Rites Are Held For Paul Dempsey At Salmon, Idaho

Salmon, Idaho: Private family funeral services for Paul Franklin Dempsey, 68, were held at the Salmon Cemetery, Thursday, Feb. 15, at 2 p. m. with the Rev. Stan DeLong of the First Presbyterian Church officiating.

Mr. Dempsey died February 13 at his home following a long illness. He was born December 27, 1904 in Siloam Springs, Arkansas, the son to Peter Joseph and Martha May Boyd Dempsey. When he was two weeks old the family moved to Boise until 1906 when they made Salmon their home.

Mr. Dempsey received his education in Salmon schools, graduating in 1922. He attended Lewis & Clark Normal School in Lewiston, and later received a bachelor of science degree and also a master degree from the University of Idaho.

He married Mildred Shively, July 5, 1930, in Vancouver, Wash. He spent about 40 years in the administrative field of education through out Idaho.

They moved to Salmon in 1964 and Mr. Dempsey retired in 1967.

He was a member of the Salmon Presbyterian Church and Hiram Masonic Lodge of Naperce.

He is survived by his widow, Mildred of Salmon; two daughters, Mrs. Mark (Martha) Noffsinger of Berea, Ohio, and Dr. Carolyn Mitchell of Seattle, Wash.; a sister, Mrs. Hershell Lamb of Wendell and three grandchildren.

In paying tribute to Mr. Dempsey's 40 years of service as an administrator in public school education, State Supt. D. F. Engelking said, "Education has lost a valued and beloved friend. Paul Dempsey contributed mightily to his chosen profession. He had the admiration and respect of his colleagues, and generations of school children will remember him with fondness. My sincere condolences go to his wife and family."

Burial took place in the Salmon cemetery under direction of the Jones & Casey Funeral Home.

Protest Letters Against X Rated Movies Asked

The ALCW has been informed that unless enough people protest, the Columbia Broadcasting System will begin showing X-rated movies at any hour of the day. Already they are using X-rated movies on their late show. If you don't want to have this trash on your TV—write a handwritten letter protesting the showing of pornographic material during the day-time, (or at any time) to:

Dr. Frank Stanton,
(Office President)
Columbia Broadcasting Co.

Job Placements In County Down Slightly

Job placement activity at the Moscow office of the Idaho Department of Employment in Moscow took a temporary dip during the past week. Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow office manager, said his office placed 13 workers in jobs during the week. He said that during the previous week, 20 workers were given job finding help. During the first week in April 1972, 11 persons found jobs through the office. New job listings were down slightly from the previous week also. Currently there are 33 jobs still open at the Moscow Employment office. Needed are several farm tractor operators, driver salesmen, secretaries, a bookkeeper, cafe and domestic workers, as well as several others.

A slight rise in the number of persons seeking jobless pay was noted during the week also. Hartstein said that most of those filing new claims, 21 in all, were construction workers who had been temporarily laid off from work. The total now seeking unemployment insurance stands at 401, up from last week's 389, but far below the 475 at this time last year. In the Moscow area, the total now is 180, last week 154, and last year 181. In the Genesee area, the totals are 8, 9, 13. Currently there are 140 persons seeking insurance in the Troy-Deary-Bovill area, compared with 137 last week and 179 a year ago. In the Kendrick area the totals are 13, 13 and 8. 80 persons are seeking benefits from the Potlatch area compared with 76 at the end of March and 94 during the first week of April a year ago.

Although this slight increase was noted, Hartstein indicated that unemployment in the county would probably remain stable at this point until work in the area's forests resumed. This will depend on weather and road conditions.

LICENSE SUPERVISOR NOTES MANY CHANGES

To the more than 600 vendors now authorized to sell fishing and hunting licenses and tags throughout the state and the thousands of other people who preceded them as vendors during the past 35 years, Fay Whitson of Boise is a "telephone personality."

Mrs. Whitson, who retired recently after 3 and a half decades from her position as license supervisor for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, served under nine directors (whose tenures ranged from nearly 10 years to about 6 weeks) and five supervisors. Starting her employment with the department as license examiner in March of 1938 on the fourth floor of the Idaho Statehouse Building, she recalls that first day receiving letters regarding wild horses in Owyhee County, another questioning why gophers were classified as predator animals (she as a farm girl had always regarded them as nuisances) and a complaint wanting to know why the streams were too muddy for early fishing.

During her 35-year span of employment, big game tag sales boomed. In 1941, deer tags sold totaled 52,183 and elk tags 10,798. This compares with 1972 sales totaling 142,584 for regular deer tags, 10,877 for extra deer tags, and 68,231 elk tags. There were 6 office girls in Boise and no regional offices of the Fish and Game Department. The number of license vendors in Idaho has now increased by more than about 100 people to about 600 or so.

Mrs. Whitson says that her employment with the Fish and Game Department has been a most rewarding, challenging experience and she

CARE LABELS—A SOURCE OF VALUABLE INFORMATION

Cotton flannel that has been chemically treated cannot be laundered using soap or low phosphate detergent.

Specific laundry instructions are included on the care label. Some labels indicate garments should not be laundered in hard water, says Mrs. Janis I. Buckner, extension textiles and clothing specialist, U. of I.

Soap reacts with hard water minerals and soil particles to form a curd which is redeposited on the fabric. Such deposits can build up on fabrics and cancel flame retardant properties after as few as three launderings.

Using low phosphate detergents results in a residue similar to the soap curd deposits. Flame retardancy can be lost after 10 washings using a low phosphate detergent.

Water hardness varies from one area to another and people are often unaware of the degree of hardness of their fresh water. A phone call to the city of town water department can provide information about the number of parts per million or grains per gallon, says Mrs. Buckner.

Generally, water with zero to 3 grains hardness is considered soft and should cause no laundry problems. Mechanical ion exchange water softening equipment can effectively reduce hardness.

Consumers have a responsibility to read and follow laundry care instructions and to check on the water in their area if unsure of degree of the hardness. Following care instructions carefully helps maintain flame retardancy.

A government for the people must depend for its success on the intelligence, the morality, the justice, and the interest of the people themselves. — Grover Cleveland.

WILDLIFE VIEWPOINT

Snow Is Beautiful
 Especially When It Covers Litter
 Which season do you like best—the snows of winter, the green of spring, the beauty of summer, the colors of fall? Spring and fall, for me, used to be the most lovely times of the year, but in some places the trash and litter have changed all that.

Fall has the accumulation of a year's littering along the roadsides and in public areas. Then comes the blessed cover of snow; and for a while, the trash, litter, and solid wastes of man is covered up by a white blanket. Some people even forget it is there. Some continue to litter, and each successive snow fall put it out of sight.

But then comes spring. The snow melts and all of man's throw-aways are there to see. They cover the borrow pits and adjacent areas, the picnic grounds and camping areas. They glare at the nature lover and all who behold until it is cleaned up or until greenup covers them again from sight.

In a recent trip to Elk River to their school science fair, my wife and I were appalled at the amount of litter that was visible along the road from Lewiston to this small mountain town. We stopped in several places and found beverage containers to be the most common of litter. Pop cans and bottles, beer cans and bottles were in profusion everywhere and in one area we checked, there was a major piece of junk every foot along both sides of the highway. We picked numerous pieces of this litter and piled it in heaps along the road. We hoped that people might notice these heaps and not litter so unconsciously. I'm sure no conscious person would deliberately litter—would they?

Now comes the question—how can we clean up this mess and prevent it from occurring again in the future. What can individuals or groups do? First, they must become litter conscious. They must recognize it, hate it, stop doing it themselves, and then want to do something about it. Clean up is one thing and it must be done. Some of it mother nature does by cover up—green grass in the spring and snow in the winter, and by recycling—changing trash and litter back into its original form. The rest will have to be done by man—the litterer.

We can follow nature's way and recycle the refuse. This means reuse. Many of man's present day products are quite indestructible as far as nature breaking them down. So man will have to re-use his waste. Other products will have to be destroyed or taken care of in other ways.

Let us take the cleanup. Who can do this—many groups can by cleaning up public areas and sections of public roads. Each time, the public should be made aware this activity is taking place and reminded of the reason the cleanup is necessary.

Individuals can also help. Every time you go camping, picnicking, swimming or even for a short drive, leave the area clean. Pick up your own litter and all else that is there, regardless of who left it. As one man in Twin Falls said in a slogan, "Bring back a six-pack of trash." In the area you leave clean, leave a note or card tacked to a tree or table stating who you are and that you cleaned the area—ask others to do the same. One idea I have expressed many

Bitterbrush Seedlings Transplanted

Thirty thousand bitterbrush seedlings are being transplanted from the Forest Service nursery near Lucky Peak Reservoir to the winter deer range east of Boise as part of a continuing early spring program that started five years ago. This is a cooperative range restoration program that also involves winter range land on the South Fork of the Fayette River east of Gardan Valley. Bitterbrush is one of the most valuable forage plants on big game winter ranges in Southern Idaho. Young twigs are high in crude fat content. Competition for the available bitterbrush often occurs between wild and domestic animals when their numbers exceed the carrying capacity of a range.

prevent one form of litter. The case of the beverage container—the most common offender. Have industry come up with a non-destructible, re-usable beverage container. Require all beverages sold to be packaged in this form, then put a deposit price on this returnable item that will make it an economic necessity that it be returned. This could be 25-30 cents. Then the user would return this container in order to get his deposit or to get more of the same item. Those that were thrown away would be economically worth salvaging for profit.

This is one solution to one problem in the vast field of litter. But we must do something and soon, or Idaho won't continue to be the desirable place to live it is now. Are you ready to help?

We have received many calls in the last few weeks about the rumor that Dworshak Reservoir will open early to fishing this season. This is now no longer a rumor but a fact. Due to early releases of catchable rainbow trout from the Dworshak National Fish Hatchery into the reservoir, the fishing season on a portion of the pool will open to fishing for all species of fish on the early spring fishing, opening on April 28 this year. The area opening on the early season will be Dworshak Reservoir from the dam upstream approximately five miles to the posted boundary at the log boom located just southwest of the Canyon Creek arm of the reservoir.

The remainder of the reservoir upstream to Thompson Creek on the North Fork of the Clearwater will not open until May 28, as shown in the 1973 Fishing Seasons and Regulations.

COST OF HOME IMPROVEMENTS

Careful planning is required when considering home improvements. Cost will depend on the house and its condition, materials used, and individual taste. One factor to think about is whether or not the improvement will add to the resale value of the house.

Real estate experts advise against over-expenditure when remodeling. Under most conditions, it's not wise to invest much beyond the value of other houses in the neighborhood.

according to Mrs. Ruth Spidahl, state home economics leader, U. of I. In a $20,000 neighborhood, for example, your return probably will be around $20,000 even if you've increased your home value to $40,000.

Some remodeling projects, such as kitchen and bathroom changes, can return nearly full value when the house is sold. Improvements such as paneled room or fireplace may do little to increase resale value.

Will you do it yourself or hire a contractor? You will have a lot of money if you opt for the former. But it is best for the homeowner to select do-it-yourself jobs with care. If you have the necessary skills, time, and equipment many projects are open to you. If you still want to work on the house but lack such resources, choose jobs you will be able to do well and in a reasonable amount of time.

The U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is offering free advice to anyone who wants to remodel his house. A post card to the Community Relations Division, Office of Public Affairs (HUD) Washington, D. C. 20410, will bring a copy of "Fixing Up Your Home; What To Do And How To Finance It." The booklet gives advice on selecting contractors, comparing bids, and understanding contract terms.

Panhandle Turkeys Transplanted

Twenty-three wild Merriam's turkeys were live trapped near St. Maries recently and 11 of them—8 toms and 3 hens—were immediately transferred to the Wagonhammer Creek drainage for release near Salmon. These birds will supplement transplants made in the same drainage several years ago. Six other turkeys, 2 mature toms, 2 mature hens and 2 young toms, were moved up the Coeur d'Alene River near Swan Lake west of Medimont and six additional toms were transplanted to the Kendrick and Lawiston areas, where previous transplants were made during the last two years.

The parent stock of Idaho turkeys was trapped and transported all the way from Colorado for release on the lower Salmon River, beginning with 39 birds in three separate shipments during the winters of 1961, 1962, and 1963. Wild turkey trapping and transplanting will continue until all suitable habitat has been tried.

don't waste a good thing...

Ever stop to think about the energy it takes to save your energy? The clean energy that works for you night and day is worth thinking about — and conserving. Used efficiently, it will continue to work for better living.

- Use your laundry appliances and dishwashers to full capacity; half-loads waste energy.
- Put a lid on the energy waste by cooking with covered pans whenever possible. Use pans that fit your range burner and open the oven door only when necessary.
- Make sure your home heating is adequate and operating efficiently. If in doubt, have it checked.

The clean energy that saves your energy is too precious to waste. A little thoughtful consideration from all of us will keep from wasting a good thing.

PEOPLE MOVERS

Cars are crushing our cities and fouling our air. Now new "people movers" are bypassing the crush.

The single automobile takes up a lot of space, gives off a cloud of pollution and carries only 1.3 people during rush hours. One way to make our car-sick cities healthier is funds to support mass transit. Other types of transit are getting off the drawing boards, too.

One intriguing "people mover" which is personal as well as pollution-free, is on the tracks and being tested this year in traffic clogged Morgantown, West Virginia. Government-sponsored demonstrations of the model have already been successful. Moving electrically on tracks, small 8-seat cars operate on demand like a horizontal elevator. The rubber-tired cars have huge picture windows on all sides and 8 coloured seats. There is also room for 13 standees to cling to poles.

With demonstration models, engineers have been on board to man a safety brake called a "chicken switch." But in regular operation, there will be no crewmen aboard the cars. Everything will be handled by a computer at a central station by an engineer there.

Although the cars will move at a rate of 20 to 30 miles per hour, experts say they will cut down one

Mrs. Frances Fry, Mrs. Harold Pressnall and Miss Elsie Darby were callers of Grandma Lyons one day last week.

Moved From Cedar Ridge

The Cedar Ridge community are very sorry to have the Bahrs leave our Ridge, after living for a long time on the ranch here. Their kindness and being good neighbors will be greatly missed. All wish them well in their new home near Kendrick. Till they get moved in they are spending a little time with Mrs. Mildred Blainfield.

He was cited for his outstanding performance of duties in Operation Deep Freeze, the joint scientific research being conducted by the United States and some 16 other nations in Antarctica.

A 1954 graduate of Genesee high school, he joined the Navy in March of 1955.

GOOSE NEST SEARCH STARTS ON ISLANDS

Department workers last week started the annual counts of nesting pairs of geese on about 100 islands and the shorelines of the lower Snake and Payette rivers, the Idaho Fish and Game Department said today.

Workers search out and record as many active nests as possible in the hour's traveling time in a congested city to 5 minutes. The difference is that the "people movers" have no traffic to contend with on their own tracks.

Maybe traveling in the cities can be fun again. Or at least pollution free. But there's a long way to go yet. Leave your car at home when ever you can and to join the fight against air pollution contact the Idaho Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Assn., 2621 Camas St., Boise.

same trend areas year after year. Later rechecks are made to learn how many nests successfully hatch.

Dick Norell, game bird supervisor, said that goose nesting counts will be continued in the Upper Snake region later this month and next when spring weather conditions come to the higher elevations. He added that geese like to build nests close to water whether on islands or river shorelines. If the river is at flood stage prior to nesting, geese build their nests higher up the banks and lessen the chances of the nests being flooded out. Unfortunately, most of the flooding occurs late in the incubation period when geese will not nest.

In Eastern Idaho, Norell said the coordination of flood control releases from Palisades Dam will force birds to nest above the predicted high flow line for April and May
