This was followed by the presentation of the State Citation to Mayor Bud Eichner by Dr. Beghtol.

There followed a half hour of fun, and then the business of the evening was taken up. There was a discussion of the date and preparations for the coming of Santa, which will be on Saturday, December 20, at 1:30 p. m.

Rep. Brocke Reports On "Time" Straw Vote

From Rep. George F. Brocke, Sr., comes the final results of the time poll change conducted by the Idahoian and the Gazette-News in Latah County:

Total number votes received 80
Votes favoring Exempt Mountain Standard Time 68
Votes Favoring Non-Exempt Pacific Standard Time 2
Votes Favoring No Change 10

By these returns it is shown that an even 85 percent favor Exempted Mountain Standard Time. While a "straw vote" will attract only a small percentage of the voters of a given area it is only an indication of the feelings of some of the people. It would be my hope that the legislature will see this question placed on the ballot in next year's general election so that all of the people will have a vote on the "time" question.

My most sincere thanks to the people who took time out to vote on this question. — Geo. F. Brocke.

Genesee, Kendrick Score Hoop Wins

Both the Genesee and Kendrick basketball teams scored wins the past week on the basketball court. Kendrick defeated the Lapwai Wildcats 60-49 at KHS last Friday night, and the same evening the Bulldogs rolled to an 82-48 win over the Clearwater Valley Rams at Genesee. The Bulldogs had also defeated the Lapwai team 59-34 last Tuesday evening at Lapwai.

First Win

It was the first win of the season for the Kendrick Tigers as they broke a Lapwai full-court press open in the third period to score 20 points and coast home to a 60-49 win. Kendrick was leading only 27-25 at the half-time before Lapwai decided to put on the full-court press that backfired.

Don Parks and Alan Kimbley each scored 17 points for the winners, while Nels Sneve added 13 points.

Kendrick will host the Kamiah Kubs Friday night, and then travel to Timberline High (the newly consolidated Weippe-Pierce school) for a non-conference contest Saturday evening.

Genesee won as they pleased in the B game 57 to 23.

Wind, Rain Dissolve Snow

Rising temperatures, accompanied by warm winds and rain, melted the snow covering from the region over the week-end and the result was a mixture of mud and slush on streets, walks and rural roads.

Moderate to heavy rains fell Friday and Saturday of last week, and on Sunday in the higher elevations the rain ceased and gale force winds whipped through the area, knocking the power lines down in the Genesee area for almost two hours.

Monday the weather was still warm, but the temperature dropped that evening and despite some sunshine, damp air left no doubt that winter was still with us.

TIPS ON CARE OF POINSETTIAS
A few tips on care of poinsettias, the familiar Christmas plant, were offered by Gordon Dalley, county agricultural agent of the University of Idaho extension service.

In the first place, he suggested, put them where they will get plenty of sun, but be sure they are not exposed to cold drafts. It is not advisable to put them near an outside door way or on a window sill. On the other hand, it isn't good, either, to stand them near a radiator or fireplace.

Temperature of about 65 degrees is beneficial. Therefore, a place away from extremes of both cold and heat but in sunshine is recommended. It may be helpful to move the plants to a cooler location at night if the living area is maintained at nearly 70 degrees.

Go easy on watering, the agent advised. Too much water causes wilting. Test the soil now and then. Pour on enough that it drains from the bottom of the pot. Empty the excess. Never let the poinsettia stand in water.

If yellow leaves develop and drop, check the soil around the roots. Take steps to eliminate the cause. It may be a result of too much or too little water, lack of sun, drafts, or high temperature.

Samuelson Approves
State Grange Program

Boise — In looking over the program for the 61st annual convention of the Idaho Grange last week, I was pleased to note the comprehensive list of topics under discussion.

Such committees as agriculture, forestry, irrigation and reclamation, legislation, livestock and dairy, national and community welfare, soil conservation and fertility, taxation and transportation, all show a keen interest on the part of Grange members in a broad number of important and significant areas related to natural resources and public affairs.

The knowledge, the suggestions and the programs of these committees will always be welcome, because the views of the Idaho Grange are listened to with respect.

A lot of encouraging things can be said about Idaho's agriculture. But there are also numerous problems. You know and I know that all is not well with agriculture, and that is definitely an understatement.

The core of the matter is that prices to growers are about the same as they were over 20 years ago, while production costs have trebled.

Obviously, some method not yet devised has to be found to increase the farmers' net income because, financially, many are in a precarious position. The old saying that "if the farmer doesn't make it, then neither does Main Street" still holds true.

It is an accepted fact that the future of agriculture is based on continued advances in technology and research. New and improved varieties of crops, automation, new ways to process and preserve foods and crops, and more efficient methods of harvesting the crops are some of the leading areas where major advances have been made.

The necessity for continued research and technology is greater today than ever before, and there will be many more startling innovations produced during the coming decade.

Low income for the farmer is, in the final analysis, the underlying major problem. Drastic and immediate measures are necessary, and that is one of the top challenges facing the national administration and its farm programs.

On the brighter side, it is encouraging to note that cash farm receipts continue to set new records each year in Idaho. In 1968 the total was $546 million, the fourth year in a row that cash income exceeded one-half billion dollars.

The 1968 income was about 20 per cent higher than five years ago and 30 per cent higher than 10 years ago. Preliminary estimates are that the 1969 cash receipts will set yet another record.

Contrary to popular belief, agriculture is not a dying, nor a declining industry. In spite of sharp decreases in the number of farms and farmers, agriculture itself is expanding sharply each year.

Production efficiency is the key. Brain power and electric and mechanical energy have replaced horsepower. The number of farm workers has shrunk nationally by about five million in the last 20 years, but total farm output has increased by 40 per cent during the same period.

The American farmer doesn't deserve the fate of becoming the forgotten man in today's economy. After all, he feeds the nation and a good portion of the world, and must have an adequate return for his hard work, his management, risk and investment.

A nation is only as strong as its agriculture, and that fact alone verifies the Grange's position that "farming is everybody's business."

People who have tried but have been unable to get a birth certificate or baptismal certificate recorded shortly after birth should contact the Social Security Administration several months before age 65 and before they plan to retire so that acceptable evidence of your age can be located.

"More social security payments are delayed due to the lack of good evidence of age than for any other reason. It will be to your advantage to make certain that the evidence you have is acceptable at an early date," says D. Gene Shaw, Lewiston, Idaho District Manager.

DEPT. OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

Boise — Reminding motorists all vehicle licenses expire at midnight, Dec. 31, the Department of Law Enforcement says 50 per cent of Idaho vehicle owners have only nine days left when they may purchase 1970 renewal stickers.

Jack F. Farley, Boise, director of the Motor Vehicle Division, said a check with county assessors Tuesday indicated none had sold more than a 50 per cent of the total issued for 1969, and that no assessors plan to sell 1970-71 stickers on other than regular working days.

Farley again emphasized there would be no extension period for purchase of new stickers after the deadline and that it would be illegal to operate a motor vehicle after the deadline with expired dates.

Kendrick Receives Award From State Health Dept.

Boise — Citations for "outstanding persistence" in meeting Idaho Water Quality Standards were made last week by the State Board of Health to the north Idaho communities of Kendrick in Latah County, and Riverside in Clearwater County. The citations were presented in special ceremonies by Dr. Carter V. Beghtol, M. D., Orofino, a member of the Board of Health. Dale Richardson, chairman of the Riverside Sewer District board of directors and Harold Stoddard, who was a chairman of the district during planning and construction accepted the award for their community in ceremonies at the site of the sewage treatment plant.

Riverside, almost five miles in length is an unincorporated community below Orofino, beside the Clearwater river. In the past, ground water problems had made individual sewage disposal units ineffective, resulting in pollution of private wells and of the river. The community was concerned about the situation and formed a water district to provide an acceptable water supply for all homes in the district, and followed this with construction of an excellent sewage collection and treatment system. These two systems cost approximately $750,000, an obligation which the citizens assumed at a time when the total assessed valuation of the community was only about one-tenth of that amount.

Mayor Donald L. (Bud) Eichner accepted the award on behalf of the City Council of Kendrick during a dinner meeting of the Kendrick Community Lions Club, Wednesday evening of last week. Kendrick, in Latah County, lies in a narrow, rocky canyon where sewer construction is difficult and sites for a treatment plant are at a premium. Raw sewage had been dumped in the Potlatch River for some time.

When the State Legislature first established Water Quality Standards, Kendrick immediately began the necessary steps to meet the standards. Numerous problems were encountered in obtaining a site, in providing effective treatment and completing the project, but the community persevered even when construction of a second plant was found necessary. Of particular merit was the passage of a bond issue in a town of such small population, at a time when industries nearby were failing to provide sewage treatment for larger volumes of waste.

Dr. Beghtol praised the citizens of both communities for their spirit of cooperation and civic responsibility and pointed out that solution of the problems of water pollution will come through such responsibility on the part of all Idaho citizens and industries.

This is the first year the Board of Health has presented the Water Quality Awards, and only five awards were made throughout the state. Kendrick was the only incorporated municipality to receive the award, and the Riverside Sewer District was the only other community organization so honored. The other three awards were made to Triangle Dairy, Boise; American Potato Products, Blackfoot, and the Idaho Mining Association on behalf of mines in Shoshone county.

COHO SALMON RETURNS FOUND BEST 1ST YEAR

The Idaho Fish and Game Department expects delivery of some 3 million eyed coho eggs in mid-January from the Willard National Fish Hatchery near Cook, Washington, on the lower Columbia River.

These will be incubated and reared in state fish hatcheries until they are fingerling size and water conditions are suitable for planting next spring in more than a dozen lakes and reservoirs throughout Idaho, according to Walt Bethke, assistant fish hatchery supervisor.

Lakes and reservoirs slated to get plantings of coho fingerlings this year include Pallasades, Island Park, Blackfoot, Dike Lake, Cascade, Hayden, Coeur d'Alene Lake, Arrowrock, Lucky Peak, Cove Arm, Salmon Falls, Anderson Ranch, Magic, Oakley, and Dog Creek Reservoir. Some of these waters were stocked with coho fingerlings during the 1967, 1968, and 1969 seasons.

During the past two years, nearly 4 million coho fingerlings have been released in Idaho. Most survivors after the first year want to smolt and go down the rivers to the sea, and will escape from a reservoir unless their exit is somewhat blocked.

Coho released during 1967 and 1968 in Island Park and Blackfoot reservoirs on the upper Snake River found themselves in the backwaters of American Falls Reservoir in their second year. Some coho caught in American Falls Reservoir and in the river below have reached two pounds.

Bethke says that this year 10,000 coho fingerlings will be reared to yearlings at American Falls hatchery. The plan is to release them in the spring of 1970 in the backwaters of American Falls reservoir. If they drift slowly through the reservoir, the coho are expected to grow vigorously and provide good fishing opportunities. In the past, coho have not been stocked in American Falls because the small salmon already were drifting into these waters from Island Park and Blackfoot reservoirs.

A NEW INSTRUMENT that uses

the heart's sounds to diagnose a coronary attack has been developed at the University of Cincinnati. Its developers say the faster diagnosis made possible by it will result in faster medical treatment — which should decrease the death rate among patients. The device is a frequency analyzer. By means of a microphone on the chest, it quickly and without pain to the patient notes the frequency component pattern of the heart sounds and indicates the presence of a coronary heart attack.

Carolers Sing in Spanish
The members of the Lapwai High School Spanish class of which Dale Heimgartner is a member, gathered for an "old fashioned hay ride" and sang Christmas carols at Lapwai and Sweetwater, then met at the Jeff Wilson home for a party. Various mothers, including Mrs. Roy Heimgartner, assisted the hostess in the affair.

Such events make the "older" generation proud to be the parents and grandparents of this "younger" generation!

Willing Workers Club
The Lenore Willing Workers Club met on Saturday for its annual Christmas dinner and tree, with gift exchanges. The men and children were also invited to attend.

Mrs. Helena Brown, Emma Wischmann and niece from Lewiston; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Steigers and grandchildren Bekalyn and Brant Steigers were among those attending from this area.

The party was held in the basement of the Lenore school, and enjoyed by all.

Birthday Supper
Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Steigers and children and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Steigers joined the family of Wm. Steigers at Lewiston on Saturday evening to enjoy a birthday supper party, honoring Mrs. Mary Steigers, who appeared as young as her two lovely daughters!

MULCHING STRAWBERRY PLANTS
Mulching strawberry plants for winter protection now that they have been exposed to several periods of frost is a sensible idea, the county agricultural agent says.

The time between Thanksgiving and Christmas is suitable. Plants should be dormant but temperature has not been severe enough to cause serious injury to crowns.

Apply mulch three or four inches deep, the agent advises. Clean wheat straw is preferred. An average bale will cover 30 to 35 feet of row 18 inches wide. Put the straw on the strawberry bed on a calm day shaking it lightly over the rows. Avoid placing packed bale sections on the plants. Scattered straw will settle into place following snow or rain.

Leave the mulch on all winter. Re-

EARLY DIAGNOSIS OF CANCER IMPORTANT

Boise — Everett N. Jones, Jr., M. D., president of the Idaho Division of the American Cancer Society, announced this week there will be an estimated 1,000 cancer deaths and 2,000 new cancer cases in the State of Idaho during 1970. The estimated cases are: Breast, 200; colon-rectum, 200; lung, 200; oral, 20; skin, 600; uterus, 100; prostate, 150; stomach, 40, and leukemia, 90.

Nationally in 1969 an estimated 323,000 Americans died of cancer. In 1970 about 330,000 will die of the disease — that is over 900 persons a day — more than one every two minutes. About 208,000 Americans will be saved from cancer during 1970, but about 104,000 patients will die who might have been saved by earlier diagnosis and treatment.

Notes of An Ex-soldier ...

(Editor's Note: Robin Magnuson is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Magnuson of Kendrick. He and his family; wife Cindy and daughter Lenea, returned to Kendrick last week following his release from active duty with the Army. His experiences and observations are interesting and timely, and Mr. Magnuson agreed to share them with our readers.)

I was sent to Germany in October, 1967, and was discharged from the army on November 1 of this year. I was assigned to Bamberg, in northern Bavaria, as a medic, and I worked in a dispensary for eight months. I then transferred to an education center where I was a counselor and teacher. I spent approximately two months while I was in Europe traveling in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, France, Austria and Italy, as well as making extensive visits to all parts of West Germany.

In Bamberg there are about 5,500 American soldiers, but the American community there numbers nearly 10,000 when dependent families and civilian workers are counted. For this American "city" the army has provided snack bars, a bowling alley, drinking clubs, an education center and a movie theater, for the use of the troops. In addition there is a commissary, a P. K., a liquor store, a post office, a library and a hunting and fishing club, all of which are used by both civilian Americans and soldiers. The families of the career military personnel are housed in large apartments built on the post, and an American school system provides American teachers for the American children. I would estimate that there are approximately 250-300 Germans employed on the Bamberg post by the American army. The size of this American "outpost" makes quite an impact on Bamberg, especially on payday. And all of this investment is in addition to the military equipment, shops, the storage and training areas and all the other facilities needed for the military "effort."

My military duties for the past year and a half consisted of working with soldiers who had not finished high school. As a teacher I found this frustrating. About 30 percent of the men at Bamberg had not completed high school. The army staffs and equips the education center to give them an opportunity to do so, or to begin college and vocational classes if they are qualified. On the other hand the army keeps men "busy" polishing boots and washing trucks all day and often into the night, leaving very little school time for those who want to attend classes. Almost all soldiers feel that the left hand of the army never knows what the right hand is doing, and the education center is a pretty good example of this. The army constantly tells the men that education is important to them and their careers. The army even recruits men with the promise that in the army they will have the opportunity to finish their high school. Yet very seldom does the army give the average enlisted man the time to go to "non-military" classes. The army is very good about providing the time if the man will re-enlist for six years or so, but most men don't want to stay in the army.

The men do want to pursue their education, however, and they find it hard to accept the fact that the army encourages this and yet at the same time keeps them so busy at meaningless jobs that they don't have the time. We who worked at the education center thought it quite strange that the army would emphasize education and at the same time make it hard for the men to attend school. We were further "amused" last summer when the army decided that it was time to try and save money by eliminating "waste." One of the budgets to be cut was the one for the education center programs. We got the news of a 50 percent reduction in available money on the same day that the President announced that $650 million was going to be spent in building the SST airplane.

The army has developed several large areas in Europe to provide recreation for the approximately 250,000 troops and the almost equal number of civilians and dependents living around the military bases. For example, in Germany it is possible for a soldier to stay at one of five large American hotels in Garmisch for as little as $1.00 per night. The recreation areas, plus the many on post facilities, are designed to give the soldier, his family and the military related civilians an opportunity to have an "American" place to go for recreation. This is supposed to improve the morale of the troops and ease the "pain" of being away from home. Many soldiers take advantage of the skiing, boating, night clubs and tours, but probably the biggest positive morale factor for the individual soldier is the fact that he knows when he will get out of the army and "home." Most soldiers concentrate so hard on "counting the days" that they find the long, boring hours of K. P., washing equipment, cutting grass and polishing brass bearable.

To the Pentagon and to the high command in Germany the American military mission in Europe probably seems quite efficient. To the average G. I. the 18 or 24-month tour is an endless succession of long days of paper shuffling or machine pushing, depending on one's job. To illustrate the difference in thinking or attitude between the high brass and the enlisted man, I give you the following story, told me by a friend of mine, since killed in Vietnam.

My friend was a driver for a Lt. Colonel, a battalion commander responsible for approximately 500 men and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of equipment and weapons. One day, when the battalion and all its equipment was bivouacked in the woods, the Colonel flew over the battalion area in a helicopter, taking his driver along for the ride. Now the men were supposed to be "on alert", with their weapons ready and equipment camouflaged. As the helicopter flew over the battalion my friend said that the Colonel remarked that the unit looked very sharp and ready for action, with equipment well placed and weapons ready. VETERAN FACTS

About 1,242,000 beneficiaries will participate in Veteran's Administration training programs this school year.

The V. A.'s program to provide on-the-spot orientation and counseling to combat troops in Vietnam reached the 1,000,000 mark in November. Veterans whose service-connected disabilities are rated 50 percent or more are entitled to additional allowance for dependents. A new law which went into effect Dec. 1st provides automatic increased payments for most widows of service men and veterans eligible for dependency, and indemnity compensation. A veteran who must complete high school training in order to qualify for higher education, may receive an educational allowance which will not be charged against his basic educational entitlement.

from the same helicopter, my friend saw trucks out in the open with camouflage nets looking like dirty sheets hung out to dry, jeeps sitting in the middle of the road, men sitting under trees or standing at the mess truck drinking coffee and the whole area criss-crossed with vehicle tracks, making the woods look like the home of an army, let alone a single battalion.

To read or hear the opinions of the generals and colonels and to experience day to day life in the army in Germany makes me think that the United States has two separate armies in Europe. I know I never saw the army that I read about in Pentagon press releases. — Robin Magnuson.

Did you know that the definition of a Ringleader is the first in a big family to take a bath Saturday night!

There's a notable family named Stein There's Gortrude, there's Ep and there's Ein. Gert's poems aren't clear. Ep's statues are queer. And nobody understands Ein.

When teenagers marry most parents are good supports about it!

Salesman who covers chair instead of territory is on the bottom all the time!

And here's one that is universally true: It's easy to tell when you've got a bargain. It doesn't fit!

It is unfortunate that the only exercise some people get is jumping to conclusions, running down friends, sidestepping responsibility, dodging issues, passing the buck and pushing their luck. Don't be one of these.
