Income Guidelines and Definitions

Family Size	Family Income
One	from $2,191 to 2,740
Two	from $2,881 to 3,600
Three	from $3,571 to 4,460
Four	from $4,261 to 5,310
Five	from $4,951 to 6,100
Six	from $5,641 to 7,690
Seven	from $6,331 to 8,680
Eight	from $7,021 to 9,670

Nine from $7,171 to 8,960
Ten from $7,881 to 9,600
Eleven from $8,191 to 10,240
Twelve from $8,701 to 10,880
For each additional family member add $640.

Definition of a family: means a group of related or nonrelated individuals who are not residents of an institution or boarding house, but who are living as one Economic Unit. Wards of the court, like foster children, should be considered as one-member families.

Income, as the term is used in this notice, is similar to that defined in the Bureau of Census Reports, "Characteristics of the Low-Income Population: 1970," Consumer Income, Current Population Reports, Series P-50, No. 51, November, 1971.

"Income" means income before deductions for income taxes, employees' social security taxes, insurance premiums, bonds, etc. It includes the following:
1) monetary compensation for services, including wages, salary commissions, or fees;
2) net income from nonfarm self-employment;
3) net income from farm self-employment;
4) social security;
5) dividends or interest on savings or bonds; income from estates or trusts or net rental income;
6) public assistance or welfare payments;
7) unemployment compensations;
8) government civilian employee or private pensions or annuities;
9) military retirement, or pensions, or veterans' payments;
10) alimony or child support payments;
11) regular contributions from persons not living in the household;
12) net royalties; and
13) other cash income.

Other Cash Income would include cash amounts received or withdrawn from any source, including savings, investments, trust accounts, and other resources, which would be available to pay the price of child's meal.

In applying these guidelines, school food authorities may consider both the income of the family during the past 12 months and family's current rate of income to determine which is the better indicator of the need for free meals.

Application blanks for meals will be mailed or sent home to parents of children in the district. Applications will be accepted any time and can be obtained at the school. The school will notify all applicants in writing of their acceptance or denial for free meals. Applicants who do not agree with a decision have a right to a fair and impartial hearing which can be arranged for by contacting Luther Parks, chairman of the board at Kendrick, Idaho.

Parents or guardians who believe their children are eligible for free meals are urged to fill out the application forms as soon as you receive them and return to Don A. Blakeley, superintendent, Kendrick, Idaho.

In addition to the income guidelines used for determining eligibility unusual circumstances such as unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of total income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses.

The school food authorities of schools participating in the program or of commodity only schools shall take such actions as are necessary to assure that the names of children eligible to receive free meals shall not be published, posted, or announced in any manner and to assure that there shall be no overt identification of any such children by the use of special tokens or tickets, or by any other means.

The schools participating in this program are Kendrick High School and Juliaetta Elementary School.

In the operation of the child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of his race, sex, color or national origin.

The district's complete policy concerning free meals may be reviewed in Superintendent Blakeley's office located at Kendrick, Idaho.

Fire Danger At All-Time High; Burning Banned

Fire danger within the Kendrick Fire Protective District reached an all-time high Monday morning, reported Richard Benjamin, district fire warden. The fire index is based on a scale of 0 to 500. Monday morning the index was 372 and still climbing as Benjamin urged the cooperation of every single person to keep the fire threat down.

Open Burning in City Banned
In an effort to cooperate with the district in its battle against fire, the city of Kendrick has banned all open and outside burning within the city limits until this critical period is over. The ban is especially intended to stop trash can burning and grass and weed burning. A single spark from flying, burning debris could land on either side of the canyon and the results would be potentially disastrous.

The Kendrick Fire District went on Red Flag alert Monday because of the anticipated dry lightning which was forecast for the region.

Two Fires
Two fires were fought in the immediate area last week, both of them on Thursday.

Three acres of barley stubble were burned early Thursday afternoon on the Bob Smith farm on American Ridge Grade. The alarm was turned in by Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Brown of Southwick who were driving by and spotted the fire.

Later that same afternoon fire in Bothel Canyon from unknown causes burned 12 acres of timber and brush. Benjamin reported that the Troy Rural Fire District also responded to the call as did many neighbors and other volunteers. Winds up to 40 miles per hour made the fire difficult to control.

Benjamin said he was truly grateful to the volunteers who always seem to appear; ready and willing to help in any way they can. He also expressed his appreciation to the ladies who brought out lunches to men on the fire line.

Benjamin said his crews are still mopping up the fire on Little Bear Ridge. He said over 30,000 gallons of water have been dumped on the stubborn burn and his crew is still patrolling the area.

Cameron Youth Service Sunday

Musical selections from "Godspell" and several sermons will be presented at a special youth service Sunday, August 26 at the Cameron Emmanuel Lutheran Church at 10:45 a.m.

The service will be conducted by members of the high school Sunday school class under the direction of youth leader, Mrs. Doug Harris. A special offering for Vietnamese orphans will be collected. All are welcome to come and worship.

There are 83 Ranger Districts in the Northern Region of the Forest Service.

Closures Made In Clearwater Forests

The fire closure action announced last week for the Clearwater National Forest and the Palouse Ranger District, St. Joe National Forest, will go into effect at 12:01 a.m., August 21, reports Kenneth P. Norman, forest supervisor. The closure order, which has been approved by Steve Yurich, Missoula, Mont., limits for-ester for the Northern Region, limits general public use within those forest units to certain main river areas and improved campgrounds.

Under the provisions of the closure, permits will be required for entry into the closed portions of these forest units unless the activity has been previously registered or is exempted by the closing order.

The areas and facilities still open to use without a permit are the following roads, waters, stream banks and their associated, improved campgrounds and rest areas: The Beaver Creek Road from Headquarters to Aquarius Campground; the waters, stream banks, main river road, and improved campgrounds of the North Fork of the Clearwater River from Aquarius Campground to the Kelly Forks Ranger Station; the waters, stream banks, main river road, and improved campgrounds of Kelly Creek from the Kelly Forks Ranger Station to the old Kelly Creek Ranger Station site; the main road route and its improved campgrounds (not the waters) from the old Kelly Creek Ranger Station site to Hoodoo Pass.

A similar open area policy exists for the Middle Fork drainage. The waters, stream banks, and improved National Forest campgrounds and rest areas of the Middle Fork of the Clearwater and the Lochsa River from the Forestry boundary to the Powell Ranger Station also remains open. The Lewis and Clark Highway, as a travel route, is not affected by the order. The Laird Park, Giant White Pine, and Boulder Creek Campgrounds on the Palouse Ranger District are to remain open to use without a permit. Closed areas are to be posted so that they can be identified by the public.

The current closing order exempts certain, prior registered activities. The exemptions (no permit required) include: Forest Service and law enforcement personnel on official duty; registered service personnel supplying camps or other activities; certain woods and logging crews needed to back up Forest Service fire personnel; and permanent residents who need to cross National Forest lands to reach their homes. "The current forest policies on Hootowl restrictions will continue," Forest Supervisor Norman said. "We need to keep this manpower and equipment available to assist us." "This policy may change if the fire situation gets worse," Norman said, "but not until the risks involved outweigh the advantage of having these people immediately available to us."

"Forest personnel will continue to stress fire prevention and fire patrols," Norman added. "Limiting forest use to the more accessible river canyons will lessen the chance of man-caused back area fires, and allow fire patrol crews to concentrate their efforts on a smaller area." ## Burlington Northern Asks Approval To Discontinue Agencies In Three Towns

Burlington Northern, Inc., the railroad serving much of this area, has sought authority from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to discontinue its agencies at Troy, Kendrick and Genesee and substitute mobile agency service for those communities operated out of a base station at Moscow. The notice of application was dated from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission in Boise August 14. A time limit of 20 days from this date has been set for filing of written protest.

Burlington Northern presently maintains agency service at Troy, Kendrick and Genesee between the hours of 8 and 5 on a five-day week basis. It proposes to substitute a mobile agent who will be based at Moscow and will render daily service to shipper and receivers of freight in these communities by use of an assigned mobile office.

Burlington Northern contends the mobile agency service will improve its service to shippers and receivers of freight in the three communities, as the agent will call directly on railroad patrons at their places of business rather than requiring them to travel to the agency stations. The application stated that the railroad has contacted known shippers and receivers in the three communities and has found no one who objects to the plan.

If this plan is approved, Burlington Northern has agreed not to dismantle existing agency buildings at any of the three towns for a period of one year as a test period to determine whether such facilities are required in view of the mobile agency proposed to be furnished.

As of Tuesday morning (Aug. 21) none of the three towns involved indicated plans to protest discontinuing the resident agency service. Mayor Robert Waits of Kendrick, who is also manager of Kendrick Rochdale, stated neither the city nor the Rochdale plan a protest, adding that while the move is not exactly approved of, it is felt protest would be futile. Geo. Brocke, Jr., manager of Brocke & Sons, Seedmen, Kendrick, said he planned to write a letter of protest against the proposed change.

Pat Numan, Troy's mayor, said that city planned no official action at present, but added he thought very few people were aware of the proposal, and further stated, "but if there appears to be sentiment against the proposal, of course, we'll move."

Neither the city of Genesee nor Genesee Union Warehouse, a major shipper, plans to protest Burlington's action, said city clerk Mike Martinez. Martinez said Burlington representatives had called and explained the proposed change. Genesee has always had a fulltime resident agent, but the train comes to town just twice a week.

Old Lewiston Paper Found In Wall of Home

While doing some remodeling work in his home Bud Fey found a Nov. 10, 1920 issue of the Lewiston Morning Tribune stuffed between a wall. Yellow and brittle with age, the paper was still readable and one of the big stories on the front page was the decline of wheat prices to $1.35 per bushel.

In the classified section was an ad offering 80 acres of land in the Lenore area, some under cultivation with timber and pasture for the price of $1500. Near Culecass 180 acres of good farm land with "plenty of improvements" was offered for $15,000.

Schwenne Attended Ranger Camp

Cadet Robert D. Schwenne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schwenne attended the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps Ranger Camp at Ft. Benning, Ga.

During the grueling 9-week course, he learned and practiced basic ranger skills such as land navigation, patrolling and mountaineering. The training, which was a substitute for the normal ROTC summer camp required of all Cadets before commissioning, concluded with a 2-week counter-guerrilla operation in the coastal swamps of northwest Florida. Graduates of the camp were awarded the yellow and black shoulder tab worn by all rangers.

A student at the U. of I. at Moscow, Cadet Schwenne completed the training on August 10.

Freedom Tastes Good

Americans are funny people. One minute we're cursing the high cost of living then we turn around and tell the joke about the lady who went into the butcher shop, took one look at the price of liver and exclaimed:

"I want it for dinner...not a transplant." Or we tack bumper stickers on our cars urging the impeachment of everyone from the President to the city librarian, yet let a foreign country denounce the U.S., and a burst of outrage is sure to explode from many a citizen's lips.

Yes, we Americans are a stubborn, irascible, crazy bunch—proud of our country and able to laugh at ourselves and our troubles. We will defend our precious Constitutional rights such as freedom to the death, if need be, while we're complaining about those nuts in Congress. People in most lands would never be able to understand these seemingly contradictions. To understand them is to know how good freedom really tastes.

Hunting-Fishing "Day" Set For Sept. 22

Idaho's second annual observance of National Hunting and Fishing Day is scheduled September 22, 1973 to acquaint the public with the important part hunters and fishermen are playing in the field of wildlife conservation and holding down pollution.

For more than half a century, outdoorsmen have carried a lonely crusade to manage the natural resources of state and nation. Hunters and fishermen individually and collectively, have backed every major conservation action in the national and state capitols.

Only in recent years, has there been a national awakening to threats of environmental destruction. As a means of campaigning more effectively for their sport and the nation's environmental needs, hunters and fishermen formed many national and state organizations whose names are household words—the National and Wildlife Federations, the Isaac Walton League of America, the National Audubon Society, Ducks Unlimited and many others.

It is important to the spiritual and physical survival of America that Congress encourage hunters and fishermen and other outdoor sportsmen to continue their conservation crusade and their enjoyment of outdoor recreation.

With the continued help of federal, state and local governments, as well as a myriad of "outdoor" organizations, NHLF Day this year can be far bigger and can introduce millions more of the public to the conservation achievements of America's 65 million hunters and fishermen.

Fish Production Costs Curb Hatchery Output

Anyone planning to switch from beef steak to fish filets had better take another look at the facts.

Livestock growers and the Idaho Fish and Game Department have a lot in common when it comes to the price of feed. Fish feed for example has practically doubled since last year.

Seventeen state fishhatcheries and three rearing ponds use over 2 1/2 million pounds of fish feed a year. Comparative costs show that the department paid $9.91 per hundred weight for fish food in 1972 and $19.79 per hundred pounds today.

This represents an increase of some $200,000 over the amount budgeted for this year.

As a means of staying within budget limitations, the Fish and Game Commission has directed a 45 percent cutback in the poundage of catchable trout for the 1973-74 fish year beginning in October.

Department Director Joseph C. Greenley commented that lower poundage next year will affect the number of catchable fish to be planted in all regions of the state. Greenley added that the reduction in

HOW TO BE A BETTER GROCERY SHOPPER

Shopping for groceries can be an exciting game, says Joanne Anderson, extension home economist, U. of Idaho cooperative extension service.

You, the player, enter the playing field—the supermarket—with an objective: getting as much as you can for your food dollar. Challenging you from every shelf, row and corner are attractive displays of food products, appealingly packaged convenience items, and a countless array of miscellaneous goods—all vying for your attention.

To "win" in this game, you need a game plan—Mrs. Anderson suggests these strategies:

- 1. Purchase in quantity when prices are favorable. It may pay to take advantage of store specials, perhaps buying enough to last until the next special comes along. This saves time, too.
- 2. Limit your purchases in supermarkets primarily to foods. Supermarkets stock a wide variety of non food items from cosmetics to hardware supplies. These may be better buys at places where they are normally sold.
- 3. Do comparative shopping. If the store uses unit pricing, take advantage of it. It is a good guide to actual product cost and helps you make comparisons.
- 4. Be a coupon user. If you have a coupon that can be applied to the purchase of a needed item, use it. It is extra money in your pocket.
- 5. Consider private or house brands. They are probably cheaper and are available in several qualities.
- 6. Stick to your shopping list. It's your guide to what you need. Be flexible enough though, to substitute an advertised store special for what you have on your list. Try substituting when one of your listed items turns out to be high-priced.
- 7. Buy the quality you need, but not better. Cans of ragged tomatoes are fine for spaghetti sauce and chili, for example.
- 8. Never shop when you're hungry. If you do, you'll probably find many impulse items—purchases which may not fit in your overall food plan.
- 9. Take your time when you shop for fresh produce. Even if the produce looks expensive, don't cut down here your family needs the minerals, vitamins and roughage that fresh produce gives. Look for new and interesting produce items and specially priced ones.

FISHING IS GOOD THERAPY

Physically and emotionally, fishing is good therapy, says the Idaho Medical Association.

Thousands of Idahoans heading for lakes and streams don't need a doctor to tell them that fishing is relaxing.

Fishing can be elaborate, complete with a trip to the seashore and renting deepsea boats and equipment, or it can involve no more than a cane pole and worms on the banks of a nearby stream. Either way, it gets people out in the fresh air and sunshine, and gets minds off the cares of the day.

poundage of catchables will not mean fewer fish. The total numbers of fish to be produced will remain at about the same level. This will result in more fingerlings to be planted instead of the catchables and they will need more time in the water before reaching catchable size.

Unless you are the vigorous type who wades through racing rapids or rows hard for miles, fishing is only mild exercise, good for the body and spirit. Tenants of an apartment building were disturbed one night by sounds of someone running in the apartment above. The noise stopped after a few minutes, but occurred again on the next two nights.

On the fourth night, instead of the noise of running, there was a series of heavy thuds and thumps. The angry tenant marched upstairs, pounded on the door of the apartment and demanded of the woman who came to the door to know what was going on.

"I wish people would mind their own business," said the woman. "My husband has been ill and the doctor gave him some medicine and told him to take it three nights running and then skip one night."

COMPLEX TRADE NETWORK

The American consumer is now part of a complex trade network that extends far beyond the Supermarket or Department store and into the affair of other nations around the world.

That point stressed today by Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) the agency that administers the federal government's farm commodity program.

"The U. S. consumer is a world consumer," Frick said. "His monetary and commodity needs are a thread woven into a worldwide economic system. That's why the causes of our rising food prices are more complex than at first apparent."

Frick told the ASCS Western Regional Conference here that a major part of the food picture is a growing food appetite around the globe. He noted that not only is the world growing by about 80 million people a year, but the world's peoples are getting more affluent. And increased buying power, he said other countries are experiencing similar trends, as reflected in our heavy exports of soybeans, grain and other feeds to help meet international demands for more meat and livestock products.

"Yet more and faster production is not always under man's complete control," Frick noted. "World food production has suffered some devastating setbacks the past couple of years. Russia's 1972 grain crop was frozen by the worst winter in half a century, then scorched by a summer drought. India's monsoon rains petered out and Perus fish supply diminished. Here in the United States, an incredibly wet fall caused problems and last winter's hard freezes cut into our cattle and swine herds. Then in many areas, persistent rains brought severe flooding—which delayed or even prevented the planting of many 1973 crops."

The unpredictable chain of events, Frick said, has contributed to food and farm products supply problems around the world.

"Some people ask why we don't just forget the world situation and keep all our products at home, Frick said. "But we must realize that our current standard of living would simply dissolve without an import-export system. We need fuels and raw materials that other nations produce. We've fond of their: bananas, coffee and shoes. We've developed strong appetites for foreign automobiles, television sets and other low-cost goods. When we keep demanding all those foreign products and we do—we should remember that American farm products are popular elsewhere in the world, too. The strong world prices on food are our gain, since our farm products are among the most attractive commodities we have to trade."

Even with domestic food prices on the rise, Frick said, the American consumer has been spending only about 18 percent of his after-tax income on groceries, compared with 23

U. OF I. VET. OBSERVES SEAL HARVEST

Moscow—Fur companies have harvested fur seals in the Pribilof Islands off the coast of Alaska for hundreds of year and methods have not changed very much, according to Dr. Erik H. Stauber, assistant veterinarian at the U. of Idaho.

Stauber returned recently from the month-long seal harvest which has been asked to observe by the National Marine Fisheries Service. He was asked to advise harvest supervisors of any inhumane practices. An impartial observer has been asked to attend the seal harvest since exaggerated stories of cruel seal slaughter were widely publicized a number of years ago, Stauber said.

Seal harvesters, or sealers, now must follow very strict rules, he noted. Only immature bulls—3 to 4 percent in 1952. It should be remembered, he said, that there has been a phenomenal rise in the consumer's disposable income.

In other remarks, Frick reminded the ASCS conference that Secretary of Agriculture, Earl W. Buttz, is determined to remove all restrictions from American farmers and encourage all-out production to meet strong market demands.

Evidence of that determination, Frick said, is that in 1974 there will be no more set-aside of land for feed grains, wheat or cotton and maintenance of conserving base acreages will not be required. Moreover, he said, long-term retired land under cropland adjustment and cropland conversion programs may be used for crops next year.

Frick also noted that during the 1974 crop year, there will be a Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) to provide cost-sharing assistance for farm practices that provide long-term conservation and environmental benefits.

year old "bachelors" are allowed to be killed. They can not be over 46 inches long from nose to tail. Seals must be dead before strippers begin removing the pelt. Females or pups are not killed.

"As far as the killing goes, it's a very clean, efficient way of killing animals. Aesthetically, whether or not you can stand to have animals killed just for their pelts is something each person has to decide," Stauber said.

Actually, he noted, there are other reasons for the yearly harvest. It is a way to keep the seal population under control so diseases triggered by overcrowding do not decimate the population, irreparably. Controlling the seal population also protects the fish industry, Stauber said. It is estimated that seals from the Pribilof Islands eat one million tons of fish each year.

Stauber said once the pelt with the blubber is removed, the carcass is frozen and shipped to Oregon for mink food. Native Aleuts select some of the carcasses for their winter meat supply. The seal harvest, which was only held on the island of St. Paul, netted about 25,000 seals this year out of a total island population of 1.8 to 1.9 million. The population figure does not include new seal pups.

In recent years, research centers have been established in Seattle on the Pribilof Islands and in other places in the region to study the seal's life habits, diseases and optimum population level. Scientists keep close watch on the seal population, especially the number of beachmasters or bulls with bargans, Stauber said.

The U. of Idaho veterinarian said he had wanted to accompany the seal harvesters because he is interested in wildlife work and in Alaska. He hopes to study some of the viral diseases of seals. Certain diseases, such as one causing early death in newborn pups, are similar to diseases in cattle.

BLUE MONDAYS HOW TO HANDLE

Find Yourself
Perhaps the soundest way to handle any and all Blue Mondays, or any day of the week for that matter, is to admit and realize the many good things about work itself. Thomas Carlyle, the Scottish writer, said it well: "Blessed is he who has found his work; let him seek no other blessedness. He has a work, a life purpose; he has found it and will follow it."

If you haven't found your real work yet get busy and start looking for it. Seek clues. There is a right place and work for you. What is it that you can do better than most others? If it's something that you enjoy and it offers you a productive, honest income (with the chance to grow), get into it. Start part time if you must until you can move into it on a full-time basis. Once in the right place for you—and there is a right work for you—you'll find yourself eager for Monday morning.

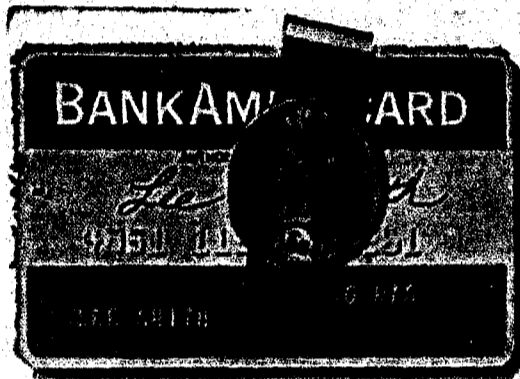

An interest and liking for what you're doing is the key to a happier and certainly a more productive work life. After all a major chunk of your life is spent working. So it might as well be work you're interested in doing. To really achieve and accomplish something in your work, you're going to have to like it. You'll never dream how much happier you'll be when you find your right work. There are enough round pegs in square holes today. Seek your true work with all your heart.

"My destiny is solitude," and my life is work," says Richard Wagner, the great German composer. It is true that in all ages, people have lived for their work. Some never find love—a home and family of their own—so the great joy of their lives must come in their work. Love your work, and you will not be denied that priceless sense of satisfaction found in a life well spent. Who knows? Through you and the work you perform, it's quite possible that the world can become a better place.

Small or great, you can make a worthwhile contribution through your productive work years. Above all, you'll be at peace with yourself in suitable work which holds your interest—work that perhaps challenges you and calls for your finest effort.

Henry Ward Beecher once said: "When God wanted sponges and oysters, He made them, and put one on a rock and the other in the mud. When He made man, He did not make him to be a sponge or an oyster; He made him with feet and hands, and head, and heart, and vital blood, and a place to use them, and said to him, 'Go Work.'"

Few things are impossible to diligence and skill.—Samuel Johnson

COUNTY JOB PICTURE BETTER

New claims for unemployment insurance benefits leveled off in the Moscow area according to Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow office manager for the Idaho Department of Employment. Hartstein said that his office accepted only 25 new claims during the week, compared with 61 for the previous week. The total number of persons continuing to seek jobless pay declined from 289 to 280 during the week. A year ago there were only 211 persons in Latah Co. seeking unemployment compensation in the immediate Moscow area there are currently 166 persons receiving benefits, down from last week's 178 but up from last year's figure of 130. Little change is noted in the Troy-Deary-Bovill area where the total is now 52, last week 49 and last year 41. At Potlatch, a combination of woods curtailments and mill layoffs kept the total at 64, the same as a week ago, but considerably higher than the 23 of mid-August 1972. The Genesee area showed 5 now, 5 a week ago, and 11 a year ago. At Kendrick the current figure is 3, the same as last week, but up from last year's one.

Job activities also declined during the week, as only 17 new jobs were listed with the office. 9 persons were placed on jobs during the week leaving 23 jobs still open. Nearly all of these require experience and/or training, and are for permanent, year round workers. Hartstein added that his office still has young people seeking work for the balance of the summer.

FISH AND GAME COMMISSION TO SET BIRD SEASONS

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission met on Wednesday, August 15, 1973 in the headquarters office building in Boise.

The purpose of the meeting was the setting of final details, bag limits and closing dates for Idaho game bird seasons. The Commission will also set dates and regulations for waterfowl hunting and fur trapping.

Opening dates of the upland game bird seasons had been previously set during a spring commission meeting and are as follows:

- September 15: chukars, huns quail and grouse
- September 22: wild turkey
- October 13: pheasants in northern Idaho
- October 27: pheasants in southern Idaho

The mourning dove season has been set at September 1 to 16 inclusive with a daily bag limit of 10 birds and a possession limit of 20 doves after the first day. The Federal "Duck Stamp" is not required for dove hunting. Only shotguns may be used and the shotgun must be plugged or capable of holding no more than three shells in the magazine and chamber combined.

ROADSIDE FIRES A MENACE TO GAME

Wildfires that originate along road sides needlessly knock out hundreds of acres of upland game hunting grounds each year, the Fish & Game cautioned hunters today.

Brushy draws and hillsides, as well as fence rows, are some of the first places hunters will start working in quest of upland game. The vegetative cover which harbors game birds and cottontails can be lost to fire in minutes and the game moves on to other suitable habitat. In many cases of wildfire, habitat consisting of trees and shrubs may be lost or severely curtailed for up to five years or more.

Whether they are started by cigarettes, matches, automobile exhaust sparks, or whatever, many areas are lost as potential quail, pheasant, partridge, grouse or cottontail hunting ground. The problem is especially acute during dry years such as this one, and an extra special plea is voiced to hunters, nature lovers and anyone else who has an interest in wildlife and the out-of-doors, to be on guard against the possibility of fires.

I have never considered a difference of opinion in politics, in religion, in philosophy, as cause for withdrawing from a friend.—Thomas Jefferson.

In compliance with the requirements of 33-202, notice is hereby given that: In all school districts of this state, every parent or guardian of any child between the ages of seven and sixteen years shall cause such child to be instructed in certain specified subjects. Every such parent or guardian shall cause such child to attend a public, private or parochial school, during a period equal to that portion of each year during which the public schools are in session in such district, and shall cause such child to conform to the attendance regulations established by the board of trustees of such school district. A petition for exemption for such cause may be initiated by the child or by its parent or guardian.

Before the board of trustees may exempt any child who is an habitual truant whose conduct would disrupt school order or discipline, the board shall notify the parents or guardian and afford them an opportunity to appear and show cause why the exemption should not be granted. PEOPLE PROTECTORS

Did you ever think of ads as guardians of your individuality? They are, you know. In a time when the edges are being eaten off our personalities and we're all being reduced to card-index numbers, we need to hang on to some things. Like our freedom of choice. And that choice is yours only so long as competition and free enterprise and advertising are working for you. Guard them. For they stand between you and a dull and standardized life.
