

Kendrick Grange Hears Of Life Among Equador Indians

Carrol Tyler, Latah County District Soil Conservationist, Moscow, showed a number of interesting slides, narrating on the agricultural and living habits of various Indian tribes in Equador, when he met with Grangers and visitors at an Open House meeting, Tuesday evening, May 19th.

Tyler had been assigned to the area surrounding Quito, the capitol of Equador from 1957 to 1959. He was one of a group of six conservationists including Dr. George Woodbury from the U. of I., supervisor of the Equadorian project. The U. of I. had a foreign contract to assist a host country. The group project was set up as an Agricultural School in Quito.

Some of the interesting and contrasting characteristics of the tribes such as their types of homes and hygienic and eating habits were explained by Tyler.

The people in Equador are very religious except for about 1 percent, which should in this country and others put us to shame. "They are also quite superstitious," Tyler said.

Certain tribes have all "adobe" homes while others build their homes only as shacks to be free from the insects. Flies are uncommon — instead they are plagued by fleas.

All work is done by hand since there is no electricity. The women there have to work very hard, not only in the home but in the fields. A lot of sheep are raised there and of course the women tend the flocks. Not to be wasting any time at that assignment they take sheared fleeces with them and card the wool which is made into blankets and other clothing, for retail purposes. The crop fields are tilled by hand or by plows pulled by oxen. The fields are divided into small blocks, giving the countryside the appearance of a "grandmother's patchwork quilt."

This is done so that everyone will have a piece of land to grow garden produce or a little grain for their food consumption. Some areas are very dry, while others have plenty of rainfall.

One day a week, "Market Day" is the big attraction in Quito, when everyone comes to town, either with produce to sell, or wanting to buy it. Since flies are no problem the butchering is done outdoors at the market, on Market Day. The animal is butchered, cut up and sold to customers in line waiting for their favorite portion of the beef. Every part of the animal is used. Lines are strung in the market place displaying the various parts of the entrails, which please many a palat with an urge for something different for the next day's dinner. Tyler said that during the two years he spent there he had never seen a knife used to cut up an animal — the butcher always used an axe to cut up the beef!

He also showed one of the modern dairies, where the cows are all run through a pond to wash them, and they receive another washing at the barn before milking, which is all done by hand. The reason for this is the swampy grazing pasture where the cows get very muddy. The milk is delivered to Quito by ox cart.

Also many acres, all in plots of daisy-like plants from which "Pyrethrum" comes, an extract used for pesticides. This is produced for commercial sale to other countries.

Tyler was accompanied on his two-year appointment by Mrs. Tyler and their two daughters. The girls attended school there, but schools and educational facilities are very inadequate, there being a shortage of teachers and books.

Parts of the countryside around Quito are very beautiful, while other parts are dry and carry little vegetation.

Manning Onstott of the Kendrick Soil Conservation office was in charge of the program.

Following Mr. Tyler's talk a short business session was held, mainly for the last-minute plans for the Grange float on Locust Blossom Day and for the Grange pie house.

Young folk chosen to ride the float were Lorraine Franklin, Dale Taylor, Patrick May, Michael, Robert and Lori Courtright, Cheryl, Debra and Michael Hutton and Jeanette Nye. The float theme chosen was "Today's Youth, Tomorrow's Leaders."

Delightful refreshments were served at the close of the evening, with Mr. and Mrs. Tyler as guests. Host committee included Mr. and Mrs. Manning Onstott, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bahr, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McCreary, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Deobald and Mrs. Jessie Bateman.

Father B. C. McCarthy Leaves St. Mary's Parish

Genesee — Father B. C. McCarthy, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Genesee, has been appointed pastor of Assumption parish in Ferdinand effective May 19, and will leave his Genesee duties after serving for ten years. He will be replaced by Rev. Fr. Thomas Laley, Foscoello.

Before leaving, Father McCarthy made final payment on property valued at over $300,000.00 which were constructed and finished during his tenure of office.

During his time as pastor he also introduced the new liturgy into the worship services and supervised the transition from a parochial sisters school to a "School of Religion" conducted by the laity of the parish.

His parishioners of ten years held a farewell party for him, Sunday, May 17, presenting him with a gift of appreciation for his years of service here.

Father Will Be Missed
It is always difficult for a community to say goodbye to a good man and a good friend. Father McCarthy has certainly been both of these to the Genesee community. In addition to serving his own parish and its spiritual needs, Father found the time to take an active part in community affairs. There were few functions in Genesee when he could not be counted on to be present, adding in his own way to the dignity and respect of the function. Those of us, though not of his faith, who had the privilege of knowing and associating with Father McCarthy had little trouble recognizing and appreciating the quality and the strength which is so inherent in all good men. He takes with him our love, respect and admiration; things he never sought, but which were freely and gladly given. We are truly sorry to lose Father McCarthy from our community, but we are pleased for the people of the Ferdinand area for the privilege they are about to receive. — BR.

Rattlesnake Seen In Town

Cheryl Gustafson and Tina Marie Zancanti dashed into the Gazette office late Tuesday afternoon to report they had seen a rattlesnake near Cheryl's home. According to the two young girls, the snake came crawling out of some tall grass and began moving toward the road. They said they ran into the Gustafson home to tell Cheryl's mother who "really got excited" when told the news. Mrs. Gustafson was apparently unable to locate the snake and at last report it was still at large and so were Cheryl and Tina

Garden Club Lives -- 'Happiness Is'

"Happiness is — a mini-park in place of an unused lot ready for public view!"

The Hill and Valley Garden Club spent Wednesday putting finishing touches on the mini-park and preparing for the flower display, plant and props sale for Locust Blossom Day.

A short meeting was held during a sack lunch picnic period, with reports given on various activities of the group. Commendations were given Mrs. Werner Brammer and Mrs. Stanley Hepler on the fine educational display they placed at the Clearwater District Flower Show at Kamalah.

Mrs. Hepler made a request for small garden flowers for nosegay type arrangements to be taken to the regional meeting next week. If you have any, please call her by Friday or Saturday.

Mrs. D. A. Christensen, chairman of the nominating committee reported names were ready for election at the next meeting. Tentative plans were set for the Club to participate in a "mile of litter" pickup for the second week in June.

The next meeting to be a breakfast, either in the Cavendish Park or in Orofino, on the way to a garden tour. Plans to be worked out with weather and gardeners involved.

The mini-park report included last Saturday, Jerry Brown and five Boy Scouts hauling in 5 large loads of shavings and sawdust to fill the main garden. Ernest Heimgartner making two more benches and gifts of cash given by interested community people who couldn't lend a working hand.

"Would You Believe?" — It was only March 4, on a bright, cold morning that work was begun on this sidewalk project. This kind of progress and cooperation has been both pleasing and amazing. The Club appreciates all the help and encouragement received from the general public.

Car, Bear Collision— Car 'Totalled'— Bear OK

Fred Foster, Southwick, was returning home from work at P. F. I., Lewiston, Thursday night, when he came upon a large bear on a sharp turn just west of the Raleigh Albright home. He swerved in an attempt to miss it, though caught it with the right fender. The Volkswagen flipped over, rolled over twice, hitting the bank, and then rolled back to land in the left lane.

Fred crawled out the window, called the State Patrol and a wrecker to get his "totalled" Volkswagen off the highway. He received a chipped shoulder and numerous scratches and bruises — but the bear went on its way!

Highway Trust Fund
BOISE—The Highway Trust Fund will be 14 years old this year. It was born on July 1, 1956. It will die on September 30, 1972, unless something is done to extend its life. Current life expectancy—16 years, 92 days.

To some, the 14 years since 1956 is hardly any time at all. To a 24-year old, it's most of his life in terms of involvement in his surroundings.

Despite all the impediments, the Trust Fund has financed the Federal share of the magnificent Interstate Highway System. It has likewise supported the Federal-Aid Primary and Secondary Systems and their urban extensions. Almost 30,000 miles of projects on the other road systems have been completed since July 1, 1956.

Other highways needed to meet the expected 158.6 million vehicles in 1990, add to the backlog of vitally necessary work in the next decade. The Nation cannot afford to divert its highway funds, or its highway efforts, from this task.

In a time when the edges are being eaten off our personalities and we're all being reduced to card-index numbers, we need to hang on to some things.

Status of East-West Highway Routes

BOISE — The Idaho Department of Highways reported today that construction is continuing on State Highway 21—one of Idaho's most scenic routes. At present, the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads is giving 6½ miles of the 12-mile unpaved central portion between Lowman and Stanley a new "face" consisting of an asphalt surface and two new bridges over the South Fork of the Payette River. The work begins at Warm Springs Creek and extends southward with only minor traffic interference. This new paved stretch is expected to be completed in the Fall of 1970.

Reconstruction of the remaining unpaved portion of State Highway 21 is anticipated in the near future. When it is completed, maintenance responsibility will be handled by the Idaho Department of Highways.

Motorists are advised that State Highway 21 is presently open from Boise to the Grandjean cutoff and closed from that point to Stanley. Highway crews are now clearing snow, rock, and mudslides from the roadway and hope to have the highway open by Memorial Day or the beginning of the fishing season.

State Highway 68 which runs from Mountain Home and joins U. S. 93 South of Hailey is also receiving attention this year as crews are reconstructing 7½ miles of roadway and bridges from Corral to Fairfield. From the S. H. 68 and U. S. junction westward for 21 miles, crews will complete of these two projects extra-traffic is being maintained with apply a seal coat in the near future, expected by this Fall.

Upper North Fork And Dworshak Reservoir Fishing Study Made

By Stu Murrell
Regional Conservation Educator

Wes Cannon, Fishery Biologist of the Idaho Fish and Game Department, has been conducting a study on the fishing success and fish composition on the North Fork of the Clearwater River from Isabella Creek to Kelly Creek. This is part of the Dworshak Dam study to determine what effects the reservoir will have on the fishing and type of fish in the river. The Corps of Engineers has been furnishing the funds to conduct the study and it will continue until 1974.

A creel census conducted from June 1, 1969 to September 6, 1969 showed 5,706 fishermen caught an estimated 9,180 juvenile steelhead, 1,863 hatchery rainbow, 1,594 west slope cutthroat trout, 1,748 whitefish and 87 Dolly Varden trout and fished about 11,409 hours. Fishermen were counted and interviewed four times a day during the weekends and two randomly selected days during the week.

Juvenile steelhead made up 65-70 percent of the fish caught and these will be lost in the hundreds of miles of tributaries above the dam. Sampling on some streams have already shown a decrease in the steelhead young which would have been produced if the adults had been allowed past the dam last year. In 1958 a creel census on the entire North Fork of the Clearwater drainage showed anglers caught 50,700 rainbow trout (mostly juvenile steelhead), 14,820 cutthroat trout, 745 brook trout and 8,425 miscellaneous fish such as whitefish, Dolly Varden and sculpin. It will take a massive planting program to replace this lost fishery. According to Terry Holubetz, Regional Fishery Biologist, current plans for Dworshak Reservoir and the tributaries to the North Fork call for a total annual plant of about 100,000 pounds of fish. This poundage of fish will be divided up into three species of fish to be released. Attempts will be made to spawning at the outlet to Fish Lake capture the west slope cutthroat on the North Fork, taking the spawn, and raising the cutthroat to fingerling size. These cutthroat would then be released in the tributaries. It is also hoped the native cutthroat in the streams will produce at a more rapid rate than at present.

Some catchable rainbows will be raised in Dworshak National Fish Hatchery and released in the reservoir. In addition, there will be two races of kokane salmon planted in the reservoir or its tributaries. One group is a late fall spawner that will involve an annual taking of eggs from these fish if a run is established. The other race is an early fall spawner which will be released in the tributaries directly adjacent to the reservoir. It is hoped this second will establish itself and develop a natural run of fish into the same tributaries in which they were released.

Kokane salmon were chosen for the reservoir area because of their ability to feed on microscopic plants and animals in open water. Other fish, such as rainbow trout, feed on larger insects which will probably be scarce in the reservoir with its fluctuating water levels and steep banks. An estimated 2,700 shore anglers fished about 9,616 hours to catch 5,348 smallmouth bass, 1,537 squawfish, 201 bullhead catfish, 117 suckers, 88 rainbow trout, 4 whitefish and 27 carp from June 8, to Sept. 13, 1969. The next interval covered was Home Cookin' . . .

Our recipes this week are from Mrs. Lucille (Lewis) Ludahl, of Vancouver, Wash., for rhubarb kucken and malasados. Mrs. Ludahl writes that her family (Lewis) resided on Texas Ridge for many years in what is now the Wm. Riley place. Her father, she added, farmed and made sorghum there over 30 years ago.

Her mother, Mrs. Hannah Lewis, also of Vancouver was 90 years young on December 1. She says she doesn't recognize too many of the names she sees in the home town paper but still enjoys reading it, especially the "Home Cookin'" column, from which she cuts and saves the recipes.

Mrs. Ludahl continued to write that her mother wanted her to send in some of their favorites for the column. Thank you ladies and we appreciate your thoughtfulness and know our readers will enjoy trying your recipes, and they'll probably be on their favorite list too!

To Mrs. Ludahl: Please send in those squash recipes, I know our readers will be interested in trying them.

RHUBARB KUCKEN

1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
work in 2 tablespoons butter
Add 1 beaten egg, 4 tbsps. milk to flour mixture. Pat this mixture into 9"x13" greased, floured pan.

On top of this, cut ¾ cups rhubarb, scatter 1 pkg. cherry, strawberry or raspberry jelly over rhubarb then top with this mixture; ½ cup flour, 1 and one-fourth cup sugar, one-fourth cup melted butter (this should be crumbled over the top.) Bake 40-50 minutes at 350 degrees. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

Company coming for the evening? Try something different and delicious

MALASADOS

¼ pkg. yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
5 cups flour
1 can (15-oz) sweetened condensed milk
½ cup sugar
½ cup soft butter
5 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ cup mashed potatoes
¼ teaspoon each nutmeg, mace and cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
Fat for cooking

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Sift and measure flour into large bowl. Thoroughly blend in milk, butter, sugar, eggs, potatoes, spices, salt and yeast mixture. Cover and let rise in warm place until about double in bulk. Stir vigorously. For each malasado dip out a teaspoon of dough and drop into deep fat heated to 350 degrees. Cook until golden on all sides turning as necessary, takes about two minutes. Drain on paper towels and serve hot or cold or reheat in slow oven. Makes about 11 dozen.

Coo Counts Made

Mourning dove coo counts are being made on 21 established routes in Idaho that are run each year by federal and state workers to learn more about the numbers of this important migratory upland game bird species throughout the United States. The counts are made at daylight over the 20-mile routes by personnel of both the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

Routes are not run in stormy weather, either rain or snow, or when the wind is blowing more than 12 miles per hour. Counting begins one-half hour before sunrise. Only the driver of a vehicle makes the coo counts, listening and recording the calls he hears. This procedure ensures continuity in the counting procedure from year to year.

from Sept. 14, 1969 to Jan. 3, 1970. An estimated 8,500 shore anglers fished about 33,847 hours to catch 910 steelhead, 422 smallmouth bass, 149 squawfish, 33 bullhead catfish, 22 suckers, 32 rainbow trout, 36 whitefish, 8 carp, and 8 Dolly Varden. About 2,100 boat anglers took 1,809 steelhead and 16 smallmouth bass while fishing an estimated 32,441 hours during this same period. Steelhead bank and boat fishermen averaged 24 hours per steelhead caught during the fall run. Any steelhead fishing that averages less than 30 hours per fish is considered good success. Boat anglers had about twice the success rate as shore fishermen. Steelhead averaged 33" in length.

There were 5,988 actual interviews of fishermen conducted to obtain this data. The name, license and steelhead permit number were recorded, number of anglers, angler hours, and number of each species caught, length of fish observed, and area where the fish were taken.

Stomach contents of smallmouth bass were recorded. They showed that the catchable-size smallmouth feed primarily on small fish such as dace, suckers, squawfish, and sculpin. Some insects were also noted. It took the smallmouth angler an average of about 3 hours to catch one fish. Smallmouths average 8-11 inches long.

There are five thermographs, which record water temperature, placed at different locations along the lower river. They showed water temperatures varied from a high of 78 degrees Fahrenheit in mid-July to 34 degrees Fahrenheit in November.

Program Launched By Wheat Commission

BOISE—A program to inform city dwellers in the problems and contributions of agriculture has been launched here by the Idaho Wheat Commission.

Called "Food For Tomorrow", the promotion program is being tested during May with information advertising in newspaper, television and radio.

Harold West, administrator of the Wheat Commission, said the promotion was designed to further understanding between urban and rural people.

"We used to think people in Idaho cities knew all about agriculture," West said. "But when we took a survey in Boise last month, we found out that just isn't true."

West said the Wheat Commission survey uncovered "several startling facts." He noted that 89 percent of Boiseans surveyed were not aware that three out of 10 non-farm jobs are directly related to agriculture, and 83 percent didn't know that the average farm worker produces enough food to feed 45 other people. "Farm efficiency has tripled in the last 20 years, yet prices for farm commodities have gone down," West said.

Most significant discovery in the survey, according to West, was that most Boiseans are not aware of what percentage of their income goes for food. More than three quarters of those surveyed felt the percentage was increasing.

"This just isn't true," West asserted. "Food prices to consumers are not increasing as fast as other goods. So, the average family spends less of its disposable income for food at the time. In 1960, food took 20 percent of the average budget. Now, it's down to about 16 percent."

percent of the average budget. Now, it's down to about 16 percent."

West said if the efforts of Food For Tomorrow prove effective, the promotion will be expanded in Boise and other cities, possibly with help from other commodity groups.

If everyone agrees with you, some body is lying.

Commencement Exercises Held Sunday For GHS Seniors

GENESEE—Combined Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises for 25 graduating seniors were held Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, with a large crowd of family and friends attending.

Kathleen Anne Jensen and Martin Dean Gilge, co-valedictorians, and Lawrence David Baumgartner, salutatorian spoke on their class motto, "Let us not look to the past in regret, nor to the future in fear, but around us in awareness. The three speakers divided their motto into three sections and each spoke on one part. Baumgartner exemplified "Let us not look to the past with regret, and said that the high school education the class had received, none of it will ever be regretted. He added that we have received a good preparation for our future lives, and this preparation will be put to good use. Miss Jensen reviewed the part of the motto, "Nor to the Future with Fear." She stated that "we have received an excellent education in high school and are prepared for the future. There is nothing to actually fear. We may have our apprehensions, she continued to say, we are well prepared to lead a good and useful life."

Closing with the last section of the motto, but around us in awareness, Gilge advised that we should be aware of situations and events around us, but it is not absolutely necessary to become violently involved in it. This day and age, he added, requires everyone to know what is going on because you can't sit back and let the world go by and hope the problems of the world will go away. People of today do look around, but do they actually see anything? Take an interest in the world around you!

The main address to the seniors was delivered by the Rev. Howard Hake, pastor of the Community Church. He used as his text, "Characterizations of a Well-Adjusted Person" and mentioned several paths to follow in order to be and stay well adjusted. A well adjusted person, he said, makes the most of what he has and to work with, and doesn't feel sorry for himself. A well-adjusted person stays spiritually and emotionally young. If life hands you a lemon, he continued, make lemonade. Ofttimes, he said this practice will turn a disaster into success. Set a goal to follow and never stop seeking these new goals. A well-adjusted person, he continued, is one who lives today, and refuses to live in the past or future; one who can live with himself and not fear people or make contacts with others, that he will be fit to live with all kinds of people and live well, and lastly, a well adjusted person is one who rejects the concept of perfectionism and has a realistic goal for himself and others.

Supt. Lester C. Diehl presented the seniors of 1970, and Principal Ozzie Kanikkeberg gave out the following awards: Lawrence David Baumgartner, Kathleen Jensen, Martin Gilge, Ronald Teichner, Timothy Grieser, Colleen Bakken, and Nick Eglund, all received the Fred and Emma Shirrod scholarship award, and Dale Hickman and Timothy Grieser, the Wm. Gray Athletic Scholarship.

Tom Boyd, chairman of the school board handed out diplomas.

The high school band played the professional and recessional, and the Rev. Christian Oswood, delivered the invocation and benediction.

Sharon Louise Hake sang, "The Impossible Dream."

Turkey Calling Skills Soon Will Be Needed

Boise — Sooner or later Idaho hunters must learn a new skill — how to call up an old gobbler within shooting range. So far, three turkey hunts have been held in the state.

Sex identification is most important during the spring gobbler hunts. Hens generally are on their nests, and normally would not respond to hunter "turkey calls" in any case.

Generally speaking, toms are larger and of darker hue than hens, and their heads are redder, their beards more obtrusive and their spurs more visible.

Merriam's wild turkeys always are associated with Ponderosa pine zone of Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. In mountainous terrain of good habitat, the upper limits of turkey habitat sometimes overlap part of the Douglas Fir zone.

Kelly Creek Fishing Rules

Fishermen are reminded that Kelly Creek and its tributaries on the North Fork of the Clearwater River is limited to a catch and release program when the general trout season opens on May 30th. It shall be unlawful to reduce any fish to possession and angling with bait is prohibited.

The reason for this new regulation is to determine if the cutthroat population can be increased in this tributary to help fill the gap left by the juvenile steelhead eliminated by Dworshak Dam. The Black Canyon section of the North Fork will remain open to general fishing and be used as a comparison between the two streams. This regulation on Kelly Creek will also help to show the Idaho fishermen's interest in such a program.

Clatis Hoisington were Sunday evening callers.

Did You Miss It? In our opinion anyone who missed the Kendrick Locust Blossom Festival this year was a real loser!! It was a beautiful day, plus all the attractions! — And all the old and new friends meeting!

Odds 'n Ends

Every week about thirty exchange weeklies come to the Promoter office. We like to sit down on Thursday or Friday and spend an hour or two leafing through each of these papers. Each paper tells us a lot about the town from which it originates, and the publisher who turns it out.

We constantly search for advertising and news story ideas. Occasionally we come across a well written article which we feel it would be well to share with Promoter readers. The following article has appeared in a number of papers. We do not know its author but clipped it from the Northwood Clearer recently. It carried a message so vital to our society today.

THE OLD STORY OF THE LITTLE RED HEN

There is a growing acceptance in the United States of the idea that there should be a guaranteed national income. People who do not earn an amount determined to be needed to maintain a reasonable standard of living will get a check from the government to make up the difference between what they earn and what somebody thinks they should have. There are those who believe this program can work and we can still have a free enterprise system and maintain a society of ambitious people.

Washington, our nation's capital, is of course not the only source of fables.

Consider one of the fables of Aesop of ancient Greece. It has survived for these many years because of its appeal to reason and common sense — another quality one sometimes cannot attach to the fables coming out of Washington.

Here is Aesop's fable with a little updating and our apologies to the good Greek.

Once upon a time there was a Little Red Hen who scratched about and uncovered some grains of wheat. She called her barnyard neighbors and said, "If we work together and plant this wheat, we will have some fine bread to eat. Who will help me plant the wheat?"

"Not I," said the Cow. "Not I" said the Duck. "Guaranteed annual bread," said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red Hen — and she did.

When it came time to grind the flour, "Not I," said the Cow. "I'd lose my unemployment compensation," said the Duck.

When it came time to make the bread, "But that's overtime for me," said the Cow. "I'm a dropout and never learned how," said the Duck. "I'd lose my welfare benefits," said the Pig. "If I'm the only one helping its discrimination," said the Goose.

"Then I will," said the Little Red Hen — and she did.

She baked five loaves of fine bread and held them up for the neighbors to see.

"I want some," said the Cow. "I want some," said the Pig. "I demand my share," said the Goose.

"No," said the Little Red Hen. "I can rest for a while and eat the five loaves by myself."

"Excess profits," screamed the Cow. "Capitalistic leech," screamed the Goose. "Equal rights," grunted the Pig.

And they hurriedly painted picket signs and marched around the Little Red Hen singing, "We Shall Overcome," and they did.

For when the Farmer came to investigate the commotion he said, "You must not be greedy, Little Red Hen. Look at the oppressed Cow. Look at the underprivileged Pig. Look at the less fortunate Goose. You are guilty of making second class citizens of them."

"But — but I earned the bread," said the Little Red Hen.

"Exactly," said the wise Farmer. "That is the wonderful free enterprise system. Anybody can earn as much as he wants. You should be happy you have this freedom. In other barnyards you would have to give all five loaves to the Farmer. Here you give four loaves to your suffering neighbors."

And they lived happily ever after, including the Little Red Hen, who smiled and smiled and chuckled, "I am grateful, I am grateful."

But her neighbors wondered why she never baked any more bread!

General Trout Season

Saturday, May 30, marks the start of general statewide trout season this year. Opening Day usually becomes Opening Weekend or longer, and always is a gala event irrespective of weather, water and road conditions. This year, heavy snows came late in the season and much of it still is in the high country because of the cold spring. Snow melt will bring roily waters to streams, rivers, and large reservoirs, affecting fish. Heavy rains could make matters worse, especially for travel on back country roads.

In any case, lowland lake and reservoir fishing will be best, though some large reservoirs have been kept at low water levels so that they will have the storage capacity to catch and hold more snow melt when it comes. Anglers are cautioned to remember their company manners when using private property.

Waterfowl "Recycling" More brood stock for migratory waterfowl nesting areas this spring should be on hand. Mid-winter waterfowl inventories in the Pacific Flyway found total numbers of ducks and geese after fall hunting was up 41 per cent over the previous year and 10 per cent higher than the 16-year average for western states. Idaho counts tallied 681,000 waterfowl of all species, which is 28 per cent higher than the figure for 1969, and 21 per cent for the long-term average.

Pintails outranked mallards in total numbers in the Pacific Flyway, but not in Idaho. Totals show 2.2 million mallards in the Pacific Flyway and 2.5 million pintails, as of last January. Total waterfowl numbers were 8.6 million.

Expanded Telephone Service Offered By Social Security Office

An important change in the service offered by the Lewiston Social Security Office was announced today by D. Gene Shaw, District Manager. In order to provide additional service it has been necessary to change the telephone number. The new number for Social Security and Medicare is 746-2333.

The expanded telephone service is part of several changes which are making it possible to provide better service to people in the area, Shaw said. Some of the changes come from a new high speed microfilm records locating system. Others stem from greater capability in direct access to computer systems in records centers and payment centers located in various parts of the country.

Coupled with the other improvements, it is now possible to conduct a greater amount of business over the telephone, Shaw advised. Social security beneficiaries wishing to notify the office of some event concerning their account should feel free to use the telephone; it may save them a trip to the office and give faster service. People wishing to inquire about Medicare can also handle most of their business by phone. It is even possible to apply for most types of benefits by phone. Even if we aren't able to complete the entire application by phone, a great deal of time can be saved by phoning before coming to the office, Shaw said.

People living at some distance from Lewiston will still be able to see the representative when he visits in their area. If they wish to phone the office in Lewiston, the expanded service is available. People who do not want to pay for a long distance call can write the office, stating their situation and giving a phone number where they can be reached.

The mailing address is P. O. Box 857, Lewiston, Idaho 83501. The old advertising slogan "We are as near as your telephone" 746-2333, that is now applies to social security, Shaw said.

Highway Department Resident Engineers BOISE—The Idaho Department of Highways is a very strong and influential organization on the lives of the people in Idaho. An organization with almost 1500 members are striving together from Canada to the Utah-Nevada border to construct and maintain beautiful, safe highways so that the public will have transportation routes for their everyday needs. The pride and enthusiasm that employees of the department have toward doing their job right and to the best of their ability and not just for a salary make this a strong organization.

The department is very influencing on the lives of Idahoans, and this is especially felt in the many resident offices located throughout the state. A typical office finds all types of construction in progress, such as primary state projects, overlay state projects, federal aid primary and interstate projects, etc., all being done under the watchful eye of the general public. How are they going to do it? Is it going to affect their every day lives? How long is it going to take? The public also wants to know why this construction inconveniences them so much and, in the first place, why can't they get ten times the actual value of their property that the department is taking for construction. These are some of the questions that people ask and discuss with the employees of a resident office, not only on the job, but at church, social, and other community functions.

The project office personnel's primary duty of supervising the proper construction of highway facilities is a complex one. The department's procedures and policies are carefully outlined and conform to construction requirements through 6 District Offices across the State. The resident personnel take these instructions and apply them to all situations which arise on a construction project. Many times a Resident Engineer or his Project Engineers and Inspectors have to make decisions that depend upon his knowledge of the construction requirements and his balance of "common sense." These decisions affect and influence the contractor on his quality of work and also affects his future bidding prices and relationships with the department.

This association with the general public and with the private industry of construction blends together to make the resident offices the "heart beat" of the Idaho Department of Highways.

Of times the well in the pasture Comes to me over the years; Bringing me rapture and sunshine, Bringing me laughter and tears.

There's where we waited the blue-birds,
There the first buttercups came;
There, where we watered the horses' Pelted, and called them by name.

Happiness dwells in that pasture

Life is sweet yet, but I'll never forget

Sturgeon Being Tagged

The Idaho Fish and Game Department and Oregon Game Commission are presently tagging sturgeon in the Snake River. Sturgeon in the Snake River are now on a catch and release regulation. The fishermen are requested to record the number from the tag and leave the tag on the fish when they release it. It is very important that the fishermen turn in the tag number, date caught and length of fish to the Idaho Fish and Game Department, 18th and Warner, Lewiston (743-8502) to aid in studies of this rare fish.

Golden Eagles Studied In Southwestern Idaho

By Jim Humbird
Idaho Fish-Game Department

Some of the people who said "There oughtta be a law" three decades ago and helped push federal legislation through Congress to give complete protection to bald eagles, the national emblem, and broadened the law nearly a quarter century later to include golden eagles, are still at work in Idaho. Now an ecological study is being made of golden eagles, mostly in the Snake River canyon from about Bliss to Marsing. Already one thesis based on this field research has been written as partial fulfillment of the requirements for a Masters Degree in Wildlife Management through the Idaho Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at Moscow, Idaho. Another is planned.

The Idaho eagle ecology study is a continuing program of field observation, banding and color marking, evaluating the size of the eagle population, its structure, density, productivity, nesting success, mortality, food habits and related facts. Most of the eyries or nests in the study area were located along the Snake River during 1968 and 1967 by the Division of Wildlife Services, U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

Andy Ogden, Boise graduate student, began working on the project as an assistant in 1967 and stayed on with John Beecham, Meridian, in 1968-69, completing his thesis and earning his Master's Degree in April of that year. He is now conducting a research project for the Idaho cooperative Wildlife Research Unit on the prairie falcon in the same general study area, from Swan Falls to Grandview on the Snake River. Thesis field research on golden eagles, a two-year project is being continued this year by Mike Kochert of LaFayette, Indiana. He received his B. S. degree in Wildlife Biology at Purdue University and understudied Beecham last year and expects to follow the work two full years.

Southwestern Idaho may support one of the highest densities of golden eagles in the U. S., not to mention prairie falcons. Twenty-five breeding pairs of eagles were located on the study area in 1968, and 36 breeding pairs the following year. Sixty-one percent of the active nests during the 1969 season were successful with the average hatch found to be slightly over one eaglet per eyrie. Eighty-three percent of the nests on the study area are on the Snake River Plain between Bliss and Marsing, mostly on rocky cliffs ranging in height from 25 to 400 feet, surrounded by small bushes and herbs and covered with big sagebrush, rabbitbrush, shadscale and cheatgrass, bounded on the north by the Sawtooth Mountains and to the south, the Owyhee Range. Elevation of eyries vary from 2500 feet on the Snake River to 5000 feet in the mountains north of Boise.

Infertile eggs and those left in the abandoned nests are collected by Mike Kochert, the graduate student, and analyzed for DDT and similar pesticide and mercury residues that may have been transferred from the fat of adult females and transmitted to the eggs. Eaglets that have died in nests, whatever the cause, also are collected for laboratory analysis in Boise through the facilities of the State Department of Health.

Investigators report that there is no evidence of eagle depredation on livestock during the nesting period. The bulk of their diet is made up of jackrabbits. Although female birds attend to most of the incubation chores, males do sit on the nest during the times their mates exercise and hunt to eat. The incubation time for golden eagle eggs is 45 days. Average clutch size is two eggs. Females stay on the nests more as the time for hatching nears. She broods the eaglets for the first two and a half weeks of their lives. Eaglets must be mouth-fed like robins until they are about four or five weeks of age. Newly hatched birds are helpless, scarcely holding up their own heads. They begin crawling and moving about the nest in two weeks. Primary wing feathers start appearing and 2 1/4 to 3 1/2 weeks. Eaglet coloration is salt and pepper from feather growth on wings and backs at about five weeks.

Tall feathers are out about a week after the primaries, 3 1/2 to 4 weeks, but the white, downy look of eaglet heads stays with them. These birds fledge or start to fly at about 75 days (10 weeks) but stay in the nesting area. The last coloration change comes to the heads, a light golden phase. These birds are immature until about their fourth year, which means that the white patches beneath wings and tail remain until that time. Immature bald eagles on the other hand, have a mottled white-black coloration and no feathered tarsus.

Eaglets start feeding on prey material left in the nest by parent birds at about five to seven weeks. At this age, Kochert tries to band the young birds because they have a tendency to jump out of the nest at about seven weeks or more. However, fledglings are not good flyers even at ten weeks of age and parent birds bring food to them up to two months, possibly longer. One pair of eaglets remained near the nest for three months after fledging. Beecham banded 70 young birds during his part of the study, and color-coded 45 of them with neck markers. Kochert plans to improvise a wing marker to carry the color code during his two years on the project to try and determine movement of immature eagles during the winter. This will not interfere with flying. So far, one band has been retrieved from a golden eagle and returned from northern California.

Nests range from one mile apart to as much as 14 miles, with the average about five miles apart. Almost all nests are on cliffs, although a few have been located in trees. A pair of eagles nest in the same general area each year. The nesting area is made up of many nests, with the eyrie being the active nest. When one member of an eagle pair dies, the survivor, whether male or female, soon finds another from a reserve supply of unattached birds of both sexes. Beecham reports an adult female eagle mated to an immature golden during his three years on the study area, 1968-1970.

Nesting from Bliss to Marsing along the cliffsides of the Snake River starts about mid-February, to March 1, with courtship activities occurring mainly in February. This is exhibited particularly by alternating dives and climbs in a wave-like or undulating fashion. These big birds fold their wings and dive steeply, losing 50-100 feet of altitude at a time, continuing the display indefinitely. Two observers on the main Salmon River east of Mackay Bar this spring reported a pair of golden eagles falling in cartwheels, with feet locked and legs fully stretched, wings open and raised. Such spectacular aerial displays are not generally believed to be common among golden eagles.

Kochert will conduct his field research this year and during 1971 from March through September. Classwork on campus at Moscow, Idaho, started during the fall of 1969 and will be completed during the next academic year. Then he will write his Master's Thesis on the ecology of the golden eagle in southwestern Idaho. Kochert says that the American golden eagle, in company with the bald eagle, osprey and peregrine falcon, have disappeared from much of their range on the North American Continent. Actually, the range of the golden eagle is world-wide throughout the northern hemisphere. Formerly it ranged across the United States from coast to coast and northward to Alaska. Now the species has almost completely disappeared from western United States.

There are two reasons for this slide toward oblivion. One is the saturation of the environment with organo-chlorine pesticides. The other is the persecution of eagles and hawks by man. Lack of eagle productivity is traced to organo-chlorines such as dieldrin. Similar studies in Texas, Montana, and Colorado have been precipitated by the decline of the golden eagle populations in the United States.

Salmon Fishing Fever

Signs of an early and above-average run of spring chinook salmon are counts of nearly 44,000 Idaho-bound fish at Ice Harbor Dam near the mouth of Snake River and about 37,000 at Little Goose, with water conditions for fish passage holding good. A count of more than 500 fish past Lewiston Dam at the mouth of the Clearwater River was made, where only about 50 were counted on the same date a year ago. A special salmon fishing season was ordered on the Little Salmon River from its mouth upstream to the mouth of Rapid River. Since this year's run is early, the season was set earlier to get the usual and desired harvest on this group of fish.

Has Narrow Escape In Car Accident Sunday

Wayne Dust, Juliaetta, had a narrow "squeak" from an almost fatal accident Sunday morning, while re-accident Sunday morning. The turning home from Lewiston. The steering gear on his "Opel" station wagon failed to function as he rounded a corner on Highway 3, some 5.3 miles east of the Spalding bridge.

It left the highway, went through two guard rails, going down a steep embankment, and apparently rolled end-over-end, landing over and beyond the railroad tracks.

Mr. Dust was thrown into the back of the car, which probably saved his life, as both ends of the car were crushed. It was "totaled out." He was taken to a Lewiston hospital for examination and then released.

No citation was made.

Motor Vehicles Keep Multiplying

BOISE—U. S. motor vehicle registrations will total 104,702,000 by the end of the year, according to the Idaho Department of Highways. That would be an increase of 3,697,887 over the 1968 total. California leads the nation with an estimated 11.4 million registered vehicles, followed by New York with 6.5 million; Texas, 6.4 million; Pennsylvania, 5.8 million and Ohio, 5.6 million.

With over 100 million vehicles now registered in the U. S. there is one car, bus, or truck for every two people. The figure is up 4 million from last year. Federal authorities expect the figure to reach 130 million by 1980, a gain of 30 percent.

Lions, V. F. W. Held Work Nights Last Week

In preparation for the annual Locust Blossom Festival held last Saturday, the Kendrick Community Lions Club and the Kendrick V. F. W. Post held three work nights last week.

Wednesday evening following a "cold cuts lunch" served at the Fire Hall, the two groups busied themselves with paint brushes, hammers, and saws. The public rest rooms were given coats of paint on the exterior and portions of the interior, covering up the work of "local artists" armed with cans of spray paint. Portions of the interior were also painted and cleaned.

In the park another group busied themselves with hammers and saws putting up the serving line for the barbecue.

Thursday evening another group were busy painting in cross-walk lines on the streets and doing other "odd jobs."

Friday evening another group was on the job — completing the setting up of "bleacher" seats and the installation of a platform for the old time fiddling contest and the program of songs by the "Sweet Adelines."

It was a busy week-end for both organizations — but on Saturday morning all was in readiness.

Credit To Firemen

Giving credit where credit is due we must say that the Kendrick Volunteer Firemen did their part, too. They washed and cleaned Main Street from end-to-end during the week — getting up early in the mornings, and working late at night, so that traffic and parked vehicles would not be impeded. Results were most gratifying.

On Memorial Day—

We may remember the good old days with inconvenient old fashioned ways.
We may remember old friends long gone —
Clear blue skies undimmed by smog at dawn.
Quiet lakes and crystal sparkling streams,
Where we leisurely fished and dreamed dreams.
We hope our children will have the same Memories of days when birds and game
Survive among the population —
In our valley — gem of creation.
— Lucille Magnuson.

Regents Give Green Light To Family Housing Units At UI

MOSCOW—Final approval has been given by the Regents for the University of Idaho to start construction on 60 student family housing units upon acceptance of a modified bid of $600,472 by Boise-Cascade Corp. It was announced today by Dr. Sherman F. Carter, financial-administrative vice president.

"Construction will start immediately so that the units can be completed at the earliest possible date," Carter said.

The original low bid of $624,890 by S. G. Morin & Sons, Inc. of Spokane, before modifications, was rejected because the date fixed in the bid for completion of the work was later than the date cited in the specifications, and materials were substituted.

The new units will largely replace old World War II prefabricated structures in Park Village; however a prelease date for the removal of these old structures has not yet been set. Site for the new units is east of the present South Hill Homes development.

The bid price includes the cost of development for streets, landscaping and sprinkler system, but not furniture. The units will be two-bedroom apartments of about 820 square feet. The apartments will be rented as completely furnished units at about $135 per month. Tenants will pay for their own electricity.
