SKATING PARTY BIG SUCCESS

What happened Sunday night, in Lewiston, is what should happen a lot more around these parts.

Sunday night 94 young and old drove to Lewiston for a skating party! For two and a half hours fun was the name of the game. Even though many people took spills on their skates (I went down three times) this just added to the fun of the party. During the party there were several periods of skating designated for couples — guys and gals only — plus some special races for various age groups. With the refreshments that the people brought with them, this too, added to the fun of the party!

Thanks go to all of those who drove and helped out with the party. The old and young today can have fun together — that's a fact!

We will try to have something like this real soon again! Can everybody ice skate? — John Hunsberger, student minister, Kendrick United Methodist Church.

INTEREST IN BULL SELLS FOR $1950

GENESEE — The top bull at the all-breeds bull sale held at Spencers Livestock Commission, Feb. 8, was a Charolais, consigned by Martin Stout—S-2 Charolais Ranch, and Key Dollar Co., Uniontown, Washington.

One-half interest and possession sold to Wayne Wolfe, Wallawa, Oregon for $1950. The second top bull, also a Charolais, consigned by the same parties, sold for $1200 to Lloyd Vaughn, Baker, Oregon. Stout sold 6 Charolais bulls for an average of $923 per head.

GENESEE CONTINUES UNBEATEN SKEIN TOPS OROFINO, KHS

Genesee's Bulldogs kept their undefeated record intact over the weekend as they added their 14th and 15th victories 16th and 17th if you count the holiday tourney at Colfax), by defeating the Orofino Maniacs 79-69 at Orofino Friday night, and then dropping the Kendrick Tigers 87-52 Saturday evening on the KHS court.

Genesee had trouble downing the Orofino team two weeks ago at Genesee, having to come from behind in the second half to save the win and were anticipating trouble in this non-league encounter. The Bulldogs moved out to a small one-point lead at the end of the first and second quarters of play, but as Coach Ozzie Kanikkeberg explained it later, "we just couldn't seem to get any breathing room against the Maniacs. Paced by the sharpshooting of guard Ron Hopkins, who was on his way to a 33-point personal effort, the Bulldogs had opened up a 56-51 advantage at the end of the third quarter and in the fourth led by as much as 11 points before Orofino cut into the lead and the Bulldogs settled for a 73-69 win.

Hopkins' 33 points led all scorers with Mike Egland dropping in 19 and Bruce Scharnhorst 13. Chad Easterbrook and Steve Thornton each had 14 for Orofino.

Genesee's B team kept their winning streak going, too, as they tripped up the Orofino JV's 51-48 in an overtime.

Genesee Over Kendrick
The smaller Kendrick Tigers had no answer for Genesee's height or suffocating zone defense as the Bulldogs shook off a first quarter foul-ing spree and went on to post an 87-52 win at Kendrick Saturday night.

Bruce Scharnhorst hit a jump shot from the side seconds after the game started to give the Bulldogs a 2-0 lead. Tiger Don Parks tied the game at 2-all on two free throws and then Dale Taylor put the Tigers ahead for their first and only time with two more free throws. Mike Egland knotted it at 4-4 on a beautiful hook shot and Genesee moved out and was never threatened. Genesee led 15-12 at the end of the first quarter with all of Kendrick's scoring coming from the foul line, as they couldn't penetrate the key against the taller Bulldogs. Kendrick managed only three field goals in the first half as the GHS team opened up a 40-21 halftime lead.

Coach Kanikkeberg used his reserves in the second half with Alan Odenborg leading the pack as he scored 16 points to claim scoring honors for the GHS team. Don Parks topped all scorers with 28 points for the Tigers.

Genesee's B team rared to a 70-34 win in the first game.

RACE RELATIONS
SUNDAY
We as whites involved with the world here in Kendrick are all invited to join in the participation with the worship Sunday at the United Methodist Church.

Race Relations is the topic of the sermon discussion that all are invited to participate in!

We as whites today certainly realize that the Indians, blacks, Mexicans and Orientals have not received the freedom (in education, jobs, etc.) we whites have enjoyed, so on this Sunday we are called on to "put our money" where our mouths are that say all men are created equal and entitled to the very same we have a chance at.

Yes, my friends, the economic picture for us all isn't too good, but we must help out with this offering to the Houston-Tillotson Black College in Austin, Texas. We as whites in Kendrick, Idaho, who take the name Christian, have black Christian brothers at this college who are crying out for help to keep their college open; and for the sake of our nation and church we must respond generously to their cry for help.

Just because the racist churches around the college with its bigoted Christians won't respond to this college's cry for help is no reason why we Christians in Kendrick shouldn't respond!

We all want our fellow Christian Black colleges and want them to be able to offer education for the whites and blacks of this nation, so this is why we are going to be different and respond to this need.

Professor Kenneth Johnson, from the University of Idaho will speak on race relations at the United Methodist Church Sunday, February 14, at 2:30 p. m. All are invited to attend this special addition to our observance of Race Relations Sunday.

See you Sunday for an interesting Sunday together. — John Hunsberger, Student Minister, Kendrick United Methodist Church.

Most other firms and business houses will remain open as usual, including the grocery stores.

Happy Holidays, everyone!!

SNOW, COLD, RETURN TO AREA

Changeable was still the only word to describe the area's weather this past week, although the temperatures dropped considerably from the unseasonable warm weather of two weeks ago.

Snow fell last Wednesday and early Thursday morning, leaving depths of from three to six inches on the ground by daylight, Thursday. Much of the snow disappeared Thursday in the Kendrick and Juliaetta areas, but remained in Southwick and surrounding communities.

Later in the week a cold front moved in and dropped the mercury down to the middle and high twenties, where they have remained until this writing. Snow began falling by mid-afternoon Tuesday, making one wonder if the groundhog really saw his shadow last February 2nd.

DO-NUT LEAGUE PLAY CONCLUDES

I would like to express my appreciation to all the parents that helped transport the boys back and forth to the games this season. My thanks also to Kelly Clemenhagen, Fat Souders, Mike Sillow, Kenny Brown and all the other Jr. High and High school boys and girls who donated their time by running the clock, keeping score, and helping to officiate the games. A very special thanks to Max Clemenhagen, Bud Laws, Alvin Howerton, Bud Eichner, Kenny Brown, Sr., Leonard Gustafson, Dale Powers, Wally Wolff, David Jones, Charles Parks, Bob Heppner and Whitley Simpson, who put in many hours working with the boys and did a tremendous job.

I am certain that all the people who came out to see the tournament games last Saturday enjoyed watching the boys give a 100 percent effort at all times. The only drawback was that the tournament ran too long, and next year will be played on two Saturdays — instead of one.

Tournament Highlights
The Orange Orangutangs put it all together for the tournament as they played with great spirit and determination. The Orangutangs nipped the Purple Panthers 7-6 in the second game of the morning, and on the scoring of Scott and Jeff Lohman, who tallied 5 and 2 points respectively for their team's total of 7 points. They then went on to defeat the White Knights 17 to 4, and the Golden Globetrotters twice by scores of 7-6 and 12-6 to garner the tournament championship.

Up until tournament time the Golden Globetrotters had not lost a game in two regular seasons of play and one tournament, so the Orangutangs certainly deserve congratulations.

The White Knights who finished up second in the league were at a tremendous disadvantage, since they had to play without one of their leading scorers and tallest man, Leonard Gibbons.

One of the most interesting points of the tournament was the fact that seven out of the 13 games played were decided by from 1 to 3 points.

The final standings in the tournament were as follows: Champions — Orange Orangutangs; Runners-up — Golden Globetrotters; 3rd, Blue Jays; 4th, Green Gobblins; 5th, Purple Panthers; 6th, White Knights; 7th, Red Devils.

A birthday party and annual "oyster stew" was held Sunday, Feb. 7th at the Charles D. Fey home, by his children in honor of Charlie's 78th birthday anniversary. His birthday is February 9th, but Sunday was chosen for the party as more of his children could attend on this date.

Those attending were Mrs. Leo Nicholls and sister-in-law of Tacoma, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fraser and daughters Elaine and Kathy and granddaughter Shannon, Mrs. Harold Bartlett and Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Johnson and children, all of Lewiston. From the Kendrick area were Mr. and Mrs. Bud Fey, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Fey, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Heimgartner and Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Harris and sons and Debbie Dammarell; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fey, Jim, Cindy and Helen of Leland; Mr. and Mrs. Dan Fey of Juliaetta; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Rose-nau and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bogar and sons of Deary.

Gordon Peters and granddaughters Tammy and Debbie Hutton also attended. The girls brought their accorilans and played "Happy Birthday" for Mr. Fey. They also played several other numbers which were enjoyed by everyone.

Eight of Mr. Fey's ten children were present for this very special occasion. Everyone had a good time, visiting, eating and enjoying our own musical groups and "just celebrating" a very important birthday anniversary.

I would like to thank the readers and friends of THE GAZETTE-NEWS for their cards and letters, phone calls, and coming to see me in person. For all of this I am both grateful and humble, and know now what rapture the OLD APPLE TREE must feel when the wedge of wild geese plows its way from the SOUTHLAND and THE GREAT ARTIST SPILLS His paint buckets over hill and dale.

Thank you and God bless you.
Sincerely, Bert Gamble.

LEW MESSERSMITH HAS PACKED HIS 81 YEARS FULL OF VARIED EXPERIENCES

By Walt Moden

GENESEE—Some 81 years ago on February 15th, in York County, Pennsylvania, there was born to a Pennsylvania Dutch family, a son, Lewis M. Messersmith. This son is now living with his wife in retirement in Genesee, Idaho.

The 81 years of Mr. Messersmith's life has been a variety of events that brought him from Pennsylvania to Genesee. When Lew, as everyone in Genesee knows him, was eight years old his father died, necessitating him to live with neighbors doing odd jobs for board and room. His mother then remarried when Lew was thirteen. Lew's stepfather was a blacksmith and from him, Lew received his blacksmithing apprenticeship, that would determine his life's vocation. At the age of sixteen, the lure of the West overcame him so he left home to join his two brothers, returning home to Pennsylvania only once for a short visit.

On his first trip West, he found himself as a naive 16-year-old "country boy" with very little money and a train ticket, lost and confused in the train depot at Denver, Colorado. But good fortune prevailed, and he finally made the proper train connections, arriving in the State of Washington to work with one brother, who was an erecting engineer. But his independence was beginning to show so he applied for a Steam Operators license at the age of 16, and operated steam engines at cold storage plants in Spokane and Lewiston. This job soon became too routine and the wanderlust took hold once again, so an application was made for a homestead in Oregon. In order to obtain "bean" money while improving his homestead, he took a job on a sheep ranch. The smell of mutton, however, was not to his taste, so Lew quit this job and went to Lapwai, Idaho visiting another brother.

While in Lapwai, his early childhood training in blacksmithing became his greatest asset. Lew went to work for the local blacksmith, Mr. Lucas. Upon Mr. Lucas' death, Lew purchased the shop, which he operated for 27 years. In the meantime, he met and married Miss Hazel Bramlett on November 2, 1913, and raised their three sons, John, an instructor at Ventura Jr. College, Ventura, California; Dick, with Lockheed Aircraft, in Sunnyvale, Calif., and Harold with Standard Oil Co., at Coeur d'Alene.

Life looked pretty bleak when Lew and Hazel returned from Lewiston one day to find their shop in smoldering ruins. However, the persistence of his Dutch Ancestry, the faith of his wife, and the generosity of friends and neighbors paid off and the shop was soon rebuilt.

When World War II began, he and his family left Lapwai to assist in the war effort, by teaching blacksmithing in the National Defense Program for the State of Idaho at Moscow. When the National Program closed, he and his wife moved to the Mt. Rainier Ordnance Depot, where Lew taught blacksmithing and Hazel was assembly foreman on an engine assembly line. When the war was over, the Messersmiths joined their sons in California, only to find that Idaho was too deeply entrenched in Lew's blood, and after nine months they moved back to Moscow. Here Lew became shop instructor in the Vocational Agricultural Program of the Agricultural Engineering Department at the University of Idaho.

In 1959 at the age of 70, Lew retired from the University, devoting his full time to renovating a house they had purchased a year earlier in Genesee. However, not being one to be idle, he plunged headlong into many hobbies that have kept him busier than before. His first project involved wood turning. As a result every business in Genesee received a sample of his work. One particular interesting collection was the turning of wooden eggs and egg cups of every species of wood he could obtain. Receiving wood from friends and former students enabled him to acquire 56 different species.

After a few years, the sanding dust began to bother Lew and he was forced to quit his wood turning. He then turned to making and lettering wooden plaques. These plaques soon began to appear in Genesee business houses. The lettering of "A Horse's Prayer" brought to him by Loise Esser is his most popular plaque.

Being one of the few individuals left who could repair buggy wheels, he has repaired them for many people in this area. The latest project that Lew is undertaking is the making of three-legged stools out of harness parts and old "bottom buster" seats. Although never one to use horses extensively, his respect for them was shown in his concern when shoeing them. He felt a horse was no better than the shoes it wore. Consequently each shoe was shaped and fitted precisely to each horse's foot.

Board Accepts Bid of Helbling Bros.

GENESEE—At the Feb. 8th meeting of the trustees of Genesee School District No. 282, the board accepted the bid of Helbling Bros., of Moscow for a 1971 school bus. Three firms bid for the bus.

They were: Helbling Bros.: $6,995.00; Zimmer Motors: $8,948.00; and Delta Ford: $7,309.70.

Zimmer Motor's bid was rejected because of not meeting specifications. The bid included a trade-in of a 1960 Ford 42 passenger.

The school insurance program was discussed, and it was agreed by the board to have an appraisal firm present at the next board meeting to give the board the information on cost and appraisal. The educational bill now in the legislature were presented to the board and were discussed. After receiving word from the State Department of Education that we have to make up the day of school that was missed for the funeral of Mrs. Kanikkeberg, it was decided by the board that the make up date would be scheduled for the 8th of April which was originally planned as part of the spring vacation. Instead of having three days vacation we will have Good Friday and the Monday following Easter off.

Heart attack and stroke are America's biggest killers. Labor's contributions to the 1971 Heart Fund Drive will help to combat these

Probably his greatest regret of today was not having been able to inspire more of his students to work at the art of horse shoeing or a wheel wrill. As ever though we are now in an age of machines and electronics, "the horse age is still with us," to quote one of his favorite sayings, but there are very few people left who can properly shoe a horse or reset a buggy tire.

IT PAYS TO BE DROP OUT FROM CIGARETTE HABIT

Can 20 million Americans be wrong? That's how many now have given up cigarette smoking, convinced that it is a threat to the health of their heart and other organs. More encouragement in the anti-cigarette campaign is the news that individual consumption of cigarettes has been cut to the 1958 figures. However, while their parents seem to be dropping out of the habit, there is evidence of an upturn in the past two years in the number of young people starting to smoke. And if this trend is not checked, warns

Idaho Heart Association, it could damage a whole generation of Americans now growing up. Because the earlier one starts and the heavier one smokes, the greater the risk of premature heart attack in adult years. It is estimated that each year 80,000 males in the 40 to 64 age bracket die prematurely of heart disease linked to smoking. Recent reports to Congress by the Public Health Service have solidified the case against cigarettes as a threat to heart disease, cancer, emphysema and other chronic respiratory ills. Ill effects from smoking may not show up quickly in young people, says Idaho Heart Association. But one study has demonstrated that the body machinery that fights off bacteria and infections can temporarily be put out of action by even brief exposure to cigarette smoke. Other research showed that adults who started at the earliest ages have the highest death rate, as well as the most cases of diseases relating to blood circulation and breathing. The death rate was highest among those who started before 15. Maybe trouble won't turn up early. But even at the start, tars begin to coat the lungs, and nicotine makes the heart beat faster. There are over 500 other chemicals produced in cigarette smoke. Scientists don't even know yet what ill effects many of them may have. By making the heart beat faster, the nicotine actually makes the heart overwork—as much as 25 extra beats a minute—using up strength that should be reserved for a long, healthy life ahead. The Idaho Heart Association points out that breaking the smoking habit alone does not remove the risk of heart attack. Some other tips:

1. Eat a well-balanced diet low in animal fat.
2. Maintain normal weight.
3. Have your blood pressure checked regularly.
4. Adopt an exercise schedule. Ask your doctor to tell you what exercises are best for you.

Ask the Idaho Heart Association for the "Cigarette Quiz" leaflet and the "How to Stop Smoking" pamphlet.

NEW U OF I STADIUM
CONSTRUCTION WORK BEGINS

MOSCOW—Ground breaking for the University of Idaho's new 18,000-seat football stadium got underway Feb. 3 when construction of the drainage system was begun by Jay W. Tribitt Co., a Lewiston construction firm. Tribitt won the bid for the drainage system over 10 other bidders at a bid opening in early January with a bid of $30,461.83, nearly $7,500 lower than the architect's estimate for the construction of such a system. The architect, Cline E. Cline of Cline Smull, Hamill, Shaw and Associates of Boise, had predicted that the system would cost about $37,500. "This is the beginning of the much needed, long delayed athletic complex," noted Frank P. McCreary, director of university relations. "We are finally off the drawing boards and into the ground." The bids were submitted to the Board of Regents at their Jan. 28 meeting and, as expected, they gave approval to the project. The regents had approved the concept of the athletic complex in November and authorized the university to begin to draw specifications to start draining the area. With construction of the drainage system, run-off will be channeled from the stadium area and enable seating and roof support beams to be installed. Total seating capacity of the stadium will be 18,000 with 9,000 seats on each side of the field. Additional seats may be constructed on the ends if expansion becomes necessary in the future. The new seating will be placed farther to the west than the present Neale Stadium to utilize the existing terrain. In addition to seating, according to McCreary, restrooms, a press box and concession stands will be constructed prior to the opening game Sept. 11 against Boise State College. Bids are expected to be received soon on the steel support beams and seating, according to McCreary. Since the Regents approved the idea of incremental bidding at the Nov. 14, 1970 meeting, bids for the roof are also expected by the end of February. "In order to have it ready for football this fall, we have to do it this way," McCreary concluded. Artificial turf and a cover are expected to be installed sometime during the 1971-72 school year and the facility should be completed for commencement in 1972. The final completion of the complex, including the addition of the 10,000 seat coliseum containing a basketball pavilion, is beyond the four-year planning program now in operation at the university.

TUNA SAFE TO EAT SAYS NUTRITIONIST

Keep enjoying tuna. It is completely safe to eat, assures Esther Wilson, extension nutrition specialist at the University of Idaho. You may have turned on your panic button during the mercury scare, but you need not worry. All the tuna that was above the Federal Drug Administration's guideline for mercury content has been removed from grocery store shelves. The FDA has set one half part per million as the cut-off point for mercury content in tuna. This guideline offers a substantial margin of safety because it is based on all the available information of toxic effects of methyl mercury on humans and laboratory animals. The guideline is also based on the only known cases of health damage due to mercury poisoning from fish. These cases were in Japan, where the average person eats nearly half pound of fish per day (as compared to an average of slightly over one ounce per day in the United States.) The fish in the Japanese cases contained from 15 to 40 ppm of mercury. "But the FDA's guideline protects us," Mrs. Wilson emphasized. "This is assured by constant checks on mercury content conducted by the FDA and the tuna industry." So if you like tuna, keep eating it. The FDA's guidelines for safety allows you to eat all you want.

HELPFUL HINTS ON TREE CARE

MOSCOW — If snow breaks a tree limb, surgery may be the best remedy. And promptly, too, the county extension agent suggests. Removing the limb will get rid of unsightly debris while preventing possible further damage to shrubbery. It is also usually easier on the tree to prune it in a dormant condition. When talking off large limbs damaged by weather, avoid skinning bark from the trunk as much as possible. Three cuts are recommended. Make the first on the underside of the limb about 12 inches from the trunk. When the saw begins to bind, take it out and make another cut from the top about two inches beyond the first. The limb will fall without ripping bark from the trunk. Then make a third cut near the trunk to remove the stub. Treat the cut with tree-wound paint to seal out insects and disease. Water-based asphalt dressing gives long protection. Orange shellac is okay for temporary healing. If there are decayed cavities, clean them out and provide drainage so water will not collect. Coat the cavity with a fungicide to halt further decay. Paint the entire wound every six months with an asphaltic dressing. Weak connections where heavy

Rep. Brocke Reports From Boise

This week the legislature dealt with many problems in many different areas. The Agriculture Affairs Committee held hearings in regards to potato legislation. The committee also held hearings in regards to farm labor legislation. The farm labor legislation offered will be given most serious consideration before it is placed before the legislature for final action. The Highway Committee has a proposal to abolish all Highway Districts in the state and turn the operation of all district roads over to the County Commissioners. The Resource and Conservation Committee held hearings this week in the field of Fish and Game. So far the only ones appearing are the Fish and Game Department. Later public hearings will be held in regards to legislation offered. The Education Committee is working on teacher negotiation legislation. Hearings to be held Monday in regards to the bills that have been offered. Other legislation in the Education Committee consist of a bill to raise the owner license fees to $7.00 in order to finance the driver's training program. It seems that the funds now available are not ample to cover the cost of this program. Another bill would take 5 per cent of the federal forest funds to provide Environmental Education for school children during the summer months. So far, no appropriations have been set by the Finance and Appropriation Committee. Neither has the Revenue and Taxation Committee offered the major tax measures to finance the suggested spending. A bill of interest to our area, is one that would put the R E A under the Public Utilities Commission. No doubt hearings will be held in regards to this. GEORGE F. BROCKE, SR.

SS ADVICE

Instructions issued with the Federal income tax forms package for 1970 may contain a trap for some self-employed people, according to D. Gene Shaw, District Manager for social security. The instructions on the first page indicate people with limited incomes do not need to file an income tax return. Anyone with a net income of $400 or more from self employment must file an income tax return. The self-employment tax paid in these cases is actually for social security coverage and is not income tax, Shaw said. The Internal Revenue Service will be glad to answer questions concerning self-employment taxes. They can be contacted by mail (P. O. Box 765, Lewiston, Idaho 83501) or telephone to answer questions or furnish any necessary forms. The Internal Revenue Office is located at 1618 Idaho St., across from the new post office in Lewiston, if anyone wishes to see them in person. branches may split off can be braced with lag screws or cables. Guard against tree butchery, the agent said. Even though it is necessary in certain places to trim trees that interfere with utility lines, be sure to prune them judiciously so the natural beauty of the tree will have a chance to come back.

WILDLIFE VIEWPOINT . . .

By Stu Murrell
Regional Conservation Educator
The Fish and Game Department uses a variety of tags to mark wildlife. There are three basic types of information that we are attempting to determine by these tags or marks. The first is wildlife's movement and amount of area they cover. This is called their range. Their range can be determined by actual sighting or by hunters returning the tags and the location where they were taken. The second type of information is an estimate of hunter harvest. And, the last is wildlife's rate of die-off or losses occurring over a given period. A good example of this last type of information is that obtained from marked salmon and steelhead returning from the ocean and passing over our dams. If we mark a certain number of fish on their way downstream and only 1 or 2 percent return (which is about the actual rate), we can assume about 98 percent died from some cause such as disease, predators, or were taken by fishing in the ocean.

Let's take big game animals first. There are four basic tags we use on deer and elk. The first is a numbered metal tag that we clamp into the animal's ear. This tag is quite durable and may remain on the animal for several years. For example, we've recovered ear-tagged animals as much as 10 years later. Having the number to refer to also allows us to know exactly when and where it was tagged. The one disadvantage is that the small, one inch disc is difficult to see from any distance, so you have to actually collect the animal to determine the number. The second type of tag is a plastic flagging that is clipped to the ear along with the metal tag. It only lasts a short time but for a year or so the animal can be identified by the color of the flagging. The third type is a canvas collar with a plastic coating on it that is generally a fluorescent color. The collar is four inches wide and on the does and cows it is just slipped over the head and down on the neck. In the bulls and bucks, it has to be laced on. It is more durable than the plastic ear flagging and still allows the observer to determine the color from a distance without having to collect the animal. All three of these tags have been placed on the elk tagged on the North Fork of the Clearwater near Godney Creek on the Selway River, and on the Lochsa. If you see one of these animals, we would appreciate your reporting to us the location, date, and the color of the collar on the animal. We have also been placing radio transmitters on some elk trapped in these areas to be able to follow their movements more exactly. This tag will operate like a radio repeater and we can follow the signals from a vehicle, plane or helicopter. Two weeks ago we tagged nine elk in one trap on the Lochsa with radio transmitters. This is a part of a long term study which will be conducted by several graduate students. The basic information will be used to determine how successful our spring burning program is in increasing the herd productivity.

Another technique is using a colored dye to mark parts or a whole animal or bird. There have been many methods used. For example, they've placed a trip wire across a trail and every time an animal walks through it a jet of dye is squirted on his back. Another unique method is using a helicopter to get close, filling a Christmas tree ornament with dye, and throwing it on the back of the animal, breaking the ornament and dyeing the animal. Waterfowl have been marked with dye in numerous studies and some hunters have been amazed to see a fluorescent orange goose or duck fly by. It is only good for a year on birds because when their feathers are molted of course the dye is lost. But it makes an excellent way to determine movements of the birds. We have 44 golden eagles that we wing-marked in southern Idaho this summer with a crescent-shaped fabric. Anyone seeing one of these marked eagles should record the date, location, and color of the marking and report it to the Fish and Game Department. This is part of a graduate's study of the ecology of the golden eagle.

Of course, the standard tag on all types of birds has been the metal leg band that has a number on it. A plastic collar has been used extensively on geese and swans to mark them. People are asked to be on the alert for collars on swans observed in this area since several studies are going on at present. Tattoos have been used on some animals. Mountain lions in the Big Creek area of Idaho have had tattoos placed on the inside of their lips, in addition to regular metal tags in their ears. In this manner, the hides can be examined at a taxidermist and a tattoo shows up on the hide. Some of Idaho's mountain lions have been located at a Spokane taxidermist in this manner. Fish can be marked in many ways. A quick freezing method has been used to brand fish for identification. Certain fins can be clipped from a fish without harming them. For example, a clip of the ventral fin or the little adipose fin right in front of the tail on the bottom or top of the trout has been used for years for special studies. A little metal jaw tag can also be used on fish.

One of the most common fish tags is the spaghetti piece which is a colored strip like a piece of spaghetti that is inserted in the back of the fish. Many steelhead have been marked with this tag in the Columbia River and its tributaries. We depend heavily on the hunter and fisherman to report these tagged and marked animals, birds, or fish to us when they are taken. This gives us much better information to manage the sportsman's wildlife.

Experience shows that when traffic laws are confirmed with, traffic accidents decrease, says the Idaho State Police.

PROFESSIONAL HELP FOR EMOTIONAL PROBLEMS BEST

The next time a friend with serious emotional problems calls on you to be a sounding board, perhaps you can provide some truly constructive advice. Not by telling her or him what to do, (they don't listen anyway), but by suggesting they seek professional help at the nearest community mental health center.

Here, people with all kinds of emotional problems can find a way to solve them. It may be someone with a personal problem, a couple involved in a troubled marriage or a family experiencing difficulties in raising their children.

Community Mental Health Centers are relatively new in Idaho. Their purpose is to prevent serious emotional problems from developing, thus preventing people from having to leave home and seek help in a mental institution. The first center was started several years ago in Boise. Since that time, centers have opened in Pocatello, Lewiston, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho Falls, Caldwell and Weiser.

The centers operate in conjunction with the State Department of Health, Division of Mental Health and cooperate with the two state hospitals, State Hospital North, Orofino and State Hospital South, Blackfoot.

While the centers accept referrals from doctors, ministers, and others, any person needing help may phone the mental health center nearest his home to make an appointment. Upon arriving there, a staff member interviews him and administers a series of written tests. The tests aren't something a person passes or fails, but are used to help the professional worker at the center evaluate the individual's personality, find his traits and what troubles him. Together with the interview, he determines the nature of the trouble and at a staff meeting with his co-workers, who are trained in the fields of social work, psychology and psychiatry, they decide what should be done to help the person.

The fee charged each person is based on his income and all of his financial obligations are taken into consideration so a person pays only what he can for the service. The purpose of the centers is to help people with problems not to make money.

Service isn't limited to the seven towns in which the centers are located. Mental Health workers from these centers have offices in smaller towns in the area on a regular schedule to provide counseling. In the future, more centers are planned as the Division of Mental Health pushes toward its goal of "preventive" mental health.

MISSING ADDRESS LABELS ARE DELAYS

Many taxpayers have delayed their federal income tax refund by not putting the name and address label onto their tax return. The blue label is on the front of the package of federal income tax forms and instructions that was mailed to taxpayers about January 1. The label must be lifted off and attached to the Form 1040 being filed. A tax return cannot be processed with out name, address and social security number—all preprinted on the label. These means of identification ensure proper crediting to the taxpayer's master file account.

In case the label bears incorrect data the taxpayer should still use the label but should cross out the wrong item and substitute accurate information.

One way to succeed without trying. Wait for tomorrow.

We are indebted to the ladies of the Kendrick Canyon club for these recipes. At a recent meeting of the group, "bread sampling" refreshments were enjoyed, each member bringing her own favorite bread recipe. They all sound different and delicious and the ladies were pleased to share them with our readers.

Soften yeast in warm water, set aside. Combine boiling water, oatmeal, molasses, shortening and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 2 cups flour and eggs; beat well. Add enough remaining flour to make soft dough. Grease top; cover tightly and refrigerate overnight. Shape into two loaves; let rise until doubled. Bake 375°, 45 minutes. Yield 2 loaves.

WILDLIFE VIEWPOINT . . .

By Stu Murrell
 Regional Conservation Educator
 The Fish and Game Department uses a variety of tags to mark wildlife. There are three basic types of information that we are attempting to determine by these tags or marks. The first is wildlife's movement and amount of area they cover. This is called their range. Their range can be determined by actual sighting or by hunters returning the tags and the location where they were taken. The second type of information is an estimate of hunter harvest. And, the last is wildlife's rate of die-off or losses occurring over a given period. A good example of this last type of information is that obtained from marked salmon and steelhead returning from the ocean and passing over our dams. If we mark a certain number of fish on their way downstream and only 1 or 2 percent return (which is about the actual rate), we can assume about 98 percent died from some cause, such as disease, predators, or were taken by fishing in the ocean.

Let's take big game animals first. There are four basic tags we use on deer and elk. The first is a numbered metal tag that we clamp into the animal's ear. This tag is quite durable and may remain on the animal for several years. For example, we've recovered ear-tagged animals as much as 10 years later. Having the number to refer to also allows us to know exactly when and where it was tagged. The one disadvantage is that the small, one inch disc is difficult to see from any distance, so you have to actually collect the animal to determine the number. The second type of tag is a plastic flagging that is clipped to the ear along with the metal tag. It only lasts a short time but for a year or so the animal can be identified by the color of the flagging. The third type is a canvas collar with a plastic coating on it that is generally a fluorescent color. The collar is four inches wide and on the does and cows it is just slipped over the head and down on the neck. In the bulls and bucks, it has to be laced on. It is more durable than the plastic ear flagging and still allows the observer to determine the color from a distance without having to collect the animal. All three of these tags have been placed on the elk tagged on the North Fork of the Clearwater near Godney Creek on the Selway River, and on the Lochsa. If you see one of these animals, we would appreciate your reporting to us the location, date, and the color of the collar on the animal. We have also been placing radio transmitters on some elk trapped in these areas to be able to follow their movements more exactly. This tag will operate like a radio repeater and we can follow the signals from a vehicle, plane or helicopter. Two weeks ago we tagged nine elk in one trap on the Lochsa with radio transmitters. This is a part of a long term study which will be conducted by several graduate students. The basic information will be used to determine how successful our spring burning program is in increasing the herd productivity.

Another technique is using a colored dye to mark parts of a whole animal or bird. There have been many methods used. For example, they've placed a trip wire across a trail and every time an animal walks through it a jet of dye is squirted on his back. Another unique method is using a helicopter to get close, filling a Christmas tree ornament with dye, and throwing it on the back of the animal, breaching the ornament and dyeing the animal. Waterfowl have been marked with dye in numerous studies and some hunters have been amazed to see a fluorescent orange goose or duck fly by. It is only good for a year, on birds because when their feathers are molted of course the dye is lost. But it makes an excellent way to determine movements of the birds. We have 44 golden eagles that we wing-marked in southern Idaho this summer with a crescent-shaped fabric. Anyone seeing one of these marked eagles should record the date, location, and color of the marking and report it to the Fish and Game Department. This is part of a graduate's study of the ecology of the golden eagle.

Of course, the standard tag on all types of birds has been the metal leg band that has a number on it. A plastic collar has been used extensively on geese and swans to mark them. People are asked to be on the alert for collars on swans observed in this area since several studies are going on at present. Tattoos have been used on some animals. Mountain lions in the Big Creek area of Idaho have had tattoos placed on the inside of their lips, in addition to regular metal tags in their ears. In this manner, the hides can be examined at a taxidermist and a tattoo shows up on the hide. Some of Idaho's mountain lions have been located at a Spokane taxidermist in this manner.

Fish can be marked in many ways. A quick freezing method has been used to brand fish for identification. Certain fins can be clipped from a fish without harming them. For example, a clip of the ventral fin or the little adipose fin right in front of the tail on the bottom or top of the trout has been used for years for special studies. A little metal jaw tag can also be used on fish.

One of the most common fish tags is the spaghetti type which is a colored strip like a piece of spaghetti that is inserted in the back of the fish. Many steelhead have been marked with this tag in the Columbia River and its tributaries. We depend heavily on the hunter and fisherman to report these tagged and marked animals, birds, or fish to us when they are taken. This gives us much better information to manage the sportsman's wildlife.

Experience shows that when traffic laws are confirmed with, traffic accidents decrease, says the Idaho State Police.

PROFESSIONAL HELP FOR EMOTIONAL PROBLEMS BEST

The next time a friend with serious emotional problems calls on you to be a sounding board, perhaps you can provide some truly constructive advice. Not by telling her or him what to do, (they don't listen anyway), but by suggesting they seek professional help at the nearest community mental health center.

Here, people with all kinds of emotional problems can find a way to solve them. It may be someone with a personal problem, a couple involved in a troubled marriage or a family experiencing difficulties in raising their children.

Community Mental Health Centers are relatively new in Idaho. Their purpose is to prevent serious emotional problems from developing, thus preventing people from having to leave home and seek help in a mental institution. The first center was started several years ago in Boise. Since that time, centers have opened in Pocatello, Lewiston, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho Falls, Caldwell and Weiser.

The centers operate in conjunction with the State Department of Health, Division of Mental Health and cooperate with the two state hospitals, State Hospital North, Orofino and State Hospital South, Blackfoot.

While the centers accept referrals from doctors, ministers, and others, any person needing help may phone the mental health center nearest his home to make an appointment. Upon arriving there, a staff member interviews him and administers a series of written tests. The tests aren't something a person passes or fails, but are used to help the professional worker at the center evaluate the individual's personality, find his traits and what troubles him.

Together with the interview, he determines the nature of the trouble and at a staff meeting with his co-workers, who are trained in the fields of social work, psychology and psychiatry, they decide what should be done to help the person.

The fee charged each person is based on his income and all of his financial obligations are taken into consideration so a person pays only what he can for the service. The purpose of the centers is to help people with problems not to make money.

Service isn't limited to the seven towns in which the centers are located. Mental Health workers from these centers have offices in smaller towns in the area on a regular schedule to provide counseling. In the future, more centers are planned as the Division of Mental Health pushes toward its goal of "preventive" mental health.

MISSING ADDRESS LABELS ARE DELAYS

Many taxpayers have delayed their federal income tax refund by not putting the name and address label onto their tax return. The blue label is on the front of the package of federal income tax forms and instructions that was mailed to taxpayers about January 1. The label must be lifted off and attached to the Form 1040 being filed. A tax return cannot be processed with out name, address and social security number—all preprinted on the label. These means of identification ensure proper crediting to the taxpayer's master file account. In case the label bears incorrect data the taxpayer should still use the label but should cross out the wrong item and substitute accurate information.

One way to succeed without trying. Wait for tomorrow.

KENDRICK GRANGE HOLDS TUES. MEET

The Kendrick Grange met Tuesday, February 2nd at 8:30 p. m. in the Fraternal Temple, with 58 members present. The meeting began with a delicious chicken dinner. Mt. Deary Grange visited Kendrick.

Following dinner everyone very thoroughly enjoyed pictures of the Far East and Expo '70 shown by Mr. and Mrs. George Merrick of Juliaetta.

During the business meeting it was decided to donate $10.00 to help the Kendrick Cub Scouts.

New members initiated into the Kendrick Grange are Mr. and Mrs. George Paton of Lenore; also Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wilson of Juliaetta, who are transferring here from the Colton Grange.

The banquet room and kitchen have a bright, clean appearance following a coat of paint applied by Charles Klatt, and many hours of cleaning by the chairman of Women's Activities Mrs. Roy Glenn, with the help of Mrs. Wayne Heimgartner, Mrs. Charles Taylor and Mrs. Lawrence Heimgartner. New shelving space was added to the kitchen by Wayne Heimgartner and Roy Glenn. This should add greatly to the convenience of the kitchen.

Charles Bower, Pomona Grange Master, was present and spoke very briefly.

Mrs. Jesse Bateman was presented a pin and certificate for 25 years of membership in the Grange.

Volunteer cards were called for by the Lecturer. Not many were received. Will members please return these to Lecturer Mrs. L. W. Heimgartner, in the near future?

Kendrick Grange will make a visitation to the Moscow Grange Wednesday, February 17th, beginning with a 6:30 supper. All members are urged to attend. Let's have a good count.

The Kendrick Grange ladies will serve lunch for Brocke's Farm Day which will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 17th.

Kendrick Grange voted to let the Princeton Grange select the candidate for Conservation Farmer of the Year — so just one Grange could do selecting.

The next meeting for Kendrick Grange will be held Tuesday, Feb. 16th at 8:00 p. m. in the Fraternal Temple. The program will be on "Community Development."

Just the Valentine season.

— Lucille Magnuson

TAKE HEART

Cupid's arrows whiz so fast, Targets loom from out the past; Hearts and flowers on sheer lace Bring smiles to many a face. Dainty ribbons twine and meet, Verses add a message sweet. All lyrics are filled with love, Invoking the peaceful dove To bring cold hearts a feeling Of warmth, and send them reeling. Not for the rhyme or reason — Just the Valentine season.

FRIENDSHIP CLUB

The Evergreen Friendship Club will meet Wednesday, February 17 at 1:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Richard Benscoter. Mrs. Robert Pratt will be co-hostess for the February meeting.

W. M. C. HOLD MEET

Working on piece quilts and the selection of Secret Sisters for the new year 1971 was the order of business when the Women's Missionary Council met at the Assembly of God Church on Thursday, Feb. 4.
