Women's Lib for Great Grandma

Equality for women was at least partly recognized back in settler times. The pioneer mother shared hour-for-hour in the exhausting work.

Before killing frost they were storing the spuds and onions or whatever they had in dugout cellars. Putting down sait pork or beef in brine barrels was tiring, messy work, but the family was mighty thankful for it as winter wore on.

Gourmet dining? No, but it kept them alive.

Nobody wasted a bite and the family was thankful for mother's providence.

Her appalling burdens have been lightened greatly now thanks to work saving and comfort giving home appliances, but it takes energy to run them, and like the storehouse on the homestead energy supplies have to be replenished. Here at The Washington Water Power Company we think that if everyone cooperates and nobody wastes, there will be enough to meet the need.

Kindergarten News

Mrs. Louise Feldman and Mrs. Kolva, both teachers at Juliaetta, spent three days of comprehensive testing of the Kindergarteners. We all enjoyed having Mrs. Kolva and Mrs. Feldman join us. The results of the tests will be available for parents Latest Kindergarten "visitors" included Karen Reil's and Rodney Robenstein's baby chickens, Teresa Foster's midget rabbit and Robert Jones' little kittens. Tanya Beebe donated her snail collection to the class and it's fun to observe them as they creep about the terrarium.

The children have enjoyed learning new words, songs, sounds of the alphabet and numbers, science and self concepts. Nearly every dayand sometimes more often — some child will say, with pride "Hey look what I can do!" Perhaps that child has mastered the balance beam or jug-o ball, or become more adept at some other feat. It is truly a joy when a child expresses curiosity, accomplishment and pride.

Everyone is eager for Easter to arrive. We're having a little party on Wednesday. The children have made imaginative Easter pictures and communicated many thoughts about this special season. The high school has loaned us the use of a tumbling mat; we are anxious to put it to work.

Happy Easter to you all— Mrs. Beebe and the Kinder garten Class.

15. We went over it in class on Tuesday.

In Science we are working on Science terms. In P.E. we are starting to play baseball out on the field, boys against the girls. In Language we are studying on our eight parts of speech patterns because we might have a test on them coming up.

The third, fourth, fifth and sixth grade boys are going to start Little League baseball. In Social Studies class we are taking out film strips and writing them down. They are on different countries.

In Spelling the people who got one-hundreds were Lorie Glenn, Bridget Winchar, Gina Parsley, Rex Snyder, Bonnie Lawrence, Courtright, Brenda Browitt, Charl Christensen.
