If it wasn't for the honor...

The leaders in most every competitive endeavor experience the same thing.

They get shot at by the whole field.

Jim McClure is getting it now. He has expected it as a political fact of life. He accepts it. Five of the most read political writers in the state have labeled him leading in the Republican primary. Three independent statewide polls have had him leading (plus a number of informal supermarket polls).

It's like this.

Each trailing Republican candidate must shoot at Jim McClure because any vote he can take away from the leader counts for two when it's added to his own.

The Democratic candidates are shooting at him because if they can help the G.O.P. contenders defeat the strongest Republican in the primary, they figure they can beat the second runner handily come November.

It's as simple as that. We thought you should know.

Jim was saying the other day that it reminded him of what the man said who was tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail — "If it wasn't for the honor of the thing, I'd just as soon be left alone."

Relax Jim but not too much!

It is not often that a doctor has a run on one particular line of work as did Dr Tuomy last Saturday. Starting with the son of M. S. Wilson in Genesee, he removed the boy's tonsils, then proceeded to the home of Mrs. Dave Denner in Fix Ridge where he performed a similar operation on Mrs. Denner's three children, then returned to Genesee and removed the tonsils for Fern, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stony Point Clipping — A small Home Cookin' . .

A few weeks ago we printed several recipes from the cook book compiled by members of the 6th grade at Juliaetta Elementary school. We have used many of these recipes and have found them to be just as good as some of our old favorites. This week's young cooks are Joan Silflow and Polly Taylor.

Try Joan's one-dish meal, Chinese Hot Dish, you'll really enjoy it. Serve it with a green salad and a plate of Polly's Chocolate Chip Cookies and you'll have a delicious and inexpensive meal.

CHINESE HOT DISH

- 1 pound hamburger
 - 2 large onions
 - 2 cups celery
 - 2 tablespoons oil
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper
 - 1 can mushroom soup
 - 1 can cream of chicken soup
 - 1 can bean sprouts
 - 4 teaspoon soy sauce
 - 1 cup uncooked rice
 - 3 cups water
 - 1 can Chinese noodles
- Brown meat; saute onions and celery in oil. Add all other ingredients except noodles. Place in casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for ½ hour. Cover with noodles. Bake ½ hour more.

CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES

- 1 cup shortening
 - ½ cup sugar
 - 1 cup brown sugar
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - 2 eggs
 - 2 cups flour
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - ½ or 1 cup chopped nuts
 - 2 cups semi sweet chocolate chips
- Cream shortening, sugar and vanilla until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Sift flour, soda and salt; add to creamed mixture. Stir in nuts and chips. Drop by teaspoon onto baking sheet. Bake at 375d for 8 to 10 minutes. Makes about 6 dozen.

AN INDIVIDUAL MATTER

A master plan for diet is no more workable than centralized economic planning. Individuals are as varying in their wants and needs as geographic regions. Thus it is unreasonable to tell the entire population to give up certain basic foods because some people, for medical reasons, are advised by doctors to restrict their diets with respect to these foods.

Milk disagrees with some individuals but that does not mean the nation should stop drinking milk—or eating other dairy products, meat or any of the nutritious elements of a normal person's diet. Usually there is a good reason for eating a balanced choice of the foods that nature has placed at our disposal. An item in the Chicago Tribune shows why this is so. It seems that studies conducted by researchers at Cornell University have now revealed that a widespread deficiency of calcium in the population is the primary reason millions of people lose their teeth. According to the science editor of the Tribune Ronald Kotulak, the report of these researchers "...also gives new hope to 35 million more Americans afflicted with periodontal disease who are in the process of losing their teeth. Milk is the major source of calcium in the diet" and "...the bone loss associated with periodontal disease in the human may be reversible by dietary calcium in many subjects."

Endeavoring to tell millions of people what they should or should not eat via directives from Washington or anywhere else is no more feasible than centralized government management of business in a nation as diversified as the United States.

NOTIONS SHOULD GO WELL WITH FABRICS

It's important to match notions to your fabrics, says Janice I. Buckner, extension clothing and textile specialist, U. of I.

There are many threads on the market from which to choose. Polyester thread is for polyester and other synthetic fabrics except nylon. For nylon fabric, use nylon thread. All cotton thread is for cottons, while blend fabrics call for cotton-wrap polyester threads. Use silk thread with wool and silk fabric as both are animal fibers and thus compatible Mrs. Buckner adds.

Top stitching and hand worked buttonholes call for silk buttonhole twist. If it is not available you can topstitch by doublethreading the upper part of machine with your regular thread. Use 2 bobbins to fit on the top pin. Zippers should match the fashion fabric in weight and color. Match background color in a print or plaid.

Contrast color zippers are used for decoration. They are sewn in to show. Freshrink zippers for washable garments—soak them in hot water, air dry and press lightly.

Buttons must be compatible too. They should wash or dryclean in the same way as the fashion fabric. Choose buttons similar in character to fabric, such as sporty buttons for sports fabrics.

Braid and binding should match exactly. If used for contrast, make sure trim and/or fabric will not bleed during washing or cleaning. It is a good idea to preshrink these too.

Snaps, hooks and eyes should be chosen according to use and color. Tiny ones will hold small details while sturdy ones are for more functional uses. Silver colored snaps, hooks and eyes go on light colored fabrics, while black ones are designed for darker fabrics.

EARLY BIRD SEASONS

Two early bird hunting seasons in the offing will be special chukar partridge shooting, primarily for floaters on rubber rafts in parts of the main Salmon River and its Middle Fork tributary; and mourning dove season, which is statewide.

The special chukar hunt runs from August 1 through September 15 inclusive—and the mourning dove season is September 1-17 inclusive.

The special chukar hunt is restricted to those portions of Custer, Idaho, Lemhi and Valley counties lying within one-half mile of the main Salmon River from the mouth of Sheep Creek (approximately 30 miles above Riggins, Idaho), upstream to the mouth of Horse Creek, and those portions lying within one-half mile of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River—its mouth upstream to the mouth of Indian Creek.

It is stressed that the early chukar hunt is for river floaters. The described areas are remote from roads and access is by specially designed white water boats and rubber rafts. There are also several back country air strips along the Middle Fork.

Mourning dove season here is similar to 1971 with a daily bag limit of 10 doves and a possession limit after the first day of 20 birds. Shooting hours will be from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

RAINBOW TROUT—
MOST POPULAR FISH

By Stu Murrell, regional conservation educator Idaho Fish & Game Dept. Jerome

The rainbow trout is Idaho's most popular game fish. It is distributed throughout the state and thrives in all types of water from high mountain lakes and streams to the larger rivers and reservoirs. The rainbow is native to Idaho waters and includes the steelhead, which is a rainbow that is hatched in Idaho streams—goes downriver to the ocean—and then returns to the place where it hatched.

Rainbows may take the form of to spawn.

large silvery fish such as those found in some reservoirs to small, dark and heavily spotted inhabitants of small streams. Its basic characteristic is the rainbow colored stripe down the side which gives this trout its name. Colors are more prominent during the spawning season, and at other times of the year, may be entirely missing. Rainbows are closely related to the native cutthroat of Idaho and will freely interbreed with them. For this reason, it is often difficult to tell if the fish is a hybrid because it may take on characteristics of both species.

Rainbows actually will tolerate quite a range of temperature from 32 degrees to over 80 degrees F, but they prefer temperatures around 70d. The water must be relatively free of pollution and well supplied with oxygen. They will not spawn naturally unless they have some type of clean gravel supplied with water running and percolating through it. Because of it, many of our reservoirs must be regularly stocked with hatchery-reared trout to replace those taken by the angler. The reproductive capacity of rainbows is not really high as fish go, since the one pound female will usually contain about 1,000 eggs. By comparison the spawning carp may contain several million eggs.

In heavily fished, readily-accessible waters of the state, the Idaho Fish and Game Department usually releases catchable sized trout on a regular schedule throughout the summer months to make up for the fishing pressure. The hatchery fish are usually quite healthy and active and will put up quite a fight on the end of the fishermen's line unless they have been in the wild waters for a while. They are real gluttons and are caught on the wide variety of lures and bait. The intent is that they be caught by fishermen reasonably soon after being released, and in this way the pressure is taken off wild rainbow stocks.

Most rainbows mature at one to two years, and spawn in the spring. However, hatchery fish have been bred to spawn at various times throughout the year and the angler may find fish with mature eggs at just about any period. They normally live to about six years of age. Rainbows spawn by digging a nest in the gravel while flapping their tail rapidly and allowing the water to move the gravel and cover the eggs as they are deposited and fertilized by the male.

The eggs incubation period is regulated by water temperature, averaging about 30 days at 40 degrees F to 19 days at 60 degrees. The egg hatches and the small fish lives out the egg sack for a period of time under the gravel. When the sack is absorbed, the fish then works its way up through crevices in the gravel and is ready to begin foraging on its own. Growth rates vary with the temperature and water fertility but an average over the state would be about 8 or 9 inches in a years time. Fish in high mountain streams and lakes may actually mature to 5 to 6 inches and may not grow larger than 10 inches. The growing season in many of the mountain waters is actually quite short.

Rainbows feed on a variety of plankton, fresh water shrimp, insects, snails, crustaceans and other small fish depending on what the environment supplies. However they prefer the margin areas on lakes and reservoirs and need a variety of holes and riffle areas in stream and river habitat for their life requirements. The rainbow is considered a top game fish, and fights well with its characteristic tendency to jump and dance on its tail. It is by these acrobatics that rainbows frequently throw the hook.

The Idaho state record for a common rainbow is 19 pounds. That fish was caught by R. F. Williams in Hayden Lake way back in November, 1947. Lake Pend Oreille's famous Kamloops trout are actually a lake variety of rainbow, but for record purposes, they are usually tallied separately from common rainbows. The world record Kamloops at 37 pounds was caught from Pend Oreille Lake in 1947 by Wes Hamlet.

Idaho's record ocean-going rainbow, the steelhead was caught by Leonard Proffitt from the North Fork of the Clearwater River in 1966. It weighed 29 pounds and 8 ounces.

Rainbow management calls for maintaining clean water and water temperatures in the mid-70's or below. Hatchery fish can be used to some extent for replacing natural reproduction in streams or rivers that have been degraded by such

"Small Town"

Yes, we like it here, or we would not stay. We've tried the world of hurry up and run; We have come back here to this quiet way; And we know how to enjoy the warm sun. We love to watch the summer tourists rest In our tiny town park, so cool and green. They stop for lunch or supper at its best, And enjoy our trees and valley serene. They rush in from highway or mountain pass, And tumble from each car, glad to arrive; To relish fresh spring water and soft grass, So welcome after any long day's drive. All the youngsters head for the swimming pool, While mom loads the nearest picnic table. When the splashing is done, the kids are cool— They prolong meals as long as they're able. "All aboard!" calls the driver, "On the way!" They scramble in, will they turn east or west?

Perhaps they shall return another day,

If our hospitality was its best. We see their license plates from south and north, And envy folks their journey as they go. They often tell us our village is worth a lot, for it is so tranquil and slow. "Yes indeed!" our youth all echo loudly! "Too slow for us, we want to venture out. Of course we love our home," they say proudly, "But we must see what others tell about." Oh yes, they leave us here to watch the park; We send them out to see the world and learn. We wait in summer bright and winter dark— And hope they occasionally return.

What does it cost to build a new school or fix the streets
in your town?

The public has a right to know what it costs to build or improve a street or building in your town. Your local newspaper is the publication where you find that information.

For centuries, people have recognized the right of the community and of the individual to be put on notice.

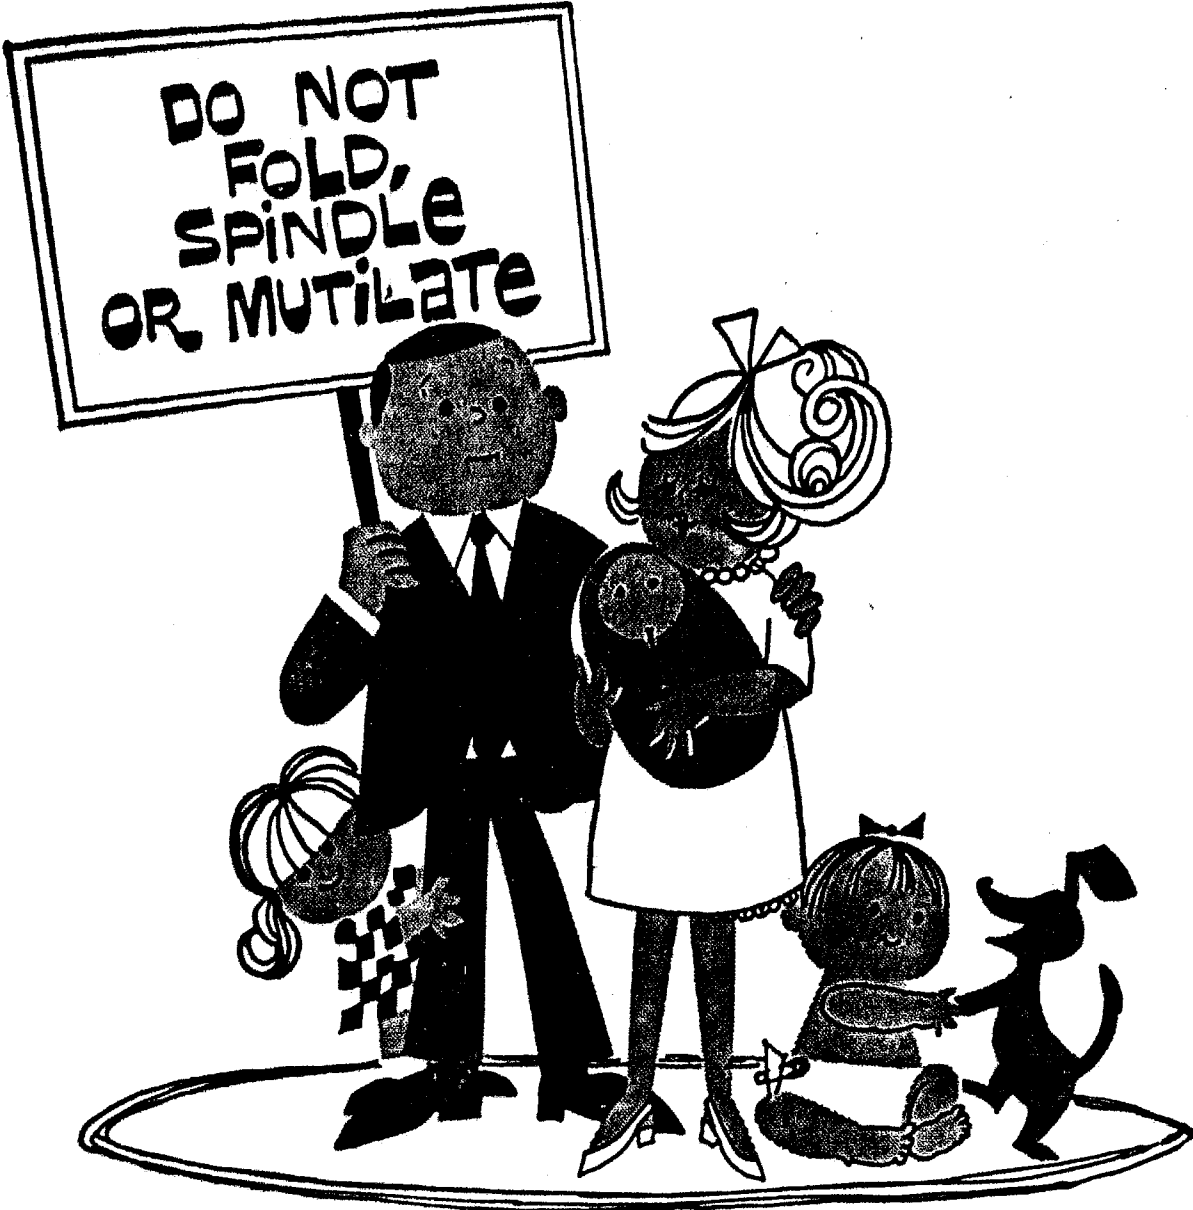

Many citizens don't understand what a legal notice is, or why they're printed in your local newspaper. Many people don't read them until it's too late.

Legal notices keep a citizen informed on all school, city and county action by official bodies. Legal notices also give a citizen an opportunity to do something about some proposed action that may affect his rights.

Your local newspaper is a long established medium for such notices as provided by law or by official designation. And, it's one of the many public services provided by this newspaper.

Lee Lisher Critical Of Highway Officials

As candidate for County Commissioner for District No. 1, an issue most often brought to my attention by the people of Latah County concerns the poor performance of their elected officials toward the county road system. A performance which has ignored authority granted them by law to create an over all county road system beneficial to all of the county by the appointment of a single guiding hand to supervise the program, and allow an efficient use of labor and expenditure of tax money, which the county needs and its people want. A performance which has by this miserable failure, permitted a county road system that has led to the making of a three headed monster, that not only refuses to cooperate, but in its attempt to impress a particular part of the county population, has led to:

1. No planned spending by failure to set up a budget leaving us with a situation of no one knowing who is spending what, much less what for.
2. A constant battle as to the

THE HUMAN SKIN

The human skin is marvelously complex, highly efficient and works 24 hours a day.

In order to do its work, the skin is packed with delicate instruments, notes the Idaho Medical Association. Each square inch contains 78 nerves to record pain; 650 sweat glands; 20 blood vessels; 78 sensory heat regulators; 13 sensory cold regulators; 1,300 nerve endings to record pain; 19,500 sensory cells at the ends of nerve fibers; 100 pressure apparatus for the sense of touch; 100 sebaceous glands; 65 hairs and muscles and 19,500,000 cells.

All of these work together to perform the six essential functions of the skin; protection, temperature regulation, sensation, excretion, excretion and respiration.

Considering the countless insults it is subjected to, the skin's uncomplaining and continuing function is amazing, but it does rebel at times.

There is a long and growing list of substances that can cause problems for some people—cosmetics, leather, synthetic fibers, plastics, wool, various chemicals, base metals, rubber, animal dander, certain plants fur, feathers and other things. In adolescence, it rebels at temporary overactivity of the oil glands of the face and the result is acne, which does need treatment. At other times the hair which is part of the skin, may produce dandruff, fall out, or grow in the wrong places.

priority of equipment use.

3. A constant battle as to the priority of equipment use.

If elected County Commissioner I would insist of a budget made out for the Commissioners and to be made public with a list of materials and supplies when and where used. I would suggest they have a supervisor to set up a work schedule so they plan their use of equipment and man power. I would also suggest some of the main roads need to be dust oiled for better roads also mean better business for Latah County Merchants.

Report On the Latah County Sheriff's Office

by Sheriff Edwin L. (Ed) Pierson

During political campaigning it is a common occurrence for candidates to issue statements concerning what they will do if elected. This is fine as the public is entitled and deserves to know what long range plans an individual has who is seeking an office. However, it is my good fortune, as an incumbent, not only to tell you what I will do but what I am doing and will continue to do when elected.

As Sheriff of Latah County I would like to say the Sheriff's Office is not solely a human relations center. It is a law enforcement department set up by you, the people, with its main purpose being to maintain law and order and to protect the citizens of Latah County. In accomplishing these purposes it is necessary to maintain good public relations with all citizens, in the cities and in the county. Since the first of the year the number of office deputies has been increased from one to three in an effort to provide twenty-four (24) hour a day contact with the public. This number will be increased as funds become available. A very good public relationship already exists in the Sheriff's Office and we have enjoyed the best of understanding and cooperation. This includes the citizens of the City of Moscow, the Moscow Police Department, the Idaho State Police, the Clearwater Search & Rescue, the Office of Civil Defense, the citizens out in the county and citizens from all surrounding towns. To maintain an effective department it is necessary we have the faith, trust and cooperation of all the people. As Sheriff of Latah County I am happy to report this has been the case in my department.

My staff considers it an obligation and a pleasure to serve the people of Latah County and to render help whenever possible. As a matter of information I am listing a few of the services rendered by the Sheriff's Office.

occasion by performing priority things first.

- 6 Occasionally we are called upon to assist hospitals who need certypes of blood for an emergency. We stand ready to assist them if the need arises.

We recognize that a person calling our office with a problem, whether it is 3:00 A. M. or 3:00 P. M., is a concerned citizen and we endeavor to render courteous service to these complaints. There are many other services rendered by the Sheriff's Office too numerous to list in this article.

As for the law enforcement side of the Sheriff's Office it is our purpose first of all to prevent crime, to halt an incident before it develops into a full-blown tragedy. If and when a crime is committed, either major or minor, it is our responsibility to diligently set to work, using all avenues available to locate and identify the violator of the law. No crime is too small or too large for our attention. I am sure the people agree that our ability along this line has been demonstrated. The cooperation of citizens has played an important role in our crime investigations and we are proud of this public relationship.

The officers of the Sheriff's Office realize their responsibility to stay up-to-date on the happenings in the county and to be fully familiar with "operating procedure." They accomplish this by arriving early for shift duty, reading all reports, the daily logs and checking their own personal board for specific instructions, follow-up requests and information. They must be ready to perform effectively in a multiplicity of situations. They are not limited to one specific task.

For our officers to be competent and knowledgeable it is necessary they be well informed and trained. A training program has already been initiated using federal funding whenever possible. To be recipients of federal law enforcement funding requires long range planning and lots of paper work. This we have done and will continue to do. One visible example of this is the Court House annex which is under construction at this time and which will be our new Law Enforcement Center. Our equipment is being updated and additional equipment is being purchased through this program, i. e., we have purchased a Radar Unit and camera equipment with the aid of federal funding. All male deputies, within one year of employment date, are sent to an excellent training school in Pocatello which offers extensive courses in all phases of law enforcement: Public Relations, Security, Crime Investigation, Accident Investigation, Idaho State Law, and many other related subjects. The women deputies also attend special classes from time to time at their own expense. Our training of personnel has proven beneficial to other agencies as well as our own, i. e., a Deputy Sheriff sent to a federally funded school on bombs testified in a neighboring county's recent murder case.

Let me assure all of you that the Sheriff's Office has not been standing still. It is a growing, progressive department. My staff has pride in their work and eagerness to consistently do a good job for all of you.

It is my sincere desire to continue in my present position as your Sheriff so the program already in operation will have an opportunity to prove themselves and the programs now on the planning table will have a chance to take root.
