Injuries Plague Tigor, Bulldog Grid Teams

Minor injuries, sprains and bruises plagued both Coach Ozzie Kenikkeberg of the Genesee Bulldogs and Coach Wayne Dust of the Kendrick Tigers as both men were attempting to weld their 1970 crop of football prospects into a gridiron machine this week.

"We really haven't been scrimmaging too much," said Dust Tuesday night. "Mostly we've been trying to get into condition and work out the injuries and the kinks."

Up in Genesee Coach Kenikkeberg has veterans Dick Green and Steve Mader both on the injured list but has hopes of seeing them in action again soon. Green has a bad leg and Mader a sprained back.

Thirty-one in Kendrick Coach Dust has a thirty-one man turnout this year including ten returning lettermen. "We're not going to be too big this year," Dust said, "but I think we'll do alright."

The Tigers meet Nezperce in their first game of the season on the Indian field at 2:00 p. m. September 4.

Although too early in the season to decide on a definite starting eleven, Dust indicated he would "probably" be starting with Alan Kimbley, Don Parks, Ikm Trout and Steve Holt in the backfield; Ends Dave Hutchison and Dale Taylor; Guards Scott May and Dale Fry; Tackles Boyd Candler and Lowell Hoffman and Center Doug Clayton.

Kendrick will play Troy, Deary, Nez Perce, Caledonia, Prairie, Highland (twice) and Genesee.

Beef Gone For Bulldogs Gone for the Bulldogs this season will be the heavy, powerful lines which have become the trademark of the GHS team. Instead Kenikkeberg will be banking on the speed of his backfield. Judging from a practice session Monday night, speed will be plentiful around the Bulldog camp with Doug and Danny Tyler, Dick Green, Bruce Scharnhorst and Ray Morscheck.

Families Tour Canadian Parks in Trailer Group

Five area families, pulling camper trailers, returned home Sunday after an enjoyable trip through four Canadian National Parks—Kootenay, Banff, Yoho and Glacier.

Those going were Mr. and Mrs. James Whittinger, Janis and Gina Rae; Mr. and Mrs. Walt Koepff; Mr. and Mrs. John Blankenship; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wilken and Eva and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brammer and Jolene.

Some special points along the way were the Cominco Gardens at Kimberly and Fort Steele, active in the 1800's, near Cranbrook; the mile-high Gondola ride and the wax museum at Banff and swimming at Radium Hot Springs.

The groups especially enjoyed the many glaciers in Yoho and Glacier parks and had the thrilling experience of watching huge chunks break away and fall from one glacier with a thunderous roar.

The men did some mountain climbing and one member actually got up to a glacier.

The children and some of the adults took the train-ride through a deep, under-ground five-mile tunnel in Rogers Pass.

Huge luscious huckleberries grew almost everywhere in abundance. The weather was beautiful, with clear, sunny days and chilly, crisp evenings—an ideal setting for barbecues and picnics around a crackling log fire.

The Canadians are proud of their clean, spacious camp grounds and one very seldom sees litter along the roadway.

Sunday Morning Fire Burns Genesee Farm

Fire, from unknown sources, totally destroyed all buildings on the former Robert Kuhn farm, now owned by Clint Herman early Sunday morning out on the Rim area of Genesee.

The fire burned two barns, each containing 100 ton of hay; an unoccupied house in the process of being remodeled, a shop, chicken house, machine shed and garage. A stored model A Ford car burned with the garage.

Firemen from the Genesee Rural Fire Protection District were the first on the scene and later a crew from the Kendrick Fire Protective District arrived but it was too late to keep the buildings from going up in flames.

Two combines had been pulled out of the area earlier to make room for the hay and firefighters were able to save them and to keep the fire from spreading into fields.

New Bridge Will Span Potlatch At Juliaetta

A work crew from the county highway district under the supervision of Lloyd Craig, began moving equipment up to a spot on the Potlatch River just above Juliaetta in preparation for the construction of a 130-foot concrete and metal bridge that will span the Potlatch. The first of three dozers and three earthmovers to be used in the construction project was moved in Monday.

The project, Craig said, Tuesday morning, is a joint one between the Nezperce County District and Genesee Rimrock Highway District with Craig's twenty-man crew in charge of the actual erection work.

Located approximately one-half mile above the site of the old bridge, which almost collapsed several weeks ago, the new bridge will be 120-foot in length and will be a two-span steel and concrete structure with an asphalt, 30-foot wide travel lane. When complete the bridge will have a 45-ton rated capacity.

Facing the work crew will be job of moving approximately 87,000 yards of earth for the abutments and the creation of one-half mile of approaches for the span. The new bridge will have a two percent slope from the high point on the Nezperce county side.

Craig said, to the best of his knowledge, one section of the old bridge was built in 1923 and the other section around 1950. The old bridge will be torn down when the new one is ready for use.

The foreman said he hopes to have the piers set up by the first of January and there is a completion date of February 1, 1971 on the total structure.

Wardrobe were early pioneers of the Genesee area where Mr. Wardrobe homesteaded in 1878 near what is now known as the Pine Grove section, near Genesee. At the time of procuring the land situated in Nez Perce County, Territory of Idaho. In early days the Pine Grove Community was unknown by that name, early residents there receiving their mail at a postoffice called Lydiaville, named, so it is said after Mrs. Overaker, Lydia being her given name, this postoffice serving such early settlers as the Wardrobes, Overackers, Brighams, Gibbs, Lamberts, Livingstones, Cudices, Nyles, Grays, and Spurbucks, who through succeeding years became the nucleus of a most cheerful and happy community." (quote from the Genesee News at the time of Mrs. Wardrobe's death Nov. 13, 1931).

The Wardrobes reared thirteen children, three of which are still living. They are Mrs. Agnes Bogart of Coulee City; Mrs. Jessie Blackburn of Puyallup, and Bruce Wardrobe, of Lewiston. Mrs. Bogart and Mrs. Blackburn attended the reunion, but Bruce and his wife, Olive were vacationing in Montana and were unable to be there.

Many of the first, second, and third cousins who attended had never met before but made every effort to be there coming from Florida, California, Oregon, Idaho, and Washington.

First cousins who attended with their families were: Helen Moore of Ellensburg, Carol Coyne of Seattle, and John W. Tucker of Stockton, children of Elizabeth Wardrobe Tucker; Beatrice Sumner and Lucille Mullen of Lewiston, and Mildred Hickman of Palouse, children of Ella Wardrobe Armstrong; Rev. Donald Spurbuck and Kathryn Groff of Moses Lake, Sidney Spurbuck of Soap Lake, and David Spurbuck of Coulee City, children of Edie Wardrobe Spurbuck; Geraldine Wells of Tacoma, daughter of Jessie Wardrobe Blackburn.

Two cousins unable to attend were John Wardrobe of Lewiston, son of Andrew G. Wardrobe, and Russell Armstrong, Timberline Lodge, Mt. Hood, son of Ella Wardrobe Armstrong.

A total of seventy-five or more relatives enjoyed the day together reminiscing with the two aunts and cousins.

Hunting Ethic Based On Respect For Game

By Jim Humbird
Idaho Fish-Game Department

Why is it that some of the same people who regard fishermen as God's gentle and favorite creatures downgrade hunters as irresponsible louts or green-eyed villains. Fishing is said to bring out the best in a man. Sitting peacefully in a boat on a placid lake or exploring the familiar haunts along his favorite brook, the angler supposedly communes with nature, is at peace with the world and is loved by all fellow men.

And yet the nimrod, who actually may be the same man, once in his hunting togs and armed with rifle, shotgun or longbow, allegedly becomes completely irresponsible, disdainful of property rights of others, and bent on drawing blood from some poor helpless creature of the wild. This is sheer nonsense.

So the bass is not adorned with the beautiful plumage of the cock pheasant and the stout-hearted steelhead does not have the soft eyes of Bambi. Life is just as precious to a fish as to a bird or mammal. And who can say that death from a bullet is less humane than suffocating while flopping in the bottom of a creel or boat. Suppose a fish screamed like a wounded rabbit as it was pulled out of the water. And who can say that either of these is less humane than death through starvation or being eaten by a larger animal. Or in a slaughter house. Whether or not man is the cause, wild animals nearly all live short, dangerous lives and die prematurely and violently. Old age is a rare thing among them.

Mass media outlets are quick to report villainous, ill-mannered, irresponsible hunters who destroy private property, trespass on private land and shoot everything in sight including their own kind. Is human nature such that putting on a bright-hued coat converts a normal, respectable, law-abiding citizen into a fiendish outlaw. Has America become a nation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Of course not, though there is a small

Fly Fishermen Convene

The 1970 conclave of the Federation of Fly Fishermen this year will be at Sun Valley. One good reason is that the area has some of the best fishing areas in the state.

Part of the program includes representatives of two giants of the forest products industry. These men will take a long look at their conservation responsibilities. Weyerhaeuser Company of Washington is sending B. L. Orell, vice-president of public affairs, to discuss anti-pollution and conservation efforts of the industry.

Pollack Forests of Idaho will participate in the multiple land and use management panel discussion. The panel will feature representatives from the Fish and Game Department, Bureau of Land Management, the U. S. Forest Service, the Oregon Conservationist of the Year, and, of course, industry representatives.

minority of game violators and trespassers an people who do not respect property rights. Among them, inevitably are thieves, scoundrels, wife-beaters, murderers and even those who would cheat at a game of solitaire. They will steal deer from other men's automobiles, cut fences, ignore "no trespassing" signs, and shoot cows.

Why should it be that in everyday life people recognize this group as most undesirable in an otherwise wholesome population of good American citizens and, on the other hand assume that the deeds committed by such reprobates portray the actions of typical hunters. Hunters, like fishermen, are people, contrary to Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde myths which have plagued them for years. The only mysterious, ancient contradiction of the real hunter's character is that he can at once hunt the creatures he loves.

Part of a hunter's deep attachment to wildlife may stem from the fact that he sees wild creatures at their best — when they are being hunted. It is then that they are strongest, freest and the sharpest. The completely "safe" wild creature is something of a vegetable, and somewhat the same thing might be said of man. Hunting is a game of intense concentration, and a dedicated hunter is more carefully attuned to his environment and is far more receptive of nature — than most other men.

Because the hunter's genuine attachment to his sport is usually based on the wild values of the game he hunts, a strong measure of his respect for wildlife is reflected in the way he hunts. This respect is manifested in rigid code — the written and unwritten laws observed by real sportsmen. The code dictates that a game animal always be given a sporting chance, and allowed to live or die with dignity. For example, the hunting ethic demands that the hunter make every possible effort to avoid crippling game, but if game is wounded, he makes every reasonable effort to recover it.

A game bird is shot on the wing and never "ground swatted;" a deer is never shot under a jacklight; and the real bird hunter never hunts without a dog. This not only increases the chances of bagging grouse, quail, pheasant or waterfowl, but testifies to his respect for game birds by recovering kills and cripples that might otherwise be lost.

As the hunter's respect for wildlife grows, so does the measure of his sportsmanship. Such respect is fed by experience and sympathy for wildlife, game laws and the sporting codes under which game is hunted. These are usually stamps of the experienced, thoughtful hunter. This is not simply a matter of age. Some hunters never learn, remaining case-hardened game hogs to the end, forever blind to the wonders through which they have walked. Other hunters start developing personal hunting ethics on their first trips out, even as boys without being aware of it. Ideals grow over the years like habits, based roughly on a sense of fair play but going far beyond this point.

If there is one word that might sum up the hunting ethic, it is respect. It is a hunter's innate respect for his companions, the land, the wildlife he hunts and self-respect. This respect may border on reverence. Lacking it, or the ability to acquire the hunting ethic, a boy might learn to kill game by the truckload without ever becoming a real sportsman.

Home Cookin' . .

Our two timely recipes for this week come from Mrs. George Eggers of Juliaetta. With these cool mornings, our menus will begin to include casseroles and soups.

Mrs. Eggers says both recipes are delicious and economical to prepare. In fact, when I talked to her the other morning, she was preparing the casserole to take to a dinner. And it makes 8 generous servings.

We've had recent requests for more cookie recipes. All right, now I know that cookies are something that everyone has made and has recipes for many different kinds, so send them in. Cookies in lunch boxes are not only favorites — but musts.

It's really rewarding to know how many read our column, and we are especially pleased when some one drops in for an extra paper that has a special recipe they "meant to save."

With harvest about over and school starting, you mothers will have a little more leisure time to invite neighbors or friends in for coffee and cookies.

By the way, Mrs. Egger's recipes are the last I have.

RANCH STYLE LENTIL CASSEROLE

- 4 cups cooked lentils
- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 package onion soup mix
- 1/2 cup cooking oil
- 1 cup catsup
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- 1 cup water

To cook one pound of lentils, boil gently for 20-30 minutes in five cups of water with 2 teaspoons salt. One cupful cooks into 2 cupfuls in 1/2 hour.

Brown beef in oil. Stir in remaining ingredients. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes.

Because it freezes easily, this can be prepared ahead for barbecues. Serves 8.

LENTIL SOUP

- 1 pound lentils
- 1 gallon beef stock or water
- 3 celery stalks
- 2 carrots
- 1 medium sized onion
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/4 tablespoon pepper
- 1 cup vinegar—optional

Wash lentils. Dice other vegetables and add to beef stock along with lentils. Add salt and pepper. Cook over medium heat about 45 minutes. Add vinegar at the end of cooking time or put it on the table and let your diners add to their taste.

Traffic Delays Between Fall Creek and Elk City

Beginning Monday, August 24, motorists traveling State Highway 14 between Fall Creek and Elk City, may expect delays of one hour due to reconstruction of the South Fork highway, according to Resident Engineer Gordon F. Mead of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

The $972,710 Forest Highway project being built with combined State Department and Forest Highway funds, will provide grading, base and bituminous surface treatment for a 28 foot wide roadway between Fall Creek and Leggett Creek, 3.65 miles. In an area which has had a high accident rate, the section winds along the narrow canyon of the South Fork of the Clearwater River to Elk City for approximately 50 miles. Only 27 miles of the roadway is currently surfaced.

The construction is in an area which has become a popular vacation spot, featuring hot springs, dude ranches, camping, fishing and picnicking, with an "Old West" atmosphere stemming from nearby deserted mining camps, many dating back to the 1860's.

According to the engineer, Crick Construction Company, prime contractors on the project are now engaged in clearing and grading operations. The delays will be in force from 7:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. week days only.

Junked Autos Leaving Idaho

Boise—Dept. of Highways Deputy State Highway Engineer Desza Tisdale issued a progress report today on the Department's junkyard program.

Since the Idaho junkyard law was enacted in 1967, the program has been handled mainly through obtaining easements. This involves clearing the yard of junked car bodies within the 1,000-foot setback or by screening with fencing. One representative of the Right of Way Division, Tisdale noted, has been working with local governmental agencies and other groups interested in pollution control to induce private industry to smash and bale the junked cars and ship the scrap to various shredding plants on the West Coast. This is followed up with a negative easement restricting the use of the land against future stockpiling of junked autos once the yard is cleared. If the project provides for fencing the yard, a negative easement is obtained which provides for the continued maintenance of the screening by the yard owner. In many cases, the owners of the yards that have been cleaned were eager to have the cars removed because they wished to discontinue the junkyard business.

Since the inception of the program March 1967 to December 31, 1969, there were 15,663 tons of scrap steel packaged and shipped from Idaho. During the first six months of 1970, 23,721 tons have been shipped. Based on a $20 per ton price, this would indicate a return to Idaho's economy of $474,420 for this six-month period. "Had all of this tonnage been shipped by truck at 40,000 pounds per load, it would have required about 1,188 truck loads. Fortunately, some has been shipped by rail. However, some of the operators are frequently short of trucks. There are about eight firms in Idaho engaged in this scrap steel salvage operation."

"We hope that 1970 will see 60,000 tons leave Idaho. This would place the State in a position of having exported more tons of scrap than are accumulated per annum. We estimate about 40,000 tons of automotive junk are entering junkyards in Idaho each year," Tisdale said.

Dove Rabbit Seasons

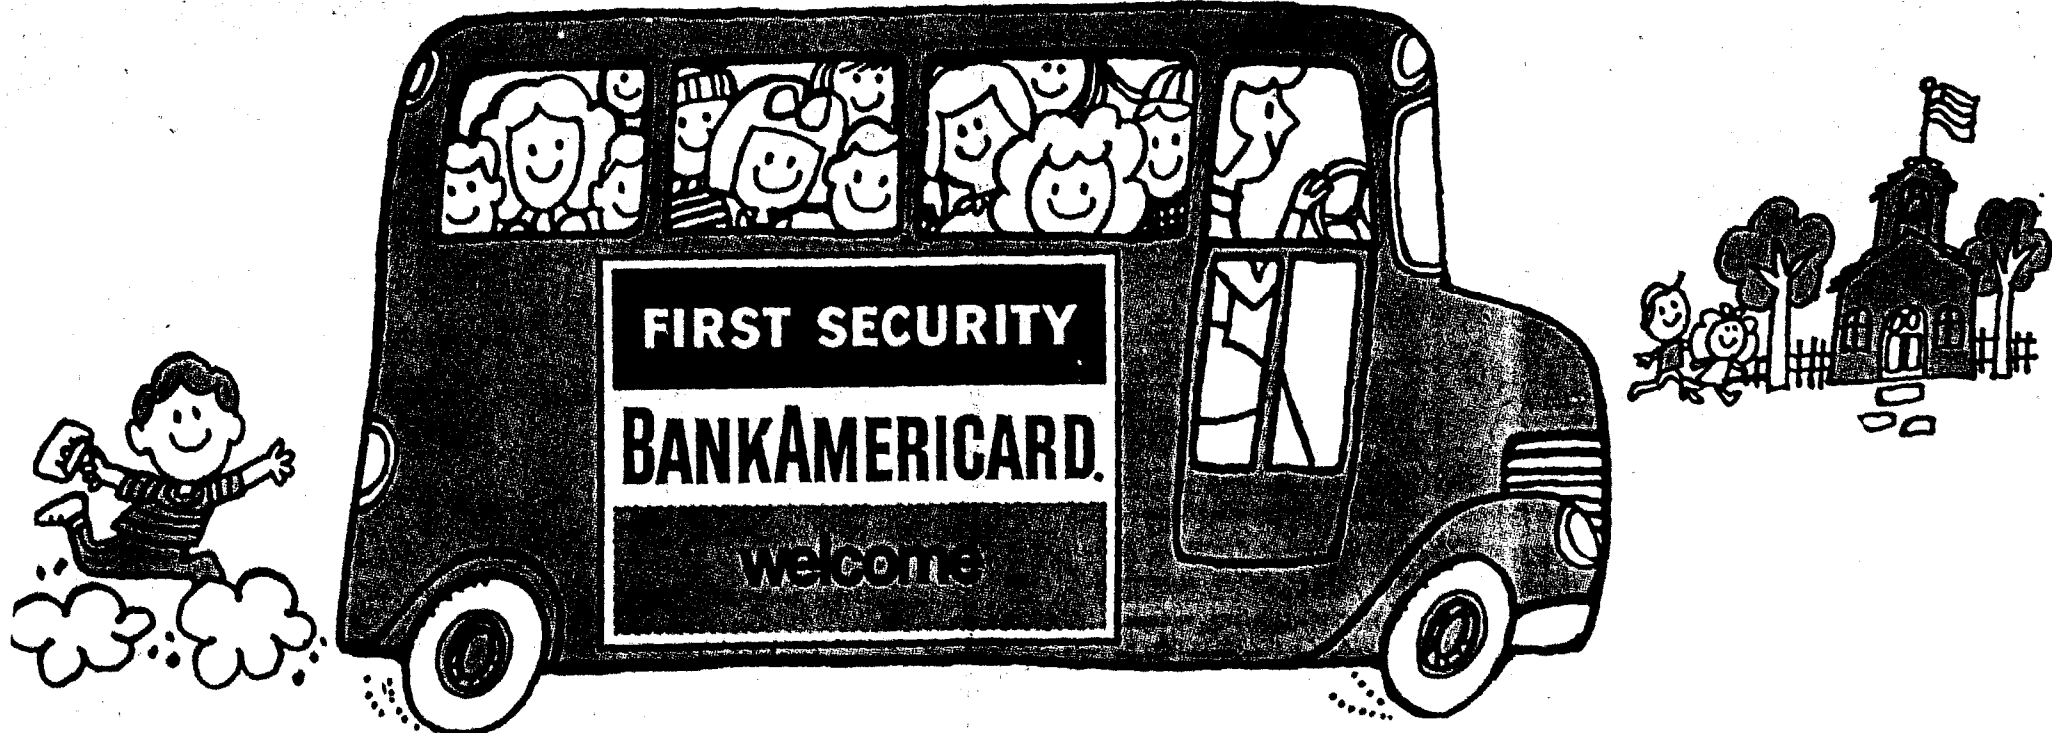

Idaho's mourning dove and cottontail and pygmy rabbit seasons open September 1, as usual, and the rabbit season probably will continue through February 28, 1971, (although not yet set) the longest hunting season in the state. The dove season ends September 20. These are first shooting seasons of the year except for early chukar partridge season in parts of the Middle Fork and Main Salmon River canyons.

It is recommended that exercising regularly be started as a general routine before these hunting seasons begin. This will put hunter and dogs into condition for the rigorous exercise to come. A physically fit individual enjoys hunting far more than one who is out of shape. A hunter in top condition also is generally a safe hunter and can be expected to be in better control of his gun. A tired person is often a careless person. The physically fit hunter will be more alert and less likely to become lost or to become the victim of heart attacks or other illnesses while afield.

Birds Survive Spray

A follow-up story out of the Clearwater Region reports that a bird count conducted by three Valley Garden Club members on the grasshopper control area near Lenore showed good numbers of birds remaining after the spray was applied recently in a program which caused some concern among biologists and others.

There were 101 birds of 23 species in the pre-spray count; and 153 birds of 29 species in the post-spray count. In other words, the grasshopper population appears to have been decreased through the use of chemicals without reducing the food insects to a level that would cause birds to migrate from the area.

Hunting Season Changes In Clearwater Region

Several hunting season changes have occurred in the Clearwater Region this year. The first is the change in the early grouse season in the Coolwater Ridge, Fog Mountain, and Indian Hill areas along the Selway River. The past two years it has opened with the mountain goat season in Units 616 and 617 during the first week of September. Forest Grouse now opens on September 18th in these units along with the general grouse season. Limits are three per day and six in possession.

The second change is in the bag and possession limit on cottontail rabbits which has been increased to eight per day and eight in possession. This season opens September 1st along with mourning doves.

Doves can be hunted from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset and the limit is 10 a day and 20 in possession after the first day. You don't need a duck stamp for these tricky targets but you must have a gun that will hold no more than three shells to comply with federal law.

Bear and general bighorn sheep seasons open September 5th. It is legal to shoot a sow with cubs or cub bear during the fall season on this species. During the spring season it is illegal.

We have several units opening for the big game archer in this Region. They include Units 8, 10A, and 11A which open on September 19th and close on October 18th.

Cold Cuts Economical

Cold cuts are hard to beat for convenience, moderate price, variety and good value, says Joanne Anderson, Latah County Home Economics Agent. Cold cuts are all meat, sliced and packaged for easy summer meals.

Because they are completely edible—except for casing on some types—there is very little waste and no bother with trimmings. Some varieties appear to be high in cost per pound, the agent said, but when the number of servings is considered the cost comes down to compare favorably with most other kinds of meat.

For meat that requires cooking during the outdoor season—a time of barbecues and casual picnics—forequarter beef cuts are among the better buys. In general, look for values on "chuck" roasts and steaks, ground beef, short ribs and round steaks.

Best pork values are found in shoulder roasts and steaks, picnic hams and end-cut loin roasts, and chops. Pork liver is another popular and nutritious buy.

Frying chickens are an excellent choice, the agent said, for protein food. Prices are reasonable and quality of birds is generally excellent.

U. S. 95 North Has Traffic Delays

Resident Engineer Don Aldrich of the Moscow office of the Idaho Department of Highways reported today that beginning Friday, August 21, motorists traveling U. S. Highway 95 between Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene, may expect delays of one-half hour due to construction in progress on the $506,150 Potlatch Junction-Benewah County Line road widening project, No. STS-4114 (562).

According to the engineer, Poe Asphalt Paving Company of Lewiston, Idaho, prime contractors, is now installing pipe culvert across the roadway. Placing of granular borrow material to widen narrow sections was started July 31. Beginning at 7:00 a.m. Friday, traffic will be let through the project on the hour and half hour from 7:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., week days only. There will be no delay on weekends.

The work includes installation of drainage structures, widening of the roadway and construction of a plant-mix pavement on 9.8 miles of U. S. 95 near Potlatch. The project should be complete within 90 working days.

Two New Soft White Winter Wheats Approved

Two new soft white winter wheat varieties have been added to the list of approved wheats in Idaho, Washington, and Oregon.

They are Paha, a soft white winter club variety and Luke, a semi-dwarf soft white common winter wheat. Both were developed cooperatively by Agricultural Experiment Stations in the three states and the Crops Research Division Agricultural Research Service, USDA, under the guidance of Dr. Orville Vogel, leader of the ARS USDA wheat breeding project at Pullman, Washington.

"Both of these varieties are adapted primarily to the Palouse area in Idaho," reports Dr. R. D. Ensign, associate director of the Idaho Agricultural Experiment station. "We don't anticipate that the new wheats will replace Nugaines or other winter wheats currently grown in irrigated areas of southern Idaho."

Luke, a short-strawed, high-yielding wheat, will be especially valuable in areas where disease problems have limited Nugaines production, Ensign said. Luke is resistant to all known races of common and dwarf bunt. It is markedly superior to Nugaines in resistance to Cercospora footrot, to snow mold caused by Fusarium nivale and to stripe rust.

Luke has compared favorably with Nugaines in Idaho yield trials under normal field conditions. It is similar to Nugaines in general appearance, winter hardiness and growth habit. It is slightly less resistant to shattering, lodging and leaf rust. It is susceptible to flag smut.

Paha, the new club variety, is generally superior to Omar and other club wheats now grown in northern Idaho, Ensign said. Paha is highly resistant to stripe rust and moderately resistant to Cercospora footrot, but is more susceptible than Omar to powdery mildew and flag smut. It averages four to eight inches shorter than Omar in height and is superior in resistance to lodging and shattering. It is similar to Omar in growth habit, winter hardiness and reaction to dwarf bunt.

Paha is also similar to Omar in milling and baking qualities, producing flour of the quality wanted in domestic and foreign soft wheat markets. Since Omar was such a popular wheat in the Palouse area before stripe rust limited production, it is anticipated many growers will return to the improved rust-resistant Paha type, Ensign said.

The foundation seed available this fall will be allocated through the Idaho Crop Improvement Association. A limited amount of seed may be available for commercial plantings in the fall of 1971 and ample quantities should be available after the 1972 harvest, according to Ensign.

IDAHO WHEAT COMMISSION

If yours is an average family, you spend about one-fifth of your grocery bill on items that aren't really groceries, according to the administrator of the Idaho Wheat Commission.

Harold West, Boise, said for every 20 cents worth of food the average family buys at the supermarket, they add another 20 cents for soap, toothpaste, socks hairspray and other non-food items.

"Contrary to most people's opinions, food really is a bargain," West said. "And what we pay at the supermarket checkout doesn't actually reflect what we're spending on basic food items."

About half of the hairspray, aspirin, and toothpaste sold in the U. S. is rung up on supermarket registers, West pointed out.

"The cost of food in real dollars is actually going down," he Wheat Commission official said. "In 1960, food took 20 per cent of the average family's income. Today, it's down to about 16 percent."

Sportsmen Meeting

This fall's campaign for "Operation Respect" will be the main topic discussed at the annual summer meeting of the Idaho Landholder-Sportsmen Council, Friday, August 28 at the headquarters office of the Idaho Fish and Game Department in Boise. The meeting will start at 1:30 p. m.

During 1969 about 2,000 hunters joined the statewide program by purchasing the familiar triangle patch identifying them as individuals who follow the rules of good sportsmanship. "Operation Respect" aims to open more land for hunting. The triangle patch reminds every one that it takes cooperation between the landholder-sportsman and the Fish and Game Department to produce good hunting.
