and I was pleased to hear some of his forward thinking plans.

His priorities include such things as education, health and welfare, government reorganization and natural resources. Other subjects he touched on, all important to the people, were prisoner rehabilitation, property tax relief, state parks and occupational safety.

The Governor said, overall, the past year was a good one but not a great one.

He is asking the Legislature this year to take the reorganization plan to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment, and let them decide if the 260 state departments should be cut down to no more than 20.

I am hopeful that the Legislature will honor his request. The purpose in such reorganization is pointing responsibility to the director of each of these departments, and correlate the work of all of them through Satellite offices in the communities. This would make a much better government in our state and save a great deal of money and time of the individual taxpayer if matters could be taken care of at home.

On natural resources he said it was no secret that Idaho faces challenges today and tomorrow in this field and asked that there be careful and adequate planning. Relative to health and welfare he said the state must meet the justifiable needs of Idaho's citizens. He said the well-being of the state depends on the good health and economic well-being of the people.

In his budget message he said he was troubled with the inadequacies of our taxing methods and by the characteristics of a tax package which does not fairly distribute the tax burden on the people. His budget proposals are geared to two major goals—provision of a budget to meet the most critical needs of the people in some reform in taxation procedures. He asked for a spirit of unity in legislative deliberations.

ENDLESS VARIETY NEEDED WILDLIFE PRODUCTION
 By Jim Humbird
 Idaho Fish and Game Dept.

"A discerning naturalist once observed that 'Nature's way is any way that works.'" For example, when it comes to replenishing their kind, the workings of wild things occur in endless variety, some so weird that the marvel is continued existence of the species.

Black bears make easy work of having young. Cubs are born in January during the "twilight sleep" of hibernation. The quarter-ton sow gives birth to twins or triplets weighing only six to eight ounces each. The cubs are blind, hairless and toothless. With the coming of spring, these winter-born youngsters weigh three or four pounds each and emerge to the world outside the den hungry and active. They are either brown or black and grow fast.

Porcupines have a sticky time of it, especially with breech presentation. But nature has developed a way out. Young porcupines come packaged in puncture-proof bags which the female tears open on delivery. Exposed to the air, the soft moist spines harden in a matter of minutes. Then the animated pin cushions are prepared to face the world with confidence.

Armadillos are unique in their reproductive ways. They always have four young; they are always of the same sex (either all male or all female); and they always are identical quadruplets. It can't be otherwise because the single fertilized egg divides into four, each having identical gery plasma.

More variety is found in the case of birds. Fertilized eggs are laid down at daily intervals, yet they all hatch at about the same time. The reason is temperature. In the egg-laying process the female is away from the nest for extended periods, and with variable temperatures, growth of the embryo is halted. But when the last egg is laid the clutch is held at a uniform temperature by the setting bird. Then—and only then—does embryonic growth begin, for the first egg laid as well as the last.

Without such control over beginning incubation, hens of large brooded species, such as pheasants, quail and ducks, would have real problems. The first chick hatched would be two weeks older than the last, and trying to tend the fleet-footed while incubating others still in the eggs would bring neurosis to the hen and high mortality to the young.

Unusual—and significant, too—is the way many kinds of wildlife regulate their production of young to fit conditions in the environment. Given plenty of food and cover, cottontails, for example, will have more litters than they will under adverse circumstances. In fact, with food and shelter plenty, a sparse population will even include some breeding by young-of-the-year, something which never happens where the bunnies are overpopulated. Increased production and a determination to swell numbers to fit the capacity of the land to support them has been noted in deer, muskrats, and other species as well.

Unless faced with environmental resistance of one kind or another, animals tend to reproduce in geometric ratio on doubling and redoubling and soon would occupy all available space on earth. This is large biological force now clearly operating in the human species just as it does in all other species of life forms. It presents the greatest problem of all in the conservation of natural resources and the creation of better standards for people.

Populations don't grow in thin air. They grow with reference to an environment, to a habitat. In the case of human beings, to a resource base. The more the resource base is broadened and expanded the bigger the population becomes.

Sportsmen often regard the high abundance of animals as the thing they want most. A high animal abundance is likely to be described as a sportsman's paradise. And this is game.

But it's not that simple. A favorable environment will support a lot of animals. A poor environment will support only a few.

There is a difference between Idaho's large, hoofed browsing animals and many of the smaller species. There is a time lag in the adjustments of hoofed animals to their environment, to their food supplies, and there always is the danger of using up more than the annual growth of forage plans for carrying too many animals.

With smaller species such as grouse, quail and pheasants, the reaction to poor carrying capacity works fast—it is sudden. But big game animals use up the range for a few years before abrupt population declines occur.

The role of the game manager and conservation officer—and the difficult one—is to become so thoroughly acquainted with the game situation that they can recommend the type of management that will prevent the abrupt declines.

RABBIT HUNT CONTINUES WHILE WATERFOWL STOPS
 Cottontail and pigmy rabbit season runs through February 29 with bag and possession limit eight in the aggregate, the Idaho Fish and Game Department said today.

Goose season is closed statewide. The season for ducks, coots, and mergansers in all parts of the state, except Idaho counties within the Columbia Basin Mallard area, also end January 9.

Idaho counties located within the Columbia Basin Mallard area will not close for ducks, coots, and mergansers until January 23. A new hunting license for 1972 is needed for rabbits and waterfowl, but the Federal duck stamp issued for the 1971-72 waterfowl season remains valid.

Youngsters under the age of 16 are not required to have a duck stamp. Hunting licenses, or combination hunting-fishing licenses, are needed for those sports beginning at age 12, except for persons specifically excluded by law.

All upland game bird hunting in the state is ended except chukar, quail and the Hungarian partridge in parts of the Snake and Salmon river drainages. Hunting for these species will be open through January 23, except the upper section of the river in Custer and Lemhi counties which was closed by emergency order due to snow conditions and vulnerability of the chukars.

COFFEE DRINKING DECLINES

People in the United States are drinking less coffee according to a report by economists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, says Joanne Anderson, Latah County extension home economist. Number of cups per day is declining, particularly among people under 25 and over 70. The young and the old are less inclined to the beverage than the age group in between.

The report said per capita consumption was about 13 and one-half pounds in 1970 compared with nearly 18 pounds in 1949.

Further reduction is predicted because people under 25 and over 70 outnumber the rest of the population by 5 percent. With both the young and the old using less coffee than the national average of a trifle more than two cups per day, they account for about 6 percent since 1949. The statisticians said young people nowadays drink less coffee than their counterparts used to and are drinking less than those in the middle-age groups. The young drink more soft drinks than ever. They put away 23 gallons of pop each in 1969, compared with 10 in 1950.

Another factor suggested by experts is a switch in coffee beans. Robusta beans are imported from Africa and Asia chiefly for instant coffee. They have stronger flavor than arabica beans from Brazil and Ethiopia. Overall quality of arabica is generally considered superior to the robustas. Colombian milds are usually rated the premium coffee. They are grown in Colombia, with a few from Kenya and Tanzania.

Robusta beans cost less and have technological advantages for instant blends. Although consumption of instant coffee leveled off in the 1960's, robusta import continued to climb. Some are going to regular coffee. This implies a change in flavor which has contributed to the decline in total consumption.

Use of tea has increased slightly. Consumption of milk has gone down from 40 gallons per capita in 1952 to 34 gallons in 1970.

With our Father, even God, the whole family of man would be brethren.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Impossible is a word only to be found in the dictionary of fools.—Napoleon

Home Cookin' . .

Mrs. Walter Moden contributed two recipes for our column this week, that I know you'll all enjoy. Next week, we'll have recipes from Mrs. Stanley Sneve of Sunnyside, Washington.

SWEET AND SOUR CHICKEN WINGS

10 to 12 chicken wings
1/4 cup catsup
1/2 tsp. Hickory Smoked salt
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup cornstarch
1/2 cup cider vinegar
1 egg beaten, with 2 tsp. water
1 tsp. soy sauce
Cooking oil
1 tsp. salt
1/4 cup chicken broth
1 tsp. Italian herb seasoning
Cut tips from chicken wings. Dip wings in egg and then in corn starch, to which garlic salt has been added.
Pour cooking oil into electric frypan and turn 350d. Brown wings. Make a sauce of the next ingredients.
Place the meat in 10x10 pan. Cover with sauce and bake 40 min at 375d. Serves 5-6.
Mrs. Moden took this dish to a pack meeting for cub scouts and some one asked she put it in the News. We're glad she did, we all enjoy sharing recipes.

LUNCHEON WALDORF SALAD

2 pkg. apple flavored gelatin (I use mixed fruit now)
2 cups boiling water
1 3/4 cups cold water
1/4 cup Sauterne or Rhine wine
1 cup praline or walnut meats, chopped fine
1 cup apple cubes, unpeeled
1 cup diced celery
1/4 cup marachino cherries, quartered
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water, add cold water, then wine. Let stand until partially set. Add remaining ingredients. Pour into one large mold or 8 individuals.
Note: I use 1 1/4 cups boiling water (a decrease of 1/4 cup), then increase the wine to 1/2 cup. Always add more of other ingredients also, especially the cherries. Occasionally add marshmallows. (large or's quartered do not float like the miniatures)
The above recipe, Mrs. Moden said, won first in the Idahonian Salads contest. However, she said, "it was not printed right in the cook book, and she has had over so many requests for it. Sounds delicious, doesn't it?"

START NOW TO OBTAIN PROOF OF BIRTH DATE

by John S. Jennings
Field Representative
The man at my desk was nearing his sixty-fifth birthday. He was an Indian retiring after 30 years of work with a local mill. We had just completed his application for social security retirement benefits. I asked him whether he had a birth certificate or some other evidence to prove his age. "I told you when I was born," he said. "My word is good."
I informed him that I certainly did not question his word but I had to have evidence of his age to send in with his claim. "I do not lie," he said. "I have never lied." I have always lived by my word. I have told you when I was born; that should be proof enough." Beautiful—just beautiful. The man could sit there with complete sincerity and expect his word to be accepted without question.
How much more simple our job would be if we could operate like that. However, the Social Security Administration has been charged with the responsibility of paying the correct of benefits to those persons who are legally entitled to them. To that end, fairly strict regulations regarding evidence of age have been established. Whenever a person files for retirement benefits he or she is asked to submit a public or church record of birth which was recorded or filed before the person became five years of age. If such early records are not obtainable, we can accept other good evidence from a variety of sources. But an effort must be made by the claimant to obtain an early record of birth or baptism.
We know from experience that the states vary a great deal in how they have kept their vital statistics. We would not, for example, expect a birth record to be obtainable from the State of Washington prior to 1907. In contrast, however, Wisconsin began keeping records in 1814.
Foreign records of age are generally quite readily obtainable. A woman recently received a baptismal record from a church in Sweden just eight days after I told her she would have to send for it. West Germany provides beautiful birth records translated into several languages for a fee of 40 cents including postage. Even most Soviet-bloc countries provide excellent record, often without fee.
Once we have determined that no early birth or baptismal record is available we begin to search for other good evidence, and quickest to obtain. The 1910 and 1920 federal census records are another possibility. Marriage license applications, voting records, old family Bibles, children's birth certificates showing the parents' ages—all can be used as evidence of age.
For those who feel they may have a problem proving how old they are, I suggest they do something about it now regardless of their age. The Social Security office can help them—and will be more than glad to do so. We can

NEWS FROM THE IDAHO FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

Fed cattle marketings this affl may be close to those of last fall and a little below summer marketings. There were 3 per cent more cattle on feed at mid-year in weight groups that typically supply more than half of the marketings in October, November and December. The summer placements probably were up little, if at all.
With above average steer-corn price ratios, cattle feeders likely will increase fall placements. This would boost the first half 1972 marketings above year-earlier levels, especially in the spring.
A downward adjustment in hog numbers is well under way. Hogs and pigs on farms on September 1, in the ten Corn Belt States, are estimated at 46.9 million head— 8 per cent below a year earlier. Breeding hogs totaled 6.3 million head—12 per cent less than the year before. Market hogs were down 7 percent.

The June-August 1971 pig crop in these states is estimated at 16.6 million head, 9 per cent below last year. There were 10 per cent less sows farrowed but the number of pigs per sow showed an increase. Good prices and abundant supplies of feed may cause hog farmers to go overboard in plans for expansion. Farmers should use caution and try to hold hog supplies down to a level that will maintain the present market and take advantage of a price increase that could result from a small decrease in farrowings this fall and next spring.
1971 milk production is expected to exceed last year's output by about 1 per cent. Record milk prices, reduced feed costs, a good supply of replacement heifers and eased dairy labor situation favor another production increase next year. Wage-price restraints may slow the rise in production costs.

provides addresses where a person can send for age evidence for all of the states and most of the countries of the world. We also have a fee schedule for each source.
By the way, establishing my Indian friend's age turned out to be quite simple. The Tribal Council has been keeping a tribal census for years—as has the North Idaho Indian Agency in Lapwai. The man was listed on both rolls as having been born exactly when he said he was.

The egg lay has continued well above 1970 so far this year but the gap is narrowing. Output by end of the year may be near last year's total.

OUR COMPETITION RECOMMENDS BRONATE®

Our competitors think so highly of Bronate as a broad-leaf weed killer in wheat and other grain crops that they want you to tank mix their products with Bronate.

While we appreciate the compliment, we don't necessarily go along with the recommendation.

Because while the addition of less effective herbicides to Bronate may help the other herbicides, it doesn't help Bronate. Matter of fact, it can hurt Bronate.

Unlike many other herbicides, Bronate kills your weeds without damaging your wheat. And tank-mixing reduces Bronate's high degree of selectivity.

Also, unlike other herbicides, Bronate isn't restricted to any particular soil type or condition. And tank-mixing limits Bronate's wide range of application.

Use Bronate alone if your weed problems include Tarweed, Gromwell, Henbit, Dogfennel, Crowfoot, Purple Mustard, and the rest of the Mustard family. Or any of the 23 other kinds of weeds listed on the Bronate label.

Our experience has shown that Bronate used alone has increased productivity for Northwest wheat farmers by as much as 20 bushels per acre.

Is it any wonder our competitors recommend Bronate?

For more information on how Bronate can help you, see your supplier or write Mr. R. P. Rich, Rhodia/Chipman Division, 120 Jersey Avenue, New Brunswick, N.J. 08903.

BRONATE® DOESN'T NEED ANY HELP.

Jan. 10
Blizzard—

Whether it was called "scattered snow showers" or "intermittent gusty winds" it added up to a full scale blizzard such as are seldom seen in the area, over the past weekend. Starting Friday night and lasting well through Monday night, winds clocked at 70 miles per hour blew the few inches of dry snow into drifts up to four feet deep, immobilizing traffic and making area folks glad they were well prepared.

Other Items

Chas. Jelleberg spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Smith, visiting out the storm. The Smiths were in Moscow Friday.

More Blizzard

Last week-end's blizzard continued through Wednesday, lessening day-by-day. Drifting snow late Sunday and early Monday closed schools, Monday and Tuesday but roads were open enough to allow schedules to be resumed Wednesday. An emergency bus schedule for two routes out of Deary was issued by principal Andre Molsey, who stated that if any more school is missed, it will have to be made up.

Other Items

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Smith and family, who were joined by his mother, Mrs. Eva Daniels, at Juliaetta, journeyed to Lewiston Monday to meet a new member of the family, Mrs. Daniels niece, Mrs. Joe Blasko, presented her husband and family with a son, Christopher James Jan. 5. After a visit with the three Blaskos, the group shared supper with the new grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald White and son, James. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Funke, Brian, Jeff and Carleen spent the weekend visiting relatives at Nez Perce.

ADDITIONAL FEDERAL FUNDS AVAILABLE FOR RURAL ENVIRONMENTAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Latah County farmers should be able to accomplish more soil and water conservation and carry out additional pollution prevention and abatement practices in 1972, than they did in 1971, according to Roy R. Glenn, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Committee.

The ASCS official said recent action by Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz in announcing an additional $5 1/2 million for the 1972 Environmental Assistance Program will result in an additional $621,000 in Idaho. This will make a total 1972 REAP allocation for Idaho of $2,165,000 and should mean a total allocation to Latah County of over $60,000. This compares with an allocation of $48,262 for the 1971 REAP.

"This additional allocation will enable us to help farmers do more to prevent or abate agricultural-related pollution of water, land and air, and to conserve agricultural soil, water, woodland and wildlife resources," Mr. Glenn said.

He said Secretary Butz had cited response of farmers and ranchers to the re-districted emphasis of REAP in 1971 and their willingness to match or exceed additional Federal investments in pollution prevention and abatement as a major factor in providing the additional funds for REAP in 1972. An October report from selected states showed a 400 percent increase in 1971 over 1970 in funds to be expended for pollution abatement practices according to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Mr. Glenn invited farmers to stop in the ASCS county office to discuss their conservation problems, and later apply for matching funds to complete a needed conservation practice.

"Each REAP practice approved by the ASC County Committee must have related soil and water benefits," the ASC chairman said. "So we can't help with every problem on the farm. But we will be able to help many farmers solve their agriculture-related pollution problems."

News From Boise About Legislators

Getting settled in their Boise homes, apartments, and hotel quarters for the duration of the legislative session are Senator John Mix, Representative and Mrs. Harold Snow, and Representative George Brocke, Jr.

Senator Mix is living with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mix at 2518 Davis Street. Mrs. Mix did not accompany her husband to Boise but will visit several times during the session.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Snow are living at Parkview Apartments, 3120 Crescent Rim Drive, Apartment 201, and are enjoying the view of Ann Morrison Park. Mrs. Snow is past president of the women's group of legislative wives, better known as "The Legisladies."

New to the legislature this session, replacing the late George Brocke, Sr. is his son, George Brocke, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Brocke are living at 808 1/2 10th Street.

The wives of legislators are settling in and held their first weekly luncheon meeting last Thursday at the Cathedral of the Rockies. Miss Karen Hurd, Miss Idaho, and runner-up Miss America, was guest speaker.

The women not only have weekly programs throughout the session but they enter into many other activities in the capital city, and will meet at some time during the session at the home of Mrs. Cecil Andrus, wife of the Governor.

As part of their civic work they will make a trip to the State School and Hospital at Nampa where they sew and do other needed things. Last year they furnished two rooms at the cottages there. They also serve at the Elks Rehabilitation Center and the South Idaho Children's Home here.

The wives also serve as unofficial secretaries at home for their husbands, taking telephone calls, making non-legislative appointments for them and answering the myriad of personal letters that need attention.

Wives often keep the evening meal in the oven while waiting for their men to come home from late afternoon committee meetings and hearings. Often they wait in the lounge to chauffeur their husbands home.

This past week there were also daily activities when different clubs invited them to attend area functions.

Pages serving in the House from District 5 include two seniors from Moscow High school and one from Kendrick. Donna Sutton is living with Mr. and Mrs. Jain Tierrey, and Dave Neal, who is staying with his uncle and aunt. Mr. and Mrs. James G. Reid. Both are seniors.

Lee Magnuson, Kendrick high school, is serving as a page in the Senate.

Last year 213 farmers participated in the Latah REAP, generally on a 50-50 cost-share basis.

The following achievements were accomplished:

4,071 acres of both permanent and rotation grass seedings were cost-shared with $23,621 matching funds. Two pollution abatement projects which cost the farmers in excess of $15,000 received $500 in cost-sharing funds.

Forestry practices such as thinning, pruning and planting trees for timber production received nearly $2000 in cost-sharing dollars. Range improvement practices including seeding, fencing, and water development was allocated $782.

US DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE Immigration & Naturalization Service

R. C. Hoffelder, District Director of The Immigration and Naturalization Service, today urged all aliens in Montana and Idaho who have not yet filled out alien addresses report forms, to do so before January 31 at the nearest immigration and naturalization service office or local post office.

The immigration official pointed out that the law requires all non-citizens, except persons in diplomatic status and foreign representatives to certain international organizations such as the United Nations, to report their addresses to the government each January.

Mr. Hoffelder added: "The parent or legal guardian of an alien child under 14 years of age must fill out the address report form for such a child in order to comply with the law."

He declared: "We have tried to make it as convenient as possible for non-citizens to meet the address report requirements; and, in view of serious penalties for willful violation, all persons subject to the address report law are urged to fulfill this obligation before the end of January."

Mr. Hoffelder advised: "It is easy for an alien to meet this requirement. He just goes to the nearest immigration and naturalization service office or post office, fills out the address report form and returns it personally to the clerk or by mail to the nearest office of the immigration and naturalization service. Any non-citizen who is ill may send a friend or relative to obtain the card for him, and return it personally or by mail after it has been completed by the alien."

The immigration official estimated that nearly 9000 address reports will be submitted before January 31st.
