Juliaetta Faces Sewer Bond Issue; Public Information Meeting Is Tuesday

A public meeting will be held in the Juliaetta school, Tuesday evening, August 3, at 8:00 p. m., to explain to taxpayers of that city about the forthcoming Revenue Bond Issue which would allow for the installation of a new sewerage collection and treatment system for the town, city clerk Floyd Helmgartner said this week.

Present at the meeting will be city officials, state health department officials and representatives from the engineering firm of Hoffman and Fiske, who have worked up the present plans for the sewer system.

These various persons will explain the reasons why the sewerage collection system is needed, how and where it will be installed, how it will be financed and the hook-up charges for the property owners.

According to engineering estimates the total cost of the project is $300,000. Part of the cost of this installation will be paid by the issuance of $150,000 in municipal revenue bonds. Whether the city agrees on the issuance of these bonds will be determined at a special election to be held on Tuesday, Nov. 2 between the hours of 12:00 noon and 8:00 p. m.

Members of the Juliaetta City Council urge all interested persons to attend this meeting.

A complete copy of the ordinance setting forth the procedure for the sewer issue will be found in this issue of the Gazette.

Election Date Changed
Since the printing of the first part of the Gazette, in which the Legal Notice regarding the Sewer Election was printed, the date of the election on the municipal revenue bond issue has been changed from Tuesday, August 17 to Tuesday, November 2, the date set aside by law for regular elections. The law prohibits holding special elections within ninety days of regular elections. The planned public meeting will still be held on Tuesday of next week, city officials announced and they still urged everyone to attend.

Weather Stays Hot and Dry; Fire Danger Index Very High

Hot, dry summer weather still prevailed over the region this week with temperatures reaching and exceeding the 100-degree mark on several days and staying in the high nineties every day for the past week. For the farmers who are anxious to begin harvest work, the weather was perfect. But for Richard Benjamin, District Fire Warden, and others concerned with protecting forest and grass lands from fire, the hot weather means greater fire danger, and Benjamin reported on Tuesday that the Fire Index is already "Very High."

While the daytime temperatures have been hot, the evening hours have brought some relief as the mercury would dip down into the fifties and sixties. The Kendrick Fire Warden reported no timber fires yet this season and only one grass fire three weeks ago in the area north of the dam at Lewiston. "But things are sure drying up fast," said Benjamin. "People are going to have to start being more careful with their burning barrels," he added.

Catch-and-Release Rule On Kelly Creek Aimed At Preserving Cutthroat Trout

Fishing-for-fun or catch-and-release fishing to a technique to provide high quality recreation while keeping harvest to a minimum. This method is being tried in Idaho where fishing for cutthroat has caused inroads on one of the great fishing streams, the Kelly and tributaries is the first such area in Idaho set up as a catch-and-release fishing for trout. This type of fishing has been successful in other states and is in effect for sturgeon on the Snake River.

Kelly Creek, a tributary to the North Fork of the Clearwater River, is a large, beautiful, clear stream, flowing for miles through thick, pine covered mountains. It has always had many steelhead in it. Old timers report that it used to have many large cutthroat trout.

With the increase in fishing pressure, brought about by easy roadside access to the area, this stream (and many others) has a great influx of anglers. This increase caused a decline in the large cutthroat trout in many streams. Kelly Creek is one of those hardest hit.

The cutthroat trout is a species of fish that apparently cannot maintain heavy fishing pressure. When this happens, the fish are in danger. Other areas receiving heavy pressure and having marked decline in cutthroat trout are the St. Joe River, Middle Fork of the Salmon River, Henry's Lake and the South Fork of the Snake River.

The cutthroat in Kelly Creek area are a race of West Slope Cutthroat. It needs protection and so a catch-and-release fishing season was put into effect. The 1971 fishing regulations restrict fishing in Kelly Creek thusly "Kelly Creek and Tributaries, Lake Excluded (a tributary to the North Fork Clearwater River) it shall be unlawful to reduce any fish to possession. Angling with bait is prohibited. Barbless hooks are recommended."

Some anglers are either unaware of this regulation or disregard it and are not releasing fish when caught. Those caught in violation of this regulation will be subject to arrest and prosecution.

There are several reasons for the restricted take of cutthroat trout in the Kelly Creek area, however. It is a study area for this race of cutthroat trout. Many fish are being tagged and released to help in this study. The stream is in an area which will soon be devoid of the steelhead runs traveling up the North Fork of the Clearwater to spawn. With the completion of Dworshak Dam, these runs will end. This will leave habitat for an increase of fish. The food that has previously gone to rear little steelhead for one or two years will now be available to cutthroat. It is hoped that cutthroat trout will expand and increase to fill this habitat niche in Kelly Creek and the river downstream.

This is a trial on the new way of fishing for fun. This will make it possible to enjoy a resource with very little loss of the wildlife involved. In a recent survey, many anglers preferred to catch a few large fish than several small fish. This is a chance to see how successful a catch-and-release fishery will be in Idaho.

Other areas have special regulations in effect to assist the survival of cutthroat trout. The Middle Fork of the Salmon River has a two fish limit on cutthroat trout, and limits all hooks 5/16 of an inch or smaller shall be barbless. The upper St. Joe River has a three fish trout limit and they must be 13 inches or over. Barbless hooks are recommended.

Army Volunteer

Fort Ord, Calif. (AHTNC) —Pvt. Bill V. Downs, Jr., whose mother, Mrs. Patricia L. Bernard, lives in Kendrick, Idaho, completed the first phase of training under the modern Volunteer Army Field Experiment at Fort Ord, Calif.

The new concept, called "Volar" combines basic and advanced individual training into a single 16-week program. Decentralized instruction at the unit level and a reduction of formations and inspections gives the soldier more time to train and increased off-duty time. Fewer restrictions on off-duty travel and improved living facilities are other benefits of the "Volar" concept.

Area Grain Harvest Begins; First Peas, Wheat, Barley Are Delivered

Grain warehouses in the Genesee, Kendrick and Juliaetta area took in the first yields of the 1971 harvest season last weekend as the hot, dry weather hastened the ripening of all crops. While the first combines are now in the fields, the harvest is still at least one week away from reaching full swing.

Walter Dunlap of Culeasee and Dick Benscoter of American Ridge brought the first grass seed of the season into Brocke & Sons last Tuesday. Bob Smith of American Ridge delivered the first Rape seed to Brocke's Saturday and on Monday the Wegner Brothers brought in the first peas of the season from their ranch in the Cameron area. George F. Brocke said Tuesday that the peas were looking very good this year. He added he didn't expect the barley to start into his company's warehouse until sometime next week.

Rudy Knapp brought the first wheat of the 1971 season into the Juliaetta warehouse of the Lewiston Grain Growers, Tuesday morning. Wolf Bros. Leland, delivered the first barley of the year into Juliaetta last Thursday and Ben Westendahl, manager of the warehouse, reported it was good in both quality and quantity. While the barley was good, it was "sure hot" Westendahl said, referring to the barley's capacity to be fussy and burny for the men handling it. Westendahl said they had three combines cutting on Tuesday and expected two more to be started by Wednesday. Wheat should be coming in by the middle of next week.

Agrow Peas
Howard Broemeling and Bartle Weber both started delivering peas from their Rimrock area ranches into Genesee's Agrow Seed Company branch, reported manager Leonard Singhose, Tuesday. The Alaska peas "looked good" so far, the Agrow man said, but it was still too early to get a good picture of the harvest. Harvest will probably be slow this week but should start picking up next week.

Bartle Weber delivered the first winter barley to Genesee Union Warehouse last Thursday, July 22. Weber has now completed his barley cutting but the warehouse is taking in Luther barley this week by Zeener Bros. What barley that has been taken in looked good, although the reports were not back from analysis.

Mike Martinez of Genesee Union said Tuesday that no peas had yet been brought in for their storage and the only peas coming in were for weighing for the Agrow Company. He said manager Bill Wood was predicting August 1st was the time when the harvest would begin in earnest.

Strikes Could Hurt
The combination of the railroad strike and the longshoremen's strike on the coast is causing concern for the areas warehouses, as harvest time approaches. The ability to keep shipping out as the grain pours in at the peak of harvest is the only thing that the warehouses have to keep from having to store outside on the ground, and if the trains aren't moving it is possible for the storage problem to become serious in a hurry.

Salmon Fishing Season Closes
This Saturday, July 31, is the last day for chinook salmon anglers in Idaho waters for 1971, according to fisheries chief, James C. Simpson, adding that the season was somewhat short this year due to the tremendous water runoff during the first part of the season. The next job for the department, according to the fisheries head, is to study the salmon run in more detail and see how many of the big chinooks actually got to the spawning sites in the headwaters of the Salmon River and were successful in establishing "redds". Redd is the term for the nests or hollowed out places in the gravel on the streambeds where the female salmon lays her eggs.

Simpson said that natural spawning of salmon doesn't look too good this year because of the nitrogen supersaturation condition at the downriver dams. He pointed out that even though the numbers of chinooks over the dams were fairly good, the run is in trouble because of the losses of fish upstream from the last counting station due to the nitrogen condition.

Swim Team Competes At Orofino; Does Well

Although plagued by absences and illness, the Kendrick Swim Team, only 12 members strong, made an excellent showing at the Orofino meet on Saturday, July 24. Several 1st, 2nd and 3rd place ribbons were awarded the team members, who earned a total of 84 points. Orofino earned 242.

Members who competed were Steve and Tim Eichner; Lyle and Gene Deobald; Gene Kimbley, David Heppner, Cheryl Gustafson, Vicki Johns, Judy Calkins, Cathy Perkins, Rick and Dan Steigers.

Several members of the team plan to compete at Richland this week, and the next team competition will be at Orofino on Aug. 7.

THE HARVEST

Shimmering heat waves dance o'er the field,
'Tis harvest time once more.
Heavy heads of golden wheat
Bend toward the earth, now a hard-crusted floor.

Little puffs of cotton-white clouds
In a sky of sapphire blue,
No rain in sight — a farmer's delight,
As his thresher devours and chews.

Plump kernels form a heavy stream,
Divided from the chaff,
As on the truck bed now they flow,
A golden mountain forming fast.

A bountiful yield from a fertile soil,
The past year's labor well spent.
Food for the hungry, both here and abroad,
To the ends of the earth our wheat
will be sent.

My Home—

My tree,—the flowering cactus,
My pasture,—the desert brome,
You see my friend, this barren waste
It is my home.
Not because it had to be,
But because it was my wish—
The barrel cactus shows me North—
The setting sun the West—
And now the desert hawk has stopped
His search for rest.
The dry-cracked floor of this majestic place,
Cannot be appreciated by looking just
at her face,
She has a soul, a heart, and life,
And within her breast struggle and strife.
Strive to live for the right of life—
Life to be, for the right to LIVE.

Every once in a while, some good reader stops by with a good joke or two which I really appreciate, as I have been putting jokes in my ad since 1950 and sometimes the supply gets pretty slim. Earl Parsons stopped in this week and was chucking over the following joke. Thought you might enjoy it:

Wife, working crossword puzzle:
"John, what's a three-letter word for a female sheep?"
"Ewe," he said.
And that's how the fight began.

A visitor took his small son to Washington. The little boy watched from the gallery when the House of Representatives came to order.
"Why did the minister pray for all those men, Dad?" he asked.
"He didn't. He looked them over and prayed for the country."

THE WASHINGTON WATER POWER CO

WILDLIFE VIEWPOINT

By Dee Hibbert
Regional Conservation Educator
Idaho Fish and Game Department

July 13th was the deadline for getting controlled hunt applications into the Boise Office. All applications were to have been received at the headquarters office of the Idaho Fish and Game Department, 600 South Walnut, Boise, Idaho 83077 or post marked not later than July 13, 1971.

The drawings will be held at the Boise Fish and Game office on July 29, 1971 at 9:00 a. m. for moose, sheep, and goat permits. On August 11, 1971 they will draw deer, elk and antelope permits. In case any controlled hunts do not fill, there will be a second application period and drawing date.

Incomplete, incorrect and unlawful applications will be ineligible for drawings. Persons should carefully check the regulations and take care to fill the application forms correctly. Controlled hunt application envelopes and regulations are available to all license vendors and at the Regional Fish and Game Offices.

Some pointers to watch for in filling out the forms that have been showing up and making applications ineligible are:

1. Lack of the license prefix number. This would be 01-, 02-, for resident licenses, 10-, for nonresidents; 42- for duplicate licenses; 92- for senior citizen permits and 93- for military furlough permits.
2. Be sure to enter the proper controlled hunt number.
3. Enter complete name, address including zip code.
4. Include your social security number or write "none" in space provided. If you apply for a group permit, do so all on the same form. Not more than four individuals may apply on a group application for elk, antelope and deer hunts, or more than two for moose, sheep and goat hunts.

This year the permit fees must be included with every application. Do not send personal checks, send money orders, cashier's checks or certified checks.

Remember, it is unlawful to apply for more than one permit for the same species in 1971. If you received a permit in 1969 or 1970, you cannot apply for a permit on the same species. Check the regulations closely before applying to avoid being unlawful and possibility of prosecution. Be certain a friend or relative does not apply for you without your knowledge.

ANTI-HUNTING FEELINGS RUN CONTRARY TO FACTS

By Jim Humbird
Idaho Fish-Game Department
Not long ago the National Wildlife Federation conducted a Gallup public opinion survey which showed that a large percentage of Americans are deeply concerned about wildlife and that the majority feel that hunting is the greatest single threat to the perpetuation of any wildlife species.

Let's take a look at the facts. It has been proved many times that guns no longer threaten American Wildlife, that controlled hunting by fixed seasons and bag limits does not determine the future of any herd. The threat now is man unarmed; man whose numbers and technology threaten to subdue the universe, thereby denying wildlife a place to live.

Game management agencies and their hunting constituencies must put their very best efforts into telling it like it is; that is, telling that habitat and environment are the key to perpetuation of all species. That hunting frequently is needed to preserve the environment from an overpopulation of animals must be made part of all primary education. As many ways as possible must be developed to show that hunting is humane and that death by hunting of animals is preferable to starvation and other forms of natural mortality.

These, in summary, are some of the ideas presented by Harry R. Woodward, president, Western Association of Game and Fish Commissioners, at the 51st annual meeting of the New Mexico Wildlife and Conservation Association April 3, 1971, at Clayton, N. M.

Woodward added, "we must show that sport hunting is a wholesome and relaxing activity, and that hunting can take young people out of the pads and communes, thus redirecting the strong physical efforts of those who might riot and destroy. We must see that the general public must be made to understand that the hunters' license dollars are responsible for practically all of the preservation that has taken place up to the present time."

The worst of all things that could happen would set hunter against non-hunter, leading to a schism between the two groups. When large groups of people break into warring factions, they become easy prey for exploiters of wildlife habitat. Many of them are beginning to understand that habitat and environment are keys to the perpetuation of the species—all species—including mankind. If wildlife goes down the drain so will all humanity. That is the reason for the great surge of public interest in wildlife. People realize that if animals are in trouble so are they. Through lack of information many people wrongly blame hunters for wildlife's plight without ever realizing that hunting is frequently needed to preserve the environment from an overpopulation of animals.

One thing to remember is that big city metropolitan area residents strongly influence the nation's major press and communications media. City dwellers decide what goes into newspapers and radio-television broadcasts, how it will be used, and what the editorial stance will be. Moreover, four-fifths of the total population in the United States lives on 2 percent of the land.

Perhaps the greatest need is the ability to communicate hunting ethics and ideas of quality outdoor experience. A change of emphasis is needed from kill as a measure of hunting success to such things as recreational opportunities. Hopefully, by their own good conduct, sportsmen can communicate ideas and make the point with the media and public that it is more of a moral issue than a political one.

Of course there sometimes are tragic ramifications stemming from misuse of firearms including the bad press that comes from vandals who kill livestock, leave gates open, destroy property and otherwise torment landowners who provide much hunting in the first place.

Wildlife beyond doubt is the most popular of all living natural resources. A measure of its public esteem is the more than $200 mill raised annually by the hunting fraternity for wildlife restoration. Hunting license fees are the backbone of this, but some of the money comes from self-imposed excise taxes on guns, ammunition and tackle and presently is appropriated to the states at about $50 million annually. No other group can match these contributions. Hunters, fishermen and wildlife organizations have been on the battle lines for a long time, and most of the species they love and use are not in trouble, at least not yet. Now there is a new, valid, more numerous wildlife constituency; and, lacking accurate information many of them are striking out at the wrong targets.

The hunting equipment tax began with the 1937 Pittman-Robertson Act, and since its enactment more than $350 million has been collected. In Idaho, over $7 1/2 million in "P-R" funds has been spent.

The fishing tackle tax was provided by the 1950 Dingell-Johnson Act. It has resulted in the collection of more than $100 million. Of this, $1,973,876.79 has been spent in Idaho in "D-J" funds.

One weak spot in the agency public information program is the credit due hunters and fishermen for pioneering in the environmental crusade. To reiterate, sportsmen's license dollars are responsible for virtually all the good that has been achieved over the past three decades. None of the species they love and use are in trouble from over-hunting. Protectionists who do not understand this are concerned about all species.

The real danger is that the two groups of people will get so emotional arguing for or against hunting that they'll not unite against the real threats to wildlife—pollution and habitat destruction.

Harvesting operations in the Potlatch section are just beginning about ten days or two weeks behind last year's operations. The wheat this year, as reported by the local grain dealers, is of a better quality, on the average, than that of last year. So far but three field averages are available, and these range from 41 to 45 1/2 bushels per acre.

The Boy Scouts of Kendrick, in co-operation with Edgar Long and Scout Leader Walden Davis, are conducting a drive for old aluminum in line with national defense drives for that product. A collection pen is prepared at one end of the City Park and anyone have kettles, pans, etc., of that metal, which has outlived its usefulness, are asked to please add them to the pile in the Park.

New Arrival!

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Don Holsington, a third daughter, at the Tri-State Memorial Hospital on Thursday morning, July 22. The little Miss, named Chantell Dianne, weighed in at 7 1/4 pounds, was born by Caesarian section, as were her older sisters, and is doing nicely. She should be arriving home this week with her mother.

Sisters Teresa and Angela, meanwhile, are visiting with Grandpa and Grandma Weyen.

She is the 26th grandchild born to the Clitia Holsingtons!

Thursday evening guests were Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Heimgartner.

Their daughter, Mrs. Forrest Gibbs (Flora) of Spokane, was a Friday dinner guest of her parents.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Rugg and family were dinner guests. Their son, Mitchell Rugg, remained for a few days to help in harvest.

Ergar Heath and daughter Ruth Ann were on Sunday dinner guests, as was Eugene Heath. Sunday afternoon guests included Mrs. Leo Tierney and twin sons, Calif., she is a niece of Mrs. Heath. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Schrafnagel of Lewiston were also afternoon callers.

In Memorium
In memory of Glenda (Stevens) Carpenter, a new air conditioning system was installed in the Cottonwood Creek Community Church last week. Dr. Richard Carpenter, who arrived Monday to join his little son as a house guest of the Glen Stevens family was able to be present at the Sunday church services.

The group from the Stevens home and Mrs. Charles Kerby were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Kerby.

Glen Stevens and Dr. Carpenter were dinner guests of Mrs. Clifford Powell of Clarkston on Thursday.

Other News
Mrs. Wm. Straw and children of Mt. Home, who were vacationing in the Red River area, arrived on Sunday at the home of her father, Leslie Heimgartner, for a week's visit with relatives.

The Arne Z'mose family and the David Straw family, of Lewiston, were guests for meals, on different days, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Heimgartner.

Miss Kay Sarbaugh and a friend, Patty, of Othello, Wn., spent two days of enjoyable vacation with the Heimgartners, horseback riding, visiting with neighbors and swimming at the pool.

Lindy and Cindy Fleiger of Moscow spent several days this week with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Stevens.

Allen Heimgartner, having finished his summer school course in Forestry, spent the week-end with his parents. Then on Sunday went to Bonners Ferry for the remainder of the summer, employed by the Forestry Service there. Mrs. Hunter and sister Charlotte of Lewiston were week-end guests of the Wayne Heimgartners. Sunday the entire group, joined by the Warren Slimp family, picnicked halfway with Allen at Lake Chatcolet.

Saturday supper guests of the Wayne Heimgartners were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harri, Clarkston, and their daughter, Mrs. Mike Frost and son of Lewiston.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Heimgartner were Sunday morning callers at the Albert and Myrtle Heimgartner home.

Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Betty Cowger were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Cowger and son David and Don Rawson, all of Bovill; Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Cowger and children of Lewiston; Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cowger and children and tiny Brandy Ann Smith, five-weeks old, of Pierce. Betty was resting up on Monday, canning vegetables.

Callers in the E. Steigers home, Sunday afternoon, briefly, were Ronald Jones and son Tommy and Joe Wagner of Lewiston, and Mr. and Mrs. Vester Daniels. For the afternoon and 9:00 p. m. supper guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Engle of Lewiston and David Talbot of Cottonwood. David, having lost a front wheel from his pickup near the Wayne Martin home, and catching a ride to the Steigers, where he obtained spare parts, was escorted back by the Steigers and guests to repair the damage — thus the late supper hour — before journeying on to Moscow.

Roger Harri and Grant Hatch were Sunday afternoon callers in the E. Steigers home, with four cars arriving at one time, from different directions. Ronald Jones laughingly remarked that such a traffic jam should call for "road improvement" in the Steigers' narrow drive! Ronald Jones, one time helper in the Steigers' truck gardening, and a former resident of Cherrylane Ranch, is now Lewiston mayor!

Mrs. Darrell Kerby and son Don were Tuesday visitors in the Glen Stevens home.

Scotty Heimgartner, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Heimgartner of Lewiston, spent over-night Friday and Saturday with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Heimgartner. Mr. and Mrs. Everett Custer were Sunday dinner guests of the Heimgartners.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Steigers attended a "select" little "get acquainted with Shae" party given by Charlotte Sauer at Moscow on Saturday afternoon honoring their great-granddaughter Shae Ahlers. They were then supper guests in the Bob Coffland home at Joel.

Leroy Steigers had the misfortune to severely cut a thumb early Monday morning, requiring a trip to a doctor for treatment.

Hiking Is Back—
For Health's Sake

Car exhaust is the chief cause of air pollution.

Experiments to ban cars from congested areas of cities have been hailed with joy by pedestrians. Eventually, all cars may be banned from cities. But that time may be far off. In the mean time, bicycles are coming back.

Sales of bicycles have doubled in the last decade. Bikes are now selling at the rate of 7 million a year. Many bike-store owners report that 80 per cent of their sales are now to adult riders, whereas only five years ago, 90 per cent of their sales were for children's bikes.

Local groups across the country are pressing for—and getting—bike lanes. In Davis, California, where bike lanes were built just a few years ago there are 24,000 people and 20,000 bikes. In Greater Miami, Florida, 100 miles of bikeways have been built in the last 5 years. And more are coming, says the
