FINGER INJURIES

When the do-it-yourself repairman hits his finger with a hammer, the result is often a hemorrhage under the fingernail, says the Idaho Medical Association.

An extensive hemorrhage may result in separation of the nail from its bed. The nail will come off the finger. One way to prevent this is to seek prompt treatment from your physician. He may be able to drain away the blood while it still is in its fluid state and before it clots.

Your fingernails are there to protect against serious injury to the sense-of-touch organs in the tips of your fingers.

Nails of your fingers and toes grow continuously throughout your lifetime. Fingernails require from four to nine months to complete their growth. Toenails take a bit longer.

A hammer blow can injure your fingernail. Ill-fitting shoes can seriously injure your toenails. Be sure that your shoes are fitted properly.

Opportunity is frequently not recognized as it is often disguised as work.

Eugene Tupker, Lawrence Kraut and Helen Casebolt.

Grant Clark, Cody Rader and Ernest Gage left Sunday morning for a fishing trip up the North Fork of the Clearwater.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud Harpole, Johnny Kries and Mrs. Lou Jain are going to Pendleton Monday where they will attend the round-up and spend several days there.

YOUR GAME DEPARTMENT

By Jim Humbird
Idaho Fish & Game Dept.
Farmer-Hunter Accord

The annual summer meeting of the Idaho Landowner-Sportsman Council is scheduled in Boise August 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the state headquarters office building of the Fish and Game Department. Purpose of the meeting is to open more land for small game hunting by enlisting more hunters, fishermen and landholders to join the 7-year-old organization that backs "Operation Respect" on a year-round basis.

Chairman J. Vard Chatburn, Albion rancher and state representative explains "this is the program which urges everybody to wear badges to identify themselves as individuals who follow the rules of good sportsmanship."

As usual, the agenda includes a round table discussion of current problems; a rundown on the hunting seasons and plans for work this fall. Burt Trueblood of Wilder is vice-chairman of the council.

Muzzle Loader Restrictions

The results of Idaho's two special big game hunts for muzzle loaders, the first in the history of the state, will determine whether special restrictions will be needed in the years to come. It is noteworthy that Washington State, after several years of experience with muzzle loaders, is purposely tightening up regulations to restrict muzzle loader participation to genuine muzzle loader fans.

Washington officials are resisting the use of some new model rifles with protected percussion caps and other modern innovations such as telescopic sights. They declare that the muzzle loader really is a primitive type weapon and only antique guns or copies should be used.

Idaho's experimental muzzle loader hunts will be closely monitored this year, with department field personnel making hunter contacts and checking weapon types used and related matters.

Waste not, want not

Out west in settler times most people didn't have very much. Through strict necessity they learned to be careful and saving.

Clothes were patched and handed down, food was stored in hillside cellars and firewood was stacked high against the winter.

These practices were more than a way of living with scarcity. They were actually common sense measures to avoid wasting the gifts of nature and human skill.

As material things became more abundant, it was natural that people would get deeper and deeper into "throwaway" habits. But now nearly everyone realizes that energy resources have their limits. At The Washington Water Power we've made energy our business since back in the eighties. We know that watersheds and fuels must be managed carefully and used efficiently. We know there's wisdom in the old saying, "Waste not, want not."

Supplemental Reading—
Lee Plank

Some changes are being made in the elementary school to the advantage of the reading program. Due to the lack of a room for reading to avoid overlapping of students, and, hopefully, to better meet the needs of the students, the Resource Room and the Supp. Rd. are combining efforts. Preparations are being made for the Resource teacher and myself to move into the room the library is in. The library will be moved into the room the resource room occupies.

I will be contacting the parent advisory council in the very near future for a meeting which, of course, is open to any interested parent. The meeting may help clear up any questions concerning the change. Please watch the paper for the exact time and date of the meeting.
