Take My Son By The Hand

(Reprinted From The Meter)

(This anonymously-written piece should be of special interest to those who have children starting to school for the first time this month. It should also be of interest to anyone who has children or grandchildren of any age. We think it's just plain good writing and are sorry that we cannot credit the author who did such a beautiful job.)

My son starts to school tomorrow. It's all going to be strange and new to him for a while, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently.

You see, up to now, he's been king of the roost.

He's been boss of the backyard. I have always been around to repair his wounds, and I've always been handy to soothe his feelings.

But now . . . things are going to be different.

This morning he is going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start on his great adventure that will include wars and tragedy and sorrow.

To live his life in the world he has to live in, will require faith and love and courage.

So, teacher, I wish you would sort of take him by his young hand and teach him the things he will have to know.

Teach him—but gently—if you can. He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true.

Teach him that for every scoundrel, there is a hero, that for every crooked politician there is a dedicated leader. Teach him that for every enemy there is a friend.

Let him learn early that the bullies are the easiest people to lick.

Teach him the wonders of books. Give him quiet time to ponder the eternal mystery of birds in the sky, bees in the sun, and flowers on a green hill.

Teach him that it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat. Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone tells him they are wrong.

Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone else is getting on the bandwagon. Teach him to listen to all men, but to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and to take only the good that comes through.

Teach him to sell his brawn and brains to the highest bidder, but never to put a price tag on his heart and soul.

Teach him to close his ears to a howling mob, and to stand and fight if he thinks he's right.

Teach him gently, but don't coddle him, because only the test of fire makes fine steel.

This is a big order, teacher, but see what you can do. He's such a nice little fellow, my son.

FEDERAL DUCK STAMPS

UPPED FROM $3 TO $5

The 1972-73 federal Duck Stamp, which shows two emperor geese landing in overcast Arctic surroundings, will cost waterfowlers $5 instead of the $3 fee they paid last year. A new duck stamp is issued each year by the U. S. Postal Service. The 1972-73 stamp is now on sale at all U. S. Post Offices. Every migratory waterfowl hunter 16 years of age or older must purchase this stamp as well as the state hunting license. All revenue for duck stamps, except the cost of printing and distribution, is used for acquisition of wetlands for waterfowl.

A government for the people must depend for its success on the intelligence, the morality the justice, and the interest of the people themselves. — Grover Cleveland.

COSMETICS MUCH ALIKE: YOU BUY ADVERTISING

According to Professor Joseph Robinson of the University of Wisconsin 99 percent of advertised cosmetics are the same except for different added perfumes and color blends, reports Mrs. Ruth Spidahl, extension home economist leader, U. of I.

Robinson suggest we should "disregard most advertising because it is foolish." To prove his point, he says facia creams all do essentially the same thing—prevent moisture loss.

Cleansing creams, cold creams, and lubricating creams all have mineral oil as their basic ingredient. Astringents all contain water, alcohol and aromatics. Exotic ingredients like royal jelly, orchid pollen, milk and turtle oil are scoffed at by scientists.

Medicated cosmetics are popular today. However, the American Medical Association says their usefulness consists of limiting the bacterial contamination of the product during the period of use and persons may become allergic to these ingredients.

Hormone creams will not remove wrinkles but may make the skin retain more water. This could make the skin look smoother. AMA further states that hormone creams have not been tested for long use and could be dangerous.

Really dangerous cosmetics are those applied near the eyes or lids. The U. S. Food and Drug Administration is constantly checking new products on the market.

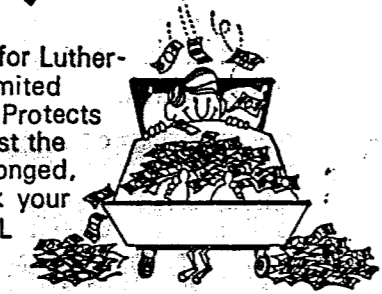

Whatever cosmetics you use be sure it's your own and never loan your products to anyone, Mrs. Spidahl advises.

Blessed are they who have the gift of making friends for it is one of God's best gifts.—Thomas Hughes.

SEPTEMBER
September always seems to find a way;
To make nostalgic memories return;
With all the glory of that yesterday;
Brought back again, to live, and bless,
and burn.

I grieve not that the summer brown
and bear;
Has folded up her tents and slipped away;
I only know September days are here
The harbingers of autumn's bold array.

Mrs. Ernest Steigers

Roundup activities attracted many to Lewiston during its three days.

Allen Brown, grandson of Helena Brown, won the bicycle awarded the 1-5 year group during the August coloring contest sponsored by Grants Store of Lewiston at their Bradford Restaurant.

The Robert Cofflands of Moscow gathered tomatoes at the Cherrylane home of aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Steigers, on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. John Talbott, also of Moscow, who spent the day with her daughter, Linda Steigers, was present at the picking of "garden truck."

Terry Steigers, Huson, Montana, spent the weekend at Lewiston with his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Art Eller and at Cherrylane with his grandparents there. Terry will resume his third year studies at the U. of M. in Missoula, at its opening, where he is majoring in geology.

Mrs. Mike Richardson and daughters of Orofino were Thursday morning guests in the Brown home, Mrs. Brown joining them on a shopping trip to Lewiston.

Helena Brown's small greatgrand son, Michael Prince, of San Diego, accompanied his grandmother, Mrs. Wm. Cooper, Lewiston on a Saturday visit to Pinecreek where he enjoyed his glimpse of country life. He and his father, James Prince, are visiting his grandmother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chester McCormack at Lewiston and other relatives in the north of Idaho while his mother remained in California, "tied" to her "job."

Enma Weichman was there to greet the little visitor.

The Don Brown family of Lewiston were Sunday visitors of his mother. Cecil Daniels visited Don there in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cowger and two children of Pierce were Sunday dinner guests in the Walter Zumhofe home. The group was joined in the afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Cowger and two children of Lewiston for a brief visit.

After a long, quiet Sunday, the Health's only visitor was son Edgar from Nezperce, who spent a short time with them that evening.

The Monday evening broadcast of the Roundup parade over TV was eagerly watched in hopes of glimpsing Roberta Health with the Kendrick Ridge Riders Royalty and Ernest Steigers with the Old Time Fiddlers entry, by all those who were especially concerned. Wasn't it all pretty fine?

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Gruell, Julietta, and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Custer of Clarkston were Wednesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Heimgartner.

Saturday morning the Eldon Heimgartner and Custers left for Klamath Falls, Oregon to visit their brother Earl Gruell and family, returning early this week.

On Thursday, Sept. 7, Mrs. Erma Stevens and Mrs. Eldon Heimgartner took Mrs. Kent Ankeny and baby to their home at Idaho Falls, stopping at Buhl, Idaho where the group enjoyed supper with the Eugene Heimgartner family. Leaving that evening the group reached Idaho Falls by bed time. Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Heimgartner returned home by 7 p. m. Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Shannon of Spokane were Thursday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Stevens.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Heimgartner enjoyed Sunday dinner with her sister and family, the Warren Siemps of Lapwal.

Mr. and Mrs. Cletis Hoisington drove to the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Neale Hoisington at Bovill Sunday afternoon.

TEST DETERMINES WHEAT, POTATO NITROGEN LEVEL

A highly accurate test to correlate crop yield with nitrogen level in Idaho potatoes and wheat is being developed at the University of Idaho, according to Bryant R. Gardner, visiting associate professor of soils in the College of Agriculture.

The test analyzes crop fertilizer more efficiently by detecting nutrient levels of the plant itself. The current method of gauging nutrient levels from soil samples does not always predict the amount of nutrients actually available to the plant, Gardner said.

The new analysis system will enable growers to avoid excess fertilizer application as well as to eliminate yield losses from nutrient deficiencies, Gardner pointed out.

University of Idaho scientists will use data from the 1972 harvest to correlate nitrogen levels of plants at various stages of growth with resulting crop yields. Nitrogen level of plant samples can then be compared to the general correlation to find the amount of fertilizer needed for maximum crop yield.

When the system is completed, potato and wheat farmers will be able to send plant samples to University soil testing laboratories, commercial laboratories or consulting firms for analysis and recommendations, Gardner noted.

Potato petioles, or leaf stems and the lower two inches of the wheat stem are used for analysis. When plants first appear, random samples must be taken every 7 to 14 days until a nutrient pattern is established. Only 2 or 3 subsequent samplings would be necessary to check changing nitrogen levels, Gardner estimated.

Once a yield correlation system is established for each nutrient for each crop, plant tissue testing could replace spring soil sampling, Gardner added.

Gardner emphasized that the cost of tissue testing is very low when compared to possible costs of yield loss or excess fertilizer application.

WATCH FOR CHANGES IN APPEARANCES OF CANS

Changes in the appearance of canned goods could mean spoiled food, warns Esther H. Wilson, extension nutrition specialist, U. of I.

Check carefully for leaking, bulging ends or an abnormal odor or appearance of the contents. Any of these changes mean spoilage may have taken place. Throw away those cans at once without tasting contents.

However, damage to the outside of a can may not necessarily mean that food inside is harmed. Rusty or dented cans are fine as long as they don't leak or show any of the above changes.

Discoloration of can lining is not usually harmful, reports Mrs. Wilson. Acidic foods may react chemically with the can, causing an "etched" effect. Some foods release sulfur during processing which causes a brown, blue or black mottling on the inside of the can. None of these changes in the can lining harm the food inside.

Manufacturers may not use cans which give off a harmful substance, according to the Food Additives Amendment of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

The tissue test for Idaho potatoes and wheat is similar to tests developed for potatoes in California and wheat in Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Manning Onstott went to Spokane Sunday to visit with their grandson Jon Miller, who is a patient at Sacred Heart Hospital. They report that he is coming along real fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Jensen of Moscow were Sunday visitors of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Brown.

Visiting from Tuesday until Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Gene Brocke and family were her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaw of Buffalo, New York.

Marsha Kay Schoeffler began her Junior year of the University of Iowa last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Long of Hermosillo, Mexico visited in this area recently and stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Long part of the time. They also visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Odberg in Genesee and with Pearl and Anna Long and other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Crocker returned home Saturday after spending the last twelve days camping at Boulder Flats on the Lochsa river. Their guests for part of that time were three boys from England who have been touring the United States by Greyhound bus. The Crockers took the boys, Richard Vickers, Jim Shaw and Charles Holle to Missoula where they would continue their tour of the northern part of the States. Their visit was the result of a friendship which began when the Crocker's granddaughter, Patricia Johnson visited the Vickers family in Sheffield, England for a week during her tour of Europe last summer. The boys were very impressed with the friendliness of the people in our community and with the beauty of Idaho.

Mrs. Sue Craig was a Friday overnight guest of her sister, Mrs. Madge Anderson of Lewiston. She also visited there with brothers, Mark, Jim and Zeb Robeson.

On Monday Mrs. Craig accompanied her son Neal to Moscow where they called at the H. S. Evans home.

LETTERS FROM READERS

September 5, 1972

Dear Editor:

Considering the number of votes that were cast by precincts in Latah County's primary and published in the Idaho Star on the 8th day of August, I noted some facts that may be of great interest to your readers.

It appeared that one of the closest contests was that of the sheriff's race between Edwin Pierson and Larry Waterby. Altho Pierson did get 349 more votes than Waterby, Waterby got 91 more votes than did Pierson in the outer area precincts (other than Moscow,) and more than twice as many as did Elton Walker.

Out of the four candidates that ran, Waterby was the least known in Moscow.

Consider the fact that the greatest work load of the sheriff's department is in the outer areas and the recipients of the sheriff's department apparently felt that Waterby was the most worthy of being sheriff.

It may benefit the people of Moscow to take a second look at Waterby and find out from the people in the outer areas why they did support him.

We and many others recommend that Larry Waterby run as a "write-in-candidate" for Latah County Sheriff.
