almost a relic. The TV set of tomorrow will be thin enough to hang on the wall like a picture. Many sets will furnish three-dimensional pictures. Your portable TV will be pocket-sized, but will have color pictures and stereo sound.
Electricity holds great promise in solving such problems as converting salt water into fresh water and to meet the increasingly critical needs of many coastal cities. Electronically controlled highways seem to be a potential answer to problems created by the mounting numbers of automobiles.
You would control your car getting on such a highway. Then a portable computer at the bottom of the auto would take over and work in conjunction with a guidance system beneath the road. You would sit back, travel in safety at 100 miles an hour and await your exit.
Through countless improvements in generating electricity and carrying it to the user, the industry has been able to meet the soaring requirements at steadily declining prices. Some of today's enormous generating plants produce power equal to the combined work of 15 million men!
In the past 25 years, while the cost of living has doubled, the average price of electricity to residential users has been cut more than 40 percent.
As a result of the myriad uses for electricity and its low-cost abundance, the United States leads the world in consumption. With only about one-sixteenth of earth's population, we use more than half as much electricity as all other nations combined.
