KENDRICK CAMPERS HAVE GOOD TIME

Members of the Kendrick Campers Karavan making the trip to Lake Wallowa over the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Gruell, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kuykendall accompanied by Mrs. Orville Preston and son Tom.

The group camped at Lake Wallowa Camp Ground, and on Saturday made a trip to Hat Point in Hell's Canyon. All agreed this is a tremendous canyon, almost an unbelievable sight. One can almost look across to the Seven Devils, and a trip well worth making.

RIVER NEARLY DRY

The Potlatch river, in the late fall and early spring a raging torrent—is now the merest of mere trickles—and can be crossed in most places by hopping from stone to stone—and not the slightest danger of getting one's feet wet.

Those using water from it for irrigation, sprinkling, etc., are said to be having difficulty in finding deep spots to set their suction hoses for a continuous flow.

Bear Creek is extremely low, so low in fact, that at times it disappears completely in the rocks in the creek bed!

SIDE SPLITTING LAUGHTER

Salesman: "These are especially strong shirts, madam. They simply laugh at the laundry."
Customer: "I know that kind. My husband had some which came back with their sides split."

IT RAINED PURE MUD SATURDAY EVE

Following three days with temperatures in the high 80's and low 90's and a particularly "muggy" day Saturday — rain fell Saturday evening, the first moisture since the 13th day of July, when a "trace" was recorded.

What was novel about the rain of Saturday evening was that it came on the heels of a dust storm, in fact, arrived a short time after hot winds had brought a thick dust up the valley from the west. The combined rain and dust storm at first presented an appearance of sleet or hail, and was so thick it was impossible to see across the canyon at Kendrick.

The brief, but heavy rain, washed off roofs, trees, streets, garden plants, flowers, etc., and brought air that really smelled fresh and clean. Where the water was pouring from roofs it was black with mud — and most home windows in Kendrick were left in a heavily mud-spotted condition.

The rain was more than welcomed by woods-workers, for it cut the fire hazard just a little bit. However, by evening Sunday conditions were almost back where they had started — when it came to fire hazards — and the Boulder Creek area remained closed to all but residents.

Norman Lewis, deputy state fire warden, Kendrick, warns that fire conditions are extremely hazardous and urges the utmost caution by any who visit woods or streams.

CONSERVATION CAMP YEAR ENDS SUNDAY, AUG 14TH

Three Kendrick people were involved in some way with the Idaho Youth Conservation Camp near Priest Lake this summer. Dennis (Skip) Chilberg, a 1966 U. of I. graduate, directed the camp. Stan Clayton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Clayton, was a student for the eight-weeks of camp, and Mrs. E. M. White, cooked at the camp for the last two weeks of its operation. She was assisted by their daughter, Mrs. Keith Thornton of Peck.

The Idaho Youth Conservation Camp, established in 1961 by the Idaho Legislature, is now in its sixth year. It runs from June 20 through August 16 this year. Young Idaho men from the ages of 14 to 17, inclusive, are eligible to attend. The only other requirements are that applicants be in good health and that they make suitable application each year to the State Forestry Dept.

Names are drawn by lot in each legislative district.

This year's camp had a roster of 47 boys. Each is furnished a pair of logger boots, medical care, tent and board and $1.00 a day for eight hours work — five days a week. Also, each receives a share of two other items which cannot be divided into portions — the flavor of adventure and the excitement of roughing it in the woods.

With amazing enthusiasm these boys ready themselves for the day's tasks. Following the flag raising ceremony and a morning briefing by Camp Director Skip Chilberg, the boys scurry about gathering up tools and other equipment and then scramble into the trucks which take them out to their jobs.

There are three principal tasks that the six eight-boy crews worked on: A pole making project for the Boy Scout World Jamboree at Farragut State Park which will be held in 1967. Another is tree thinning.

The third project was the improvement of winter deer browse areas near Priest River, just below the outlet from the lake.

It is the intent of the State Forestry department and the Idaho Legislature that the Youth Campers be exposed to as many forest work experiences as possible. For this reason the crews are rotated from one project to another and different projects are being introduced into the work schedule during the course of the summer. Director Chilberg and the other men there were well qualified to give the Youth valuable forestry and recreational training.

There were all sorts of activities going on after supper. Volleyball, horseshoes, softball games, the usual teen-type shenanigans, and now and then a swimming group at Indian Creek State Park. Then there are fishing trips almost every evening.

The work that the Youth Camp has accomplished in the woods over the six years of its existence has been a real contribution to the forestry effort in the Priest Lake area and Farragut State Park. The boys have been doing genuine forestry jobs, which normally would be handled by State Forestry personnel or left undone.

On the other hand, it is the opinion of many civic leaders that the great value of the Camp lies not in the cutting of poles, nor the thinning of young stands of forest trees, nor the better browse for deer, but rather in the conservation of youth. How do you put a value on that?

FAMILY PICNIC

Mr. and Mrs. Oral Craig were hosts at a family picnic in the Kendrick park Thursday evening. Guest of honor was the Craig's granddaughter, Mrs. Jack McMillan (nee Sharon Wallace) and son Gregory of Glendale, Calif. Twenty-eight were present, only one granddaughter was unable to attend.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wallace, Dan and Beth of Othello, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Craig and children of Lewiston; Mrs. Jerry Heistummann and children of Moscow; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Weyen and Debbie; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Harris and children, and Neil Craig and sons.

IDAHO, THE GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

The majesty of Idaho's mountains jut proudly to over 12,000 feet. Over 50 peaks rise above 10,000 feet; fourteen of these are over 11,000 feet and six peaks, led by Mt. Borah (12,655 feet) are over 12,000 feet.

Nowhere else in the world can you find such a wide variety of mountains as in Idaho. There are 81 separate ranges in the state, the largest of which are the Clearwater Mountains and the Salmon River Mountains.

The verdant, forested slopes of the Clearwater Range extend 125 miles from the St. Joe river in the north to the Salmon river in the south, and from 40 to 75 miles from the Bitterroot mountains in the east to the Salmon-Clearwater, and St. Maries rivers in the west.

The Salmon river mountains cover central Idaho from the Stanley Basin to the South Fork of the Salmon river. This is Idaho's primitive area, which also contains the Big Horn, Craigs, rough, bare mountains of granite eroded into countless spires and sharp ridges, known as the most rugged range in the entire Northwest. The Lost River Mountain Range, lying between the Big and Little Lost rivers is the highest of Idaho ranges, and contains Mt. Borah.

Along the Idaho-Montana border north from Leadore and northwest to Lake Pend Oreille is the Bitterroot Mountain Range, with its deep canyons, snow-flecked ridges.

The Sawtooth Mountains actually embrace the White Cloud Peaks, the Boulder Mountains, Smoky Mountains and Soldier Mountains, but the most admired group is the Sawtooth Range, a parade of jagged spires extending from Cape Horn to Alturas lake.

The Owyhee Mountains, with their unconquered, wild-west atmosphere, reach into Idaho's Owyhee county in a southwest direction for about 60 miles. This is an arid region that is characterized by granite ledges, irregularly eroded bluffs and pillings of shale, limestone and gravel.

TEACHERS IN REAL DEMAND THIS YEAR

U. of I., Moscow — For every teacher candidate listed during the past year with the Central Placement Service at the University of Idaho, there were an average of 28 job opportunities, it was revealed in a report issued by Sidney Miller, university placement coordinator.

During the 1965-66 placement season, requests for teachers from Idaho elementary and secondary schools numbered 1,216; from out of state 19,956, and from universities and colleges 4,287. The requests totaled 24,243 compared with 859 teacher candidates listed with the center — 343 of them new, and 516 of them experienced teachers.

"There is simply no keeping up with the demand for teachers," said Miller. In other fields he said that demand for college graduates had increased most markedly in chemical engineering, business accounting and agriculture.

"There is much demand for all types of engineers, but the rapid development of new plastics and other chemical products is creating a very special need for more chemical engineers," said Miller. "In business operations the big shortage several years ago was for sales-oriented persons. Today the big shortage has shifted to accountants. The rising demand for agricultural related enterprises such as banking and agricultural product marketing. Basic agricultural backgrounds are proving particularly valuable in these areas."

BUDGET VACATION TIME AND MILEAGE

Major mistakes made by many families on motor vacation trips is to try to cover too many miles in one day's driving, according to the American Automobile Ass'n.

Fatigue is one of the great enemies of traffic safety. An indication of this is the large number of single-vehicle accidents when the driver was alone and apparently fell asleep at the wheel and ran off the road.

The extent to which motorists push themselves beyond normal endurance was revealed in a special study made along Route 66. There, interviews with drivers disclosed the startling fact that more than 30 per cent admitted they had spent 16 continuous hours or more behind the wheel.

Both enjoyment and safety are enhanced by budgeting the daily vacation mileage. By getting an early start in the morning and starting to seek over-night accommodations well before evening, the touring family can travel in relaxed fashion and will have a better chance of living!

JULY RAINFALL

U. of I., Moscow — July rainfall for this area, as recorded at the University of Idaho official weather station was .68 of an inch. Of this, .40 came in one storm July 13, reports Dr. D. O. Everson, agricultural experiment station statistician.

This July total exceeds the 70-year average of .56 of an inch for this traditionally driest month, Everson notes. But precipitation for the current crop year is still well below normal.

Total precipitation received since last Sept. 1 is only 13.06 inches, or about 61 percent of the 70-year average of 21.29 inches.

Note: The July 13 storm which dropped .40 of an inch of rain at Moscow did not hit Kendrick — just a trace falling in this section.

TROUT REARING POND BEING BUILT

Boise — Idaho Fish and Game department construction crews are busy building a new experimental trout rearing pond on lower Roche Creek near St. Maries. Pictured are channels designed to collect underground water to provide adequate supply for cutthroat trout.

The pond will be just over a quarter-acre in size with a depth of six feet. Fish will be fed and released directly into the St. Joe river when they reach a five to eight-inch to migrate down to Coeur d'Alene lake.

DIRTY?
Girl friend: "Is my face dirty or is it my imagination?"
Mechanic: "Well, your face is clean; I don't know about your imagination."

Q. What is epoxy resin?
A. One manufacturer bills it as a super glue, and it is that indeed! Epoxy resin represents a wonder of chemistry. It adheres to everything but two or three kinds of plastic (vinyl, polyethylene, polystyrene).

This waterproof cement consists of two components—resin and a hardener or catalyst. When mixed they form an epoxy cement which can be used to repair porcelain, steel, glass, wood, stone, rubber, iron, aluminum, etc.

Catalyst from a separate tube must be added to epoxy resin to induce hardening.

This means you can fill cracks in cement walks or driveways, repair rickety chairs, leaks in pipes, broken toys, and numerous items which in the past were deemed beyond salvage.

This glue requires 24 hours to dry, so in some cases it is necessary to bind things together with tape or twine while the epoxy resin hardens. When it is hard, this cement can be sanded, drilled, filed, painted; and it will be resistant to alkalies, fungus and acid as well as water.

The resin and hardener are sold in small tubes for household use and in large containers for industrial or automotive bulk uses.

One reader who has discovered its many uses writes: "I furred my entire basement with little effort by gluing the 1x2s to masonry with epoxy resin. It cost a little more than masonry nails, but I prefer gluing to hammering!"

A woman do-it-yourselfer writes: "Epoxy resin is just the thing to glue those small heels back on women's shoes. I stumbled on to it in my husband's workshop and have found a hundred uses for it since."

If you have any do-it-yourself questions for George Rogers, write to him at the Thor Research Center, Marengo, Ill.

BE VERY CAREFUL WITH THAT POISON

Boise — An average of seven Idaho people die from accidental poisoning each year. About 800 more suffer accidental poisoning and about 400 of these require medical attention. The American Medical Association estimates there are about 250,000 products for home use which are potentially harmful if ingested or improperly used. These are chemicals that very often are stored where young children can reach them.

Chemicals that, if eaten or drunk, can cause death or serious illness. According to W. W. Benson, registrar, Bureau of Vital Statistics, the records show that poisonings in the home are much more common among young children under the age of five than among older people. This is due to the curiosity of children and is a result of the means by which they learn. Children learn by seeing, smelling, touching, tasting and hearing. When they find a substance they are very apt to look at it first, then to touch it and then to taste it.

Chemicals such as bleaches, cleansers, soaps, soap powders, pesticides and many others are commonly stored in homes or garages where youngsters can reach them. When youngsters do reach them, results can too often be fatal.

Most poisonings from chemicals can be prevented by simply storing these chemicals where small children cannot get at them. In addition to the chemicals used in the homes, another source of poisoning to youngsters is the medicine cabinet. Every home should have a medicine cabinet where such common things as aspirin are stored out of reach of the children. According to the medical profession poisonings of small children from an over-dose of aspirin are a common occurrence throughout the United States.

USE TAX DUE SOON

Boise — Truck operators are to pay their annual federal highway use tax by Aug. 31, Internal Revenue officials said this week.

The tax on their trucks for the year beginning July 1 varies from $81.00 to $180.00, depending upon the type of equipment, John Anduiza, information officer, said.

He urged all truckers in doubt as to their liability to contact the nearest Internal Revenue office, because many have had to pay costly delinquency penalties in past years.

Anduiza explained the penalties are mandatory by law, even though violations usually result from the following problems:

Considerable "turn-over" in truck owners, resulting in some not knowing about the tax.

Confusion between State of Idaho truck mileage tax and federal highway use tax — many truckers being liable for both.

WHEAT ALLOTMENT UPPED FOR 1967

Moscow - A straight 15 percent increase in each farm's wheat allotment has been announced by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, according to Clarence A. Jensen, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation, Latah county committee. This second increase will add a total of 19,662 acres of wheat allotment for 1967 over 1966, in Latah county.

No wheat diversion s required in 1967, and no diversion payment will be made. It is particularly important for farmers with small wheat allotments to remember that wheat diversion payments are no longer available, and that wheat must be planted for harvest to participate in the wheat program.

Domestic marketing certificates will be available on 40 percent of the farms' wheat allotment, and valued at the difference between full parity as of July 1, 1967, and the national loan price of $1.25. The certificate value for the 1966 wheat crop is $1.32 per bushel on 45 percent of the farm allotment.

Substitution between wheat and feed grains or oats and rye will be optional to the farmer who participates in both programs. Barley bases will not be included in the 1967 feed grain program, but will be available to a farmer on a request basis for the purpose of substituting wheat. A farm with a 1966 barley base is eligible for a 1967 barley base.

The 1967 Cropland Adjustment Program rates have been reduced from a special rate depending on farm yield to a new rate of about $6.00 per acre. This program has been sharply revised due to the present supply of wheat and feed grains.

John DeHaven was digging potatoes at his ranch just east of Kendrick last Thursday afternoon, when he came up with a part of an old time "something" that he could not identify, or find anyone else who could. The object is about six inches in length, made of cast iron, and has a definite "hook," as if for holding twine or rope on the small end. A portion of the end has been broken off. Guesses to date range from an old time can-opener to a rope makers hook.

It may be seen at the Gazette office by those who care to make a guess.
