

Bulldogs Slam Clearwater Valley 58-0 In Season Gridiron Opener Friday

Genesee used a fierce, stubborn defense and capitalized on every mistake Clearwater Valley made, as the Bulldogs swamped the CV Rams 58-0 on the Genesee field Friday night to win the opening game of the 1970 football season. The Bulldogs had rolled up a 39-0 halftime lead as Coach Ozzie Kanikkeberg used his reserve strength freely in the final two quarters.

Sophomore Dan Tyler scored his first of three touchdowns in the opening minutes of the first quarter breaking through the tackle and guard spot to scoot 17 yards into the end zone. The play was set up by his older brother, Doug, who had moved the ball from the 33-yard line down to the 17 on an end sweep. The kick off the toe of Craig Busch on the extra point try failed.

Lineman Steve Mader scored the next Genesee touchdown when he scooped up a CV fumble on the Ram 4-yard line and stumbled across the goal line for another six points. Busch's kick attempt was again too low and the Bulldogs had a 12-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Bulldog quarterback Bruce Scharnhorst, playing his usual fine defensive game, scored the next Genesee touchdown on the first play of the second quarter when he intercepted a Ram pass on the Ram 27-yard line and raced back to score with the ball. Busch ran the conversion across and the Bulldogs led 20-0.

Clearwater Valley scored their only touchdown of the game in the second quarter by intercepting a Bulldog pass and returning it 25 yards for a score. The Ram six points didn't stand, however, because of a holding penalty. Minutes later Doug Tyler burst through the center of the Ram line at the Genesee 21-yard line and went 79 yards for a touchdown. The PAT kick by Busch was wide of the mark. Genesee scored again a short time later after recovering a CV fumble on the Ram 15 and then moving the ball across the goal line from the 4-yard mark.

Rich Green's interception of a Ram pass on the 30-yard line set up the next touchdown for the Bulldogs after Green had brought the ball back down to the Ram one-yard line. Dan Tyler bucked the ball over to make it 38-0. Busch's extra point kick was good and the Bulldogs had a 39-0 halftime lead.

The third quarter was barely underway when Dan Tyler slipped thru the middle of the Ram line at his own 21-yard line and went 79 yards for another Bulldog tally. The conversion by Busch was good and Genesee had the game 46-0.

It was 52-0 before the quarter was out as Genesee fell on a blocked CV punt in the Ram end zone. The conversion try failed.

A Scharnhorst to John Hermann pass play in the final quarter covering 23 yards gave the Bulldogs their 58-0 win.

At Timberline Next Genesee moves down to Timberline High (Pierce-Weippe consolidation) for their next game Friday. Timberline is winless in two starts this year, losing to Orofino 32-0 last week.

The Gazette-News

VOLUME 80 KENDRICK AND GENESSEE LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1970 NO. 37

Miriam Cook, News Editor Of Gazette, Retires This Week

Mrs. Ben P. Cook, news editor of the Gazette for the past nine years, retired from her job this week. She will be succeeded by Mrs. Ray Lohman, who has been on the Gazette staff for almost a year.

Mrs. Cook (Miriam to almost everyone) came to the Gazette in September of 1961 and has served the paper and the community well since that time. Actually, she was a lot more than just news editor. In addition to collecting and writing news, she read proof, kept the ever-changing subscription list up-to-date, received and filed photographs, did much of the classified advertising and served as receptionist. Until the summer of 1969, Miriam also worked on publication day, helping to fold and mail the papers until poor health forced her to give up that part of her job.

Her decision to step down from her job came as a result of the retirement of her husband, Ben P., from the faculty of Joint School District No. 283 after over forty years of teaching. The couple plan to travel and visit friends and relatives, plus camping and fishing. They will soon leave on a trip to the mid-west to visit relatives of Mr. Cook.

Well Miss Miriam One of the first things Bill McCreary told me when I bought the Gazette was, "You'll have good help, Miriam's one of the best." Bill will never be more correct in his judgment of anyone.

Mrs. Cook was what everyone wants in an employee (although I never did think of her as an employee). She was hard-working, loyal, dependable and completely trustworthy. She wrote with accuracy and honesty and I never knew her to be petty or spiteful to anyone. Her advice was sound and her judgment good. My own two years in Kendrick would have been much more difficult if it had not been for Miriam.

Miriam Cook has given the Gazette nine years of good, faithful service. She has my gratitude, respect and affection. And, if anyone ever asks me, I will tell them, "she's one of the best." BR

Tigers Drop 24-0 Contest To NezPerce; Host Prairie Pirates Friday Night

Coach Wayne Dust wasn't exactly happy over the Kendrick Tiger's 24-0 loss to Nezperce Friday afternoon in the opening football game of the season, but he saw enough potential in his young, inexperienced team to keep from being discouraged. The Tigers battled first-game jitters; cold, rainy weather and a tough Indian team in absorbing the opening game loss.

Nezperce moved out to a 6-0 first quarter lead and then scored two more touchdowns in the second quarter as the Indian defense held off the Tiger offense well, not allowing the KHS team to penetrate within twenty yards of Nezperce goal line. The final Indian tally came in the fourth quarter.

Cold rain fell throughout the day as the two teams battled on a wet, muddy field, which didn't favor the lighter KHS squad.

"We just couldn't seem to get the ball moving," Dust said after the game. But he did have praise for his fullback Alan Kimbley for some excellent defensive work. "You'd have to say Kimbley was a stand-out," Dust commented, "he made some good tackles."

This is a "building year" for the Tigers, who have suffered some hard knocks on the gridiron the past two seasons. This year there are forty-five players turning out for the team. Almost twice as many as answered the call last year. This increased interest in football plus plenty of spirit give Coach Dust his optimistic outlook for the future. Dust summed it up well when he said, "they're really starting to hit out there."

Prairie At Kendrick The Prairie Pirates from Cottonwood invaded the Tiger gridiron this Friday night as the Tigers debut before their hometown fans with game time set at 7:30 p. m.

Prairie and the Lewiston High JV team battled to 8-8 tie last week as the Lewiston squad had to come from behind in the final seconds of the first half to catch up with the Pirates.

Weather Turns Cold, Wet After Dry August

After a hot, dry August that saw only .02 inches of moisture recorded the month of September began on a rainy note of 1.23 inches of moisture recorded in the Genesee area, by John Luedke, who maintains rainfall figures for the Soil Conservation Service.

Luedke's figures for the first eight months of 1970 indicate that this may well be one of the wettest years on record. A total of 18.30 inches of moisture has already been recorded for this year. This is well above the previous ten-year high of 15.09 inches recorded for the same period in 1961. At this time in 1969, only 12.04 inches of moisture had been noted by the weatherman. This is closer to the ten-year average.

The early September rains did catch some farmers with spring barley and oats still left to cut but the harvest is well over across the region. The moisture will cause a delay in fall plowing.

Temperatures dipped sharply in the wake of the wet weather and the cold, damp conditions caused some growing among campers and fishermen who wanted to take advantage of the long Labor Day weekend. Those who did go out faced less than ideal conditions. Temperatures in both the Genesee and the Juliaetta-Kendrick area ranged from the mid-forties during the night up into the sixties and seventies during the day.

Genesee Winner Over Kendrick In Tuesday Frosh-Soph Grid Game Sparked by the three touchdowns of Terry Green, the Genesee High School Freshman-Sophomore team defeated the Kendrick Frosh-Soph 20-9 on the Genesee field Tuesday evening. Green scored on runs of 30, 4 and 25 yards.

Kendrick battled the Bulldogs on even terms through most of the first half with Green's thirty-yard run being about the only difference. Quarterback, Craig Kanikkeberg passed to Ferrara for the extra two points. Kendrick threatened twice in the first half but were unable to push across. Genesee was ahead 6-0 at halftime.

A blocked Kendrick punt in the third quarter put Genesee on the 43-yard line and two plays later Green rushed over for the score.

Attempting to catch up, Kendrick went to the air and a Luckcat pass was intercepted by Green on the twenty-five yard line of the Tigers and he scored to make it 20-0.

Kendrick's offense started to click in the final quarter as Luckcat passed to Middlekopp on the 13 for the first Kendrick touchdown. Kendrick had control of the ball most of the final quarter but they were hampered by interceptions and penalties. The Tigers had the ball down on the Genesee 13-yard line and were knocking on the scoring door again when the clock ran out.

Nation-wide Effort Directed To Diabetes

During September there is a nation-wide effort to encourage everyone to have a check-up to detect diabetes, the "sneaky" disease, which often gives no symptoms until far advanced. The Idaho Department of Health urges Idaho citizens to contact their own physician for such a check-up, particularly if they are in the high risk groups.

Those who are over forty, overweight, or have family members with diabetes should be particularly concerned.

Diabetes also strikes children and young people, too. While this is serious, young people can lead a normal life with diabetes and so can older persons, with necessary precautions.

It is most important that diabetics follow a well-balanced program of proper diet, regular meals and plenty of exercise. Many athletes are diabetic as well as successful, active people in many other fields.

The Idaho Department of Health urges those who are over forty, overweight, or have family members with diabetes to check with their doctor at least once a year. Persons with symptoms such as unusual hunger, thirst or tiredness, itching of the skin or very slow healing of wounds or sores may have the disease in the more advanced stages and should have a check-up at any time they note such symptoms.

Those who have diabetes should carefully follow their doctor's instructions. For information about diabetes, check with your local physician or write to Health Education, Statehouse, Boise, Idaho.

Orientation Week Set At U. of I. Sept. 11-13

MOSCOW—Orientation at the University of Idaho will be held Sept. 11-13 for incoming freshmen. This year's activities include a registration workshop, information sessions, meetings with advisors and a variety of social activities.

Students arriving Friday will have a general introduction to the university through tours, meetings with their residence hall advisors and an outdoor barbecue in the university's Arboretum.

An introduction to the academic environment is scheduled for Saturday with meetings with department advisors, model lectures and registration workshop to acquaint new students with the registration procedure. The dormitories will also open for upper division students returning to the campus.

The Moscow Chamber of Commerce and other service clubs will sponsor a barbecue and dance Sunday, Sept. 13 in the city's Gormley Park to welcome the students and introduce them to the town.

Activities on Monday will be limited to meetings with academic advisors and deans. Registration for all students will take place Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 15-16 and classes begin Thursday, Sept. 17.

Rush activities for the nine campus sororities will begin Sept. 4-10 for some 200 women expected to participate this year. Fraternity rush for the 18 Idaho chapters is scheduled for Sept. 6-10.

SEPTEMBER

September: ushers in the autumn tide
Tramping knee-deep in summers wasted gold;
And glory overwhelms the countryside
With rapture more than heart and hand can hold.

And O, the untold happiness it brings
As goldenrod and sumac stalk the land;
As through the sheltering pines the soft wind sings
As this month marches in to take

Hen-In-Bag Regulation Last 9 Days of Season

Following is a wrap-up story of seasons and regulations set by the Idaho Fish and Game Commission last week at its special three-day meeting in Boise. A hen-in-the-bag regulation was set for the last nine days of the ring-neck pheasant season in the Western and Magic Valley regions, and the last two days of the season in the eastern counties of Bannock, Bingham and Power. Hunting dates for pheasants are October 10-November 15 in northern Idaho and October 24 (noon), December 6 in southern Idaho, except Patch and Porter Islands in the Snake River (Washington County) where the season ends November 22. Except for Adams and Valley counties, where daily bag and possession limit will be 2 and 4 cocks, limited hen harvesting will be legal from November 28 through December 6 in the counties of Ada, Blaine, Boise, Camas, Canyon, Cassia, Elmore, Gem, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka, Owyhee, Payette, Twin Falls and Washington. Beginning November 28, the daily bag limit will be 4 pheasants, 1 of which may be a hen. From November 29-December 6 the possession limit in these counties will be 8 pheasants, 2 of which may be hens. Bannock, Bingham, and Power counties will hunt pheasants from October 24 (noon)-November 29. The daily bag limit will be 4 cocks except the last two days, November 28-29, when the daily bag will be 4 pheasants, 1 of which may be a hen. Possession limit after the 1st day is 8 cocks except November 29, when the possession limit is 8 pheasants, 2 of which may be hens.

The counties of Caribou, Franklin and Oneida have a daily possession limit of 4 cocks, beginning October 24 (noon) and a possession limit of 8 cocks after the first day. There will be no hen harvesting in these three counties.

In northern Idaho, the daily bag limit is 3 cocks and possession limit 6 cocks after the first day in the counties of Benewah, Bonner, Boundary, Kootenai, and Shoshone. In the other counties of Clearwater, Idaho, Latah, Lewis, and Nez Perce the daily bag limit is 2 cocks and a possession limit of 4 cocks after the first day.

All of the Salmon and Upper Snake River country have the same season and bag limits for pheasants as last year. The season for all of southeastern Idaho is one week longer than 1969. The counties of Bear Lake and Teton are traditionally closed to pheasant shooting. In northern Idaho counties, there is no change in season lengths except for the one-day shift that come with the change of a new year.

Anticipating another boom year for sage grouse harvesting, the Commission increased the bag limit to three birds in most areas where it was 2 birds in 1969 including Adams and Valley counties, and all of the Western Region except part of Owyhee County where the bag limit is up by one bird and the season length increased by one week. Eastern Owyhee County sage grouse season is September 19-September 27,

Forest grouse hunting runs from September 19 through November 29 in most areas. Controlled turkey seasons were set previously—September 26-October 4, with 1 bird bag limit. The closing date for general turkey hunting was set, making the season September 26-October 2, and two additional units were added, Units 19A and 22. Rabbit season (cottontail and pygmy) September 1-February 28, 1971. Mourning Doves, September 1-20.

Most general beaver seasons will open November 1, with variable closing dates from December 31 to March 31. There also will be some controlled beaver trapping units on the same basis as last year. Most muskrat and mink trapping seasons open November 1, with variable closing dates from December 31 to April 30.

Milk Checked

The safety of commercial milk is watched over by the Idaho Department of Health. Local dairies and milk processors in Idaho cooperate with the Idaho Dept. of Health to help assure continued safe milk supplies. The conditions of milking and of storing the milk are carefully checked for sanitation. If violations are found another inspection is made. A second violation can lead to loss of the permit to operate.

Processing plants are inspected to be sure operations are carried out to make all milk products safe for the consumer. There are special sanitation regulations which must be met by those who sell raw milk under Idaho law. While the Idaho Dept. of Health does inspect these producers of raw milk, they recommend pasteurized milk for general consumption, because the pasteurizing process is additional assurance against diseases sometimes carried by milk.

In 1911, when the Idaho Department of Health was first given the responsibility for supervising the safety of the fluid milk supply, milk was a major source of certain diseases. Some of these diseases are no longer serious health problems, but others can still be spread by raw milk, if proper care is not taken. The milk-borne diseases that are seldom seen now include typhoid, diptheria, undulant fever, and tuberculosis. Other diseases which are still often spread by raw milk and milk products include Q-fever, "strep" (which often causes sore throats), and salmonellosis which causes intestinal "upsets" which can be very serious as well as annoying.

In June there were 660 Grade A Dairy Farms in Idaho, twenty eight pasteurization plants, and twenty six producers and distributors of retail raw milk. They are an important segment of Idaho's economy. In order to ship milk and milk products outside the state for sale, they must be certified for interstate sanitation standards. The inspections made by the Idaho Department of Health make it possible for them to carry on this shipping.

Sanitarians from local health departments make the inspections in their areas, with advice from the staff of the Food and Milk Section of the Idaho Department of Health. The state staff makes interstate shipping inspections as well, and issues licenses to producers and processors.

Further information on milk standards may be obtained by writing to Milk Inspection, Health, Statehouse, Boise, Idaho.

Early Season Hunting

Three big dates to remember in relation to Idaho deer and elk hunting are October 19, October 3, and October 17. These are the opening days for elk and deer hunting in big blocks of management units throughout the state. Sept. 19 marks the state of elk and deer hunting in a dozen primitive area game management units in the mountains of north and central Idaho. October 3 is the opening date for game management units in other back country regions with some road access. Most of the southern Idaho units open hte deer seasons, and some for elk and deer, on October 17.

The Panhandle region of northern Idaho starts most whitetail deer hunting and some deer-elk units on October 31.

Are teenagers more safety conscious than their parents? A recent survey conducted by Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies shows that in at least one aspect of safety they are. The survey showed that twice as many teenagers as adults use seat belts.

"Playing the Field" Pays Dividends In Upland Game Birds, Says Writer

By Martel Morache, supervisor Conservation Education

A man and his dog can have a challenging range of upland bird hunting in Idaho. However, it does require knowledge, experience, stamina and motivation. And, this opportunity is available more than an entire month ahead of the big push on the bread-and-butter species the Ring-necked pheasant.

A case in point was the third week in September, which was the opening on all upland birds except pheasant last year. I had planned well in advance for a week's big game hunting in the prime elk range of northern Idaho. But compelling personal considerations made it advisable to remain close to home. Plans were changed and the emphasis was placed on upland bird shooting. For many years I had wished to do this, always shoving bird hunting aside for early season big game hunting. I have personally witnessed incidents here as a means of showing anyone the wonderful variety of Idaho upland game bird hunting.

The season was kicked off with a couple of hunting buddies by heading into sage grouse country of western Owyhee County, one-hundred or so miles south of the state capital. This high desert plateau country has some of the finest sage grouse range remaining in Idaho. Rain just prior to the opening had scattered the birds and they were not on the meadows or near the water holes, as usual. In fact, they were ranging high on top of the rimrock country in the short sage and lava fields where rain water was available in the depressions of rock.

We picked our way through the rock fields. Within one-half mile, we had flushed several groups of birds. In two hours hunting, 300 to 400 sage grouse had taken wing. I stood in one spot and shot three birds, and while the dog was retrieving we detected a perfect arrowhead at my feet. This was the ancient hunting territory of the Paiute Indians.

Late Monday morning, after switching Brittanics (alternating dogs in hot weather hunting is good practice), I headed for the Boise Front. This is a range of sage and grass-covered foothills twenty miles north of town. Chukar and Hungarian partridge were today's targets. It was a very hot afternoon and the birds were shaded up close to the water. Four hours later an exhausted dog and a sweating hunter had a mixed bag of 12 birds.

Tuesday (switching dogs again) we headed for the high country near timberline. This is blue grouse country. This bird has an unusual life history cycle. The hens rear their broods at lower elevations and migrate during the early fall to the highest ridge tops to winter. The adult males precede the broods. I decided on some of the high ridge country dividing the South and Middle Forks of the Boise River, 70 miles north of town. The elevation exceeded 8,500 feet.

Taking off from road's end, it was a steady hour's climb to top out on the ridge trail. Sure enough, the dog began flashing an occasional blue grouse male. When these big birds launch themselves downhill, you only have time to point and shoot. They are exceptionally strong flyers and get airborne very quickly, dodging in and out of the evergreens. We flushed 12 to 14 birds in two hours actually hunting time, limiting out in good shape. The view from the top of a mountain range is always spectacular. This day was no exception as we headed back down the ridge trail just at sunset.

After a 5-hour drive Wednesday, we were in combination sage and sharp-tail grouse country near Blackfoot Reservoir in eastern Idaho. Sharp-tail grouse were our goal. The sharp-tail favors grassy cover, along with sagebrush stands. This rolling hill country with elevations to 7,000 feet, meets the sharp-tail's living requirements. This bird has felt the heavy hand of man changing his environment more so than any other upland bird species. The remaining huntable sharp-tail populations are found only in certain areas of eastern Idaho. Before sundown, we had a mixed limit of sharp-tail and sage grouse.

Thursday before returning to Boise, we tried another blue grouse session south of Soda Springs. This bird has an undeniable attraction. This time we were hunting at elevations in excess of 9,000 feet. The Grand Teton was clearly visible to the east from this tremendous overlook. Hunting close together and working the dogs fairly tight, we had our birds in 3 hours.

Friday was set aside to regroup and gear up for what was thought would be the toughest go, looking for the wily Merriam's wild turkey. This was only the second general season in the state's history. This huntable population resulted from turkey plants in the early sixties.

Consequently most Idahoans are novice turkey hunters, and I was no exception. We headed for the Riggins country, 160 miles north of Boise. We had hunted here last year and my partner had some foresight into turkey behavior.

For an hour before daylight we climbed into the precipitous ridge country of a tributary to the main Salmon river. The turkeys had been seen using the lower elevations during the course of the summer. Then we began working out the heads of several bushy draws just as though you would hunt big game animals. This means a lot of binocular work. Actually, we jumped male deer in the process and were flushing ruffed grouse frequently.

As we were approaching the sits of last year's hunt, we noticed three hunters one-half mile below us, carefully glancing over the ridge and initiating a stalk. Hurrying to the top of the draw we made it in time to see 50-odd turkeys coming single file, straight up the draw one-fourth mile away. This was a sight to see. We were pinned down in the p-cin flat a our backs to avoid detection.

The three other hunters were closing in from the left and could see the turkeys were out-distancing them. They opened fire as the birds were about 70 yards out from us. My hunting buddy was able to scratch one down with a 12-gauge Magnum. Then all hell broke loose—turkeys scattered in all directions, running and flying. I made the tactical error of trying to close the gap on one running up hill. It was no contest. At this point, two other hunters came up from the bottom of the draw

Winchester Lake Fish Kill Caused By Decaying Algae

Terry Holubetz and Glen Richardson of the Idaho Fish and Game Department conducted a survey of fish mortality at Winchester Lake on August 26, 1970. A count of the entire shoreline surrounding the lake revealed 3,225 dead trout, both cutthroat and rainbow, and ranging in size from 6 to 22 inches. The cause of the fish kill is an oxygen deficiency caused by an extremely dense algae bloom which has died and is now decomposing. When the algae decomposes, the decomposition process takes oxygen out of the water. The dissolved oxygen concentration was measured at the water surface and it was 3.2 parts per million which is a minimal level for trout survival. Dissolved oxygen was only 0.4 parts per million at the 10 foot depth and would be lethal to fish over any period of time.

Holubetz estimates that below 15 feet there is probably no oxygen although they did not survey to this depth. He anticipates that the problem will be alleviated in a few days because water is beginning to clear, wind action is starting to mix the water, and weather has been somewhat cooler during the past few days. All of these factors should help increase concentrations of oxygen in the lake.

Nineteen anglers were checked at the lake during the survey and were still catching fish. Numerous live and healthy fish were sighted during the survey. Oxygen deficiency problems are common in highly productive lakes. It is anticipated that only a small portion of the fish population will be killed, but if the problem continues, the lake will be restocked as soon as possible.

Summer Health Problem Varied

Summer shouldn't be so relaxed that people forget safety precautions, according to the Idaho Department of Health. Power lawn mowers, for example, can cause tragedy if the blade comes loose. They can throw rocks, wire or other objects with deadly force, as well as danger of cutting feet.

Summer has numerous dangers, too. The Idaho Department of Health recently cautioned backyard chefs against the dangers of moving outdoor grills and hibachi pots indoors because of rain. Burning charcoal, used with such cooking devices, give off carbon monoxide and could poison persons cooking in an enclosed area. At a summer barbecue, when rain threatens, it is best to move to the most sheltered outdoor place. Burning charcoal should also be kept out of cars, campers, trailers or enclosed porches. Adequate ventilation is an absolute must to keep charcoal cooking safe.

Other summer mishaps run the gamut from water accidents to diseases which occur more frequently in the picnic season. In general, accidental deaths from most outdoor activities rise during the summer months. Drownings are always highest from May until August. In 1965, for example, when the 10-year State high of 62 drowning deaths was recorded, 49 persons drowned during the four-month summer period, including 13 each in July and August. The next year, 15 swimmers drowned during July and 37 of 51 aquatic deaths occurred during the warm third of the year. The total of 16 drowning deaths for June, 1970 was the highest for any single month in years, according to the Idaho Department of Health.

In addition to all types of accidents (airplane crashes increase during summer when more flying time is logged) chances of contracting certain diseases increase because of the outdoor urge. Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever and sylvatic bubonic plague can be transmitted by ticks and lice. Additionally, exposure to the possibility of bites from bats, skunks and squirrels—animals which have been known to carry rabies—is more frequent, and gastro-intestinal diseases such as salmonella are caught more often in the summer.

Summer is a time of concern for the Idaho Department of Health... and should be a time of sensible

Now, I began to wonder how on earth a person could be this close to over 50 wild turkeys and not get a decent shot. Several turkeys were frequently in good rifle range. I had no rifle this year. Also, birds had sought refuge in large hawthorne thickets. The dog that had been left behind would have been invaluable. While I was musing over the situation, a young tom came running back over the hill and flew into a large yellow pine 200 yards away. These birds evidently felt particularly secure in this area.

Almost simultaneously my partner called out that he was pushing turkey down the draw toward me. The turkey in the tree froze at the sound of his voice and focused his attention toward him. This gave me an opportunity to crawl through the hawthorne thicket into shotgun range and bring the bird down and it was all over by 10 a. m.

Clearly etched in my mind was the tremendous ground speed and flight capability of the big birds, not to mention their keen eyesight. Next year, a small bore rifle and a good brush dog will be included. Later that afternoon, we headed for a ridge nearby picking up a limit of ruffed and blue grouse. Heading home, I was reflecting back on the week's hunt and wondering where else but good old Idaho could an upland bird hunter have such an exhilarating, quality experience hunting a wide variety of upland bird species in spectacular surroundings from high deserts to the very top of the mountain ranges is unforgettable, and we hadn't even touched the quail hunting!

Russell J. Dixon To Speak At Wallace Convention

Russell J. Dixon, district supervisor for the area, will address the delegates of the Wallace, Idaho convention Sept. 11, 12, and 13 with the climactic subject "Who Will Conquer The World in the 1970's?" Says Mr. Dixon, "History has produced many conquerors, whose high ambitions, if achieved, were at best only transitory. Yet every indication is that this entire world will be successfully conquered soon by God's own heavenly forces."

Mr. Dixon will open the convention with the talk, The Word of God is Alive, Friday, September 11 at 7:00 p. m. His concluding talk, Heavenly Support of Kingdom Preaching, will be Sunday at 5:30.

Born March 9, 1925, Mr. Dixon graduated from Oklahoma University January, 1950 with a B. S. in biological sciences; in 1951 in medical technology. On August 3, 1950, in New York City, Russell Dixon was ordained as a minister. From September 30, 1969, Dixon and his wife, Nancy have been serving in District No. 11, which includes all or part of 11 states from Spokane, Washington to the western edge of Minnesota and from the Canadian border to Utah.

He will be attending the circuit convention in Wallace, Sept. 11, 12, and 13.

precautions for Idaho citizens. One last note of caution was issued to housewives when they are cleaning. NEVER mix chlorine bleach with other cleaners of any kind. In fact, it is a good idea not to mix ANY two cleaning compounds together, because certain chemical products mixed with bleach produces HIGHLY FATAL chlorine gas. The summer message of the Idaho Department of Health for summer is—"Enjoy... but use reasonable caution!"

For additional safety information, booklets are available by writing to Health Education, Statehouse, Boise, Idaho.

Best Fishing Time

Here's why fall is the best of all times to fish: chilly nights bring waters down to ideal temperatures for active fish foraging. Lakes and reservoirs have a turnover of water in the fall just as in the spring and fish become hearty eaters again. Cooling waters sink to the bottom of reservoirs and lakes, this action displaces summer-warmed layers of water below. Mixing continues until all water is just under 39 degrees, and winter stagnation begins.

From the time the water circulates, fish scatter through the different layers according to preference of individual species. As cooling continues, the forage of fish is upwards where the most feed can be found and action for fishermen speeds up accordingly.

Hopping from lane to lane on the highways is not only illegal but dangerous. Road signs are posted to help save lives, says Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies, and ignoring them is literally taking your life into your own hands.

The response to our call for recipes has really paid off and we do appreciate the recipes sent in. Please keep them coming for fall and winter parties and other entertaining has only started.

This week the recipes are from Mrs. Harvie Shepherd of Potlatch, who says they are some of her favorites, and added she enjoys the Home Cookin' column. Thank you, Mrs. Shepherd. By the way, my mother's maiden name was Shepherd, and it sounds real familiar to hear the name again.

The Meat and Vegetable casserole sounds very timely for the cool days we'll be having and it makes a large recipe. Perfect for larger families.

Then for dessert an apricot-pineapple salad served with orange cookies. Add some warm rolls, relishes and steaming cups of hot coffee and you really have a delicious meal.

Ahsahka Bridge Closed To Truck Traffic

Due to severe damage by heavy equipment being hauled to a fire, it has been necessary to restrict the Ahsahka Bridge over the North Fork of the Clearwater River on State Highway 7, to one way traffic for passenger cars and unloaded pickups only.

According to District Engineer Marvin W. Lotspeich of the Lewiston office of the Idaho Department of Highways, the bridge was hit by the blade of a large dozer being hauled to a fire location by the Clearwater-Potlatch Protective Association, about 7:00 a.m. August 31st. One vertical member of the bridge was broken completely off, the deck near the Ahsahka end was cracked and seven upright members were damaged.

Lotspeich said that the Highway Department did not receive a report of the damage until later in the morning when Maintenance Foreman Jimmy Dugger of Orofino was advised by a passing motorist. In the meantime, a school bus loaded with children had unknowingly crossed the damaged bridge. He said that flagmen will be stationed at each end of the bridge twenty-four hours a day to alert motorists to the restriction and to prevent the bridge from receiving further damage, until repairs are complete.

A Highway Department crew from Boise is on its way to the bridge site and renovation will be started immediately under the direction of Special Maintenance Foreman Kenneth Ward of Boise. Equipment for handling the steel, necessary for repair is being brought to the site from Coeur d'Alene and Lewiston.

The Ahsahka Bridge crossing the North Fork of the Clearwater River, is in the middle of the Dworshak Dam construction area. It is also used heavily by loggers, lumbermen and cattlemen and receives a large amount of traffic on weekends from vacationers traveling to beaches and fishing spots along the river. The restriction will be in effect until further notice.

Black Bear Hunting

Black bear hunting season now is underway in 25 game management units of the Panhandle and Clearwater regions in northern Idaho and in five additional units south of the Salmon River. Except for two game preserves, all other areas of the state are open for the taking of black bear the entire year.

There will be hunting seasons, starting October 5, on two game preserves, Soldier Mountain (Units 43 and 44) and Payette River, South Fork (Unit 35).

Forty-four Given Job Finding Help In County

Forty-four Laath County residents were given job finding assistance thru the Moscow office of the Idaho Department of Employment during the past week, according to Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow office manager. Hartstein said that half of them were fire fighters, but that the others found work in various establishments around the area. During the previous week 17 workers were placed on jobs through the office, he said. During the same week a year ago 20 workers were successfully referred to local jobs. Thirty-five new jobs were listed with the office during the week, and 56 jobs remained unfilled at the end of the week. Cooks and waitresses are currently in short supply, Hartstein reported, as cafe operators are preparing for an expected increase in business with opening of schools in the area. Also needed are service station attendants, a grocery clerk, farm workers, a jailer and lumber yard workers. Salesmen are also needed, as well as day workers, baby sitters, and housekeepers. Hartstein reported that the total number of persons receiving unemployment insurance changed very little from the previous week. Currently there are 132 persons seeking benefits compared with 136 during the previous week. A year ago there were only 43. Nearly all areas of the county show significant increases over last year's figures, he said. During the week, 8 persons filed new claims for benefits compared with 11 during the previous week and 10 during the same week a year ago.
