Winter Returns—

Weekend Snow Storms; Rain Halt Area Farming Operations

Signs of winter returned to the area last week-end as an unseasonable snow storm swept across much of the region, bringing snow up to between five and six inches in some sections, and rain in others, as farmers and loggers were driven back indoors by the cold, wet weather. The snow began falling late Saturday night and continued in the higher elevations throughout Sunday and Sunday evening, and on into Monday morning before the skies partially cleared. The snow stayed on the ground in the Southwick and Cameron areas and vehicles from those areas were easily spotted in Kendrick

Monday morning by the covering of snow on the "roofs" and hoods. About an inch of snow covered the ground in Genesee Monday morning but the roads were wet and bare.

Stopped the Farming The storm brought an abrupt halt to farming operations in all areas. Farmers had just been getting a good start last week, prior to the storm.

Bob Watts, manager of the Kendrick Rochdale Co., said Tuesday morning he estimated that approximately 25 percent of the peas and lentils were planted before the wet weather. He said more seed may have left the warehouse, but he doubted it was in the ground.

George Brocke, Jr., of Brocke & Sons, Inc., put the estimate at about 40 percent for the farmers securing seed out of their warehouses. He added that fertilizing was probably "over half done." He also pointed out that this kind of weather and planting season proves the value of treated seed as the cold and damp will prevent the germination for some time to come.

Up in Genesee farmers under Ag-grow contract this year have an estimated 75 percent of their peas in the ground, said Leonard Singhose, branch manager. Had the weather stayed good, seeding operations would have been finished this week, the manager said. "We were getting about 10 percent of our crop in each day, last week," Singhose reported. Even with this latest delay, Genesee farmers are still ahead of last year, when the final peas weren't in the ground until the middle of May.

Locals Attend Youth Legislature At Boise

Marsha Schoeffler, Senator; Lee Magnuson, Representative; Nori Fry, Lobbyist; and Dennis Brammer, Reporter, attended the Y. M. C. A. Youth Legislature at Boise last week. The meetings were held in the actual chambers of the State Capitol Building.

Youth Governor Mike Orme of Idaho Falls and Gov. Don Samuelson both gave opening speeches Friday morning, April 17th, at a joint session of the Senate and House.

Separate sessions of the Senate and House were then conducted and committee meetings held in the early afternoon. Important bills presented concerned stopping pollution, allowing liquor at Sunday banquets, abolishing capitol punishment, and a proposal for a one-house legislature.

Saturday evening's banquet was held at the Cathedral of the Rockies, with a special Governor's Ball following.

Delegates were housed with host families in the Boise Heights area. Mrs. Willard Schoeffler chaperoned the group, which returned Sunday.

Purpose of the Y. M. C. A. Pacific Northwest Area Council of Youth and Government is to acquaint youth with the methods by which we, in our American form of democratic self-government, determine public policy — that is, make our laws and to help make practical application of Christian ideals to problems of the State Legislature.

Kendrick School District Mill Vote Levy Set For Tuesday, May 12; One Extra Mill Asked

On Tuesday, May 12th, the people of the Kendrick School District will be asked to approve a levy of one mill above the 30 mills allowed by law for maintenance and operation of schools for the 1970-71 school year. If approved the mill would only be assessed for one year. The mill levy will raise approximately $2,881.00 plus equalizing the levy in the three counties of the school district. If the vote is carried, all counties will have the same levy of 31 mills. Furthermore, the levy assessed this coming year will be four mills less than this past year due to the fact that the Plant Facilities levy reverts back to 2 mills. The past two years the plant facilities levy has been 5 mills.

Due to a slight surplus in the Bond Interest Redemption Fund, the levy for paying off the high school will be reduced this coming year to 8 mills. This past year it was 9 mills. In years past 2 mills for Plant Facilities would buy a school bus. This is no longer the case. The 60-passenger bus that will be purchased this coming year will be approximately $8,400, or just about 3 mills on the district's assessed valuation. If the vote is approved the overall mills assessed for school purposes will be 3 mills less than the patrons are paying this present school year.

It should be noted that this election will help equalize the levies of Latah, Nezperce and Clearwater counties which was caused by House Bill No. 304.

The election law has been changed this year so that you do not have to be a property owner to vote. You must be a United States citizen, a resident of the state for six months, and a resident of the District for at least 30 days, and be 21 years of age.

The voting places will be: Cameron Church, Cameron, Idaho. Lobby of the Kendrick High School, Kendrick, Idaho. Front Hall of the Juliaetta Grade School, Juliaetta, Idaho — between the hours of 2:00 p. m. DST, and 7:00 p. m. DST, May 12th, 1970.

Daylight Savings Time Begins Sunday, April 26

Clocks move ahead one hour, Sunday morning, April 26, at 1:00 a. m., as the nation goes into its annual Daylight Savings Time. Clocks will be advanced from 1:00 a. m. to 2:00 a. m.

As a rule, farmers aren't particularly happy to leave "natural time," but most merchants and city folks are glad to have the extra hour of daylight in the evening to do yard and garden work — or just relax! Daylight Savings Time will remain in effect until next October.

Juliaetta News—

Juliaetta Man Killed Tuesday When Stuck By Railroad Motor Car

David Slickpoo, 65, Juliaetta, was killed instantly Tuesday morning on the tracks of the Northern Pacific Railroad when he was struck by a motorcar driven by Milford Osborn, Kendrick, a railway section crewman.

The accident occurred at 4:35 a. m. Tuesday morning on the main tracks of the Northern Pacific just back of the Gem State Lumber Co. shop in Juliaetta.

According to Ervin Mabbott, Juliaetta Marshall, and Elton Walker, Latah County Deputy Sheriff, both of whom investigated the incident, Osborn told them he was heading east in the motor car when he noticed a figure standing three or four feet from the tracks. Osborn told the officers the man was about five rail lengths or 160 feet away when he first saw him. When the car was about one length, or 32 feet away from the man, Osborn told the officers, the man suddenly stepped onto the tracks. The driver applied the brakes of the car, but was unable to halt the vehicle in time to avoid striking the man. Deputy Walker said he believed death to have been almost instantaneous.

Marshall Mabbott said Osborn first notified Elmo Eldridge, section foreman, who immediately notified him, and then called Dr. Christensen, Kendrick physician, who arrived shortly before 5:00 a. m., and pronounced Slickpoo dead. The body was taken to Brower-Wann Chapel in Lewiston, where services are pending.

The deceased lived three miles from Juliaetta on the Lewiston highway.

He was born at Culedeas, Jan. 17, 1904, the son of Peter and Annie Slickpoo. He attended school at St. Joseph's Children's Home at Slickpoo, which since has closed. With his parents, he moved to Spalding, where he lived until moving to Juliaetta in 1925.

He was a communicant of the Catholic Church.

He married Jeanette Peterson at Lapwai June 14, 1925. She survives at the family home, about three miles west of Juliaetta.

Other survivors include two sons, Maurice R. Slickpoo, Juliaetta, and Phillip R. Slickpoo, Lapwai; a granddaughter, Cheryl L. Slickpoo, Juliaetta, and an aunt, Mrs. Jeanette Wilson, Lapwai.

Rosary will be recited Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at Malcom's Brower-Wann Memorial Chapel, Lewiston. Funeral mass will be celebrated at 10 a. m. Friday at the Lapwai Catholic Church. Burial will be at Sweetwater Cemetery.

Benefit Breakfast Will Aid Little League Baseball Program

Beginning at 7:00 a. m. and continuing on until 9:00 a. m., a breakfast of coffee, juice, ham and eggs, and all the hotcakes you can eat will be served at the Juliaetta Grade School building. The meal will be $1.00 for adults and 50¢ for children up to the seventh grade.

Tickets are available from various local business firms, students, and may also be purchased at the door that morning. There is also an opportunity to win a ham in connection with this benefit.

Proceeds from the meal will be used to purchase bats, balls, helmets and other baseball equipment for the Little League teams in the Kendrick, Juliaetta and Southwick area.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wilson, the latter a sister of the bride.

Then there was a debate, "Resolved that the Reds Should Not Be Deported for the U. S." Affirmative: Orland Mayer, Theodore Anderson and Louis Herman. Negative: Ruth Wolf, Maxine Ehlen and Emma Sather.

The final number was a mixed quartet by Irene Mulalley, Virginia Scott, Cecil Bollou, and Howard Smith.

Job Opportunities On The Increase

Thirty-one Latah County workers were assisted in finding gainful employment by Moscow Office of the Idaho Department of Employment during the past week. Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow office manager said that this is nearly double the figure reported for the previous week and for the corresponding week a year ago. He attributed the increase to improved weather conditions, and said that if the weather continues mild, more jobs should be available in the area. Jobs were filled in a variety of local businesses and industries, and on the area's farms. At the end of the week there were a total of 43 jobs still open. Nearly all of them require some skill, experience, or training. Needed were a shop layout man, insurance salesman, experienced year 'round farm hands, dining hall porter, carpenters, a plumber, and a creamery worker. Secretaries are also in demand, as well as seamstresses, cafe workers and domestic workers.

College and high school age young people are beginning to make inquiry concerning summer work, Hartstein said, and he urged area employers to contact his office as soon as summer employment needs are known.

Although twenty-nine workers filed new claims for unemployment insurance during the week, the total number of idled workers receiving jobless pay has declined. The total dropped from last year's 361 to the present 353. A year ago there were only 247 persons in the area receiving unemployment compensation. Most of the increase from last year results from curtailments in the woods and in fewer construction projects in the area.

The family of G. A. Bumpass moved to the ranch Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Martin are the proud owners of a new Ford.

Last Friday Mr. and Mrs. George Van Buskirk and family moved to Fullman.

Bank Says Business Is Good In Idaho

Business in Idaho during the first quarter of 1970 was generally good despite some slowdown in the economy. This is the report of First Security Bank's quarterly news letter being distributed this week, according to James Hoogland, Jr., local bank manager. The News Letter is edited by Dr. ElRoy Nelson, the bank's senior vice president and economist.

Total personal income in the first three months of the year was approximately $525 million, or six per cent higher than 1969. After correction for price increases, real income was about the same as a year ago, says First Security.

The outlook for the second quarter is generally good. However, there is some concern from a slowdown in demand for products which Idaho produces for national markets — minerals, lumber and agricultural goods.

Cash receipts in the first quarter for the sale of farm products was equal to the $134 million in the same period in 1969. Increases in livestock receipts offset some decline and receipts from the sale of crops. Prices for all livestock and livestock products at the end of March were about the same as the peak reached in June of last year. Inventories of all cattle as of January 1, showed increases both in Idaho and the nation.

The agricultural outlook for 1970? Generally good, with average prices of products slightly higher, especially for livestock and livestock products.

Milk production in the state is up slightly from one year ago, as is egg production — both nationally and in the Gem state. Egg prices have declined slightly since the peak of late 1969, while hatchings of egg-type chicks are up 17 per cent. The broiler output continues to increase, as does the demand, says the report.

Metal production during the first quarter was about the same as last year. Silver production is estimated at five million ounces, or 43 per cent of the national total. Prices have increased from $1.70 to $1.89. Production of lead and zinc both showed small decreases as did production of phosphate rock.

There was a considerable decline in lumber production in January, at 37 per cent below 1969. Although weather was a slight factor, the major reason for the decline was a change in the demand for lumber products, resulting from decreased building construction. Prices for lumber and lumber products have stabilized in contrast to the wide variations of 1969.

Employment in Idaho in February was reported at 269,800, an increase of 2.5 per cent over last year.

Retail trade, as it has been nationally, has been sluggish and increased over 1969 at a rate corresponding to price increases. Physical volume of sales was about the same as in the first quarter of 1969.

Highway Needs Stress Human Factors

BOISE - Highway improvements between now and 1985 will cost $320 billion, according to the 1970 National Highway Needs Report prepared by the Department of Transportation for submission to Congress. The biennial report also singles out safety as "a prime concern in all aspects of the highway program."

The report stresses preservation of environmental resources in the construction of highways. It also indicates the growing emphasis on joint development for integration of highways with other environmental planning and multiple land use to make provision for facilities such as parking, recreational areas and buildings to share highway rights-of-way. Further, provisions for bus mass transit are urged, and the report recognizes the need for fixed rail transit in certain large, congested metropolitan areas.

In response to a Congressional directive, the needs report gives "preliminary findings" of a functional classification study, which is expected to be completed early in 1970. Also, it suggests a Federal-aid metropolitan eyetem for urban areas of more than 50,000 population as an important means of meeting the urban transportation challenge, which is described as "awesome."

The report details needs for highway financing and mentions costs estimates for future road building, particularly for the completion of providing for funding of the Federal-aid highway program beyond fiscal 1972 should be enacted by the 91st Congress.

Backache Is Symptom

The most common symptom of vertebral fracture is backache, and the surface over the fracture may be tender or swollen, notes the Idaho Medical Association.

The spinal column consists of 33 bones called vertebrae. The lowest nine are fused to form the sacrum and coccyx. The spinal cord is a bundle of nerve fibers extending downward from the brain and enclosed by the spine.

In case of vertebral fracture, the spinal cord may also be damaged, with weakness or paralysis of one or more extremities, and sensory changes.

If vertebral fracture is suspected, and unless danger threatens, do not move the victim. Summon a physician or ambulance. If it is necessary to move him, handle the victim with great care to avoid any possibility of further damage to the spinal cord. Do not twist the body.

If a firm frame, such as a door, is available, place the person on it, back-to-backboard, using a four or eight-man lift. If a stretcher is used, place the victim on his abdomen.

When the fracture is in the neck region, immediate death may occur if any manipulation causes pressure against the spinal cord. Call a physician. Do not permit the head to bend forward or tilt sideways.

Evergreen Treatment

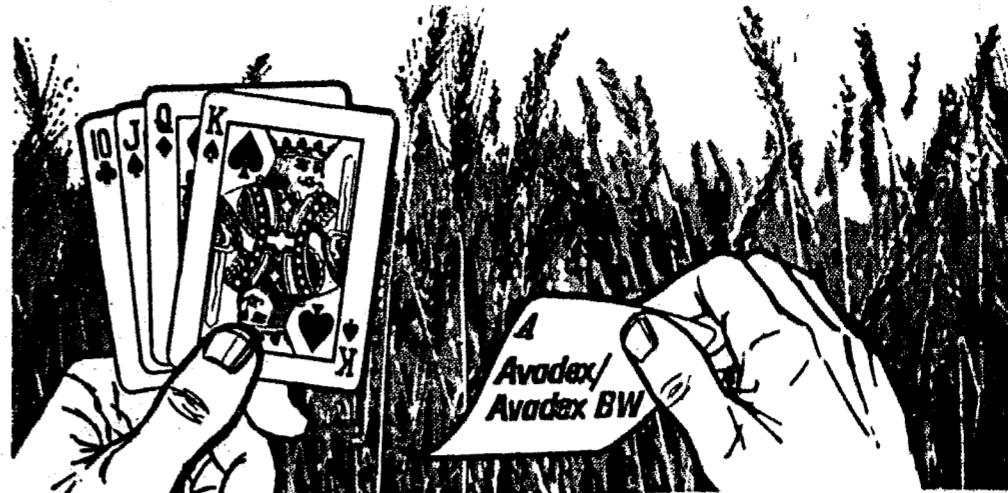

If your evergreens are off color, they are probably sick and need treatment. How to recognize the symptoms and what to do about them are told in a pamphlet just published by the University of Idaho extension service. It is "Why is my Evergreen Brown?" by A. D. Partridge and J. A. Schenk of the college of forestry.

The illness may be in roots, trunk or branches, the authors say. Def-nite color change means something is seriously wrong. The change of color occurs long after injury, so recovery is doubtful, but some affected trees can be helped. The cause usually determines whether recovery is possible. Although color change is a good clue, it must be used with other symptoms to diagnose cause and start control. Keys to causes are listed on the basis of cause, remedies can be started. Frost injury appears in spring when new tips suddenly droop and appear blanched, then turn brown leaving on the branch tips dead. The condition progresses no further. The dead tips fall and there is usually little harm except to very small trees. The bulletin describes symptoms of browning caused by various insects and fungi.

Bean Meeting
 Moscow — Bean research projects currently in progress and problems that need attention were reviewed Friday, April 17, at the annual Idaho Bean Commission meeting with the University of Idaho College of Agriculture. Gerald Baker, Hazelton, as chairman of the commission, presided at the meeting.

Dr. A. M. Findley, head of the plant science department, reviewed bean research underway at Idaho. Dr. James W. Guthrie, plant pathologist presented a final report on the Halo Blight research work he has been conducting for several years.

Of special interest to the commission members was the discussion concerning control of the western bean cutworm. The Idaho bean industry may have a serious problem in controlling this insect in light of restrictions on use of some chemical pesticides.

Dr. R. D. Ensign, associate director of the agricultural experiment station, stated: "Experiment station personnel are examining new and alternate methods of controlling the cutworm. If the insect is not controlled, a severe economic problem may develop for bean growers."

During the afternoon the bean commission members visited special research facilities in the agricultural science building and toured the green houses to see bean culture and bean disease tests. Following the tour, James L. Graves, acting associate director of the Cooperative Extension Service, discussed the future plans for the Twin Falls Research and Extension Center.

Road Agency Studies Pedestrian Accidents

The National Safety Council estimates that nearly 18 percent of the Nation's traffic death toll involved pedestrians. In round numbers this means that nearly ten thousand persons were killed while walking across or along the Nation's roads in 1969.

These hard statistics were borne out by a recent study on pedestrian accidents by the Planning and Traffic Section of the Idaho Department of Highways. The study based on accident reports submitted to the Department of Law Enforcement during the years 1967 and 1968 revealed that a total of 259 pedestrian accidents occurred in 1967 and 235 in 1968. Although only about nine percent ended in fatalities, the report indicated that the majority of pedestrian accidents are serious.

Some of the findings released by the Planning and Traffic Division:

1. Most pedestrian accidents occur in good weather and ideal road conditions during daylight hours.

2. Drivers between the ages of 15 and 23 are involved in more pedestrian accidents than any other age drivers.

3. Pedestrians between the ages of 2 and 13 are involved in more accidents than any other age.

4. The majority of accidents involving elementary school age pedestrians occur at times not associated with school attendance. The pedestrians were at fault most of the time.

5. City streets have more accidents per year than any other type road.

6. More accidents occur at mid-block locations than at intersections. Signalized intersections have a proportionally higher percentage of pedestrian accidents than non-signalized locations.

7. Most of the drivers live in the city and county in which the pedestrian accidents occurred.

8. Almost all of the vehicles involved in pedestrian accidents were passenger cars. These statistics apply to city streets, county roads, and state highways.

The report concluded that the benefit of traffic control devices is doubtful and that they probably give the pedestrian a false sense of security and divert the driver's attention and thought. Many of the accidents could have been prevented by either the pedestrian or driver exercising more caution. The driver's familiarity with the locality does not appear to greatly affect the number of accidents, but is more in proportion to pedestrian and driver

The Traveling Germ

Influenza is sometimes described as the last of the great plagues. Too often, it's confused with the common cold—but is far more severe and dangerous and is highly contagious. Every few years a new strain of flu virus appears and can spread like a brushfire, causing illness and death. In 1918, flu struck the whole world and caused at least 15,000,000 deaths. Pneumonia—the chief complication of flu—was the killer.

Influenza is a fairly brief but harsh sickness. It begins with chills, fever, backache, muscular pains and loss of appetite. Other accompanying may be a head cold, sore throat, dry cough, weakness, pain or burning in the eyes, sensitivity to light, nausea. Fever rises fast the first day, then gradually decreases over a few days. It may go down quickly, then rise again on the third day. As fever decreases, there is often stuffiness in the nose, a pus discharge from nose and throat, the cough may get worse. From that point—the patient usually starts a quick recovery.

Flu generally leaves no ill effects, if complications don't follow. But a body weakened by flu allows pneumonia germs to invade the lungs. Other sicknesses that might follow flu are bronchitis, sinus trouble, ear infections.

The chief weapon against the flu virus are vaccines. People, especially the elderly, with tuberculosis, emphysema or other respiratory disease, heart trouble, high blood pressure, or other chronic illnesses should be vaccinated every year. Risk for people in these groups is high.

density. The study noted that many of the circumstances of pedestrian accidents are the result of poor traffic habits as indicated by the high percentage of younger pedestrians involved in accidents.

In any case, the pedestrian always loses in an encounter with an automobile. A driver should be especially careful of the elderly, the young and the inebriated. The driver should relinquish the right-of-way and let the pedestrian have it rather than take a chance of hitting him. Courteous driving habits coupled with good defensive driving and walking could eliminate most of the pedestrian accident involvement.

GHS School Notes

HIGH SCHOOL PLAY TO BE PRESENTED MAY 7
GENESEE—Thornton Wilder's play, "Our Town," will be presented by Genesee High School at 7:00 p. m. on Thursday, May 7. "Our Town," which won wide acclaim in a film version, is under the direction of Mrs. Diane Coniff, high school English teacher, with Nancy Johnson as student director.

Conventional ways of doing things have little charm for Wilder. Since his writings always have fresh approaches, you should not expect "Our Town" to follow any familiar pattern. First of all, the Stage Manager is moved out before the audience and is made a performer in the on-stage. The manager becomes an on-stage director who can shift the time back and forth easily. Secondly, there are no stage settings and only a very few single objects are used as props.

Some of the major characters will be:
Emily Webb; Debbie Denner, George Gibbs; Bruce Scharnhorst, Mrs. Gibbs; Faulette Johann, Mrs. Gibbs; Cindy Tegland, Mr. Gibbs; Tina Magee, Mrs. Webb; Colleen Bakken, Mrs. Webb; Lois Jensen, Mr. Webb; Steve Kanikkeberg, Rebecca Gibbs; Laurie Anderson, Wally Webb; Rick Zenner, Stage Manager; Craig Busch.

STUDENTS TO HONOR PARENTS AT U. OF I.

U. of I., Moscow — A special week-end honoring the parents of students attending the University of Idaho has been planned for April 24-26, according to Elizabeth Ware, chairman, of Lewiston.

A number of events have been scheduled during the period, ranging from the musical "Carousel" to a thought-provoking symposium on peace, the environment and survival.

Highlighting the week-end will be a student-parent brunch on Saturday, during which Father and Mother-of-the-Year awards will be presented. Outstanding students will also be honored at an awards festival later in the day.

As a special service to parents, the university will supplement available accommodations in the Moscow area by providing a dormitory for parents' use. Reservations may be made through the Housing Office at the Wallace Complex.

U. OF I. TO BRING SCIENCE TO SCHOOLS

U. of I., Moscow — High school students, throughout the state will soon be studying advanced science in a rather different place — in the back of a University of Idaho school bus.

Under a $20,000 grant from the U. S. Office of Education, the university's Department of Physics purchased an old school bus and converted it into a mobile physics laboratory. The bus will now be driven throughout the state to assist school districts in enriching their science curricula.

According to Dr. Thomas Ingerison, assistant professor of physics, "the bus is probably as well equipped as any school science laboratory in the nation. It is furnished with many different types of scientific devices, including lasers, calculators and electronic and magnetic instruments."

"The vehicle is patterned after the Harvard Physics Course which seeks to present physics in a new and challenging way."

Taking the bus on its first trips will be George Peck, graduate student in science education and physics, Denver, Colo. Initially, the mobile laboratory will visit northern Idaho schools. Later in the year, the bus will tour southern Idaho locations.

U. OF I. STUDENT GOALS SET BY STUDENT SENATE

U. of I., Moscow — The Senate of the Associated Students of the University of Idaho recently adopted the following statement on the "Goals and Purposes of the University of Idaho."

In spirit, the University of Idaho should be a community of inquiry, where learning is a result of questioning and teaching is the stimulation of thought; where the accumulation of knowledge is a by-product rather than the goal of the educational processes. The University should provide each member of the community the opportunity to experiment, to test all aspects of his own thinking in a non-censuring environment.

Highways Affect Mail Delivery

With the advent of the recent mail carriers walkout, the Idaho Department of Highways thought the following facts and figures might prove interesting.

The United States Post Office Department owns and operates one of the largest fleets of motor trucks in the world for the pickup and delivery of mail throughout American communities. Rural letter carriers, in

AUTO SAFETY PUSHED

The Idaho Department of Highways announced today that the Department of Transportation has started a nationwide spot check of automobile dealers to see if they are complying with a new Federal motor vehicle safety regulation on consumer information.

The Department's National Highway Safety Bureau has asked Regional Federal Highway Administrators and State Governor's safety representatives to conduct a survey of a cross-section of automobile dealers in their areas to determine the extent of compliance.

The idea is to enable shoppers to compare cars on a safety basis.

Hungry for fresh vegetables? You will find them at Blewett's.

their own vehicles, serve millions of families at their mailboxes. Practically every piece of mail delivered to your door has had a ride in a motor vehicle.

Almost every one of the more than 78 billion pieces of mail handled by the post office each year, at one time or another is carried by motor vehicle. That is enough mail everyone to receive 380 pieces a year.

The post office owns and operates about 59,000 vehicles that travel more than 550 million miles a year. Other vehicles, including some 76,000 owned by rural and contract carriers help in the handling of mail. The post office hires an additional 25,000 vehicles that are manned by postal employees.

The expansion of rural routes to serve more people has been accelerated as highways have improved and highway transportation advanced. In 1920 the average rural mail route was 20 miles. Today, it is about 60 miles. Rural carriers travel almost 1,900,000 miles a day to give efficient service to almost 10 million families comprising about 18 percent of the nation's population. Some 2,403 small post offices depend upon rural carriers for part or all of their mail.

There are more than 4,200 mail order houses doing some 2.4 billion dollars in sales annually whose business is geared to highway transportation and the mail.

State-Federal Highway Relationship

At the end of calendar year 1968, there were 886,181 miles of Federal-aid highways in the United States—about 25 percent of the total road and street mileage. Combined State-Federal expenditures on Federal-aid roads in 1968 totaled 4.1 billion dollars.

In Idaho, the State Highway System—composed almost entirely of Federal-aid routes—accounts for only 9 percent of all travel in the State.

The principle of State-Federal cooperation in highway programs was established by the Federal-Aid Road Act of 1916. That principle recognizes: (a) the right and the responsibility of the States to select, design and manage Federal-aid highway construction projects, and the duty to maintain them adequately; and (b) the right and responsibility of the Federal government to set general policy and to review and approve highway programs and projects to assure sound investment of Federal funds.

As the character of the Nation has changed with time, highway needs and Federal interests have changed accordingly. The present Federal concern with highways is significantly attuned to provision for the general welfare of the people and therefore the Federal interest is focused more strongly on areas of urban population concentration.

The States have concurred in the need to meet the highway needs of urban areas. In Idaho, where some urban problems are evident, yet manageable, the Department of Highways is a participant in an increasing number of urban transportation studies. It is presently anticipated that upon completion of the current Interstate Highway System in the mid-'70's, an accelerated program will be inaugurated to improve highways serving urban areas.

The Federal share of the costs of highway programs and projects is financed from the proceeds of motor-vehicle and other highway-related excise taxes deposited in the Federal Highway Trust Fund. This fund was established by the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1956. Generally, the Trust Fund is similar to an individual bank account. Just as an individual bank account is a claim against a bank's general funds rather than a title to a particular group of dollars, the Trust Fund is a general credit with the U.S. Treasury Department.

Administered by the Federal Highway Administration, the Trust Fund is a grant-in-aid type of program; that is, funds for use in highway improvements are allotted to States in accordance with formulas that give weight to population, area, mileage and (for the Interstate System) relative costs (needs).

Other highway programs administered by the Federal Highway Administration, but not financed from Trust Fund revenues, include those for Forest Highway, Highway Beautification, Public Lands Highways, and the Appalachian Development Program.

All but about 13 miles of Idaho's 4,929-mile State Highway System is composed of routes which are eligible for Federal-aid participation and are incorporated in the Interstate System, the Primary System, and the State Secondary System.

In Idaho the annual amounts of combined State-Federal monies currently available for State highway construction are:

Interstate .....	$30,700,000
Primary and Urban ..	$11,000,000
Secondary .....	$ 3,600,000
Recent estimates of the cost to bring the entire Idaho State Highway Primary and Secondary System up to modern standards now are:
Primary and Urban ..	$387,000,000
Secondary .....	$510,000,000

Unightly Litter A Safety Hazard

BOISE—Most of us who live in Idaho are proud of the scenic beauty of our state. We boast of our wilderness areas, practically inaccessible to man. We never fail to tell about our wonderful fishing streams and the agricultural lands of plenty. We tell everyone of the unlimited opportunities that we have in our Gem State.

The State of Idaho is a beautiful and rugged state with much unusual scenery for the public to enjoy. Nature has established cleanliness and beauty all about us. But man has a habit of leaving his mark wherever he goes and this is especially true state.

Idaho Department of Highways maintenance men are continually hauling truck loads of trash from the sides of roads to dump-grounds where it should have been dumped in the first place. Bottles, cans, garbage, old tires, litter debris and even derelict hulks of automobiles disgracefully decorate the road's edges, presenting a disturbing and hazardous picture of ugliness amid nature's scenes of beauty.

There have been many accidents caused by someone running over bottles or cans and dodging other items strewn along the road. You have no doubt had to maneuver your car to miss some carelessly tossed items in your driving experience.

Collection of garbage and trash along the highways of Idaho is an expensive item in maintenance too, for it takes time of maintenance men to clean up the roadsides—time which could be spent on maintenance of traveled way, and costing Idaho $205,000 in 1969 which could have been used to build more and safer highways.

You can help the Idaho Department of Highways by putting your trash in a container until you can deposit it in a litter barrel along the highway or in your own trash can at home.

For the sake of beauty, safety, and economy, help keep trash off the roads.

Wheat Commission Met

Moscow — Wheat research, new grain varieties, transportation, and other areas of concern to the wheat industry were discussed April 16 at the annual Idaho Wheat Commission meeting with the College of Agriculture, University of Idaho.

Dr. J. E. Kraus, dean and director of the college, welcomed the commissioners, and pointed out the objectives of the meeting were to hear research reports and share ideas of mutual concern in research and other areas pertaining to Idaho's wheat industry.

Dr. R. D. Ensign, associate director of the agricultural experiment station, reported on new varieties of wheat and barley in various stages of release to the industry. One variety developed at the Aberdeen Branch Experiment Station is scheduled for possible release in about a year, he said. Three other wheat varieties, developed at Washington State University, will be released jointly by the two institutions soon, he reported.

During the day-long session, the commissioners also discussed the present status of the request for a six per cent railroad transportation increase. Harold West, commission administrator, explained that the proposal is still with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and hearings will be held.

"This proposed increase is very much of a concern to all of Idaho. It will affect not only wheat but all commodities. Such percentage increases always hurt Idaho, because our transportation rates are already high," West stated.

Idaho Wheat Commission members present were: Gwinn Rice, chm. Hill City; Don Howe, Bonners Ferry; Norman Dean, Grangeville; Geo. Harris Teton, and West. Absent because of illness was Vard Meadows, American Falls.

Wynee Henderson, president of the Idaho State Wheat Growers was also present.

RESOLUTIONS COVER WILDLIFE SUBJECTS

The Idaho Wildlife Federation closed its 35th annual convention at McCall recently by commending the Idaho Fish and Game Commission and Department for policies and programs which have been criticized. A corollary resolution supported a thorough investigation by an independent organization which is qualified to do the job.

Following are some of the resolutions passed by the Idaho Wildlife Federation:

—Favor Snake and Columbia River moratorium on new dam construction without environmental impact studies.

—Passage of an Idaho streambed protection law.

—No more selling trading or removing from public access of lakeshore and riverbank property.

—Extension of Columbia Basin Mallard Area to include Idaho counties of Power, Bannock and Blingham.

—Management of 5,000 acre "hard core" range adjacent to Dworshak Reservoir for wildlife as mitigation for big game losses from flooding.

—Favored St. Joe Wilderness Area of about 200,000 acres.

—Urged U. S. Forest Service to grant special use permit for Fish and Game Department to build fishing-only reservoir at Elk Valley in southeastern Idaho.

—Urged new federal-state mining laws to protect natural resources.

—Federal-state protective laws against use of hard pesticides harmful to people and wildlife.

—Combination national park-wilderness recreation area for White Clouds-Sawtooth region.

—Opposed more logging on Kraschel District of South Fork Boise because of potential damage of spawning beds.

If you can live for yourself alone, you deserve to.

"We have met the enemy—and he is us," said Pogo of the comic strip. Man has come face-to-face with a critical man-made peril—the poisoning of his environment with noxious doses of chemicals, garbage, fumes, sewage, noise, ugliness, and urban overcrowding. We are beginning to pay a fearful price for our carelessness.

Lake Erie might stand as a symbol of this destruction. It is dead. No one knows when it died. No one paid attention. But now ecology, the study of the environment, "the web of life," is alerting us to severe problems too long ignored. Here are

Salmon, Steelhead Catch

Anglers caught about 13,000 chinook salmon last year, Idaho's biggest harvest since 1961, and a calculated 17,000 steelhead, which was somewhat less than other recent catches. Salmon catch figures exceeded the 1968 harvest by about 2,000 fish. The estimates are based on 6,747 random sample replies from 55,000 holders of 1969 salmon and steelhead permits.

This year for the first time, salmon and steelhead permits are issued separately for each fish species, and fees of $1 each are charged. Salmon and steelhead anglers are asked to record their catches on permit cards by designated section, using the river section or tributary name shown on the sketch map supplied with the permits.

just a few:

Massive production means massive filth. With only 5.7 percent of the world population, the U. S. produces 50 percent of its industrial pollution. What Americans breathe now is closer to circulating filth than air.

Each year the U. S. paves over 1,000,000 acres of oxygen-producing trees.

Most pollutants end up in the oceans, which might lose their vast powers for self-purification.

Excess noise may cause physiological damage to unborn babies and impair the health—mental and physical—of the living.

Respiratory ailments grow at alarming rates. Emphysema, a lung disease is the fastest growing cause of death in the U. S.

"We are in a period of grace," says ecologist Barry Commoner. "We have perhaps a generation in which to save the environment."

Your Idaho Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association is concerned with the dire warnings. More than ever, it's a Matter of Life and Breath!

Control Keds Now

U. of I., Moscow — The best time to control keds is soon after shearing, according to the county agricultural agent. Keds are insects that bother sheep, reduce the value of wool, and cause skin defects.

If sheep have ragged fleeces and scrape off tufts of wool on posts and wire, an infection of keds can be suspected. To make sure, catch an animal and part the wool over the neck, breast or belly.

Keds are about a quarter-inch long, brown, wingless and have a leathery sac-like body. They are common parasites on sheep.

Control may be brought about by spraying, dusting or by dipping when conditions are favorable and equipment is available.

In cold weather when wetting may not be practicable, dusting is suggested. A two per cent dizaloin or a one-half of one per cent coumaphos (Co-Ral) dust is effective. There are waiting periods from treatment to slaughter. Timing and other directions are given on labels.

A word of encouragement during a failure is worth more than a dictionary of praise after success.

A word to the wise is usually sufficient — but what's the word?

MULTIPLE USE MANAGEMENT

Few natural resources contribute so much to man's material and physiological needs as do the forests.

Potlatch Forests' timberland is managed to perpetually grow raw material for our forest products plants — producing a myriad of products to help fill the nation's needs, generating tax revenue for local, state and federal governments and providing jobs and payrolls in local communities throughout our operating area. Although timber is the primary product, other land uses and values are carefully considered and evaluated. Often referred to as integrated multiple use, Potlatch's natural resource management policy considers all values of the land—timber, water, fish and wildlife, minerals, forage, and recreation and strives to coordinate the protection, development and wise use of these resources into the most compatible and productive combination obtainable.

Using more than 1,000 miles of road built and maintained by PFI, thousands of public visits are made each year by hikers, sight-seers, berry pickers, rock hunters, campers, picnickers, fishermen, hunters and other outdoor recreationists.

Potlatch takes pride in providing for man's recreational as well as material needs through the scientific forest management and harvesting techniques incorporated in its multiple use policy.
