Cross Is Lighted

The Cross on the hill overlooking Juliaetta was put into operation Sunday for the holiday season. It has become such a symbol that people have looked forward to the time when it becomes visible. It stands alone on the hill as if it is guarding the valley below. The two Groseclose boys, Ted and Dick, are responsible for the lighting and repairing.

Know Whose Collecting—

At this time of the year, there are many charitable organizations knocking on doors for contributions. Be sure you know what you are donating to and ask for a receipt. If it is a legitimate collection you will be given a receipt gladly.

Salvation Army Appeal

The Salvation Army has made an appeal for toys and children's used clothing to be distributed in Christmas boxes. To meet this need a box will be in Nobles Store and any items may be left at Egger's home. Transportation has been volunteered to deliver the things to Lewiston.

Tanglefoot Twirlers Select Werner Brammer President

The first square dance session of the winter season for the Tanglefoot Twirlers Saturday night was very successful as approximately 18 couples were on hand to execute the calls of Chuck Cuddy at the Leland Club House. Joining the local dancers were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Cole and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Cuddy of Lewiston and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Crutcher and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Routh of Orofino.

During the evening election of officers was held with Werner Brammer chosen as president of the group for the upcoming season. Other officers selected were Walt Koopp, vice president, and Mrs. Wilbur Corkill, secretary-treasurer.

The evening concluded with a covered dish dinner.

Anyone wishing to join the group are most welcome to attend. Announcements of dances will be published in later issues of the Gazette-News.

Diane Silflow Named Kendrick's "Miss FHA" For First Nine Weeks

The Future Homemakers of America chapter at Kendrick High has chosen Diane Silflow as Miss FHA for the first nine weeks of school. To obtain this honor, she made posters and name badges for FHA week and name badges for the District II convention at Deary; modeled in the Style Review as part of the new members formal initiation; worked on the baked potato sale and has been an inspiration to the entire chapter.

Weather Cooler—

Area temperatures continued to be seasonably cooler this week with the mercury dipping down into the middle and lower twenties in the higher elevations and down into the low thirties in the Kendrick-Julietta area.

There were a few snow flurries Monday in Genesee and up on the ridges in the Kendrick region, but these started early and turned to rain before mid-morning. There has been moderate rainfall so far this month, something most farmers were happy to get.

Trivial matters can prove fatal when not kept in perspective.

North Central Idaho Postmasters Choose Robert Magnuson President

Kendrick Postmaster Robert Magnuson was elected president of the North Central Idaho Chapter of the National Association of Postmasters of the United States at a luncheon meeting held at the Kendrick Fire Hall Thursday, November 16.

Others elected at the NAPUS meeting to complete the 1972 slate were Tom Polillo, Lapwai, vice president and officer-in-charge; Mrs. Muriel Schoeffler, Southwick, secretary-treasurer.

Dist. VFW Meets Dec. 16

A District II meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is scheduled for Saturday, December 16, at the VFW Hall in Kendrick.

Burglars Hit Three Genesee Business Firms

Three burglaries were discovered early Thursday in Genesee.

Latah County Sheriff's Deputy Jim Youmans reported at 3:03 a. m. that Carter's had been forcibly entered and about $4.50 in change from juke boxes had been taken.

The front door of the building had been pried open.

Further investigation revealed that The Pastime had also been entered by breaking the lock on the front door. An undetermined amount of small change was also taken from the juke box and ping ball machine.

About 8 o'clock Leon Edwards of L. and L. Repair notified the sheriff's office of a break-in at his place of business. Investigating officers, Youmans and Dave Wilson, who had investigated the other two break-ins reported that entrance to the repair shop was gained by twisting the hasp on the front lock. The pop machine was pried open with a pinch bar and it was estimated that about $10 in nickles and dimes were stolen. Also about fifteen small tools.

Cloud Harpole, 90, Genesee Resident, Passes November 15

Claud Delbert Harpole, 90, a resident of Genesee for 15 years, died Wednesday, November 15 at Gritman Hospital.

Harpole owned and operated a poultry farm in the Eugene, Ore. area before coming to Genesee where he was retired.

He was born July 5, 1882 at Junction City, Oregon. He married Sophie Ebel at Genesee on October 30, 1923. The couple had no children.

He is survived by his widow at the Genesee home, and several nieces and nephews.

Requiem mass was held Friday at St. Mary's Catholic. Officiating was the Rev. Fr. Edward Cope.

Fallbearers were Bill Reisenauer, Omer Kries, Wm. Browning, Robert Broemeling, Joe Doyle, and John Hickman.

Organist was Mrs. Wilson Esser. Mrs. Gene Woodruff and Mrs. Glen Baumgartner were vocalists. Burial Genesee Catholic cemetery.

Booster's Club Project A Success; Thanks Offered

Burt Souders, Jr., president of the Tigers Booster Club, said this week that the Del Roby wildlife movies held at the high school last Friday night were a success and approximately $150 profit will be realized by the club. The money will be used for projects which will benefit the local school. Burt said Tuesday morning that he hopes the club will soon be able to begin a main project—that of building restrooms and storage facilities for the football field.

Thanking the public for their support, not only for the attendance at the movies, but also for other club activities, Souders said he and Booster officers would like to see a better turnout for meetings. These meetings, if well-attended, give the club a better chance to discuss possible projects and obtain more ideas on how to help the school.

TIME OF GRATITUDE

Be not ungrateful for homely things; The simple joys for which the heart sings,

A pastoral scene of quiet peace Where wonders of nature do not cease.

Serenity of our ancient hills, The blessed healing of earthly ills;

The cry of a free flying wild bird, And the songs of children to be heard.

Take time to cherish each loving smile, Give thanks and ponder these gifts awhile.

Olderness's Announce Sale of Store To Howard Braden Family of Deary

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Olderness, owners and managers of Olderness Department Store in Kendrick for the past ten years, this week announced the sale of the store to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Braden of Deary. Harold and Ida say Tuesday the new owners would be assuming management on December 4. Mr. Braden was formerly a purchasing agent for Simplot Chemicals.

The store was first opened in 1937 by Louis Thurber, who operated the firm until 1956 when he sold to Louis Maio. Maio ran the store until it received heavy smoke and water damage in February of 1962 when the Western Auto Store next to it burned.

May 26 of the same year, the store was refinished, restocked and opened again by Harold and Ida under the name of Thurber and Olderness.

"Like old athletes, the time has come for us to bow out," the Oldernesses said. "And, we take great pleasure in welcoming to Kendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Braden and family as the new owners of the store." They added that Ida will stay for awhile to help them meet their many friends and fine customers.

"It is our belief Kendrick needs what they can bring us in the way of service, and in turn may give them our support. Like the pilgrims of Plymouth, let us band together and strengthen the bonds that hold little communities together."

Kendrick Campers To Meet Nov. 27

The KCK will meet Monday evening, Nov. 27th at 6:30 for their potluck supper. A business meeting and the annual election of officers for next year will also be held.

There will be prizes awarded to members for the most camp-outs—runner-ups and also other prizes.

The Entertainment Committee will take over after the business meeting and fun will be had by all.

All members are urged to attend. The only people with whom you should try to get even are those who have helped you.

Sixth Grade News—

The sixth grade class held cheerleader elections Monday. The tryouts were in the gym with 12 girls competing for the three positions. The three chosen were Maureen Parker, Jill Hoogland and Cindy Bennett.

Our class would like to thank the cooks and kitchen staff for preparing and serving such a delicious Thanksgiving meal last Friday.

We are now in the process of preparing an around-the-world recipe book as a combined language and social studies project. We also plan to prepare some of these dishes and with the cooperation of Mrs. Hoogland use the facilities at the high school Home Ec room for heating and serving.

Those receiving 100's in spelling this week were Mikel Courtright, Barbara Czmowski, Lori Benjamin, Kevin Harris, Glenda Lohman, Cindy Bennett, Lora Howerton, Helen Frey and Debbie Groseclose.

Musle Department—

It was my pleasure to accompany the High School Band on its exchange concert to Culldesac. At this time I would like to congratulate Mr. Williams, all of the members of the band who took part, the members of the choir and also Amy Lawrence, JoAnn Parks, Vicki Johns and LeAnne Colbough who made up the Jr. High quartet. It was a pleasure not only to listen to these students play and sing but to see the bonds of comradeship between two schools displayed and strengthened by such an exchange. There should be more of this type of activity.

My hat is off to all who participated, arranged and made possible the concert exchange.

It May Be Possible To Live With Blood Substitute, Scientists Say

One day man may be able to live without blood. That promise was held out in a report delivered Nov. 18 by a researcher from the Medical College in Virginia. He said certain members of a family of industrial chemicals called fluorocarbons have been found to possess the ability to mimic some of the major functions of blood—namely, taking up oxygen from the air and giving it off to the body's tissue.

In his report to the 45th annual Scientific Sessions of the American Heart Association, Dr. William I. Rosenblum cited the work of other laboratories where dogs with all their blood replaced by fluorocarbons survived until their bodies could regenerate red blood cells and reconstitute normal blood. When their own blood was gradually restored, the dogs showed no ill effects and went on to live apparently normal lives for at least six months, the initial followup period.

In his own recent studies, Dr. Rosenblum investigated the effect of fluorocarbon substitution on the function of the brains of mice. He chose to focus on the brain because its function is particularly sensitive to oxygen deprivation or any abnormalities in blood flow. Even if animal survival itself is not jeopardized by blood replacement, he explained, any malfunction of artificial blood might be expected to affect the brain performance adversely and, hence, the "quality of life."

He found a normal rate of brain flow and no electrical or biochemical brain abnormalities in mice exposed to various stresses—including oxygen lack even though up to 75 percent of the animals' blood was replaced by fluorocarbons.

Dr. Rosenblum expressed the hope that the nation would step up its efforts to perfect a true blood substitute for human use. An effective replacement, he said, would greatly reduce severe, world-wide problems including an inadequate supply of volunteer blood donors, the increasing presence of the serum hepatitis virus in donated blood, the need to find blood of a particular type before transfusing it into a prospective recipient and the difficulty of storing and preserving blood for long periods of time.

Hatcheries Contributing To Steelhead Catch

Anglers fishing for steelhead in the Lewiston vicinity are learning that some of their catch originated at hatcheries. The Idaho Fish and Game Department has been using posters to help anglers identify hatchery fish by their fins. Some adult steelhead have deformed fins which they have retained since their early life in the hatchery. Nipping by other fish in hatchery ponds and bacterial growth are two of the causes for deformed fins. Clipped fins and tags are other ways to identify some hatchery fish used in various research studies. However, all hatchery fish cannot be distinguished externally. Steelhead reared at Dworshak National Fish Hatchery are all marked internally in their bones.

An antibiotic fed to the fish during early life leaves a mark which is used to positively determine the origin of a fish and many other facts about its life history. Although the fish are easily marked by adding antibiotics to their food, identification of these marks requires extracting a bone sample and viewing the bone through special microscopes.

Einar Wold, biologist at Dworshak National Fish Hatchery, recently examined the bones from some of the fish caught during the 1972 Lewiston Jaycee Derby. Of the 76 fish he examined, 56 had marks indicating Dworshak origin. Since anglers were entering only the larger fish, the sample does not represent the proportion of Dworshak fish in catch or in the river. However, it does indicate that fish reared at Dworshak are contributing to the catch.

On the Clearwater River, Idaho Fish and Game Biologists have been checking anglers' catches for evidence of fin erosion. Of almost 200 fish checked so far this fall, 16 percent had deformed fins indicating hatchery origin. Presumably, additional fish may have originated at the hatchery. Bone samples are also being collected for verification of origin.

Since 1969, all steelhead returning to the North Fork of the Clearwater River that have spawned and the progeny reared at the hatchery. Last spring some of the fish released in 1970 returned to the hatchery. The fish returning now are from releases in 1970 and 1971. Wild fish are also returning to the hatchery and will continue to do so for 3 years more in decreasing numbers.

Large steelhead, such as those checked in the derby, have spent two years in the ocean. Although they may have spent one, two, or three years in fresh water, time spent in the ocean is most important in their ultimate size.

Fish reared at the Fish and Game Department's hatchery on the Pahsimeroi River are also contributing to the angler's catch in the Snake and Salmon Rivers. If the many downstream problems affecting steelhead destined for Idaho can be resolved, hatchery fish should contribute significantly to the angler's catches in the future.

Smoking and Weight Gain

Does quitting smoking trigger weight gain? Millions of men and women are finding out their own answers. Millions more waiting in the wings.

Weight gain is a complicated, individual business. But a National Health Survey shows that, in general, men gain weight progressively until the age of 45. From 45 to 65, there is little change. Then at age 65, some weight gain begins again.

For women, the picture is different, rounder. They gain weight progressively at each age bracket until the age 75. Keeping a svelte figure is not easy.

What happens when both sexes quit smoking? The National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health tried to find out in two national surveys which were four years apart. In their sample of several thousand people they found that among men aged 18 to 34, there was very little difference in weight gain between ex-smokers and smokers. From 35 to 44, there is some weight gain among ex-smokers. But from 45 on, there is no difference between the two groups.

For women, between the ages of 21 and 34 there is no appreciable weight gain among ex-smokers. From 35 to 44, there is some weight gain among ex-smokers. But from 45 on, there is very little difference between the two groups.

Beware of Frostbite

When chilly slopes and snow-covered fields beckon skiers and snowmobilers, frostbite is a possibility, cautions the Idaho Medical Association.

It can happen to anyone who is outdoors in sub-freezing temperatures for long periods.

The condition may be difficult to detect from early symptoms. The frostbitten area is usually not painful at first, but is numb and stiff. The skin whitens, then turns bright pink.

When the frostbitten area is warmed, it becomes red and swollen, and large blisters may develop. Severe frostbite can cause gangrene.

Never rub frostbitten skin with snow or ice. This old-fashioned measure only makes matters worse.

Rapid thawing of the tissue is safer than slow thawing.

Keep the frozen part in lukewarm water for ten minutes, then blot it dry, gently. Then keep the frozen area dry and warm.

The untrained person cannot determine the seriousness of frostbite. Get medical attention quickly.

If you have hypertension, your physician can work to control it with an increasing number of drugs or he may recommend changes in your diet or living habits, which are also effective in fighting high blood pressure.

ASC Election Ballots Mailed This Week

Ballots for ASC Community Committeemen are being mailed this week and must be returned by December 1, according to Melvin Procnier, of Troy member of the Latah County Agricultural Statilization and Conservation Committee.

Any farm owner, tenant, or share cropper of legal voting age, regardless of race, color, creed, sex, or religion, may vote in the election if his farm is eligible to participate in any of the ASCS programs administered in the county. Other qualified voters are spouses of eligible voters; a minor who supervises or conducts the operation of an entire farm; a legal guardian who manages a farm for a child; and a person representing a legal entity such as a partnership or corporation.

Producers who have farm interests in more than one community may select the community in which they wish to vote but may vote in only one community, Procnier said.

Each voter may vote for not more than three candidates in his community by placing a cross opposite his candidate, or he may write in his own choice. Votes will be counted in a public meeting by the County Committee on Dec 5 at 9:00 a. m. in the ASCS office in the Latah County Courthouse. Anyone is welcome to view the counting.

3 Community Committeemen and two alternates will be chosen from each of the seven communities in the county. The candidate receiving the highest number of votes becomes the chairman, the second highest vice chairman, the third highest regular member and the fourth and fifth become first and second alternates. Alternates serve if regular members are absent or if a vacancy occurs. All election ties are settled by lot.

ASC Community Committeemen are elected for one-year terms which begin Jan. 1. The three regular members will also serve as delegates to the county convention at 10:00 a. m. Dec. 11 in room 3B, Courthouse Bldg. Each year the delegates elect one farmer to a new 3-year term on the County Committee, and two farmers to a 1-year term as alternates. Melvin Procnier, Troy, will be unable to run for re-election because of a 3-consecutive term limitation for county committeemen. Mr. Procnier stated that he enjoyed helping to administer the farm programs over the many years he served as a committeeman. Conserving bases gave him his worst headache, he said.

LATE BIG GAME SEASONS INCLUDE TWO-DEER UNITS

With 19 deer and 8 elk units closing November 26, the Idaho Fish and Game Department reminded sportsmen planning late hunts to study the regulations to be sure that the place they want to go will still be open.

There are some units open for both deer and elk during part of December. Some of them are two-deer units, requiring the special "extra deer" tag for second animals.

Regulations also should be checked by archers for deer and elk units remaining open for longbows.

A Time for Every Purpose

"To every thing there is a season. And a time for every purpose under the heaven!" These words from the Book of Ecclesiastes have meaning and application to a multitude of experiences and circumstances within everyone's life. They apply certainly to the changing seasons of the year, and to the coming of Winter on the 21st day of December.

Even if we live in warmer climes, Winter brings to the minds of most of us visions of soft, delicate swirls of snow, the delicious smell of freshly baked cookies and hot chocolate after a walk in the brisk wind. And the glow of a child's face on Christmas morning is never to be forgotten. We think of a sparkling white blanket of purity covering the ground and of the peace and tranquility that lies over the countryside as Mother Nature takes her well-deserved winter slumber. But, the crowning jewel of the Winter season is the celebration of Christmas and the continuing miracle of the whole Christian world joining hands to reaffirm its faith and reverence for the Lord whose way we follow.

To everything there is a season, and Winter is a time of faith, a time to ponder, a time of exhilaration and a time to prepare for the change and opportunities to come during the lengthening days of Spring that will so shortly follow.

Outdoor Manners Help As Hunters Go Afield

Like any other sport, hunting has rules of good conduct that should be followed if it is to be fully enjoyed by all.

Courtesy to landowners is one of the most important. Permission to hunt on private land is a privilege—not a right. Appreciation of this privilege leads to healthy landholder-sportsmen relationship. All outdoorsmen—campers, fishermen, and hunters—should respect the rights of the landholder.

Outdoorsmen need not study Amy Vanderbilt to know how to act on private property. They should simply treat land as if it is their own.

Ask permission before entering private land—posted or not.

One of the better ways of obtaining permission to hunt from a landowner is to purchase an "Operation Respect" patch or pin to wear on a hunting coat. These cost $1 and are available from some sportsmen clubs the Idaho Fish and Game Department headquarters office in Boise or regional offices of the department.

What is Operation Respect? Basically it is designed to encourage the sportsmen to ask permission before hunting or fishing on private land. There are a number of cards included in the packet received by sportsmen. The hunter signs these with his name and address before presenting them to the landholder when he asks permission. The money from these sales goes to the Idaho landholder-sportsman council for use in promoting sportsmanship. Bumper stickers and hunting by permission signs also are available without cost.

It May Be Possible To Live With Blood Substitute, Scientists Say

One day man may be able to live without blood. That promise was held out in a report delivered Nov. 18 by a researcher from the Medical College in Virginia. He said certain members of a family of industrial chemicals called fluorocarbons have been found to possess the ability to mimic some of the major functions of blood—namely, taking up oxygen from the air and giving it off to the body's tissue.

In his report to the 45th annual Scientific Sessions of the American Heart Association, Dr. William I. Rosenblum cited the work of other laboratories where dogs with all their blood replaced by fluorocarbons survived until their bodies could regenerate red blood cells and reconstitute normal blood. When their own blood was gradually restored, the dogs showed no ill effects and went on to live apparently normal lives for at least six months, the initial followup period.

In his own recent studies, Dr. Rosenblum investigated the effect of fluorocarbon substitution on the function of the brains of mice. He chose to focus on the brain because its function is particularly sensitive to oxygen deprivation or any abnormalities in blood flow. Even if animal survival itself is not jeopardized by blood replacement, he explained, any malfunction of artificial blood might be expected to affect the brain performance adversely and, hence, the "quality of life."

He found a normal rate of brain flow and no electrical or biochemical brain abnormalities in mice exposed to various stresses—including oxygen lack even though up to 75 percent of the animals' blood was replaced by fluorocarbons.

Dr. Rosenblum expressed the hope that the nation would step up its efforts to perfect a true blood substitute for human use. An effective replacement, he said, would greatly reduce severe, world-wide problems including an inadequate supply of volunteer blood donors, the increasing presence of the serum hepatitis virus in donated blood, the need to find blood of a particular type before transfusing it into a prospective recipient and the difficulty of storing and preserving blood for long periods of time.

The only people with whom you should try to get even are those who have helped you.

Not all hunters are out for game.

Hatcheries Contributing To Steelhead Catch

Anglers fishing for steelhead in the Lewiston vicinity are learning that some of their catch originated at hatcheries. The Idaho Fish and Game Department has been using posters to help anglers identify hatchery fish by their fins. Some adult steelhead have deformed fins which they have retained since their early life in the hatchery. Nipping by other fish in hatchery ponds and bacterial growth are two of the causes for deformed fins. Clipped fins and tags are other ways to identify some hatchery fish used in various research studies. However, all hatchery fish cannot be distinguished externally. Steelhead reared at Dworshak National Fish Hatchery are all marked internally in their bones.

An antibiotic fed to the fish during early life leaves a mark which is used to positively determine the origin of a fish and many other facts about its life history. Although the fish are easily marked by adding antibiotics to their food, identification of these marks requires extracting a bone sample and viewing the bone through special microscopes. Einar Wold, biologist at Dworshak National Fish Hatchery, recently examined the bones from some of the fish caught during the 1972 Lewiston Jaycee Derby. Of the 76 fish he examined, 56 had marks indicating Dworshak origin. Since anglers were entering only the larger fish, the sample does not represent the proportion of Dworshak fish in catch or in the river. However, it does indicate that fish reared at Dworshak are contributing to the catch.

On the Clearwater River, Idaho Fish and Game Biologists have been checking anglers' catches for evidence of fin erosion. Of almost 200 fish checked so far this fall, 16 percent had deformed fins indicating hatchery origin. Presumably, additional fish may have originated at the hatchery. Bone samples are also being collected for verification of origin.

Since 1969, all steelhead returning to the North Fork of the Clearwater River that have spawned and the progeny reared at the hatchery. Last spring some of the fish released in 1970 returned to the hatchery. The fish returning now are from releases in 1970 and 1971. Wild fish are also returning to the hatchery and will continue to do so for 3 years more in decreasing numbers.

Large steelhead, such as those checked in the derby, have spent two years in the ocean. Although they may have spent one, two, or three years in fresh water, time spent in the ocean is most important in their ultimate size.

Fish reared at the Fish and Game Department's hatchery on the Pahsimeroi River are also contributing to the angler's catch in the Snake and Salmon Rivers. If the many downstream problems affecting steelhead destined for Idaho can be resolved, hatchery fish should contribute significantly to the angler's catches in the future.

Smoking and Weight Gain

Does quitting smoking trigger weight gain? Millions of men and women are finding out their own answers. Millions more waiting in the wings.

Weight gain is a complicated, individual business. But a National Health Survey shows that, in general, men gain weight progressively until the age of 45. From 45 to 65, there is little change. Then at age 65, some weight gain begins again.

For women, the picture is different, rounder. They gain weight progressively at each age bracket until the age 75. Keeping a svelte figure is not easy.

What happens when both sexes quit smoking? The National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health tried to find out in two national surveys which were four years apart. In their sample of several thousand people they found that among men aged 18 to 34, there was very little difference in weight gain between ex-smokers and smokers. From 35 to 64, ex-smokers seem to gain more weight than smokers. After that, there is no difference between the two groups.

For women, between the ages of 21 and 34 there is no appreciable weight gain among ex-smokers. From 35 to 44, there is some weight gain among ex-smokers. But from 45 on, there is very little difference between the two groups.

Beware of Frostbite
When chilly slopes and snow-covered fields beckon skiers and snowmobilers, frostbite is a possibility, cautions the Idaho Medical Association.

It can happen to anyone who is outdoors in sub-freezing temperatures for long periods.

The condition may be difficult to detect from early symptoms. The frostbitten area is usually not painful at first, but is numb and stiff. The skin whitens, then turns bright pink.

When the frostbitten area is warmed, it becomes red and swollen, and large blisters may develop. Severe frostbite can cause gangrene.

Never rub frostbitten skin with snow or ice. This old-fashioned measure only makes matters worse.

Rapid thawing of the tissue is safer than slow thawing.

Keep the frozen part in lukewarm water for ten minutes, then blot it dry, gently. Then keep the frozen area dry and warm.

The untrained person cannot determine the seriousness of frostbite. Get medical attention quickly.

If you have hypertension, your physician can work to control it with an increasing number of drugs or he may recommend changes in your diet or living habits, which are also effective in fighting high blood pressure.

News Items From Genesee Schools

The Girls Club of Genesee High school held their Father-Daughter banquet on November 14, 1972 at the Genesee Cafe. A very enjoyable evening was spent by about 60 fathers and their daughters. Miss and Mrs. Geo. Mr. Hopkins and Miss Resnick provided the entertainment for the event, which was greatly enjoyed by everyone. The tables were decorated with Thanksgiving theme carried out.

MISS AMBITIOUS
Margaret Helbling was chosen Miss Ambitious for the month of November. She is Girls Club secretary, student council representative and recreation chairman for F. H. A. She is a C. C. D. member. A senior at Genesee high school and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Helbling.

School will be dismissed at 1:30 on Wednesday for Thanksgiving vacation.

Board members Boyd, Hampton, Wedin and Holben and Supt. Diehl attended the State Trustees convention last week in Boise. Boyd is a member of the Executive Committee for the State Association for the coming year.

Sixth Grade News
We each wrote several haiku verses to express our feelings about Thanksgiving. Haiku is a Japanese verse pattern with seventeen syllables expressing something beautiful and natural but it can also be interesting or humorous. These are some examples of the ones we wrote:

They sat 'round the table
On that first Thanksgiving Day,
Thanking God for His gifts.
—Jeff Monroe

Our forefathers shared;
The Indians accepted.
It's Thanksgiving Day.
—Cindy Lou Esser

Table set with care
Faces all aglow today
'Cause it's Thanksgiving.
—Kurt Zenner

We finally have a new student in our room. Her name is Julie Pirzloff and she is from Otis Orchards, Wn.

Fourth Grade News
Jim's mother, Mrs. Cvanara brought slides of Kenya and talked to us about the people and animals in Africa. She showed us an African drum, brushes made of giraffe tails to brush away flies, a hand-woven plate, hand carved wooden elephants, and a necklace made from a butterfly wing. We enjoyed her visit.

Our new class officers are: president, Steve Becker; vice president, Gordon Scharnhorst; secretary-treasurer, Lisa Jo Boyd. Lynn Hanson was appointed librarian.

We are studying molecules in science. We have been finding likenesses and differences in solids, liquids, and gases.

American Legion Met Tuesday, Nov. 14

Bielenberg-Schooler Post 58 met on Nov. 14, 1972 at the Legion building for a regular meeting.

The meeting was called to order by Commander Bennett at 7:55 p. m. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The membership report was given by George Anderson with 87 members paid this year.

A sympathy card will be sent to the Wilburn England family.

George Anderson gave a short report on the District convention held in Moscow. The main topics discussed were membership, respect of the flag and bills in Congress pertaining to the Legion.

A motion was made to pay all outstanding bills. It carried.

Bill Shirley reported on starting a blood bank in Lewiston and gave information to members who are interested in contributing.

We decided to have a Tom and Jerry party following our December meeting.

The meeting was adjourned at 9:10 p. m. Respectfully submitted, Wade Hampton, adj.

CARD OF THANKS
Our heartfelt thanks to neighbors and friends who extended comforting sympathy and help in our recent sorrow. For the flowers, cards, food, masses, memorials and other kindnesses and thoughtfulness we are deeply grateful.
Mrs. Sophie Harpole and family.

Final Rites Held Nov. 18 For N. J. 'Nick' Busch

Requiem mass for N. J. "Nick" Busch of Lewiston was celebrated at St. Stanislaus Catholic Church Saturday by the Rev. Fr. John J. O'Hara.

Busch died Monday at San Francisco.

Pallbearers were Leonard Kramer, and Robert Kramer, Lewiston; William Kramer, Spokane, and Thomas Busch, Norman Kramer and John Busch, all of Colton.

Nicholas J. Busch, a scholar, teacher and athlete, who altered his life's course after World War II to become a successful sheepman, passed away Monday morning at the San Francisco Naval Hospital. Busch, 74, had been in ill health for several months. His wife, Elizabeth was with him at the time of his death.

Busch, who held a doctorate from the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, Washington, D. C. and taught at the University of San Francisco, returned to his native area after serving as a Marine officer in the South Pacific during World War II.

Acquiring his initial sheep herd in 1948, he prospered until selling out several years ago.

The Busch sheep wintered on the low hills near the mouth of Coase Creek south of Asotin. After being sheared in the spring they moved to the summer range in the high mountains near St. Maries.

Until expanding traffic between the cities of Lewiston and Clarkston interfered, the movement of Busch's sheep was a twice-yearly rite. The herd, sometimes numbered more than 1,000, passed through the two cities in the fall on their way to the winter range and made the return trip each spring. The event attracted hundreds of spectators, particularly when the band meandered across the Interstate Bridge.

Expanding traffic finally forced Busch to use trucks to transport his sheep.

Born at Colton, July 26, 1898, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Busch, he graduated from Gonzaga University in 1922 and received his doctorate from Georgetown in 1926.

He then taught foreign service at the University of San Francisco.

During World War II, Busch, who held a reserve commission in the U. S. Marines served in the South Pacific. He retired from the Marine reserve as a lieutenant colonel.

Active in Boy Scout work during his residence at Lewiston, Busch received the St. George Award for Catholic scouts Nov. 2, 1969. It was his work with the troop sponsored by St. Stanislaus Catholic parish, of which he was a member. He served as chairman of the troop committee. All three of his sons are Eagle Scouts.

In addition to his widow, who retired this year after 40 years as a school teacher, Busch is survived by three sons, Marine Lt. Col. Peter Busch, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Michael Busch, San Diego, California and Joseph Busch, a Spokane teacher; one daughter, Mrs. Dennis (Betze) Meyers, Pierce; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Kramer, Moscow and Mrs. Ann Cunningham, Seattle; a brother, Peter, Busch, Colton, and 11 grandchildren.

Legion Auxiliary Active

Bielenberg-Schooler Unit No. 58, American Legion Auxiliary met Wednesday, November 15th at the Genesee Cafe. Seven members were present. President, Delores DePell conducted the business meeting.

Mrs. George Anderson gave a report on the District convention held in Moscow in October. State president, Mrs. Patty Halstrom stressed that units should do as much field service and rehabilitation work as possible. A report was given by Mrs. Katherine Schlader, of Orofino, on the needs of veterans hospitalized to State Hospital North at Orofino. It was announced that Idaho Leadership Training chairman, Arlyne GIBerson, Moscow, will set up a meeting for officers training, which will also benefit members if they can attend. Other business at the convention included an announcement that a $5.00 award will be presented to the unit with the best report on their children and youth programs for the year. This will be presented at the Spring Convention. A resolution committee was appointed and includes a Genesee member, Mrs. John Hickman. Others serving are Mrs. Schlader, Orofino; and Mrs. Pearl Bentley, Grangeville. The group was entertained by the Baer Sisters of Lewiston, who sang, accompanied by their mother. Thirty-one delegates attended. Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Hickman were delegates from Genesee.

Mrs. Dale Carbuhr reported that our unit collected and sent 460 paperback books to the Veteran's Hospital in Boise. These books are much appreciated by our hospitalized veterans. It was approved that we send $10 to the Cheerbasket fund and $10 to the Gift Table at the Idaho Veteran's Home. Individual donations for the Dollar Bill Fund will be collected by Betty Bennett at the Corner Bar. Please leave your donations by Wednesday, Dec. 13, so our treasurer, Betty Morken can send the check to the Veteran's Home for Christmas living. Donations may be brought to the December meeting, December 13 at Mrs. George Anderson.

We received a $2 award for 100 percent membership this fall. The Genesee Unit has 35 members. 600 people will be ordered to be sold next spring. Profit from poppy sales is used for rehabilitation with our veterans. Mrs. Don Bennett is chairman. Following adjournment, coffee was served.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Geo. Anderson. A Christmas gift exchange will be held between the members.

A $2 limit has been set for the gift. The meeting will be December 13 at 1:30 p. m.

Remember — choosing what you eat is a daily habit. It is not easy. It is important.

Perfect Time of Year for Squash, Pumpkin

At this time of year, pumpkins and winter squash are cheap and plentiful. These vegetables are excellent sources of Vitamin A and other nutrients.

One-half cup of yellow-fleshed squash provides approximately the daily quota of Vitamin A. One-half cup of cooked pumpkin provides more, explains Esther H. Wilson, extension nutrition specialist, University of Idaho.

Sweet potatoes and yams make their appearance in the fall season. These, too, are excellent sources of Vitamin A. Half a cup of baked sweet potato provides more than the daily allowance for Vitamin A.

One-half cup cooked pumpkin provides one-fifth, squash and sweet potatoes about one-third of the daily Vitamin C requirement. All these vegetables are good sources of the B complex vitamins and contain small amounts of calcium and iron.

Pumpkin and winter squash are among nature's convenience foods. A minimum amount of time is involved in preparation, and the shell can serve as a decorative container for a cooked dish.

Fully mature pumpkins and squash have hard rinds. They are heavy for their size and have a good, firm shape. Bruises or other damage leads to decay. Therefore, Mrs. Wilson suggests cutting off and discarding the discolored parts and storing the remainder in the refrigerator until needed. Store pumpkins or winter squash in a cool (50-60 deg. F), dry, well-ventilated area. If you intend to store them for several months be sure the vegetables are fully mature and the stems are attached.

To prepare pumpkins and winter squash, first wash them thoroughly. Depending on the recipe, cut in half or into small pieces and peel.

An old-fashioned method to separate hard-skinned pumpkins or squashes into small pieces is to drop the vegetables onto a hard surface, such as a concrete path. The seeds may have to be scraped up, but this is easier than sawing through a hard rind.

Squash or pumpkin can be steamed, baked, boiled, mashed or used in cooked dishes. For a main dish, they can be cut in half and stuffed.

Cooked squash or pumpkin can be used in pie fillings, cakes, cookies and quickbreads. For a real gourmet treat try a cold pumpkin souffle flavored with rum essence.

For sweet potatoes, select those with good shape, smooth, bright, uniform skin color and firm texture. Avoid those with decay, wet spots or soft, dry, and shriveled areas.

Sweet potatoes and yams do not keep well. It is best to buy them in small quantities and use promptly.

Homemakers who have a supply from their gardens should use the early crop immediately and store the later varieties. They can be stored in a cool, dry place at about 55-60 deg. F. Since they are susceptible to decay under moist conditions should not be stored in the refrigerator. Handle with care; they bruise easily.

Cook sweet potatoes with or without skins. More nutritive value is retained if skins are left on, but this depends on the recipe.

A first step in preparation is to scrub and remove any woody portions. Sweet potatoes can be boiled, baked, mashed, scalloped or used in combination dishes. An unusual method to serve them is French frying as with potatoes. Sweet potatoes can also be used in baked pies, cakes, cookies, and quickbreads.

Sweet potatoes, yams, pumpkins, and winter squash can well. After cooking and cooling they can be mashed and frozen.

FUR HARVEST IN IDAHO

By Dee Hibbert

As a boy in Eastern Idaho, the dream of a large fur catch on my small trapper was pleasant nighttime fantasy. Always the next day's catch was disappointing by the dream standards. However, trapping was fun and it did make it possible for me to make enough money to keep me in high school for one of the four years.

Since that time the number of licensed trappers has decreased from over 1500 in the past to 626 this year. A change in the way of life and desires of people could account for this. However, I feel most of the reason is the decline in the fur market price over the years. Prices of most all furs are down from what they were when I was a boy. Then, a prime coyote pelt brought $12-15 and a beaver as high as $80. This year the average prices were $8.97 for a coyote and $13.79 for a beaver. Muskrat, the most numerous furbearer in the catch, used to be worth over $2, now the price is $1.26. When you consider inflation of the dollar over what it was worth in 1940-44, it is plain to see the decline in fur value.

Although the total number of pelts was up from the previous year, they were down considerably from the long time average. Income from trappers reported for the 1971-72 season was over $208,000.

In order for a sportsman to get in on some of this cash, he must be interested enough to set up a trapline and run it at regular intervals. The pelts must be properly skinned and cared for and sold on the open market to a license for buyer. A trappers license costs $5.00 for residents and $75.00 for non-residents and must be purchased from the Idaho Fish and Game Department. At the end of each season, the trapper must make a written report of his catch for the year.

Traps must be marked with a metal tag showing the name and address of the trapper if he traps furbearing animals. Beaver trappers must secure a beaver trap which is to be attached to the beaver pelt. This tag costs 60 cents each.

The body you build the first 20 years of your life is the one you will live in the rest of your life. Build it strong and healthy with good food habits.

Genesee Inter-Church Evangelism Committee

Under the theme "Key 73—Calling our Continent to Christ," over 130 Christian denominations and groups are sponsoring a continent-wide evangelism effort.

Locally a Genesee Key 73 Evangelism Committee is being organized to coordinate efforts. An open meeting for this will be held on December 3, at 8:00 p. m. in the basement of St. John's Lutheran Church, in Genesee.

The purpose of "Key 73" is to present the Gospel of Jesus Christ to every individual in our nation in 1973.

Any Christian interested in serving on a community committee with this view in mind is invited to attend, whether a member of a Genesee congregation or not.

Genesee Civic Club To Meet Nov. 30

This Week's Philosophy: The driver is safer when the roads are dry and the roads are safer when the driver's dry!

Two Highway patrolmen were watching a man driving, and not one mistake did he make. Every move was perfect. They followed him right to his driveway so they could commend him on his performance. They walked to the car as he was getting out, and one patrolman said, "Sir, we would like to congratulate you on your driving skill. We followed you all afternoon and you never made a mistake." The man burped, "Mister when you're as drunk as I am, you can't afford to goof!"

Coughs, Sneezes and TB

Today, TB can be controlled and cured. If the disease is detected.
The trouble is that anyone can have TB without knowing it. And anyone with live TB germs in his or her sputum can spread the disease by coughing and sneezing.
In the early stages of the disease, there may not be any symptoms. Common symptoms that come later are coughing a lot, feeling tired all the time, spitting up blood, and losing weight. Any one or all of the symptoms can mean TB. Only a doctor can tell for sure, by giving tests to determine whether or not TB germs are active in the body.
Once the disease is diagnosed, effective drug treatment can begin. For some patients short hospital stays may be necessary. More and more TB patients are now treated in general hospitals. One of the first things patients learn is how to avoid spreading germs: by covering their coughs and sneezes with disposable tissues and putting them in paper bags to be burned. Fast-working drugs make TB patients non-infectious to others in a matter of weeks.

Not so long ago, TB patients went to sanitariums and spent interminable years in isolation. Today there is no need for long stays in hospitals. In fact, most patients do not have to go to hospitals at all for treatment of TB. They can be treated with drugs in outpatient clinics or in doctors' offices.
Social security's teleservice makes it possible to file and complete most disability claims by telephone. Phone social security at Lewiston, Idaho.
A good way to get burned is to fall asleep smoking a cigarette.

Fourteen New Jobs Listed In County

14 new jobs were listed with the Moscow office of the Idaho Department of Employment during the past week. Frank J. Hartstein reported today that this was down slightly from the 19 new listing received last week, but equal to the number of openings available one year ago. 12 workers were given job finding help through his office, Hartstein said. At the end of the week the Moscow Employment office had job opportunities on hand for 23 workers, including one for TV repairman, a printer, a bindery foreman, carpenters, domestic workers, and cafe workers and others. 17 workers filed new claims for unemployment insurance during the week. Several were workers idled in the lumber industry as a result of a slight curtailment of activities in the eastern part of Latah county. The total new seeking jobless pay reached 180, up from last week's 178, but considerably less than last year's total of 221. Currently in the Moscow area there are 118 persons seeking benefits compared with 120 last week and 127 last year. In the Troy-Deary-Bovill area there are now 28 idled workers compared with 23 last week and 46 at this same

Sign Language Studies Reveal Inner Workings of Human Mind

What is sign language really like? Is it just a gestured version of English, or is it a different language? If you've ever watched a group of deaf people signing among themselves, you probably saw what is called American Sign Language—which is a complete language, with its own grammar and structure. In other situations the deaf may use Signed English and in some cases they may have to use fingerspelling. These last two, which are not independent languages, are what you usually see on the small cards occasionally sold by the deaf. The first thorough studies of the linguistic structure of sign language are being done at The Salk Institute in San Diego. Researchers there are comparing the detailed structure of sign language to the detailed structure of spoken language and they are comparing how a hearing child learns spoken language to how a deaf child learns sign language. By comparing signed and spoken languages the researchers can find out the basic biological capacity for language—regardless of the mode of expression. They can also add new evidence to the search for the common characteristics of all human languages. Since language is a uniquely human trait, these studies reveal much about the workings of the human mind. The researchers make videotapes of stories, poems, memory tests and grammatical exercises in sign for later detailed study. The work involves deaf families from the San Diego area as well as classes of deaf students from San Fernando State College and Gallaudet College in Washington, D. C. They have found that signs are determined by three important parameters: the shape of the hand, the direction of the motion, and the place of the hands in relation to the body. Changing any one of these can change the meaning of a sign completely.

time in 1971. At Potlatch the total remained at 22, down from last year's 36. Hartstein said that the number of unemployment insurance seekers would probably continue to climb slowly during the next few weeks.

Hen-In-Bag Regulation Balloons Late Harvest

Sportsmen are reminded that a "hen-in-the-bag" regulation goes into effect in some counties of southern Idaho the last nine days of the season.

In southwestern and southcentral counties, where the pheasant season ends December 10, the "hen-in-the-bag" regulation applies from December 2 through 10. The daily bag will be four pheasants, one of which may be a hen.

Dick Norell, Game Bird Supervisor, explains that from December 3 pheasants, the possession will be 8 pheasants, two of which may be hens.

The same provision for harvesting hens is scheduled November 25-December 3 in the southeastern counties of Bingham, Power, and Bannock, where the season ends December 3. In the southeastern counties of Bingham, Power and Bannock where the season ends December 3. The bag limit, which is four cocks becomes four pheasants on November 25—one of which may be a hen through December 3.

Back in 1960, the beginning of limited hen hunting in Idaho one hen a day could be included in the bag on just the last two days of the seasons—and in only about half the counties open for pheasant hunting. The reported harvest of hens during the first experimental season was 25,000 according to hunter questionnaires. In round numbers, the cock kill was about one-half million pheasants.

For the next five years, there was a gradual liberalization of regulations and the corresponding increase in the number of hens harvested. Over 1/2 million hens were bagged during this time by Idaho hunters without changing the winter sex ratio of two hens to one cock during the spring breeding season which had been maintained under cocks only hunting. The hen pheasant, if valued at commercial shooting prices amounts to a bonus running up to seven figures. Hunting of hens was resumed on a limited basis in 1970 after 3 years complete closure of cocks only in all parts of the state.

A continuing analysis is made to follow the effects of hen hunting on pheasant population. It continues with checks being made throughout the open season on hen pheasants to measure the influence of the regulation on hunting pressure. A noteworthy finding is that no very important change of sex ratios between the number of tens for each cock has been found.

Cholesterol Plays a Big Part In Heart Disease Says Assoc.

The Pilgrims didn't know anything about cholesterol and probably didn't have to worry about it either, says Idaho Heart Association. The hard work they had to endure, and the long days of its burned up excess fat and calories.

Among the things Americans can be thankful for today are an improved quality of life and medical science that points out the ways we can live better, longer. However, scientists have also found that a higher rate of atherosclerotic heart disease and higher blood cholesterol levels occur in the countries and cultures which are more advanced economically, including America. Most Americans eat so "well" that the suspicion has been growing even stronger that many of us are gorging and lazing our way into heart attacks. Our diet is rich, varied, tasty, a delight and a comfort. Creeping obesity is our price we pay. Rather than an army of starving children we now have an army of fat children. Our main problem now is OVER nutrition, particularly in certain types of foods.

Unhappily, our type of diet is the one associated with high blood cholesterol levels, which in turn are linked with higher risks of atherosclerosis and heart attacks. In fact, it is found that men with a high reading of cholesterol (250 milligrams or higher) run three to six times the risk of low-level cholesterol men.

Just as you can eat your way into a high risk of a heart attack as measured by high blood cholesterol, you can just as easily lower blood cholesterol in a short time and keep it down by following a heart helping diet, says the Idaho Heart Association. The change in diet is moderate. It is not a drastic surrendering of all the foods that tempt you, not a starvation diet, not a monotonous restriction to just a few things so typical of many crash diets. It involves primarily a change in the

Nearly Half Million Ducks On Concentration Areas

Nearly one half-million ducks were counted on 17 Idaho migratory waterfowl concentration points recently—up 42 percent from the numbers found two weeks ago—the Fish and Game Department reported today.

Dick Norell, game bird supervisor said some 492,000 ducks were feeding and resting in many parts of the state on counting areas, a figure comparable to the number at the same time last year. About 14,000 Canada geese were also observed, which is 28 percent above last year's figure.

Norell added that there has been a buildup of mallard and widgeon ducks on the Deer Flat, Hagerman, and Minidok areas.

There has been some movement of waterfowl out of southeastern Idaho because of freezing conditions. Hunting pressure so far has been light. Concentrations of ducks during the Idaho mid-winter waterfowl census in early January average about 750,000-850,000 ducks.

Duck hunters are reminded that shooting hours for ducks—but not geese—are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset in 26 Idaho counties of the Columbia Basin Mallard Area. In other counties—shooting hours for ducks—and all geese—is one-half hour before sunrise to sunset.

Charcoal and Carbon Monoxides

Glowing charcoal fires take the chill off the cool night air. But inside closed spaces, charcoal fires in grills and hibachis can cause poisoning. Even fatal poisoning.

After cookouts, campers and hunters sometime take makeshift burners inside station wagons and vans to warm sleeping quarters. The still-burning coals, however, can give off a deadly concentration of carbon monoxide. The gas is a silent, unseen formed by the incomplete combustion of the carbon in charcoal.

In outdoor cookouts, gas escapes into the open air. And fumes from indoor cooking on these burners usually force everyone to open windows amount and type of fat, and the amount of cholesterol you eat. The rules for your new diet are simple: SUBSTITUTE polyunsaturated fats (corn oil, cottonseed, safflower, and soybean oil) for the saturated fats (meats, lard, butter and coconut oil). Don't just add polyunsaturated fats to what you are eating now. That would merely add to your total fats and calories.

If you reduce your intake of saturated fats and cholesterol, blood cholesterol comes down. If you substitute some polyunsaturated fats for the saturated kind, you get a further moderate decrease in blood cholesterol.

For general guidelines on choosing the major types of dishes and for a Thanksgiving "Heart helping" menu, write or call Idaho Heart Association 2309 Mtn. View Drive, Boise, Idaho.

fast. But in tightly closed places, levels of the gas soar. High concentrations of it starve the body tissues of oxygen.

The red-colored blood pigment, hemoglobin, acts like a gigantic sponge, soaking up carbon monoxide breathed through the lungs. Hemoglobin, which carries oxygen to the tissues, combines with carbon monoxide about 200 times easier than with oxygen. The brain and heart both depend upon a continuous supply of fresh oxygen; but carbon monoxide forces oxygen out of the blood.

At high altitudes, where the air is thinner, the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning is even greater. There is less oxygen in the air to begin with and the body has to work harder to draw it in. And to make matters worse starting at about 3,000 feet above sea level the lack of oxygen makes the charcoal less likely to burn completely, thus producing more carbon monoxide.

Carbon monoxide comes from car exhaust and cigarettes as well as charcoal burners.

FOREST GROUSE SEASON WILL END NOVEMBER 26

Idaho's open season on forest grouse, the blue, ruffed and spruce species, ends statewide November 26 the Idaho Fish and Game Department said today.

However, the open seasons for Hungarian and chukar partridge and bobwhite, valley, mountain, and gambel quail, will continue most places thru December 31, 1972.

Exceptions are Benewah and Kootenai counties in the Panhandle Region where the season ended November 19; and Fremont, Mallson, and Teton counties in the Upper Snake River Region of Eastern Idaho, where the season ends November 26, 1972.

The long season for Hungarian and chukar partridge and quail in parts of the Salmon River drainage and the main Snake River drainage runs through January 21, 1973. Daily bag limits are 10 Hungarian and 10 chukar partridge and 10 in the aggregate of quail. Possession limits are 20 hun, 20 chukar and 20 in the aggregate of quail.

and still enjoy a cozy home environment

a few simple ideas that will add efficiency to your heating system:

- Let warm sunlight in on clear days.
- Close curtains at night and on dark cold days.
- Keep fireplace damper closed when not in use.
- Make sure weather stripping is tight around doors and windows.
- Be sure cold air returns are not obstructed.
- Clean filters every 60 days.
- Turn thermostat down at night — and at the desired comfort temperature during the day.
- Have ducts and blower systems cleaned and checked before heating season begins.

Wildlife Bounty Accents Idaho's Thanksgiving Day

By Jim Humbird
Idaho Fish-Game Department
If Thanksgiving day had not been proclaimed in 1863 by President Abraham Lincoln, the new Territory of Idaho probably would have adopted the traditional harvest celebration anyway from the Pilgrim forefathers because of its bountiful annual harvest of big game animals, migratory waterfowl, upland game birds and numerous species of fish, including ocean-going steel head trout.

History records that there was no uniformity of acceptance by early Americans of the annual Thanksgiving holiday established by the Plymouth colony following the first dreadful winter when half of the pilgrim company perished from hardships. In brief, the first nationwide Thanksgiving Day was set aside largely through the efforts of one woman, Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, editor of Godey's Lady Book. She had plumped editorially for 20 years on the subject and had written letters to each of the succession of presidents until the idea finally found favor with Lincoln.

Thus Mrs. Hale became known as the "Mother of Thanksgiving" the same year that Idaho became a territory. Now, more than a century later, the day still is regarded with reverence in the State of Idaho, as elsewhere, as a family day. Thanksgiving evokes nostalgic memories of back home, of the old farmhouse kitchen and its pantry crowded with goodies.

The passing of time has been good to Idaho. Today the State has more elk and deer than it had during the pioneer epoch, and Idaho's Snake, Clearwater and Salmon river system still is used by fishable populations of sea-run chinook salmon and steelhead trout, although both habitat and anadromous fish have been depleted since the days of Captains Lewis and Clark.

A recent field report states: "Examined 25 fish, 3 grouse, 13 chukars, 8 deer, and 1 moose." Because of overlapping general hunting seasons, it has been possible this fall to bag limits of geese, ducks, pheasants, chukars, Huns, Merriam turkeys, 3 species of quail, rabbits and of course elk, deer and black bear. With controlled hunt permits, trophy animals also are available, including moose, antelope, bighorn sheep and mountain goats. Conservation officers have been busy jumping from one hunting season opening to the next, and from big game to geese to ducks to big game again—and back to the valleys of pheasant, quail, chukar, and Huns—then back to big game again.

Some nimrods are checked who are heavy duty equipment for steelhead carrying fishing gear, including trout in the three-foot class, along with shotguns and rifles. Even after November 30, when the statewide general fishing season ends scores of lakes, reservoirs and streams will remain open for year-round angling or for special seasons for whitefish fishing and other species. The best success for mackinaw lake trout in Priest Lake is late fall-early winter. The season on macks runs through December 15.

Although it is true that some areas in Idaho have more deer than 40 or 50 years ago, the main reason for increased deer harvest is the more efficient use Idahoans are making of existing populations. When deer harvests are not harvested adequately, the populations may build up for a few years but inevitably hard winters, lack of enough food or disease will trim their numbers down. Deer cannot be stockpiled.

So it is in Idaho. Colorful autumn days presage Thanksgiving Day and the crisp bright yellow blaze of aspen and the red gold or sumac and maple splashed across the hills signal bountiful harvests of big game, birds and fish to be taken by all those who seek them.

Thanksgiving Services At Christian Science Church

Thanksgiving Day services open to the public will be held Thursday, Nov. 23 at all churches of Christ, Scientist, in the area.

The service at Christian Science Society of Moscow, 8th and Washington streets will start at 11 a. m. Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon on Thanksgiving is the passage from the Bible: "Rejoice evermore. Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

Individual expressions of gratitude by members of the congregation will be a feature of the service. No collection of any kind will be taken and all are invited to attend.

Remember — choosing what you eat is a daily habit. It is not easy. It is important.

New Cedar Products Mill To Be Built Near Pierce by PFI

A new cedar products mill to manufacture fencing materials and shakes will be constructed at the Jaype plywood plant near Pierce. It was announced today by D. J. Holman, wood products manufacturing manager, Clearwater Units, Polkatch Forests, Inc.

Construction will begin this month with operation of a single production line for fencing scheduled for next April, according to Holman. The new mill will be housed in a portion of the existing plywood plant building.

Initially 16 jobs will be created and eventually 44 will be employed on a two-shift, full production basis with an annual payroll of approximately $440,000. Full production on a single shift basis is expected by July with a second shift to be added in August or September.

Pickets, posts, and rails will be produced from cedar material on Company lands that is not suitable for lumber production, Holman said. It consists of short pieces of solid wood, cull logs, and other such material, most of which is presently being left in the woods after an area has been logged.

"This will be another step in our efforts to increase utilization of timber from company lands, either by using more of each live tree cut including defective ones or by using dead trees whenever possible," Holman said. Other steps taken during the past several years include the utilization of dead white pine trees to produce centers for Lock-Deck (a laminated decking material developed and manufactured by PFI) and using cull white fir (Grand Fir) logs to produce sheathing plywood.

Material left from these two operations is then chipped and sent to the pulp mill, along with chips from other wood wastes and pulp logs, for the production of pulp. The use of otherwise cull logs for veneer was made possible by the modification of operating methods and the development of a large chuck (device to hold the log in the veneer lathe) so that the outer portion of logs with rotten centers could still be peeled.

The fencing material to be manufactured at the new mill will be marketed in the Denver, Colorado area initially. "Cedar is a very durable product, does not require painting, it will weather to a beautiful silver gray color and is in great demand as a fencing material. A picket fence offers the privacy desired by some people while a post and rail fence provides a practical barrier and an attractive decor," Holman added.

The body you build the first 20 years of your life is the one you will live in the rest of your life. Build it strong and healthy with good food habits.

A good way to get burned is to fall asleep smoking a cigarette.

Advice To Heart Patients On Lifting Heavy Items

Advice to heart patients: careful of how you carry any heavy packages. It makes a big difference to your heart whether you load all the weight in one hand or distribute it.

This caution was offered November 16 at the 45th annual Scientific Sessions of the American Heart Association by a team of researchers from the University of Alabama Medical Center and Veterans Administration Hospital, Birmingham.

Dr. David H. Jackson, team spokesman, explained that patients with coronary artery disease often get chest pains (angina pectoris) when they overexert themselves—as in the case of too much walking, for example. The pains are a sign that the heart is not getting enough oxygen because of fatty obstructions in the coronary arteries supplying the heart. Many patients have learned to avoid the pain by limiting their activity. But, sometimes, even when they walk shorter distances, the pains may strike—as a result of carrying a suitcase, bag, or a loaded briefcase. They forget, Dr. Jackson said, that such loads place an extra burden on the heart, making it work harder.

The studies reported today indicate that it's probably not the weight alone, but the way in which the load is borne that has considerable bearing on whether a patient is likely to experience difficulty.

Dr. Jackson and his colleagues tested 13 healthy young men (ages 30-34) on a treadmill moving at the rate of 1.7 miles per hour. Each was asked to carry 40 pounds—with all the weight in the right hand, then with all of it on his back, and also with 20 pounds in each hand. The rise in blood pressure and heart rate was much less in the last two trials than when the weight was all in one hand.

Since the heart needs more oxygen to meet the demands of increased pressure and rate, Dr. Jackson concluded "it is not only imperative that coronary heart disease patients be cautioned as to carrying loads, but that they be instructed by their physicians in the most efficient method of carrying any particular load."

Nutrition is to total health what reading is to total education. A good food service program provides learning experiences through which the child develops desirable food habits for growth and development. It influences his academic achievement.
