Rochdale Warehouse Bursts Monday; Spilled Barley Flattens Garage

A large grain storage warehouse belonging to the Kendrick Rochdale Co. burst open at one end early Monday afternoon and poured out approximately 5,000 bushels of new crop barley on a garage and shed belonging to Richard Benjamin. The weight of the grain completely flattened the garage, which was unoccupied at the time, and shoved a large shed off its foundation and smashed in the shed wall.

"We still don't know exactly how it happened or why it happened," said Rochdale manager Bob Watts. The twenty-one year old warehouse was built of wood with a metal covering.

The incident occurred shortly after noon Monday and Watts, who was nearby at the time, said: "It sounded like two freight cars crashing together", when the warehouse wall gave way and split open. Watts said it was almost impossible for him to judge how much grain poured out and onto the Benjamin shed, but as nearly as he could guess it, it would be near 5,000 bushels.

Dick Benjamin was away at his job as District Fire Warden when the accident happened and Mrs. Benjamin had taken the family car and their youngest son to town so no one was at home. The only casualty was a pet chipmunk who had been moved out into the garage where he would be away from the heat.

Moving the grain away will be quite difficult, Watts said. He indicated the co-operative might have to try to cover it from the weather for the time being.

Brief Rain Brings Little Respite From Heat Wave; Temps Soar Over 100

A short, brief general rain shower early Tuesday morning brought little respite from the prolonged heat wave that still clings to region, and after the shower was over the skies cleared and the mercury started its daily climb into the high nineties and over the 100 degree mark.

It was a hot, blistering weekend with Kendrick registering an unofficial high of 104 degrees on Sunday afternoon and 102 Monday. The low for both days settled down to 68 degrees. It was much cooler in Genesee with the temperature only going up to an unofficial 103 on Sunday.

Lewiston sweltered in a record 111 degrees in downtown Sunday afternoon, but the Lewiston airport registered a cooler 106.

The hot weather has softened the asphalt paved highway and the vehicles traveling over them make a whistling noise as they travel the main streets in Kendrick. Lewiston has had to put sand on some of its streets to keep the tar and asphalt from becoming too soft. Kendrick hasn't had to resort to that—yet.

After a scorching Monday, clouds formed on the horizon as evening approached and there was thunder and lightning most of the night—before rain fell in the Genesee area between 6:30 and 7:00 a. m. It wet the pavements but was not enough to settle the dust.

Grain Harvest Continues To Progress; Yields and Quality Looking Excellent

Tuesday morning's short, light rain shower failed to slow down the grain and pea harvest in the Kendrick area this week as hot, dry weather still prevailed over the region and the 1971 cuttings operations picked up speed, although still at least a week away from the peak of harvest.

After an evening full of thunder and lightning, a short rain shower swept across the region between 6 and 7 Tuesday morning.

Bob Watts, manager of Kendrick Rochdale, said Tuesday morning that both peas and barley were coming into the co-op and both crops were looking good in quantity and quality. "There's a lot of 4 and 5,000 lb. barley crops this year," the manager said. The Rochdale suffered a misfortune Monday noon when a warehouse wall broke under the pressure of stored grain and spilled out onto the Dick Benjamin property. (See related story on this page.)

Good quality peas, Rape seed and grass seed, was reported this week by George Brocke, Jr., at Brocke and Sons, Seedsmen in Kendrick. Brocke said he roughly estimated that one-third to one-half of the spring peas were in at their warehouses and that 75 percent of the Rape seed was in now and should be almost completely delivered by the end of the week. Most of the grass seed has also been delivered. There have been no lentils taken in as of Tuesday morning. Brocke also confirmed the good reports and the quality and quantity of the early peas.

If the Tuesday rain slowed the harvest in the valley, "you wouldn't know it by looking at the line of trucks we have", said Ben Westendahl, manager of the Lewiston Grain Growers Kendrick and Juliaetta elevators. He said peas and barley are coming in good now but didn't figure that the harvest was even near the half-way mark. Everything is looking good, said Westendahl.

Heimgartner, Leslie, Jarvis and Janice of Yakima; Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Dennler and Debi, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dennler, Ora, and Mrs. Shirley Sinclair of Pox Ridge; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Giese, George Giese, Mr. and Mrs. Melford Ward, Diane and Cathy, Mr. and Mrs. Jim McVay, Joan and Bob, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Riggers, all of Lewiston; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cuddy and family of Juliaetta; Rev. Otto Ehlen, Don and Gregg Dennler and Lee Root, all of Lewiston.

Great Pea Crops

Leonard Singhose, manager of the Agrow Seed Company's Genesee Branch, said Tuesday morning that all indications seem to point to one of the best years on record for yield in the Genesee area. With peas coming in from the Fix Ridge and Elm rock area, Singhose said many of the fields were yielding harvests of 35 to 3600 lbs per acre in the dirt with one 25-acre area on the Rim averaging 4450 lbs. per acre, in the dirt, which would surely be a record for the Genesee area.

Singhose said he expected the pace of harvest to begin picking up this week, barring any additional delays. The rain Tuesday morning slowed down the harvest work for Genesee Union, reported manager Bill Wood, but he didn't expect the delay to be very long. The harvest is starting out slowly with peas and barley coming in from the Rim area, which is always the first section in the Genesee area to ripen. Small quantities of wheat have come into Genesee Union, but no one grower has finished a lot although harvest of barley have been finished up. The wheat that has been brought in was looking good in test weight and quantity.

Proposed Changes For Garnet Digging

Of interest to many rockhounds and others in the area is a proposed change in Bureau of Land Management regulations which would allow it to become more easy for a person to obtain a permit to dig for garnets up on Emerald Creek in particular and the National Forest in general.

Under the terms of a proposed change published in Bureau of Land Management regulations on July 9, any individual who desires to search for and remove mineral specimens in a National Forest must have a permit to do so in that National Forest, signed by the authorized representatives of the Bureau of Land Management. Permits can be secured in person or by mail direct from any office of the Bureau in the State in which the National Forest is situated or from the Forest Service District Ranger responsible for the area.

Fees would be determined by the Director and would be based on charges for comparable privileges on private and State lands, including recognition of the cost of supervising the removal of mineral specimens.

The permits would also contain terms and conditions which are deemed necessary by the Director and by the Chief.

DOVE SHOOTING HOURS SCHEDULED FOR IDAHO
As usual, the hours for shooting mourning doves will be from a half hr. before sunrise to sunset on all days of the season including opening day. The Idaho Fish and Game Department pointed out that this conforms with federal regulations set for all migratory game birds by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Acting Director Robert L. Salter stated that the bag limit will be 10 birds daily and 20 in possession after the first day. This year the mourning dove season starts September 1 and ends September 19. The federal "duck stamp" is not required for dove hunting. However other federal regulations such as the one requiring that a shotgun be plugged so it is capable of holding no more than three shells in the magazine and chamber combined will be enforced.

Salter pointed out that due to differences in timing across Idaho, the shooting hours will vary in the different regions.

Retired Genesee Motion Picture Pioneer Recalls Past Sixty Years

Ed's Note: Albert Justin Ohlson, now retired, and living in Genesee, is one of the few remaining pioneers of the motion picture industry. A former commercial artist and advertising executive, Mr. Ohlson was a contemporary of some of the giants in the motion picture industry and he worked with, for and among these people. Now living a quiet, peaceful life in Genesee with his wife, he is often asked to speak at meetings and gatherings to relate some of his early history and give a first-hand recollection of the early days in the movie business. Mr. Ohlson's talk is a tour of the early days of this century. We are honored and pleased that he has permitted us to share it with our readers.

Let us turn back a half century. No! Let's go back 60 years. Even as far back as 1904. My life began in 1887. I was one of about 500 determined and dedicated men and women, and among them many became household words. We labored with a will against all problems, and developed the greatest amusement media the world has ever known.

George Eastman, Thomas Alva Edison, Carl Lummile, Mr. Spoor, Mr. Anderson, Lubin, Kalem, Cecil DeMille, David Griffith, The Smiths, Blackton, Mr. Rock, Mack Sennett, Lasky, Horsley, Mr. Porter, Melles, etc. I was associated with them all.

Around 1904 eight studios started: Vitagraph, Melles, Biograph, Edison, Kalem, Lubin, Esenecy, Pathe. The first motion picture studio ever erected in the United States, was built by Tom Edison in Menlo Park, New Jersey at a cost of $637,000. Completed on February 1, 1903, it was dubbed "The Black Maria" and was swung from a pivot post to permit the stage to follow the light of the sun. Of course, the pictures taken were for Kinetoscope pictures, not movies as we know them.

To Thomas Alva Edison goes the credit for motion pictures, however, at the time he did not regard his invention too seriously. He considered animated pictures, as did many others, a novelty that would soon wear off.

But when I called on him as late as 1910 his ideas changed and the Edison Film Co. was organized with the studio located in the Bronx, New York, where the famous Cecil DeMille started his career. The Kinetoscopes, as the first movie houses were called, in no way resembled the luxurious picture palaces of New York, Chicago, or Hollywood, but what an aura of magic and mystery, of laughter and tears hung to them!

There to the sound of a tinkling and appropriately emotional piano, Pearl White faced her perils, Frances X. Bushman caused fluttering hearts, Theda Bara wrecked homes; Chaplain, Arbuckle, and Mack Sennett set many standards never to be exceeded; and a host of childish make-believe situations in a never-never land called New York and later Hollywood.

But gradually the whole world came to admire its heroes and heroines and clowns, and to ape them.

Whatever role the silent screen has played in our social history, I believe it was an important one. No one can underestimate the enormous pleasure the films of this (1904) era gave to audiences everywhere.

I want to try to reflect the trials and problems we had to contend with in 1904 to 1928 when stars were really stars. The early producers forbid half-naked women in any story; not females with manufactured faces; when 100,000 people could gather in London or even Moscow, Russia to greet Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks on their triumphal tour of Europe and Asia. Perhaps today in a more troubled age, you can look back on us and our films not only with nostalgia, but also with a sincere desire to learn what made glamor so glamorous and laughter so hearty, and the world a happier place to live in. It was a memorable age for me, and I hope you will bear with me.

In 1904 George Melles came to the United States from France and formed the Melles Film Studio, and produced the first American film, "A Trip to the Moon."

Today this government is spending billions and billions of dollars and finally got there. But I was there in 1904 and see no difference.

In 1904 Edison produced the "Great Train Robbery," the first long film that told a story. This film was used only on road shows. No movie house was large enough to run it.

We could copyright a photograph but not a movie, so the following year, 1905, Mr. Lubin, of Philadelphia produced another "Great Train Robbery." Competition was high. This was my initiation into the realms of "Make Believe" in the silent film, or the silent screen.

Teddy Roosevelt was President, 1901-1909. In the year of 1905 Elmer Sperry invented the Gyrocompass and the ship stabilizer.

We experienced important events in our era also. The inventions back in our era were highly responsible for the progress you experience today.

My dad was a carpenter earning $15 weekly. Mother was an invalid with three children in the family. I had finished 10 grades of school. We were practically foreigners, and we needed money. As a boy, I was an opportunist and I know my future was in motion pictures. So I stayed with it.

I remember buying a coat and trousers for $11.00, felt-type hat, $1.00, straw hat, 50c; shoes, $1.50; celluloid collars, 3 for 25c, and ties, 20c. If you could afford a large 5-course dinner you would pay 75c or less.

In the early days I can remember the San Francisco earthquake in 1906; Dr. Leo DeForest's vacuum tube, the forerunner of radio, in 1907; Capt. Robert Peary reached the North Pole in 1909 and in 1910 school teachers received an average of $225 a year.

at night and turned them out every morning before leaving for New York and the studio. From 1906 and on nickelodeons were mushrooming in all cities, 5 cents admission and a 15 minute show. It was then I made a very important decision.

I accepted a dinner invitation with a leading film developer. He lived in Orange, New Jersey. After dinner he escorted me to a house in Menlo Park and said, "You are on your own now." When I rang the battery-powered bell I was a very nervous young man. I did not expect to get in but I was wrong. The butler opened the door and I was announced to the owner. We discussed animated pictures for 30 minutes, we discussed their possibilities, and we discussed my limited education and my future. Perhaps you have guessed to whom I was talking. Yes, it was Thomas Alva Edison. In my opinion the greatest inventor and man ever known.

I studied photography and commercial art at night. He suggested that I join the young industry... I was 21. Mr. Edison was 63.

By 1910-I had spent 6 years in motion pictures. Motion pictures were not confined to the United States exclusively in the early years. France, Germany, and Italy shared them. We must credit Edison with both the invention and standardization of the 35mm film. With the help of George Eastman of Eastman Kodak Co., the industry began to hum.

How many of you can remember that we pioneered in animated cartoons. Both Windsor McKay and Emile Cohl were outstanding artists and cartoonists. About 40 units were producing shorts from 1904 to 1912 in various sizes, from 25mm and up. When Edison built the 35mm Kinetoscope projector as early as 1904, all European film companies finally had to fall in line or lose the American market.

I have a list (and photos) of 1,000 film stars of the silent era, and I talked with 500 of them.

France was the leader in Europe with the famous Pathe film. Pathe also had the first color film, as early as 1910. England's kinematograph came in 1923 and Lumiere's beautiful color process was developed in 1924. From 1910 to 1929 I was associated with Melles Star Film, Vitagraph, Paramount, (Lasky), William Randolph Hearst's Cosmopolitan Films, and later in 1929 with the R. C. A. photophones (sound). During the silent film era New York was the film capital of the world, and when it moved to Los Angeles I refused to follow.

In the early days of silent pictures we were classified as motion picture technicians. A technician in 1910 was a real jack-of-all trades. You had to be a cameraman, projectionist, assistant director, and at times director, film editor, printer, splicer, developer, linker, packer, shipper, builder and painter of movie sets, a prop boy—and at times an "extra."

Today each area is a highly specialized profession.

When I began, titles were made by assembling white letters (cutouts) on a black velvet background. I had the honor of designing and photographing the first hand-lettered titles ever used in the industry in 1906-1910 for Melles Films.

Our photography was limited in quality. We had and used orthochromatic negative film, the only type Eastman made at this time. It had no tone value and was a problem. We had to put the tone values in and work it out before the production was started and before the first scene was shot.

Studios were equipped with Cooper-Hewitt lights (greenish), actor's makeup was brown, lipstick almost black, blue tabcloths, blue dishes, puttled silverware, blue shirts and gowns—necessary so they would appear white in the film. We could not hire stars with blue eyes. All these problems eased when Eastman introduced the panchromatic film. The tonal quality improved, lighting and makeup changed. Glassroof studios were changed to complete enclosures and new white lights were invented. The sets had more glamor and color. From 1909 on I will always associate Melles Company with Edith Story and Francis Ford.

The Vitagraph Company had Flora Finch, John Bunny, Maurice Costello, Earl Williams, Harry Morey, Lillian Walker, Norma Talmadge, James Young and many, many, more. The Paramount Company had Gloria Swanson, Adolph Menjou, Tom Meighan (the $7,000 a week star), Dorothy Dalton, Will Rogers, etc. I chewed lots of spearmint gum with Will Rogers while on the sets, waiting for his cue.

I also like to remember my friend, Roxy Rothappel, who lived to see his dream come true—Radio City Music Hall—in New York City. Yes, I had many real faithful and notable friends in the film business. I cannot forget Marion Davis, Lionel Barrymore, or Victor Herbert, the famous musician and composer with the "Hearst Cosmopolitan." I spent many nights with Victor when metering out the score for a full production. His orchestra played at the Circle Theatre, N. Y. City where all Hearst films were shown.

These memories will never be erased. Although I have been retired since 1941, movies are still my life—it's in my blood, I guess perhaps with 25% of film cement.

Mary Pickford was my favorite in 1910. Perhaps you would like to know how David Griffith made her so famous. All her sets were constructed about one-third larger than normal, the furniture was built one-third larger also. Her supporting cast were large people, thus making Mary look small. She was dubbed "Little Mary." This system developed in our era, was used in two recent productions, "Dr. Cyclops" and "The Three Worlds of Gulliver." Remember, all trick photography began in 1904.

I have contributed a few important gadgets used in the industry such as the painted glass in my own little studio. The one shot duplex photography and a few fading devices. During my career I have successfully edited 26 productions—ten of which played on Broadway between 1912 and 1927 for the Vitagraph and Paramount Companies. In editing silent pictures you had to study lip reading. We had many close calls when producing spectacular episodes, falling from cliffs, rammed by a tramp steamer in a fog. Only a miracle saved our complete staff of 150 people. We ran into trouble when blowing up a yacht, too much charge—the tide was too swift for the actors in the water. Little episodes that we started in 1910-11 have been vastly improved by specialized stunt men in modern movies and today's stunts are carefully planned days in advance—we didn't. I built many windows with balsam wood, using toothpicks to hold the panes of glass we made from sheets of rock candy. When an actor jumped through, he was unburnt, and this is still used today. In sound film have the same system, but a prop boy dropped a box of broken glass when the actor jumped through.

Well-known men—Thomas Alva Edison, Jesse Lasky, Cecil DeMille, Carl Lummile, Horsley, Griffith, Mack Sennett, (who made Charlie Chaplain famous), Smith, Blackton, Rock, (responsible for technicolor), Lumiere, Gaston Meles—were all associates and contacted at one time or another. They were the fathers of the motion picture, and have been called by their Maker. There are perhaps 7 or 8 people, including myself, still alive who remember the trying days of the 1910 era. Around 1920-22 we had layoffs for months. I disliked this method and joined the John O. Powers Advertising Agency on Madison Ave., N. Y. City, and remained there for three years.

In 1923 the earliest movies with synchronized sound played from discs, and were called "Vitaphone." Edison had sound on records and shorts films in 1918. Talking movies would have been impossible without the development of amplifiers, microphones, loudspeakers, and communication circuits by Bell, Edison, and DeForest.

This, I believe, will interest everybody. In 1915 Mary Pickford was the biggest money-making star. She signed the second contract with Famous Players Lasky for $104,000 a year. Also in 1915 Charlie Chaplain signed with Esenecy for $1,500 per week. In 1916 Charlie Chaplain signed a contract with Mutual Film Corp. at $10,000 per week and a bonus of $150,000 for signing the contract, or a total of $670,000 for a year's work. In 1916 Adolph Zukor, Famous Players, signed Mary Pickford for two more years at a guarantee of $1,040,000 when he formed the Art Craft Pictures Corporation. Other contracts followed.

My brother, Earl, another pioneer, residing in Brooklyn, N. Y. (now passed on) sent me a clipping from a Brooklyn newspaper dated May 19, 1963. It was written by Jack Hoins, a man I worked with in D. W. Griffith's time. It read in part, "The New Montauk Theatre was built on Livingston Street. It ran the Griffith masterpiece, 'The Birth of a Nation' around 1915. I was one of the 20 people engaged in work backstage. We stood with our backs to the screen in the dark and performed like an orchestra. Each person was assigned such jobs as moaning, clanking chains, firing blank cartridge pistols, yelling or blowing a bugle. The director, watching the reversed picture on the back of the screen, would point a small flashlight at one or the other of us to do our bit. It was one of the earliest movies with sound. But I worked the show for 3 months and never saw the picture." signed, Jack Hoins. Behind the work of creation and the work of program and improvements we have witnessed the miracle of animated pictures rise to become one of the most important invention of our times. Science and education depend upon this media. And I'm happy and satisfied to be one of the few hundreds of pioneers that contributed

In 1919 Gloria Swanson at Paramount received a weekly salary of $20,000. And, did you know that Harold Lloyd accumulated $2,000,000 before I. T. That is income tax. And I, whose food cost us $5.00 a week, was struggling on a meager $7,000 a year salary as a film editor. In 1910 we did not fully realize what the future of movies would be.

Tom Edison told me, "movies would be the number one industry of the world. It did reach the top but later became the second leading industry and remained there for many years." In 1909, '10, and '11, a production would cost around $10,000 to $20,000, but rose sharply in the 1920's. Today just the negative stock in a modern production would be more than nine times that cost.

Many incidents that occur when preparing a scene, although very serious, can sound humorous. Once a cabin was built upstate in New York, among the trees to represent a spot in Canada. It was winter and we patiently waited for snow. Weeks passed—no snow. The expenses climbed.

Finally the production manager ordered 40 tons of salt and several tons of white cornflakes, (smaller size and pressed very thin). The roof was covered with salt and every part within the camera range. The crochets of the trees were glued and salted. We were ready to shoot next morning at 10 a. m., the weather report was in our favor. Next morning began a dandy snowstorm. Recess was called until the snow stopped. We had a blanket of snow about a foot deep, except that the salt had melted all the snow off the roof and around the building within the camera range. The scriptwriter killed the episode because a deadline had to be honored.

In 1923 an associate insisted that I join him at the RCA Photophone to play around the sound. It took time to reduce the speed of sound photography from 80 frames to 24 frames per second, thus sound pictures were born. David Sarnoff was head man. If you are interested, sound is photographed on a continuous film, movies at intermittent shots. The silent film was doomed. It was near the time of the depression and many friends lost millions.

I ended my career as Art Director of the Continental Baking Company after 10 years. I retired in the year when the N. Y. World's Fair closed the 2nd season—1940.

As my last gesture I produced a sound and color film of the Wonder Bread Bakery Exhibit at the New York World's Fair. As a background I used scenes taken by Mr. Winick of New York. During the shooting such notables as Lily Pons (Metropolitan Opera Star at the time), King George and Queen Elizabeth of England, and Frank Delano Roosevelt were photographed. I had lunch with all of them. It was a 16mm color and sound production of one hour duration, viewed by 3,500,000 fans in 26 weeks, and there were 15 separate units in operation.

My brother, Earl, another pioneer, residing in Brooklyn, N. Y. (now passed on) sent me a clipping from a Brooklyn newspaper dated May 19, 1963. It was written by Jack Hoins, a man I worked with in D.  Nearly 10,000 smallmouth bass fingerlings received from the National Fish Hatchery at Miles City, Montana were released at three sites along the Snake River between King Hill and Hammett recently. These releases are supplemental to channel catfish stocking in the same waters to improve game fish populations.

CITIZEN-OWNED WILDLIFE NEEDS HELP OF EVERYONE

By Phil Swanstrum, Supervisor Conservation Enforcement Idaho Fish and Game Department.
ARE YOU AWARE?—The future of hunting and fishing in Idaho faces many challenges in the years ahead. If we in Idaho are to continue to enjoy the pleasures associated with hunting and fishing, it will largely depend on what each sportsman contributes to meet these challenges now and in the future.
 The entire concept of modern day hunting and fishing is based on sportsmanship. The hunting and fishing license buyer is called a sportsman. The great majority of these are true sportsmen.
WE NEED YOUR HELP—Are you concerned about the deliberate waste, illegal killing and out of season pillage of your wildlife? Nothing the Fish and Game Department can do will solve the problem of poaching entirely unless participating sportsmen who obey the law themselves volunteer their help in a determination that others will follow the rules.
 When a cheater or poacher steals game, he is taking what belongs to you, the true sportsman. Our objective in law enforcement is a good, purposeful and affirmative program and effort. We neither want to be too severe nor too lenient and ineffective.
 Too many times a violator goes unpunished because no help is offered by law abiding citizens. What can the sportsmen do to aid your Fish and Game Department so that people who won't play to game fair will be aware they may expect to be exposed to justice? He might start by uniting with his conservation officer in an effort to bring to court those who lack respect for conservation laws. He should be proud to stand up without shame in support of a program which is dedicated to defending wildlife—his wildlife.
 Citizen owners of the Idaho wildlife resource should properly shoulder their responsibility by banding together in a common effort to clamp down on the cheaters. Every good citizen wants fair and proper laws, government and proficient law enforcement because he knows limitations placed on him are in this achievement.

 Some 50 to 75 residents of this vicinity drove to Lewiston Monday evening to witness one of the Junior League championship game between Lewiston and Burley. The cause for the turn-out was Ozzie Kamikberg, of Kendrick, who is a star player on the Lewiston aggregation. The group was not disappointed, he making a hit and two put-outs, one on a double play.

Lester Weaver Remembers:
 Lester Weaver, Cedar Ridge, recalls that it was "50 Years Ago" today (August 1), that he left Pennsylvania, via New York Central Railroad for Idaho. He arrived in Kendrick the afternoon of August 8th. He has been a resident of this area since that time.

BARLEY FIELDS IN BLOOM
 Each time the barley fields are tossed, To build an emerald sea; I find the rapture is not lost, That thrills the soul of me;—
 Because it soars on eager wings To where there is no room; For mediocre unkind things; WITH BARLEY FIELDS IN BLOOM.

New Storage Granary Falls

The full granary belonging to Lee Heath at the Cherrylane crossing, collapsed, almost silently, last Thursday afternoon, spreading a flowing stream of wheat across both tracks of the railroad.

Frantically working with all the available machinery, finally the waiting freight train engines, and by degrees, the entire train edged slowly and cautiously through the continually moving river of grain—grinding flour under the heavy wheels.

Luckily, all haulers were safely away before the accident happened.

Sadly the exciting scene was viewed by Mr. and Mrs. Newt Heath, Mrs. Lee Heath and Mrs. E. Steigers.
