

The Road Report . . . BY ARBA

"About one-half of fatal accidents are single-car accidents."

Faulty driving, emergencies and distractions are the main cause of single-car accidents involving women. Those involving men are usually the result of speed, drinking or drowsiness. The chances of being involved in a single-car accident are about 2 1/2 times greater if the driver is alone.

YOUNG MARRIEDS ARE IN COLLEGE

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Fry are both attending Central Pilgrim College at Bartlesville, Okla. She was Virginia Mae Stretch, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Stretch of Phoenix, Ariz., and he is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Fry of Southwick, Idaho.

On Friday, Dec. 24, 1965, they were united in marriage at the First Pilgrim Holiness Church at Bartlesville, Okla. Rev. Lyle V. Tullis and Rev. Bruce Chamberlain officiated at the ceremony before an altar flanked by lighted tapers in tiered candelabra and large baskets of chrysanthemum.

The petite bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of lace over satin. It was fashioned with a full skirt over a lace pleated tulle bustle. The neckline was scalloped and the sleeves were long. Her shoulder length veil was edged in pearls and attached to a crown of seed pearls. Her bouquet was of cranberry and pink carnations.

Mrs. Nick Thomas served as matron of honor, and Miss Carla Rae Stretch, a sister of the bride, as maid of honor. They were dressed in cranberry and pink suits, respectively. Miss Joyce Brooks and Mrs. Darwin Pratt wore cranberry sheath gowns. All carried nosegays of cranberry and pink carnations.

The groom chose a brother, Warren Fry, as best man. Other attendants were Phil Stretch, a brother of the bride, Dawn Pratt and Eddie Chamberlain. Ushers were Phil Nettleton and Nathan Thomas. Candelights were Brad and Randy Griffin.

Mrs. Emogene Snook played the wedding music and accompanied Larry Watkins on a trumpet solo and Dick Emory as he sang three songs and "The Wedding Prayer."

A wedding reception was held at the Central Pilgrim College following the ceremony.

He is employed at the Plaza National Bank and she is working for Phillips Petroleum Co., while both are attending college. They are at home at 801 Cherokee, Bartlesville, Oklahoma.

MARCH IS STILL WITH US, AND HOW!

Bill Shakespeare once wrote: "The March wind doth blow!" and that is as true today as when he wrote it centuries ago.

If anyone had any doubt about it — all they had to do was step out of doors Friday — and the wind literally "cut right to the bone." And well it might, with new fallen snow on the Camas Prairie, and in the Bo-will-Deary areas. Kendrick had a short burst of hail Friday, just to keep one on one's toes.

Other than that, it has been typically March. Rain, wind, chill, sunshine — and back through the order again and again. Wednesday night under cloudless skies, there was just a bit of frost.

Saturday morning cars and trucks came rolling into Kendrick carrying up to two inches of snow. They were from the Deary-Bovill area, and the Southwick area — and all the while a chill rain mixed with sleet fell in Kendrick.

Sunday morning local residents awakened to find about an inch of "nice white snow" on the ground — but by mid-day it had disappeared under rather watery sunshine. By late afternoon a cold wind was blowing and a chill drizzle falling. However, this ceased and stars began to shine.

Monday morning, about daybreak, one of the worst, if not the worst storm of winter struck, with snow falling thick and fast. Here in the canyon it melted almost as rapidly as it hit the ground — but on top the hills it piled up, and under the impact of a driving wind forced the closing of schools, as the snowplows were unable to keep up with the drifting.

On top the ridges the snow ranged from 6 to 14 inches in depth (where the wind did not carry it) and drifts were reported up to four feet deep. Children who had reached the schools were sent home immediately.

KIDS HAVING FUN FLYING KITES

Youngsters in and about Kendrick have been having a great deal of fun the past couple of weeks flying kites — taking fullest advantage of the "March winds doth blow."

Favorite spot is above the Kendrick water reservoir, where there are no trees or power lines, and where the winds seem most favorable. Most any hour after school and on Saturdays and Sundays you can see kites flying there — box kites, diamond kites, flat kites — you name them and the kids have them.

FREE FILM FOLLOWS PANCAKE FEED

In line with the drive to save the Steelhead fish from extinction — his main enemy being the gillnetters at the mouth of the Columbia river — a local group, headed by Werner Brammer, is spearheading a protest from this area, and they will show, free to the public, a film on "Steelhead Migration and Propagation" at the K. H. S. gym, on Saturday, Mar. 26th, at 8:00 p. m., immediately following the Lions Club benefit pancake feed.

All persons interested in steelhead fishing, or just plain sports fishing, young and old alike, are urged to see this color film.

Proceeds of the Pancake Feed, an annual affair of the Lions Club, will be used for repairs and improvements on the Area Living War Memorial Swimming Pool. It will be held at the K. H. S. cafeteria, with serving slated to begin at 5:30 p. m.

MALTING BARLEY HAS EXEMPTION

Moscow — Idaho farmers who have grown at least one of the acceptable types of malting barley in the last five years may over-plant their 1966 barley base up to 10 percent and still be eligible for price support loans. Clarence Jensen, chairman of the Latah County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee reminds growers. The acceptable varieties under the 1966 Feed Grain Program are the same as in 1965 with the addition of Dickson, Piro-line and Firbecks III.

Applications to take part in the malting barley exemption may be filed at the A. S. C. S. office during the regular wheat and feed grain program sign up period, which ends April 15, 1966.

When the malting barley exemption is used, substitution between wheat and feed grain and diversion payments are not available.

FISH AID INSTALLED AT SELWAY FALLS

Boise — Selway Falls exit or upper portal of fishway is looked over by inspection crew on final day before acceptance by the Idaho Fish and Game department.

This is an important segment of the salmon and steelhead restoration program on the Clearwater River drainage. The project includes removal of obstructions, construction of hatching channels and the use of counting weirs to check on hatching results. This fishway helps the upstream migration of salmon and steelhead on their way to spawning beds.

MANY ANIMALS ON NATIONAL FORESTS

Missoula — A total of 363,373 cattle, sheep, horses and mules have grazed on rich forage last year in the 16 National Forests of the Northern Region, Neal M. Rahm, regional forester, announced this week.

Rahm said 216,459 cattle and 146,914 sheep grazed more than 6.4 million acres of National Forest and grasslands under 2,998 paid grazing permits in Montana, eastern Washington, northern Idaho and western Dakotas. Paid grazing permits in the Northern Region returned approximately $400,000 to the U. S. treasury in the fiscal year 1965. Twenty-five percent of this amount is returned to the counties where it is earned, for use in building and maintaining schools and roads.

This total includes more than 11,000 animals that grazed National Forest rangeland without charge. Most of these were horses and mules used by recreation visitors in remote areas of the forests.

The number of animals grazed in the 16 northern regions last year was down about 3,000 from the previous year because of ranchers converting from sheep to cattle. In 1965 the number of cattle grazed increased 4,142, while the number of sheep declined by 6,244.

“Livestock grazing is but a part of the Forest Service's multiple use management of the forests for wood, water, recreation, wildlife and forage,” Rahm pointed out. “Grazing in the National Forests is important to the local economy. Paid grazing permits for these public lands aid in stabilizing the rural economy in this five-state area.”

With 11 National Forests containing approximately 16.6 million acres, Montana led the other four states of the region in the number of animals grazed in 1965.

4-H'ERS HAVE FUN IN PHOTOGRAPHY

Chicago — A certain group of young shutter-bugs use a camera to make records, express a thought, capture a scene, portray life, to communicate and decorate. They are the 4-H Club members busy with a photography project. They study light, color and texture, and learn how to obtain desired results by applying well defined techniques. Curiosity and patience are characteristics common to the neophyte photographers, 4-H Club leaders observe.

Participation in the national 4-H Photography program, launched in 1964, has surpassed expectations, according to James T. Veeder of the National 4-H Service committee. The number of members who have won county medal awards for their camera work last year exceeded 4,000, an increase of 760 over the first year.

Photography is one of a half dozen new 4-H award programs introduced during the past few years by the Co-operative extension service. It is supported by a large camera company.

WATER IS HOSTILE

People who predict that men will soon be able to live under water at great depths are all wet, says a University of Michigan scientist. He states that the marine environment, like space, is hostile to extended residence. Cold, poor visibility and pressure with its associated respiratory problems are among the hazards he cites.

DON'T SPARE KNIFE WHEN PRUNING

Moscow — All primed for pruning? You can get at it any day now. The best time to trim most ornamentals is in the early spring. The framework of the plant is easy to see before the leaves are vigorous. There are exceptions, though, for some flowering shrubs.

Don't spare the knife, advises Homer Futter, Latah county agent. Cut as deep as necessary. That often means removal of much growth. In the case of spring-blooming shrubs such as forsythia, spirea, flowering quince and lilac, that means (1) Cutting out all dead and diseased canes; (2) cutting out all weak wood; and (3) taking out some of the older branches close to the ground. Wise pruning, however, preserves natural shape without sacrificing large numbers of bloom. Pruning after the blooming season is often done successfully. This affords maximum flowering.

Practical tips are given in the pamphlet, "Pruning," by Tony Horn, horticulturist at the University of Idaho Extension Service. The county agent has free copies for the public.

Prune hybrid tea roses about the time growth starts, the booklet recommends. Take out all dead or weak canes. Cut the remaining strong canes to about 20 inches or less, remembering that a cane pruned even lower produces bigger blooms. Cut about one-fourth inch above a strong bud that faces outward. Slope the cut inward and cover it with a dab of healing compound.

In pruning trees, avoid "dehorning." Such trimming ruins the shape of the tree. The time to prune trees that "bleed" such as maples, walnuts, birches and mulberries, is just after the leaves come out in the spring.

TODD NELSON TELLS OF PEACE CORPS

Todd Nelson, a student at the U. of I., and son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Nelson, former Kendrick residents, told the U. of I. Argonaut a couple of weeks ago, about some of his experiences in the Peace Corps while stationed in Colombia, South America for two years.

Working from the city of Yolombo, Nelson spent most of his time with the department of Antioquia, a state with a population of about three million, he said.

"The cities there are quite beautiful — large and clean. They make you wonder where the great amount of poverty in the country is. But when you get out into the rural districts, you find it.

Most of Nelson's work took him into the rural areas. The Peace Corps projects in these areas include health, 4-H, gardens, penetration roads, water and schools. Obtaining outside monetary assistance, technical aid and materials were his major problems.

"We aid the people by organizing and making use of this outside aid, and getting them to do a lot on their own," he said.

"The Colombian is always eager to cooperate with us, granted their big bureaucracy causes delays, but the main thing is that they are willing," he said. "Frustration is the big word in the Peace Corps, and you find it when you are riding miles over mountain tops on a mule!"

The people are very good to the Peace Corps workers. The peasant homes offer them the best that they have including their food and their own beds.

On the whole, in spite of the hardships and frustrations we all liked it there, he said, and many of us want to go back."

REST HOME PATIENT

W. H. (Bill) Loeser, an old-time resident of the Southwick area, is now a patient at the Orchards Nursing Home, 1014 Burrell Ave., Lewiston. Mr. Loeser suffered a heart attack in November and a stroke early in February. As a result of this he required the amputation of his left leg.

Mr. Loeser will be confined to bed for an indefinite time. However, he is recovering slowly and is able to enjoy visitors. There are no set visiting hours at the home, so those who are interested may visit at their own convenience.

Mr. Loeser will be 84 years old Sept. 8th, and although he is bed-ridden, he is still mentally alert, and would greatly appreciate visits from old friends.

What's in it for you?

Tree farm signs are numerous in our part of the country. That's because more than a million acres of forest lands are dedicated to tree farming.

What do tree farms mean to you? They mean forest beauty, recreation, wildlife and a steady water supply.

But tree farms are for pay as well as play. Wood-using industries are an important part of our business life. One of our largest work forces is employed in the production of manufactured products made from our trees.

Tree farming is multiple-use management of our forests so that the most people may enjoy their bounties. And the orderly harvesting of tree crops assures continual recreational uses of the forests.

That's what's in tree farming for you.

LEADERSHIP IN 4-H PLAYS BIG ROLE

Chicago — With so much competition today for the leisure time of teenagers, it is interesting to note that membership in 4-H Clubs often lasts up to 10 years, reports the National 4-H Service Committee.

Long, continuous membership may be partly due to the flexibility of the informal, educational 4-H program, observe adults working with the young people who are between available today, about 40 different projects or activities.

The national 4-H Leadership program is one. Its purpose is to develop character, self confidence and an understanding of responsible citizenship.

Saturday evening March 12, members of Kendrick Grange attended the Latah County Pomona meeting at Mountain Home Grange Hall.

Honored Guest was State Grange Master Ermil Jerome. Mr. Jerome spoke to the group on membership goals, legislation and the coming State Grange session to be held in Moscow in October.

Pomona Lecturer, Mrs. Murray Benjamin, presented cash awards to three Granges on a recently completed visitation program.

The Latah County Pomona Grange Jamboree will be held at Moscow, Saturday, March 26, with a 6:30 pot-luck supper.

The next meeting of the Kendrick Grange will be April 5.

NEW EDUCATIONAL TV PROGRAMS SET

U. of I., Moscow — "Legacy", a new 10-program series that presents the past 15 centuries of western civilization as a panorama of triumphs and catastrophes, of miracles and disappointments, premieres on Tuesday, March 22, at 8:00 p. m. on the University of Idaho educational television station, Channel 12.

The premiere program in the series is "The Stones of Amiens," in which the 13th century cathedral of Notre Dame in Amiens, France, symbolizes the growth of Christianity as one of the forces that has shaped western civilization.

BY-PRODUCT COULD BE VALUABLE

U. of I., Moscow — A by-product of the Idaho phosphate industry — ammonium polyphosphate will be some day be an important feed supplement in western beef cattle feeding sections.

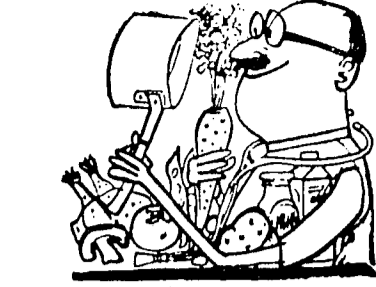

TO PROMOTE SEALS

Moscow — Members of the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity at the University of Idaho are planning a bicycle trip to Boise promoting the National Easter Seal campaign.

MAKE BREAKFAST A FAMILY MEAL

Last week we had you smiling, we hope, as you said 'cheese.' This week you may be groaning over the subject of getting your child to eat breakfast.

Children's breakfasts are a problem in many households, for two reasons. One is that the wrong trends are permitted to develop into a problem, instead of being anticipated and prevented.

Why should a child dutifully eat his nutritious breakfast under the following conditions:

- 1. The various members of the family get up at different times and breakfast on their own time; 2. some don't eat any breakfast; 3. others take a cup of coffee; 4. nobody talks to anybody else if it can be avoided;

The first step in outwitting the breakfast impasse is to have the family eat breakfast together, even if somebody has to get up earlier than he otherwise would.

WITHHOLDING IS UP CONFERENCE HELD

Boise — New tax withholding tables and instructions for the 65 to 70 million persons who will be affected by the Tax Adjustment Act of 1966 are enroute to IRS Regional Service Centers for labeling and mailing.

Although the new withholding rates will not become effective until May 1, IRS is expediting information to give employees and employers the maximum time to adjust to the new withholding system.

To make it as easy as possible for employers and employees to comply with the withholding provisions of the new act, IRS has included in the new tax guide not only the new tax tables, but a one-page fact sheet with sample tables and a new W-4 for employees.

LOW TEMP MEAT COOKING IS BEST

Moscow — Meat cookery is not difficult because it involves only six basic methods — roasting, broiling, braising, pan broiling, pan frying and cooking in liquid.

Tender cuts are best when roasted, broiled, pan broiled or pan fried. The less tender cuts are made tender by braising — which means cooking in a small amount of liquid or covered with liquid.

In brief, dry heat is suitable for tender cuts and moist heat for the less tender cuts of meat.

Years of expert testing proves that low cooking temperature reduces the meat shrinkage as much as 15 to 20 percent. The low temperature rule applies to roasting, broiling, frying, braising or cooking in liquid.

You will also be pleased to know that cooking meat at low temperatures requires less fuel. Range cleaning chores are easier, too, with low temperature meat cookery, because there is less burning of fat in ovens, and on pans and racks.

Cooking time is an approximate guide to the degree of doneness for tender cuts such as steaks, chops and ham slices. But the meat thermometer is a more accurate guide, especially for roasts, because it will register the internal temperature of the meat and indicates its degree of doneness.

SHELLS MAY TELL

Hints as to the cause of climatic variations may come from an unexpected source — freshwater clam shells found in prehistoric Indian villages. University of Wisconsin researchers hope that the composition of the shells will provide clues describing past climates and predicting future climatic change.

FOREST CASH SALES

Missoula — Cash receipts from the sale and use of National Forest resources amounted to a record $147,410,000 in the fiscal year 1965. This represents an 11,000,000 increase over the preceding year.

Provided, there is an atmosphere of courtesy and good humor pervading the occasion. One hardly expects, or desires, exuberant and effervescent brilliance at the breakfast table. But the morning groggy so fondly nursed by many who boast that they don't come alive until after 10 a.m., is just as much out of place.

Mother The Key

Mother is the key person. If, even before her first child, she establishes good breakfast habits as a part of the process of civilizing her husband, the children are more likely to follow their parents' example, and the problem is less likely to arise.

The second reason a child's breakfast may be a problem in some households is that mothers are too prone to worry if a child doesn't eat everything put before him. This may be a carry-over from the 'clean plate' fallacy, which was touted as a 'health habit' some years ago.

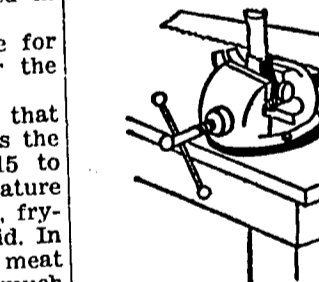

Why should children? As long as it does not become a habit, an occasional 'Mommy, I'm not hungry,' should be passed off without a fuss. If it becomes habitual, a doctor may be needed.

The WEEKLY Handyman

A Service Of Thor Research Center For Better Farm Living

A good hammer that "feels right" in your hand has a way of becoming almost a friend because of the long and worthy service it gives. More than one handyman has felt something akin to personal hurt when the handle on a trusted hammer broke.

You can fashion a new handle, but it's easier and perhaps better to buy one that suits your grip and fits the hammer head. Before you can put the new handle in, however, you must remove the remaining part of the old one from the "eye" or socket of the hammer.

Fashion a new handle for your old hammer head.

An easy way to do this is to mount the tool in a vise, saw the handle off close to the head and use an electric hand drill with a metal twist bit to rout the wood out of the eye.

Shape the new handle with a rasp and drive it into place in the socket by striking the butt end on a solid surface. Drive in metal wedges to tighten.

Q.—"How can I fill small scratches in unfinished trim and paneling so they won't show?" A.—Fill the scratches with glue.

A.—Fill the scratches with glue. Sand over them while the glue is still wet. The dust will settle in the scratches and stick to the glue.

Q.—"The hinges on my storm doors have pulled out a couple of times. I've put them back by using larger, longer screws. Now they've come out again. Should I use a wood filler and new screws?"

A.—At this point you'd do better to drill holes larger than those than now exist. Glue in tightly fitting dowel rods. Drill new holes in these for your hinge screws.

"Spring Weather"
The last three days haven't looked much like spring. Monday was the worst blizzard we have had all winter, with the schools closed. The wind and snow kept the snow plows busy for hours cleaning out the drifted roads. Anyway — "Spring is bound to be just around the corner."
