

SNOW TRENDS A MUST FOR FOLKS GOING SKIING

BOISE—Skiers planning trips to the ski slopes are advised by the Idaho State Police to be certain their vehicles and equipment are in top condition.

Tires with deep tread or snow tires are a must, the ISP said, and in some cases tire chains should be available if needed. Make sure your brakes are working properly and have a sufficient amount of gas.

"Drive with caution on snow-covered or slippery roads," says the ISP, "to insure a safe trip going and returning."

The State Police also noted skis should not be carried anyway but front to back on vehicle tops and at no time should extend over sides of vehicles beyond legal limits.

The Idaho Motor Vehicle Code states, "No passenger vehicle shall

VEHICLE INSPECTIONS

BOISE—The Department of Law Enforcement reminds motorists a new year has begun and those who had vehicles inspected last January are due for another inspection before this month ends.

The department suggests those needing inspection in January make arrangements now to obtain their No. 1 validation stickers.

The law provides that vehicles must be inspected at least once every 12 months following the previous inspection.

One way to succeed without trying. Wait for tomorrow.

carry any load extending beyond the line of fenders on the left side of such vehicle nor any extending more than six inches beyond the line of the fender on the right side thereof."

Mrs. F. P. Bencoter

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Davis, Pullman, were Friday over night and Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rick Beebe.

Warney May, George Havens and Frank Bencoter were Lewiston visitors on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Andrews were Saturday visitors in the Dave Crocker home in Lewiston. Shelley and Sheila Andrews were also callers to visit with their grandparents.

Sunday dinner guests of the Ernie Andrews included Mr. and Mrs. Lester Crocker and Eula Miller, Kendrick, and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Crocker and Londa and Steve of Lewiston.

Don Bencoter, Lewiston, was a caller in the Frank Bencoter home Monday after attending the Ira Havens funeral service in Moscow. Others attending from here included: Lawrence Helmgartner, Mrs. Andy Cox and Tom; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bencoter, Mr. and Mrs. Walt Bencoter, Mr. and Mrs. Warney May, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Walt Bencoter were part of a dinner party in the Rollin Armitage home, Southwick, Sunday to honor Mrs. Arlie Armitage for her birthday which falls on Jan. 12.

Mrs. Walt Bencoter accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Nora Callison to Moscow Saturday to visit John Thomas who is a patient at Gritman Hosp.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Helmgartner and Ray attended a family dinner in the Bill Harri home in Clarkston Sunday in observance of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Surbaugh of Othello, Wn. Mrs. Surbaugh (nee Betty Helmgartner) is the youngest of the nine children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Helmgartner. It was a happy occasion since all of the brothers and sisters were present to enjoy each others company and reminisce about their younger days. Later in the day the Lawrence Helmgartners had supper with the David Johnsons in Lewiston.

Mrs. Flo Holt was a Sunday dinner guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edd Kent.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Cox and Tom entertained Mr. and Mrs. Rick Beebe and daughters at dinner on Sunday.

George Havens was a Sunday dinner guest in the Warney May home. Charles Taylor, Juliaetta, was an afternoon visitor.

Mrs. Ernie Andrews visited with Mrs. Warney May Monday evening while Ernie and Warney attended a meeting in Moscow.

Mr. and Mrs. Rick Beebe and Terri and Tanya visited with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taylor in Moscow on Thursday evening, Saturday evening they called on Dr. Dan Guy in Lewiston.

DRIVERS LICENSES REVOKED

BOISE—Eight hundred and 83 persons lost their driving privileges in December when the Drivers Services Section of the Department of Law Enforcement ordered suspension of 872 licenses, revoked three and denied issuance of eight.

The suspensions, according to the drivers services section, included 387 for motor vehicle code violations and 505 for failure to comply with the Safety Responsibility Act.

Code suspensions included 332 Idahoans and 35 out-of-state drivers. Responsibility act suspensions included 429 Idahoans and 78 from out of state.

Safety responsibility suspensions included 230 for failure to show proof following an accident; 199 for failure to maintain proof, and 76 for failure to file a written report of an accident.

Also, in December, the section said, 440 motorists who had been suspended under the act were reinstated when they complied with requirements of the act.

Drunken driving convictions, the section said, accounted for 51 per cent of the suspensions ordered under code violations, including 176 Idahoans and 28 from other states.

Other suspensions were ordered for reckless driving, 44; violation of license restrictions, 41; accumulation of traffic violation conviction points, 27; failure to take blood-alcohol tests, 14; drag racing, 14; habitual violators, 10; failure to appear for driver improvement hearings, 8;

SOME HUNTING REMAINS

Some hunting still remains for sportsmen hardy enough to get out. For example, the season on cottontail and pygmy rabbits runs through February 25 with bag and possession limit of eight in the aggregate. Goose season closed statewide January 10 (except for counties in eastern Idaho which closed earlier). The season for ducks and coots also ended in all parts of the state (except the Columbia Basin Mallard Area) January 10. The merganser season also closed statewide Jan. 10.

Idaho counties located in the Columbia Basin Mallard Area will not close for ducks and coots until January 24. A new 1971 hunting license is needed, but the federal duck stamp issued for the 1970-71 waterfowl season remains valid. Until youngsters reach the age of 16, they are not required to have a duck stamp. New licenses also are needed for angling, or a combination fishing-hunting license will serve for both these sports.

All upland game bird hunting in the state is over except for chukar and Hungarian partridge and quail in parts of the lower Snake and Salmon river drainages (see regulations). Hunting for these species also will be open through Jan. 24.

TREATMENT OF CANCER

Methods of treatment of cancer are improving steadily, and many cancers are curable if detected early, notes the Idaho Medical Assoc.

Regular, thorough physical examinations can help detect cancer's presence early, which is vitally helpful in treatment.

It is helpful to know the seven danger signals of cancer: unusual bleeding or discharge, a lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere, a sore that does not heal, change in bowel or bladder habits, persistent hoarseness or cough, persistent indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, and any change in a wart or mole.

If any of the danger signs appear, see a physician at once.

Surgery, radiation and anti-cancer drugs are the primary cancer treatments.

Beware of cancer quacks who offer quick cures or miracle cures. Such

No one contributed any recipes for this week's column, so I looked through my files and found some that had been sent in several years ago, and never been published.

When planning a dinner, the first thing we think of is what to have for our main dish—when we know that, then it's easier to plan the rest of your meal.

With meat prices as they are, expensive cuts of beef are out of the question for most of us. So, what do we fall back on? Ground beef, what else! And just what would we do without it, for it can be prepared in so many different ways.

Prepare a dish of Family Goulash some evening soon. Serve it with a green or molded salad, hot rolls, and a hot apple cake and you'll have a meal that will bring compliments from your family.

And speaking of good eats—keep a date open in February for the Firemen's annual Crab Feed.

FAMILY GOULASH

1 pound ground beef
 1/2 cup chopped onion
 2 cups chopped celery
 1 can tomato sauce
 2 1/2 ounce can mushrooms
 1 medium sized can tomatoes
 4 ounces noodles (fine)
 salt and pepper to taste.

Brown ground beef and onion in skillet until meat is brown, then drain off fat. Stir in cooked and drained noodles, celery, tomato sauce, mushrooms, (with liquid), tomatoes, salt and pepper. Cover, simmer 30 to 40 minutes.

If you ever had any left-over roast or other meat, and want to "stretch" it a little, prepare some quick and easy Skillet Hash.

SKILLET HASH

2 cups ground, cooked beef
 2 cups ground potatoes (raw)
 3/4 cup chopped onion
 2 or 3 tablespoons drippings
 1 cup water

Put drippings in large skillet over medium heat. Spread meat mixture, which has been thoroughly mixed, in skillet and brown for 15 or 20 minutes, turning frequently with wide spatula. Add water, reduce heat, cover, and cook about 10 minutes or until crisp on bottom.

Take it slow in ice or snow, reminds the Idaho State Police. Snow tires or tire chains should be utilized when conditions warrant.

FAST FLYING, RUNNING CHUKARS TOUGH TO HIT

By Jim Humbird
 Idaho Fish-Game Department

Most hunters agree that speed on the ground and in the air makes chukar partridges tough targets to hit. These exotic upland game birds have two basic characteristics. They almost always run uphill, and when they fly, they almost invariably fly downhill. It is said that no hunters can run fast enough to catch up with chukars, and that pellets from an ordinary shotgun do not travel fast enough to catch up with them going downhill.

Most people agree that much of south central and southwestern Idaho provide suitable habitat for chukars and that the species is here to stay. The subspecies brought to the United States beginning in the 1930's comes from India from birds originally living in the Himalayas. Strains of this fine upland game bird also are native to southern Europe, southern Asia, and northeastern Africa.

Chukar habitat must have a depth of range, or the combination of width and elevation change where steep talus slopes rise from streams, giving way to less steep but rocky terrain. There must be a grass-type food supply, water supply available to all seasons of the year, and relatively moderate winter conditions. Brushy cover must be dense in the bottoms and thin on the dry slopes, yet fairly abundant over the rocky hillsides.

Authorities say that the success of chukar transplants in Idaho and other western states is believed to have been aided appreciably by cheat-grass in much of the range. This annual grass normally is considered a pest species. It seeds at a great rate and competes too successfully with other more desirable grazing plants.

Range experts say that cheat is a cool weather grass. It thrives at low temperatures which make other grasses shrivel and turn brown. Its seeds germinate in the very early spring while other plants still are enjoying winter sleep. It often sprouts in the fall. Green basal shoots are available well into the winter. Chukars, which utilize all parts of the plant, find it a handy food supply during that part of the year when other foods are less desirable.

The first recorded introduction of these slate-colored birds with red beaks black flank bars, and reddish-gray tails occurred in 1933 when a sportsman named Blaisdell brought five pairs from Karachi, India, to Illinois; but American hunters did not show much interest in this upland species for another forty years or so. When the trend started, a half-dozen western states found climatic conditions and terrain that were similar in some respects, at least, to the native habitat of chukars. Many other states tried planting them without success because they could not live in fields of wheat stubble and corn. The simple, yet hard to understand fact had to be learned that these exotic Asians grow fat and prosper on dry, rocky hillsides that wouldn't support a small family of horned toads.

Idaho made similar mistakes. Many of the early transplants were released in areas which were later classified as entirely unsuitable for chukars. This is common to most beginning attempts to establish a non-native species. Unless liberations are made in suitable habitat complete loss is inevitable.

Department records show what prior to 1950, fewer than 3,000 chukars had been released in Idaho. At one of these releases at Squaw Butte in Gem county, immediate signs could be found pointing the way to huntable populations in the near future. By 1953, most suitable locations in southcentral Idaho had been planted with chukars, and similar habitat was being surveyed in the upper Salmon River drainage for possible release sites.

Investigation found that climate, topography and vegetative cover were similar to Snake River locations where chukars already were established. Brushy cover was adequate and, even though cheatgrass was limited perennial grasses and weedy seed-bearing annual were available. First releases were made in 1953 at four sites—Ellis Creek, Block Creek, Bradbury Flats and Road Creek. Emigration from these plants and continued spread of the birds produced in successive years were most important in establishing the Salmon River population.

Idaho has one of the longest chukar hunting seasons in the United States. In addition to the extended season through January 24, 1971, in the lower Snake and Salmon river drainages, the season was opened this year on August 1 in the lower part of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River canyon. Boaters floating the Middle Fork reported excellent hunting and the early extension of the season which began in 1968, was considered a complete success this year.

Hunter success data in terms of birds per shooter this year over 1968 are not available at this time. On the basis of the hunter questionnaire, however, the harvest in 1969 did not quite equal the 1968 high, but did exceed the previous five-year average of 13 per cent. The record shows that 171,200 chukar kills were reported by hunters for the season which was minus 3 percent of the 177,000 killed in 1968. Other data show that the 1964-68 average harvest was 151,000; 1959-63 average harvest 69,600; and 1945-58 average harvest 18,000. Chukars were more spread out this year than previously because of heavy rains last spring and summer, resulting in good vegetative cover.

One of the handiest things about chukar hunting is that its habitat is in the foothills away from conflict with farming. Many of these areas are public lands, but in any event the hazards of hunting to farm crops or livestock are at a very minimum.

Regardless of its ups and downs, the chukar now is a naturalized citizen of

Little Change in Unemployment

Little change was noted in a number of idled workers seeking unemployment insurance payments during the past week throughout Latah County, Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow office manager for the Idaho Department of Employment said today that there are currently 305 persons seeking jobless pay compared with 315 during the previous week. A year ago there were only 177 benefit claimants in the County. The decrease in the number of claimants occurred as a few more workers returned to work in the area's forests, and was most noticeable in the Troy-Deary-Bovill area and the Potlatch area.

Job opportunities continued to decline to the point where very few new jobs are being listed. Only two workers were placed on jobs during the past week. Ten were helped during the previous week, and seven workers were sent to jobs during the last week in 1969.

Idaho in good standing and is here to stay in habitat that is suitable. They thrive in some of the state's most inhospitable environment, where other upland bird species do not nearly as well. Their water supply can be anything from a creek to a wet spot where a spring manages to moisten the surface. Chukars now inhabit a considerable area that formerly was barren of game birds. This species is providing excellent hunting where none existed before and thus far there has been no evidence that it interferes in any way with any native species of Idaho wildlife.

Road conditions can turn slippery without one being aware of it and vary from place to place, warns the Idaho State Police. Make it a point to test braking gently from time to time and check turning conditions as you drive.

How much a bushel?

You spend a lot of time and money to work the soil, plant and fertilize the wheat, and maintain your equipment. You get a good year with near perfect weather for good growth. In fact, everything is right.

Except your herbicide.

So you end up paying through the weeds for smaller yields. Poorer grades. Less profits. When you could be bringing in a higher grade. Because you're using a more effective, more selective, more profitable herbicide.

Like Bronate.

Bronate is more effective because it kills a broader range of broadleaf weeds. Including the six specific weeds that are the biggest problem for wheat farmers here in the Northwest. Which means you kill Tarweed and Gromwell and Henbit and Dogfennel and Crowfoot. What's more, you don't leave Purple Mustard or any of the mustard family around to rob your wheat of moisture and nutrients like one leading herbicide does.

Bronate is more selective because it doesn't get rid of the wheat while it's getting rid of the weeds. It won't damage the crops or carry over in the soil like another leading herbicide.

Which is what makes Bronate more profitable. Because it brings you a higher yield. A better grade. And more money. It's as simple as that.

All you do is apply Bronate post-emergence. The earlier the better after your crop has reached the 3-leaf stage. Then sit back and watch the wheat grow. Nice and healthy. Weed free.

What it adds up to is this: You only pay $3.45 an acre for Bronate. To get rid of all the broadleaf weeds. To be kind to all the wheat. To bring in a better grade. And to get up to 12 to 20 bushels more per acre. Which is a pretty good investment for the right herbicide.

Don't you think so?

By Mrs. Jody Smith

Jelleberg Injured — Charles Jelleberg was hospitalized with a broken right knee-Sunday, after a fall on the ice at the Jerry Smith home. He had surgery to "wire" the knee-Sunday morning. The accident was caused by a 2 to 3-inch ice pack and border-line freezing temperatures.

Road Glare of Ice — The road from Park to Helmer was a glare of ice Sunday, putting at least three vehicles in the ditch.

Visitors — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stratton entertained their grandson, Gerald Rasch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rasch, Moscow, over the week-end.

Visiting the Smith family, January 3, was Leonard Chin and his brother-in-law, Dennis Lou of Moscow. They visited to introduce Chin's friend, Larry Fong, from Jamaica, a senior student in Architectural Art at California College of Arts and Crafts. It was Fong's first visit to an American family farm. While spending two weeks at the Chin home he was also treated to his first skiing, snow-mobiling, and other winter sports.

The Smith family spent Saturday in Lewiston on business, with a brief visit with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith and son, George. Don Jain, Bovill, visited with the Smiths on Monday.
