MANY FLYING

Wash., D. C. — Flying activity at airports with Federal Aviation control towers will break all records in 1966, estimates the FAA. About 45.1 million landings and takeoffs are predicted for 1966 — a 19 percent increase over 1965.

WINTER WOE TO HIT IDAHO HIGHWAYS?

Boise — Idaho State Highway maintenance crews with the flashing yellow lights on their equipment will soon be in the midst of the hazardous task of snow removal and doing their best to make Idaho's 4,940 miles of highway system safer for your winter travel.

For these men and their families, snow and ice often means around-the-clock operation of equipment and other maintenance work until routes are again open for the thousands of children who rely on buses to get to school, police, fire-fighting equipment, ambulances, the motorist and the wheels of commerce and business.

From July, 1965, to June, 1966, the Idaho Department of Highways spent over $1,037,000 for snow and ice removal and sanding. This work involved the use of about 829 tons of salt, and 60,500 cubic yards of sanding material.

In 1960 the department spent approximately $600,000 for winter operations; used about 270 tons of salt and 36,000 cubic yards of sanding material. Annual increases in winter traffic volume along with steadily higher sanding and snow removal costs seem to be keeping pace with the upward economic spiral.

Equipment used by the department includes 447 trucks with blade or V-plow attachments; 22 rotary plows, five tractors; 65 motor graders and 146 sanders. A wide variety of highly specialized snow removal equipment is designed and manufactured for statewide use at the Boise Department of Highways shops. In fact, the Boise unit has a national reputation for designing equipment.

Because of constant vigilance by the department maintenance crews few major highways are closed during the winter season. Because of low traffic count, a few sections of highway were closed last winter, and, depending on snow, may be again this year. Lowell to Montana state line (Lolo Pass), closed to night travel due to snow slide danger.

Complete winter driving information is available at each highway district office in Pocatello, Shoshone, Boise, Lewiston, Coeur d'Alene and Rigby.

bined with other wettable powders or dusts should not be stored, the agent advises. The best policy is to bury them in an isolated area. A land-fill dump where refuse is regularly buried with earth is recommended.

If you must store packages of pesticides, make sure they are in the original, labeled containers — never in food or drink containers. Accidental poisoning occurs every year because children drink from soft-drink bottles that hold toxic material.

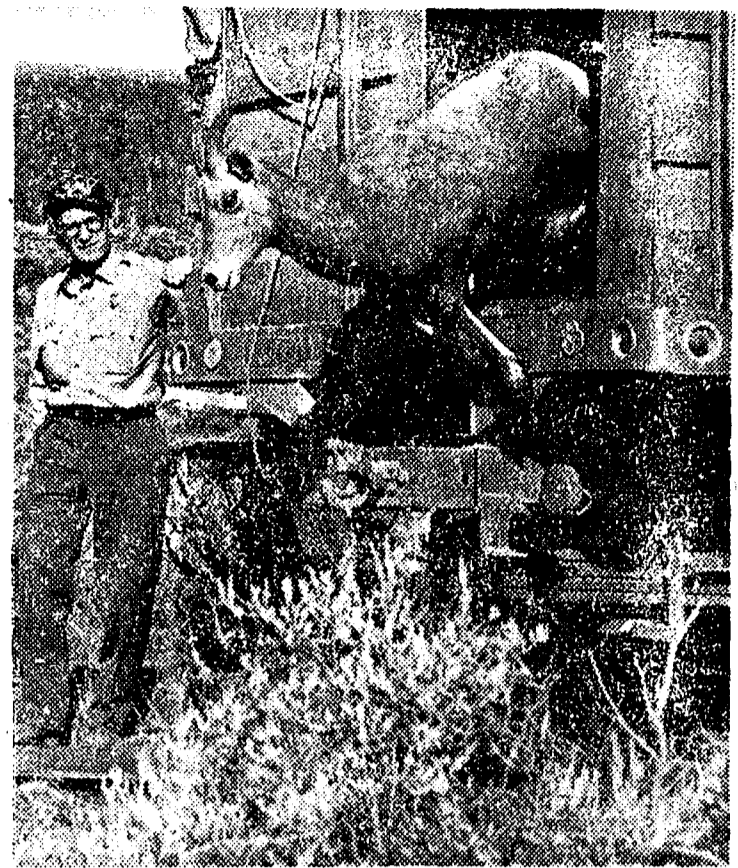

Never drain sprayers near a well, pond or stream. Don't dump pesticides in a sewage system or gutter. Dispose of them where there is little possibility of contamination.

The storage spot for neatly stacked chemicals should be a dry, ventilated area away from food, feed and seeds. Keep liquids in warm areas to protect them from freezing. Be sure caps are tight on cans or bottles. Check regularly for leaks.

ASPIRIN AT WAR

Wash., D. C. — The fighting ability of U. S. servicemen in Viet Nam has given many headaches to the Viet Cong.

Now the U. S. Army has disclosed that it is air-dropping bottles of aspirin to the Viet communists in the swamps southeast of Saigon. It's all a part of psychological warfare. The Army says the Viet Cong is short of medicine in the area. The aspirin is being dropped in containers carrying also safe conduct passes for those wanting to surrender.

BIGHORN SHEEP

One of ten California bighorn sheep recently live-trapped in British Columbia and released in the Owyhee mountains of southwestern Idaho.

Nineteen sheep of the same subspecies were trapped in the same place and trucked to the Owyhees by the Idaho Fish and Game department late in 1963 as part of the Five Point Program for the Future. Nine more were transplanted to the same area a year ago. The goal is to establish healthy, thrifty, prosperous bands of these highly prized game animals in the Battle Creek-East Fork of the Owyhee River country, and eventually to have a huntable population.

OH YOU WARTS!

Wash., D. C. — Almost all of us have warts at some time in our lives, reports the American Medical Association. Ordinary warts are not dangerous to health and about half eventually disappear even if untreated. They are, however, contagious and can be transmitted from one person to another. Scratching or picking at warts sometimes causes them to spread. They can also be spread by brushing and combing the hair if there are warts on the scalp or by shaving over them. Warts can occur on any part of the skin, but most often appear on the hands, fingers and soles of the feet.

PUT IT ON ICE

Chicago — "Cool it" often is useful advice for first aid. In many cases application of cold helps to minimize swelling, inhibit bleeding, reduce excessive high body temperature and relieve pain, says the American Medical Association. Cold applications, especially ice, have an anesthetic effect and tend to inhibit bleeding by constricting small blood vessels. Immediate application of cold compresses to sprains lessens swelling and ice water alleviates the discomfort from insect bites.

USEFUL WHISKEY

Evanston, Ill. — Three or four shots of whiskey — or rather its laboratory equivalent, ethanol — can be a highly effective tool for diagnosing certain diseases or malfunctions in human metabolism, says a Northwestern University endocrinologist. The alcohol is given to persons undergoing supervised fasting to determine whether their blood sugar production is normal, and also to check on the body's energy-burning processes.

WILD TURKEYS ARE NOW IN IDAHO

U. of I., Moscow — More than 100 Merriam's wild turkeys inhabit the state of Idaho since their first successful release in 1961, south of Whitebird.

According to a report by the University of Idaho's Forest, Wildlife and Range Experiment station, 26 sightings totaling 161 birds were reported to the investigator by residents of the area during last July and August.

The first successful release of 17 Merriam's wild turkeys in Idaho was made in January, 1961, on Deer Creek, which flows into the Salmon river south of Whitebird. Since then the turkeys have continued to expand their Idaho range, aided by subsequent releases near Riggins, Culebras and St. Maries.

Broods have been seen every year since 1961, and there has been a general increase in numbers. According to the report, the birds have a definite habitat preference. Eleven observations involving 106 birds were made at elevations ranging from 2,200 to 3,700 feet in valley bottoms or near springs at the lower extent of the ponderosa pine zone.

During the day turkeys generally remained in the dense growth or shrubby vegetation, under cottonwoods and scattered pines along the creeks. In the early morning and late evening the birds usually move out of the brush cover to feed in adjacent grassy fields and open stands of ponderosa pine.

The turkey is growing in numbers, but is still far from being a game bird in Idaho.

PEA AND LENTIL CONFERENCE SET

Spokane — The second annual Tri-State Pea and Lentil Conference will be held at the Student Union building of the University of Idaho, at Moscow on Tuesday, Dec. 13, according to an announcement by Merrill D. Sather, Spokane.

Sather, executive secretary of the Pacific Northwest Pea Growers and Dealers Association, said his association, the Idaho Association of Pea and Lentil Producers, and the Washington Association of Dry Pea and Lentil Producers are sponsoring the conference on marketing and research.

The conference will get underway at 10:00 a. m. with about 250 producers, dealers, farm suppliers, bankers and others with an interest in pulses expected to attend. Both the Washington and Idaho producer groups will hold their annual business meeting at 9:00 a. m. the same day.

Sather said a feature of the meeting would be reports from the industry's marketing organization, the U. S. A. Dry Pea and Lentil Council.

ANCIENT SEAL

Wash., D. C. — The body of a mummified seal, estimated to be about 2,000 years old will be the subject of a Northwestern University investigation into genetic and cellular changes during biological evolution. Tissues from the preserved seal will be compared with those of living members of contemporary species. The mummy is one of about 90 discovered by the National Science Foundation investigators in the Mc-Mudo Sound area of Antarctica.

REFORESTATION UP DURING PAST YEAR

Missoula — Forest Service reforestation and timber stand improvement work in fiscal 1966 was accomplished on 132,243 acres of the National Forest land in the northern region. This represents a 55 percent increase over the previous year.

"Effective intensive timber management is required if the National Forests are to maintain the annual sustained-yield timber harvest," Neal M. Rahm, regional forester, explained. "Last year an all-time record of 1,577,563,000 board feet of timber was harvested in these National Forests. This is about double the timber harvest of 1958."

"What we do today in reforesting non-stocked areas and managing the young stands will determine how well we meet the Northwest's and the nation's timber needs in the next century. This is our resource management responsibility to generations yet unborn."

Last year Forest Service tree nurseries at Haugen, Mont., and Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, produced more than 11 million trees for reforestation and processed 4,656 pounds of tree seeds for the Northern Region seed bank.

REALLY GROWERS

Wash., D. C. — Moose calves may be the fastest growing of all wild animals. They gain two pounds every day during their first month, and four pounds daily after that time.

A PHILOSOPHY OF PLENTY

Portland — People should strive to understand how the American free market competitive system works. The food industry provides an excellent example. From the farm to the family dinner table, American consumers enjoy the benefits of the most advanced food production, processing and distribution system in the world.

By and large, retailers, both chain and independent are highly competitive and work on the merchandising philosophy of moving the greatest volume of goods at the lowest possible prices. This philosophy, developed years ago, has been a logical outgrowth of the free market system. There is no other means by which a nation of nearly 200 million people can adequately be fed and clothed, except through a highly efficient mass-production, mass-distribution technology.

So far as food prices are concerned, here is approximately how your dollar is divided: 33.8 cents to the farmer; 25.7 cents to the processor; 6.0 cents to the wholesaler; 5.0 cents for transportation and 29.5 cents to the retailer, who operates on a profit margin of about one cent.

The biggest share of the food dollar goes to labor. Of the total cost of moving food from the farmer to the housewife, labor gets and estimated 50 percent.

We are spending only about 18 percent of our after-tax income on food and that compares with 20 percent in 1960, and 26 percent in 1947. In other words, food is a good buy, and there is plenty of it, for which we may all be thankful.
