Weather Warns . . .

Under a cloudless sky, the temperature moved up toward the 100-degree mark Tuesday of this week. The weather had shown a steady warming trend since last week, breaking up a period of unseasonably cool temperatures.

Despite the cooler weather some time ago, there was still little if any rain and the dry weather has forced the city of Juliaetta to restrict the use of water. The city has posted notices of restriction. Under the restriction only one half of town should water and sprinkle lawns and gardens on any one day, one hour in evening. Mayor Harold Freeman said Tuesday he and the council regretted this restriction but concern for the water reserves and the fire safety they represent must be considered.

BOARD OF THANKS

We would like to take this opportunity to extend our thanks and appreciation to those who helped extinguish the fire at our ranch on Fix Ridge. We are extremely grateful to the Genesee Fire Department, the Forest Service, the Juliaetta Fire Chief, a Clearwater Power employee passing by and all of the neighbors for their assistance.—Maec and Albert Nye, Norman Kinman. 28c

SCHLUETTERS AND CLYDES RETURN FROM VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schlueter recently returned from a 5-week trip to Alaska. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clyde and sons, Steve, Scott and Kenny of Moscow. They left Moscow June 1st and traveled to Prince Rupert, Canada. From there they ferried their campers to Haines Alaska stopping off a day and a half and a half to two and a half at each city along the way—Ketchikan, Sitka Juneau Skaway and Haines.

From Haines they traveled inland to different cities and on back to the coast to Anchorage where they visited with friends. Hearing of good Sockeye Salmon fishing on Kenai Peninsula, they drove down to the Russian River to try their luck. They caught several nice ones but could only, by law, keep the ones that were hooked in the mouth. They were really good eating!

Most of the rivers were high and muddy because of an abundance of rain and glacial sediment. They all enjoyed the tour of Mt. McKinley Park not far from Fairbanks.

Fairbanks is a striking university city. The University is doing much experimenting with the permafrost situation in relation to crop growing. From Fairbanks they drove down into the Yukon territory to Dawson City. This city is much like it was in 1898, the days of the Gold Rush. They are restoring many of the old buildings for the tourists.

There were several early day movie vaudeville acts, and places to pan for gold. It is a gambling town with much excitement. Whitehorse, now the capital of the Yukon territory was a big riverboat port in early days. Now the large boats have been turned into museums and sightseeing tours. Big trucks have taken over the job of hauling the ore.

The rest of the drive down the Alcan highway was interesting with many side sight seeing tours and swimming in every hot spring. The party found skiffs of snow around Calgary and Lake Louise. When they reached Idaho, it still looked the best to them.

They all agreed that the tour of Alaska was an excellent educational trip as well as one full of fun.

THE RUPERT KEMPFS, FORMER RESIDENTS, VISIT HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Kempf, of San Francisco, visited recently with Mr. and Mrs. Anton Kambitsch in Lewiston. Rupert, the only son of the late John and Anna (Jacobs) Kempf, was born in Genesee and attended Genesee schools and spent part of his childhood here.

Mr. Kempf, accompanied by Mr. Kambitsch visited familiar places of interest in Uniontown and Genesee while in the area.

The Kempf family lived in a house located across the street from General Repair, formerly Herman's store. Rupert's father owned and operated the first blacksmith shop in Genesee, which he later sold to Ernest Miller when he and his family moved to California. Sometime later the shop burned.

John Kempf's parents owned and lived in the house belonging to the late Mrs. Eva Taylor that was recently torn down. John Kempf and Mary Kambitsch, (Ed and Anton's mother) were brother and sister.

Rupert, who has been living in San Francisco for a number of years, is a retired employee of Best Foods. After retirement, he and his wife have done extensive traveling. He has written several manuscripts on early day Genesee and his early years here, and hopes to have them published sometime in the near future.

WENDY WAS FIVE

Wendy, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Allen observed her fifth birthday anniversary on Saturday, July 7 from 1 to 3 with a party planned and carried out by her sisters, Elaine and Randa.

Party games were played and refreshments were served to Shawna Musgrave, Erin Carroll, Ginny Egland, Margaret and Lynn Gnerich, Aaron Zennor, and Jimmy Smith.

BUFFET LAWN DINNER

A buffet lawn dinner was served by Mr. and Mrs. Ozzie Kanikkeberg at their home following the wedding rehearsal of Kristine McGahan and Michael Fredrickson in Moscow last Friday evening.

Present were Pastor and Mrs. Martin Larsen, Mr. and Mrs. Deal McGahan, Deborah McGahan, Karen Johnson, Mary Driscoll, Gloria Johnson, Mike Bartelson, Marshall McGahan, Robert Parkins, Rolly McNair, Philip Anderson, Cheryl Kanikkeberg, Sharon Kanikkeberg, Kelly McGahan, and Mark McGahan. The couple were married Saturday evening at the Emmanuel Lutheran church in Moscow.

STUDY ON CREATIONISM

An informal study on the subject of Scientific Creationism will be held at the Church of the Nazarene Sunday evening, July 15, beginning at 6 p.m. Creationism, as an alternative to the theories of Darwinian evolution has been gaining considerable support from scientists and others in different areas of this country and abroad in recent years. As local libraries of this area have nothing to offer in this field, tapes have been secured of a seminar session held by Dr. Donald Chittick, head of the science department at George Fox College, Newberg, Oregon. Dr. Chittick delves into two areas, the question of origins, and the question of earth history. The last part of the seminar was a free question and answer time where many interesting questions were raised. The study session is open to the public and all who are interested in this topic are invited to attend.

Regulations List Frogs With Idaho Game Fishes

Idaho gourmets who rate frog legs just ahead of barbecued ribs hold William H. Ridenbaugh as their patron saint. He was the Boise pioneer who brought bullfrogs overland from Missouri in about 1895. He was superintendent of the stage company and Wells Fargo agent.

He lived in south Boise, where high water flooded his frog pond, thus releasing the frogs accidentally. He also introduced largemouth bass to the Idaho country for the first time, according to the Fish and Game Department.

Anglers often ask why bullfrogs are classed with game fish in the regulations—and why there is a bag limit of 12.

Idaho's huge mottled bullfrogs are amphibians and obviously not game birds or mammals, but they do need protection and a niche was found for them many years ago in the fishing regulations. The Catholic Church, confronted with the same biological dilemma, already had set the precedent by decreeing that bullfrogs are fish.

Bullfrogs now can be taken by archers and spear fishermen. Formerly frogs had to be caught on hook and line the same as fish. This was done by baiting a stout line with a piece of bright red cloth. But first a frog had to be spotted, sitting motionless atop a lily pad or as a natural hump in the water, with just eyes protruding. The trick was to flip the red lure within inches of the frog's mouth. His long tongue then would flick out with lightning speed, and the critter became part of the evening's main course.

Many Mountain Lakes Accessible By Trail

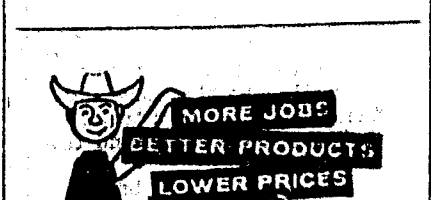

Access to most high mountain lakes is open, whether by road or trail, and most lakes are ice-free and fishable throughout the state. But at very high elevations, heavy snowfall can come at any time—and sometimes does—in July and August, the Idaho Fish and Game Department averred today.

Anglers heading for alpine lakes are urged to take plenty of food, clothing, bedding and mosquito repellent. Heavy boots should be broken in and comfortable, and first-aid kits are good insurance. Very little first-hand information is available because few fishermen so far have reported road and water condition to the department. Aerial fish planters in the White Clouds area found Sheep Lake (above Walker Lake) still ice-covered in late June. Cutthroat trout are spawning in the lower end of Independence Lake and the waters are fishable at about 9,600-foot elevation.

A department spokesman reminded fishermen of their part in providing information regarding fishing pressure, lake size and fishing success per hour and condition of fish.

One of the peculiar things about truth, in general, is that it requires very little argument to support itself.

U of I Scientists Hope To Get Eggshell Break Losses

Moscow: Broken or cracked eggshells cost the U. S. commercial poultry industry about $188.6 million annually.

That's about 60 cents per hen lost each year from egg breakage or downgrading because of shell damage, according to Dr. Gordon B. Meyer, assistant poultry scientist at the University of Idaho.

Meyer said poor quality eggshells could cause a health problem too—bacteria, mold or fungi can penetrate the shell more easily.

Animal scientists at the university's College of Agriculture are changing feeding pattern and environment of hens to test their effects on shell quality. Meyer said they are looking for an economical way to lower breakage losses and to increase shell resistance to bacteria.

An eggshell takes about 16 hours to form. Meyer said. Most eggs are laid by 10 or 11 in the morning so the shell is formed mostly at night. Previous research indicates that a 2-hour period of light during the night may increase shell quality because hens may have a constant calcium supply.

Since the experiments began at the university last August, hens have been given 16 hours of light each day, "Daylight" for one group of hens is one 16-hour block. The other group has a 14-hour "day" plus a 2-hour period of light during the night.

Some of the hens will have feed available during the two-hour "snak-time" at night to test effects of additional calcium intake while the shell is forming.

Hens require as little light as 1/2 foot-candle as daylight—which is too dark for humans to work, Meyer said. One foot-candle power is used (approximately equivalent to one 25-watt bulb in a 10x11 foot room). Hens don't lay significantly better with more light, he noted.

In addition to varying patterns of light exposure, oyster shell is fed to some hens as a source of calcium instead of regular meal with limestone in it.

Scientists are measuring body weight and feed consumption regularly and take blood samples to measure serum calcium, phosphorus and estrogen. Meyer noted the hens are kept in individual cages so egg production can be correlated to variable factors such as estrogen level.

Meyer said scientists are also studying the effect of two laying seasons on bone strength of hens. Hens remove calcium from their bones for egg production. The calcium is replaced but either not enough is replaced or it is of lower quality, resulting in weaker bones, Meyer said.

Meyer said the hens were force-moulted at the beginning of the experiment so all the hens would be-

Farm Program Agency Reorganizes

Washington—A reorganization of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) was announced today by ASCS Administrator Kenneth E. Frick. The changes are being made to streamline the agency's structure and improve its services in agricultural producers.

The reorganization is effective on June 29, 1973. The administrator said the major changes are consolidation of regions and commodity divisions and realignment of responsibilities for the three deputy administrators who report to him and Associate Administrator Glenn A. Weir.

Previously, program and management responsibilities were divided among the 3 deputies. Under the reorganization each deputy will have sole responsibility in a specific area. The Deputy Administrator for Programs is Elvin J. Person; the Acting Deputy Administrator for Management is William L. Ruble; the Acting Deputy Administrator for Commodity Operations is Charles H. Turquist.

The regions have been restructured from 5 into 4 in order to reflect the changing agency workload and to more nearly conform with established federal regional boundaries, Administrator Frick said. He identified the 4 new regions as East, East Central, West Central, and West.

The commodity divisions reporting to the Deputy Administrator for Programs are cotton, rice, and oilseeds division; Grain Division; Sugar Division; Tobacco and Peanut Division.

Also operating to the Deputy Administrator for Programs will be the Defense Operations Division, and the Program Operations Division, as well as 2 staff operation, Environmental Quality and Land Use, and Appeals.

The Deputy Administrator, Commodity Operations will continue to be responsible for supervision of Commodity Office operations in Prairie Valley and Minneapolis, and the procurement, management and disposition of commodities and products.

A commodity Operations Division will be responsible for the support program for milk and the products of milk, and for transportation and warehouse functions. This division, will also be responsible for the support program for poultry products, which reports to the Deputy Administrator for Commodity Operations.

Division under supervision of the Deputy Administrator for Management are personnel, data systems, fiscal, administrative services, and budget. Also reporting to the Deputy Administrator, Management, is the Internal Consulting Staff. Field service offices for personnel, data systems, accounting, claims and administrative services will be located in Kansas City.

Hens will be used for two laying seasons, then replaced with pullets, Meyer said.

Big Game Regulations Now Ready For Public

With a pen-and-ink drawing of a fine bighorn ram by Jerry Wilda, Lewiston, on the cover fold the 1973 Idaho Big Game Hunting Seasons and Regulations are printed and being mailed to more than 600 license vendors throughout the state.

Management unit descriptions appear on one side of the large fold out sheet, except for the big horn sheep illustration on the cover fold and hunter information sections. The state hunting map, with its overlay of management boundaries and columnar listings of deer and elk season dates, is printed on the reverse side of the large sheet of paper.

On the fold-out page opposite the state map and unit-season listings is general information, including general hunting seasons for black or cinnamon bear, mountain lion, controlled deer and elk hunts, and general archery seasons for deer, elk, black bear, antelope and mountain goat.

The 1973 Idaho Big Game Hunting Seasons and Regulations publication should be in the hands of all license vendors and ready for free public distribution later this week.

Flu Virus Researched

According to Dr. Kilbourne, the flu virus of 1918 which killed 21 million people in the world was similar to a virus discovered in pigs years later. The so-called Hong Kong virus of the late sixties, he said, was also capable of infecting swine. There are strains of the Influenza A type virus in horses and domestic birds as well as man. There are outbreaks of this virus every 10 or 12 years.

Dr. Kilbourne believes that the viruses that will cause tomorrow's epidemic are hiding out now in domestic animals. But modern public health measures can avert catastrophes. Killed virus vaccines can help provide protection against the flu itself; but new ones must be made for each variation in the virus.

which reports to the Deputy Administrator for Commodity Operations, also will provide liaison with food and relief agencies at the national level.

Division under supervision of the Deputy Administrator for Management are personnel, data systems, fiscal, administrative services, and budget. Also reporting to the Deputy Administrator, Management, is the Internal Consulting Staff. Field service offices for personnel, data systems, accounting, claims and administrative services will be located in Kansas City.

Thomas J. Thompson, 65, Former Area Resident, Passed Away May 19

Thomas Jefferson Thompson, 65, of Fall City, formerly near Wenatchee and the Grand Coulee area, died Sat., May 19, 1973 in a North Bend hospital following a lingering illness.

He was born in Kendrick, Idaho, on February 11, 1908. He spent the early part of his life in Idaho, attending school in Long Meadows. He attended the Glendale (Calif.) Flying School and received his diploma in 1931.

In 1957 he earned his commercial license. He was a bush pilot in Alaska, flying supplies for a mining company. He lived in Grand Coulee in 1957 building the air strip at Electric City, and had his own charter service in Grand Coulee and Wenatchee. He lived in Fall City for about 13 years.

Mr. Thompson was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Surviving are his wife, Rosa, of the home; a son, Charles E. Brewer; three sisters, Betty Brocks of Orofino; Vada Lewis of Lewiston; Violet Andrew of Deary, all of Idaho, and three grandsons, Jerry, Jimmy and Jeffery.

Services Wednesday, May 23rd were conducted in the Church of Latterday Saints by Bishop Robert C. Folkman. This was in Issaquah.

Palbearers were Price Nelson, Elvin Hendrickson, Lloyd Sampson, Bob Grant, Doug Betts and Dick Pincock. Under the direction of Harts Funeral Home, Snoqualmie, burial was at Fall City cemetery.

Number of County Jobless Increases Slightly This Week

Some curtailment of woods activities coupled with additional lay-offs at area schools brought a slight increase in the number of persons seeking unemployment insurance in Latah county last week. Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow office manager for the Idaho Department of Employment reported that the total number of jobless pay seekers rose from 268 last week to 279 at the end of the current week. A year ago the figure was 229. 35 persons filed new claims for benefits during the week.

Placement of job seekers was down slightly from the previous week. Only 12 persons were given job finding help during the holiday week compared with 16 placed during the previous week, and 30 during the same week a year ago. 19 jobs, nearly all for experienced full time workers remained unfilled at the end of the week. Needed were sales people, secretaries, and mechanics, as well as a farm equipment operator and others. Hartstein's report indicated that there are still a number of young workers seeking work for the balance of the summer.

KOKANEE IDENTIFICATION

By Kent Ball
Fisheries Research Biologist
Many anglers fishing in Dworshak Reservoir this year have been misidentifying rainbow trout for kokanee. Rainbow trout planted as fry or fingerlings last year are silvery and lack the distinctive rainbow stripe on their sides. In addition there are a few juvenile steelhead in the reservoir which are undergoing the physiological change to adapt to life in salt water. During this change they are also silvery in appearance.

Kokanee are landlocked sockeye salmon. Some misunderstanding could be avoided if everyone would call them kokanee instead of blueback or silver. Both of the descriptive names also apply to the rainbow mentioned above and the juvenile steelhead. Anglers who fish in Pend Oreille, Coeur d'Alene and Priest Lakes usually have little difficulty identifying kokanee because of the lack of similar appearing species.

There are several subtle but distinct characteristics that separate kokanee from rainbow trout. The 1973 fishing regulations contain a drawing to assist anglers in proper identification of kokanee. Sometimes a single characteristic leads to confusion. For example juvenile steelhead often have a deeply forked tail. It's best to use several characteristics to insure proper identification.

A rainbow has the typical trout body while the kokanee's is torpedo-like. The trout also has a spotted dorsal fin while the kokanee's has no spots at all.

The trout's anal fin has 11 to 12 rays while the kokanee's has 14 or more and the trout has a rounded nose while the kokanee's is pointed. The kokanee also has a deeper forked tail than does the rainbow and a more delicate jaw than that of the rainbow.

Kokanee prefer colder water than trout and are usually found quite deep during the warm summer months. They feed on small free-floating animals and are seldom found near shore.

Small hooks and a light touch are necessary to catch them.

Fish and Game personnel have checked over 4,000 fish caught from Dworshak Reservoir this year but only 6 were kokanee. This is not because kokanee are scarce. On the contrary they are quite abundant, but anglers are either not fishing for them correctly or the rainbow are more easily caught. Generally speaking, kokanee are caught more readily during the year they mature. Dworshak National Fish Hatchery collected eggs from kokanee spawners in Anderson Ranch Reservoir on the South Fork of the Boise River in the fall of 1971 and planted over one million fingerlings in Dworshak Reservoir last summer. Most of these fish should mature in September of 1974.

Anglers planning to fish at Dworshak Reservoir should take along a copy of the fishing regulations or this article to help identify their catch properly. Probably the best advice is When in doubt, stop at ten.

Idaho Economy Shows Expansion Says Newsletter From First Security Bank

Idaho's economy in the first half of 1973 had expanded significantly over a year earlier, but there were some variations as to the rate of increase among economic segments of manufacturing, trade construction & service industries.

This is the report of the quarterly First Security Bank News Letter being distributed this week according to W. J. Phar and James Hoogland. The publication is edited by Dr. El-Roy Nelson, First Security vice president and economist.

Total personal income in the first half year is estimated at $1.5 billion or an increase of 16 percent above a year earlier. The percentage increase is slightly above the national average and reflects increased employment and payrolls as well as cash receipts from farm marketing in Idaho all above the national average.

The outlook for the third quarter of 1973 is for further increases in production, employment, agricultural income and personal income. Increases are expected in lumber and paper, food, apparel, household wares and electronic products. But there are the national problems affecting the local outlook, including further efforts to curb inflation with the impact on prices, says the First Security report.

Cash receipts from farm marketing in the first 6 months totaled an estimated $848 million or 84 percent above such receipts in the 6 months of 1972. Increases over last year were in most products, but especially in beef, cattle, potatoes and wheat.

Cattle prices increased from a low point last November until mid-March declined somewhat in April, increased again in May, but continued below the previous peak levels of March. Prices have remained relatively stable since that time at 10c per pound above a year ago. Livestock slaughter of cattle was the same as a year earlier, but that of calves was 40 percent lower, hogs 25 percent lower and lamb 22 percent lower. Feeder cattle prices continue at approximately $9 per cwt higher than slaughter cattle. However, the sharp increase in the cost of feed has had some effect in reducing this spread.

Note: Forecasting receipts for the last half-year are almost impossible because of the changing economic trends, including crop production and prices that are so definitely affected by exports. The same generalization tends to apply to livestock with the problems of increased cost of feed and the difference in impacts as among the various commodities due to the price freeze of Phase IV. Cash receipts for 1973 should be considerably higher for the summer months, but may be lower in the fall months than a year earlier, continues the First Security report.

In Idaho, milk production for the first four months was approximately 4 percent higher with corresponding increases also in American cheese and ice cream but decreases similar to that nationally in the output of creamy butter. Prices of milk are approximately 8 percent above a year ago.

Crop production estimates in Idaho for 1973 are far above one year ago levels for most grain products and crop plantings, generally similar to those in the nation are up 7 percent from a year ago. Increased acreages are in wheat and feed grain with slight declines indicated for beans, peas and sugar beets.

Fruit production will be above year ago levels and potato planting in Idaho are listed at 325,000 acres—up 6 percent. Nationally, however, output may be lower.

Lumber production in Idaho for the first 4 months at 617.4 million feet board measure was 5.5 percent above that of a year earlier. One cause for increased output was more favorable lumbering weather, following the milder winter.

Employment reported for May totaled 306,500, an increase of 8,400 from the previous year. Agricultural employment was slightly lower, but non-agricultural wage and salaries employment of 238,400 was 9,700 above a year ago—for an increase of 4.2 percent, concludes the news letter.

Booming Water Traffic Increases Safety Need

By Jim Humbird
 Idaho Fish-Game Department
 Idaho has over 30,000 numbered boat owners (31,456 in 1971) and more clean, cool water for recreational use than any state in the Intermountain West. Responsibility for the safety of all water-based recreationalists depends largely on their own conduct and that of their passengers.

With over 10 million pleasure watercraft in every bay, river, gulf, estuary and lake around the United States, boating, bouncing, tacking, trimming, roaring, racing, cruising, catpulting, smoking, sinking, flaming, beaming, on sandbars, towed, dead, out of control, and at least 1 skipper throwing out the anchor without securing the end of the line, boating is a billion-dollar business. It is big and getting bigger.

There is one thing wrong with it—boating, like other outdoor recreation, attracts a few idiots. In Idaho, enforcement is the responsibility of county sheriffs in cooperation with state law enforcement. The law provides authority to stop and board any watercraft in the state.

Since the increase in boating activity has been so rapid, and more people of limited experience in the operation of boats and equipment are using Idaho lakes and rivers, added emphasis must be placed on enforcement of regulations concerning safety and registration.

Public safety requires that the operator of a boat observe courtesy and common sense in the use of his craft. The most common causes of death, injury and property damage are those which could have been eliminated if the person operating the vessel had observed basic safety precautions. Collision with another vessel is the cause of most accidents in the United States, according to the Coast Guard, followed by capsizing, falls overboard, collision with fixed object, fire or explosion of fuel, and grounding.

Among the leading factors in any water safety program are boat capacity and load. Most boats show the recommended maximum horsepower and load, in pounds. This means that boat and motor must be balanced. An underpowered boat will be sluggish and an overpowered boat will be tricky to handle and may lead to trouble afloat. Local marina dealers should be able to figure the maximum horsepower and load capacity for any boat which does not carry a plate giving this information.

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

Medicare Medical Insurance
 The monthly premium from Medicare medical insurance, scheduled to be increased in July, has been rolled back in keeping with president Nixon's 60-day price freeze policy, according to D. Gene Shaw, Social Security district manager in Lewiston. The higher amount will continue to be charged until the premium record for each beneficiary can be corrected.

Medicare medical insurance helps pay for doctor bills and many other medical expenses of people aged 65 and over.

Effective July 1, 1973 disabled people under age 65 who have been receiving disability payments for 24 consecutive months are covered under Medicare. Since July will be the first month premiums are withheld from their checks they will receive a refund also.

Refund in full will be made at a later date. This will be handled automatically and no application is necessary according to Mr. Shaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Wadrip from Lewiston, niece and nephew of Lena Zumbhoff were her Friday evening visitors.
Mr. and Mrs. William Straw were Friday callers in the Erma Stevens home.
The Darrell Cowger family of Lewiston were July 4th "belated" dinner guests of his mother, Betty Cowger. Unexpected guests in their own home delayed their departure. All of us have caused, or experienced the same! It happens in the best of families.
Moving Mrs. Hunter and Aunt Charlotte to a different residence in Lewiston Orchards occupied the Fourth for daughter Ruth Helmgaerters and Wayne, aided by other helpful ones.
Camping!
From Monday until over the 4th was enjoyed at Selway area meadows by the Don Holsingtons, the Ted Weyens and Dean Weyen and wife.
Mr. and Mrs. Jim Holsington and children of Lapwai, and the Danny Peters family of Juliaetta? were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Don Holsington.

Pinecreek 4th of July
Joining visiting granddaughters Lori and Shannon Brown on Wednesday were their parents and brother Allen, bringing fireworks to help celebrate. Allen returned home to have necessary routine "shots" but returned Friday and remained until Sunday with Grandma and the girls. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cooper and the Don Browns were Sunday dinner guests of their mother, the children all reluctantly returning to Lewiston that evening. The house seems too quiet!
Mrs. Carol Richardson and daughters Noelle and Rena, Orofino, spent a day at the Brown home this week. Emma Weichman and Herman Byers were among callers.

At the Newt Heaths
The 4th remained as any other day at the Heath home, possibly more quiet. On Friday afternoon son Gordon Heath and his boys visited with them, from Poulatch.
Saturday, granddaughter Nancy (Mrs. Mike Muddell) and two small sons of Nespecco, spent the day on Hubbard Gulch. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Heath, also of Nespecco, were Sunday supper guests of his parents.
Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stelgers attended the Winchester Days celebration where Ernest joined the other old time fiddlers on their float in the parade, and later entertaining at the program. Noelle enjoyed seeing "Delta, the Kendrick queen, also riding atop a car and looking sweet!
On the evening of the 4th, taking grandchildren Bekalyn and Brant to view fireworks along Snake River was a pleasant chore.

A Pleasant Weekend
Again Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stelgers, with Bekalyn and Brant, drove many long miles to Council, then 29 miles into the mountains from Council, Idaho, to 4400-ft. elevation to join three other couples at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bud McGahey at Bear, Idaho. This home houses Bear postoffice and the McGahey property also stands the abandoned Bear Valley schoolhouse, now used as a community center. An old-fashioned county dance was held from 9:30 p.m. Saturday until 3 a.m. the following morning, at which the musicians happily played their various instruments. Ladies brought sandwiches and hot coffee was served to the crowd at midnight. As in days of old, this served to revive lagging feet and things really "picked-up!"
Food and bedding was brought by the houseguests and all had a wonderful time. It was a paradise for the children!
