

DANGERS OF KITE FLYING POINTED OUT

Spokane — Now that skates and sleds have been put aside by youngsters for the springtime sport of kite flying, Herbert Yates, safety coordinator for the Washington Water Power Co., has issued a friendly warning against the dangers to be encountered by participants in one of the world's oldest pastimes.

"There is no reason why children cannot enjoy this popular outdoor pastime if a few simple rules of kite construction and operation are impressed on their minds by parents and teachers," Mr. Yates said.

He pointed out that the use of tinsel or metal impregnated string, or even damp string, will lead to tragedy if the kite comes in contact with high voltage lines. "The string acts as a conductor for the electric current and is, therefore, highly dangerous," he said.

"The first rule to be followed," Mr. Yates warns, "is to use plain cotton string only. The second rule is to keep well away from all electric lines and refrain from climbing poles or throwing rocks to disentangle kites which have become lodged in the lines. A third rule is to keep away from highways and main traveled streets while flying kites."

The WWP spokesman said that kites should not be flown on rainy days and, "if your kite does get snagged in a power line call your power company and don't attempt to pull it down or get it yourself." Pointing out that it was part of WWP's safety program to warn of the hazards of kite flying, Mr. Yates concluded, "kite flying is fun. Follow these few easy rules and it will also be safe."

BIT OF HISTORY ON THE CLEARWATER

Returning from the Pacific Coast in May, 1806, the Lewis and Clark Expedition spent a month in a valley near the present town of Kamiah in Lewis County. The Nez Perce Indians welcomed them at the Clearwater, and honored them at a tribe council, offering a piece of land for their own.

The party remained there because of the deep snow but in June they were able to make their way eastward through Lolo Pass.

Lewis County, one of the smallest in the State, is one of the most thickly settled agricultural sections of Idaho with a population of 4,486.

No permanent communities were formed here until the Nez Perce Indian Reservation was opened to settlement, encouraging wheat growers to take advantage of the extensive prairie lands.

The Nez Perce Prairie comprises almost half of the county and the Clearwater River flows along the eastern boundary. Within the county are several deep rugged canyons, including Lawyers Canyon, Big Canyon Five Mile Canyon, and Six Mile Canyon. In the south are timberlands. The remainder is small agricultural communities whose towns are small trading villages. The climate is very pleasant and never extreme. Scarcely is there ever a zero temperature and the summer is warm and pleasant.

One of the county's outstanding records is its long existence, since its establishment in 1911, without any bonded indebtedness.

HIGHWAY USE UP

Usage of Idaho highways for January 1966 shows a gain approximately 12 per cent in number of cars counted, which is about double the record gain of a year ago, Louise Shaddock, head of Idaho's Department of Commerce and Development pointed out today. As one of several reliable indicators of Idaho's gains in tourists and visitors, the traffic count shows an accelerating increase in cars traveling Idaho highways continuing over a more than two year period. The gain is well indicated by the fact that the figures for this year while nearly double that of the January period are practically eight times greater than the figures for the same period of 1964. All tourist indicators regularly used and checked for estimating Idaho's tourist business are showing consistent and long established patterns of increasing gains, Miss Shaddock said.

MARCH WEATHER STILL WITH US

Although this area has had several beautiful days over the past week — days in which several local residents were observed mowing lawns, raking and cleaning — it's still March — and subject to chill winds, rain, and even an occasional bit of hail. The pouring rains of Tuesday night and Wednesday, sent the Pottlatch river up considerably, although it is still far from flood stage, or even "high water" for that matter, and far below what it was running a year ago. Farmers now say that there is plenty of moisture in the ground for spring work and growth.

Loggers and other woods workers are pretty well stymied — woods roads being bottomless, now that the frost is gone, and some say it's just too slushy and muddy for falling, skidding or decking.

MOSCOW COUPLE DIE IN MANILA BLAZE

Manila — An Idaho couple suffocated Thursday after taking refuge in a bathroom from a fire that swept the fifth floor of a hotel in downtown Manila. Ralph Mason Dunkle, 44 and his wife, Helen, 42, were staying in the fifth floor of the Swiss Inn.

Dunkle, a mining engineer, was superintendent of the Lapanto Mining Co. of the Philippines. He and his wife had arrived in Manila Wednesday from Baguio, a vacation resort and mining center north of Manila. Their three children, 7, 10 and 14 remained in school at Baguio.

He was a son of Mrs. Arthur Dunkle, now of Boise.

Dunkle, Moscow, was graduated from Kellogg High School in 1939, and entered the U. of I. at Moscow the following year.

Mrs. Dunkle, originally from Wilder, was graduated from Homedale High School in 1942 and received a degree in business administration from Idaho in 1948. Her father is Ira N. Moulton of Homedale.

Mr. Dunkle was a son of A. V. Dunkle, a pioneer resident of Kendrick.

WHEN KILLED?

Idaho Fish and Game department conservation officers Glen Page of Homedale and John Plummer of Boise, take measurements on dead deer to determine time the animals were killed. Modern techniques have been developed using temperature changes and rate of contraction of the animal's eye which provide information regarding time of death.

WARNING SOUNDED TO BEAN GROWERS

Boise — Idaho Commissioner of Agriculture Stanley I. Trenhaile, reminds Idaho farmers that they can not legally plant their own bean seed in this state unless it was field and windrow inspected by State Department of Agriculture representatives during 1965 and found to be free of halo blight disease.

The reason for this reminder is that the Idaho bean seed has long been known throughout the United States and in many foreign countries for its high quality and freedom from seed borne diseases. In a united effort to protect, expand and improve our position as a leader in the production of bean seed free from seed borne pathogens, the Idaho bean industry has developed regulations which, if carried out, will improve the quality of bean seed produced in Idaho.

The regulations require that all bean farmers plant only bean seed, regardless of variety, which carries a tag, issued by the Idaho State Department of Agriculture or the Idaho Crop Improvement Association, certifying that the seed has met the qualifications for in-state planting. These tags are of three types: The white tag indicates that the bean seed satisfactorily passed field and windrow inspection for the diseases commonly known as halo blight; the yellow tag indicates the seed was grown prior to the 1965 growing season and that the seed is apparently free of the diseases commonly known as halo blight by serology tests and growth studies; the blue tag of the Idaho Crop Improvement Association has WRI printed on it and signifies the seed is certified and has met the in-state seed planting requirements.

Bean farmers are cautioned that the planting of bean seed that does not carry the "In-State Planting Certificate" will disqualify their bean acreage from insurance under the pooling agreement and under Federal Crop Insurance.

LEAVE IT TO CHINA

Communist Chinese birth control methods are both unusual and strict. The government controls the ages at which people marry and separates couples to keep the birth rate low, reports Dr. Tien Hsi Cheng, zoologist at Pennsylvania State University. Licenses are issued only to men past 30 and women at least 25 years old.

PARK PATTERN

BY MRS. JERRY SMITH

WEATHER — March "Marched In" Tuesday in true form. During the past week we've experienced every type of weather from sunshine through sleet, rain, hail and snow, to four days of the coldest temperatures we've had all winter. Nothing can hold back spring, however, as we see youngsters boarding the school bus with moist fists clutching bunches of snow drops and pussy willows.

ROAD REPORT — Unsettled weather has made the Helmer-Park road just as unsettled, with samples of snow floor, mud, dry spots and washboards.

OTHER NEWS — Charles Jelleberg was a Deary visitor Saturday. J. D. Baumgartner, Joy and Jim and Mrs. Jerry Smith and children were Moscow visitors Saturday.

FREIGHT CARS SHORT

St. Paul, Minn. — Robert S. Macfarlane, President of the N. P. Railway Co., called on the railroad industry to acquire more freight cars.

Speaking in Chicago before the Railway Suppliers' Group in early March, Macfarlane pointed to the shortage of freight cars as a major railroad industry problem calling for prompt solution.

He said: "If there are railroads in the United States that do not want more business, I have not heard of them. The plain truth, however, is that the railroads of this country, although having ample truckage and yards are not now equipped with cars to handle a considerable volume of the business that is now offered to them. So, while we bark up one tree, the squirrel has moved to another and continues over a pathway of branches to his destination. "In my opinion, it is time we adopt drastic remedies at whatever cost and find a solution that will enable us to supply cars for loading for those who want to do business with us."

AFRICAN ART

U. of I. Moscow — The art of the Yoruba, a Nigerian tribe, will be shown at the University of Idaho Museum on March 12-April 23, under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institute traveling exhibition service.

The exhibit, assembled by Dr. Lawrence Longo of the graduate school of medicine, University of Pennsylvania, includes 48 items of sculpture, masks, weaving pulleys and textiles, along with 26 photographic panels which show objects in daily use.

In the sculpture, ranging in size from about six inches to three feet, the figures are almost always shown at rest, showing a high degree of symmetry and stability. Color is used on the sculpture, a practice rare in African art.

The exhibition was first shown at the University of California at Los Angeles, and is currently touring the country.
