

Genesee Union Held Annual Meeting

The sixty-fifth annual membership meeting of Genesee Union Warehouse Company was held Wednesday, Nov. 13, 1974, at the Elksmen's Hall at Genesee and began with a luncheon for 148 members and guests promptly at 12:30 p.m.

Invocation was given by Bryce McProud of the Genesee Community Church. President William O. Haxton presided and called the meeting to order at 1:30 with approximately 74 members present.

Entertainment was by the "Parsons and the Parsons" consisting of Von Hopkins, Ron Hopkins, Bryce McProud, Larry Gee and Rhonda Gee. L. Eugene Woodruff, secretary, gave the secretary's report. Woodruff reported that during the past year the board of directors had authorized the purchase of a new Hyster Mt. truck, an addition to the lumber yard, and a roof over the loading area at the feed mill, among others.

W. Dean Jurgens, CPA, resident partner of Morris, Lee & Co., Lewiston, presented the annual financial report. He reported that the company's net saving last year were $257,880 on sales of $8,328,000. Sales at the lumber yard increased by $59,000 to $1,800,000. Sales at the seed plant increased $73,000 to $267,000 and feed mill sales increased from $33,000 to $131,000; overall one of the best years.

William H. Wood, manager, reported that net savings were allocated on the basis of (1) Handling and storage of the grain, (2) Marketing margin and (3) Merchandise departments.

Report on Harvest
The year 1974 was a record harvest for Genesee Union, receiving the most wheat ever, and a record crop of peas. Total tonnage was also a record—115% of the elevator capacity received. Overflow was consigned to terminal elevators wherever possible. 40,000 bushels had to be dumped on the ground outside the elevators but was picked up by end of week.

It was reported that Board had authorized a $30,000 investment in the Lewis-Clark Terminal Association. Also a report on the construction progress at Lewiston port was submitted.

William D. Haxton, Robert Herman and John Stout were re-elected as directors by the membership.

At the organization meeting following, William O. Haxton was elected president of the Board of Directors; Donald W. Herman, vice president, and L. Eugene Woodruff, secretary.

Other People Always Came First For Mrs. Mrs. Emma Shirrod

Around the back door of the lovely farm home of Mrs. Emma Shirrod can usually be found a group of stray cats, patiently waiting, knowing they will be fed and cared for by the kind lady who lives inside. The cats are almost symbolic of the Christian love and charity Mrs. Shirrod and her late husband, Fred, shared with all those lives touched theirs.

Wednesday, Nov. 20, Mrs. Shirrod will observe her 90th birthday anniversary in a quiet manner at her home three miles southwest of Genesee and a host of friends wish her happiness and good health.

Few people, if any, have touched the lives of Genesee residents as Fred and Emma Shirrod. Always known as good friends and neighbors, they were both active in church, lodge and community activities. After Mrs. Shirrod's passing in 1968, Emma continued to carry on the family tradition.

In the 1960's they established the Fred and Emma Scholarship Fund, which annually awards scholarships to deserving graduating seniors and dozens of young Genesee people have had the heavy cost of college eased by the generosity of the Shirrods.

Mrs. Shirrod has always maintained a vital, active interest in the Community Church and still attends whenever her health permits. Her husband was a 50-year member of Unity Lodge No. 32, A. F. & A. M., and Mrs. Shirrod is a 54-year member of the I.O.O.F. Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star. When the old fraternal Temple finally had to be replaced, it was Emma who was among the first to offer encouragement and donations toward the construction of the new temple which is now practically completed. She has also been a member of the Progressive Club for many years.

Mrs. Shirrod was born November 20, 1884, on a farm about 4 1/2 miles southwest of Genesee to Andrew O. and Johanna (Thompson) Christenson. She married Fred Shirrod on January 11, 1922 and they enjoyed many happy contented years together until his passing on December 4, 1968.

Emma is in good health and enjoys having friends call and visit at her home. She passes her spare time crocheting, quilting, working needlepoint and making afghans, which in typical Emma Shirrod fashion, she often gives to friends.

At the present, her cousin, Mrs. Neva King of Lewiston, is staying with her.

She has a stepson, Stanley Shirrod of Genesee, two step-grandsons, Richard of Lewiston and Mark of Genesee, and four great step-grandchildren.

With her family, her many friends and the warm glow of knowing she has led a life of true Christian spirit, Emma Shirrod can look back with satisfaction on her ninety years. She should also know the Genesee community wishes many more happy, contented years for this good woman.

Cancer Claims Life Of Jack Magee

John (Jack) Magee, a life-long resident of Genesee lost his gallant battle against cancer and slipped quietly away Tuesday, November 19, at Gritman Memorial Hospital in Moscow where he had been a patient for the past five weeks.

He was born July 2, 1920 at Genesee, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Magee. He was raised in Genesee and attended school there and later at Idaho State University and the University of Idaho.

He was married to Irene Baumgartner, October 11, 1942 and she survives him at the family home.

He was engaged in farming and later was employed at Nez Perce Tractor Company in Lewiston, a position he held until illness forced him to resign. He had been in poor health for about a year.

Survivors besides his wife include four daughters: Mary Whitcraft of Yonahama, Japan, Patricia Primus of Pasco, Wa., Mildann Zenger and Jody Mayer, both of Genesee; one son, Timothy Magee of Genesee; his mother Mrs. James Magee of Lewiston and a sister, Mrs. Julian Lundgren of Lewiston and nine grandchildren.

Rosary will be recited at 7:30 on Thursday at St. Mary's Church in Genesee. Funeral services will be Friday at 11:00 a. m. at St. Mary's.

Parent-Teacher Conferences Rated a Success by School

Bob Heppner, principal of Kendrick Schools, reported Monday that the parent-teacher conferences of last Friday were judged successful by both the school and, judging by parent comments, by the parents who participated.

Heppner said a large concentration of the parents was at the Jr. High level and the school hoped for greater participation from senior high parents for the next time.

Approximately 60 parents took advantage of the opportunity to visit the school and talk with teachers.

Idaho's "Cat-Researchers Now Studying Leopards In South Africa

Moscow — Two wildlife scientists, who unraveled the secrets of mountain lions and bobcats in Idaho, have teamed in Africa to study leopards, a spotted cat once regarded as one of the world's most exploited and least understood predators.

Dr. Maurice G. Hornocker, leader of the Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at the University of Idaho College of Forestry, Wildlife, and Range Sciences, and Dr. Theodore N. Bailey, a research biologist with the unit, are currently entering their second year on the world's first intensive leopard study in Kruger National Park, Republic of South Africa.

"When we first proposed this study," said Hornocker, "some races of leopards had already been exterminated in areas of the world and a call was made for research to help ensure the future of remaining leopard populations."

More than 17,000 leopard skins were imported by U. S. fur brokers for sale as garments in 1963 and 1964, said Bailey, and exploitation of the leopard soon attracted international publicity.

World-wide concerns scrambled to implement voluntary bans on all trade in leopard skins, said Hornocker, and five races of leopards were placed in the international Red Data book of rare and endangered species.

At the request of the World Wildlife Fund and the International Union for the Conservation of Nature, Hornocker made his first trips to Africa in 1970 and 1971 looking over the possibilities for long-term research on the leopard. His mountain lion study nearing completion, Hornocker began to confer with authorities, sort through technical and logistical problems and one year later presented his leopard research proposal.

Meanwhile, Bailey, a doctoral student under Hornocker, was winding down his bobcat study near Arco and and the two researchers looked to Africa where the secrets of leopards were still unknown.

"The alarm over apparently dwindling leopard populations came quickly," said the college's dean, Dr. John H. Ehrenreich. "Our research expertise has been continually expanding and the college is now geared to tackle a variety of international problems. Cat research was a natural for our cooperative wildlife unit."

Since that time, the picture of the leopard has slowly changed. U. S. importation of leopard skins is prohibited and closer inventories have revealed viable populations of leopards in various parts of the world. And through the cooperative efforts of the wildlife research unit at the college, the South African National Parks Board and the Nature Conservation Branch of Kruger National Park, Bailey and Hornocker are collecting data that can be applied to management of leopard populations.

Their work is being funded by the National Science Foundation with additional support from the World Wildlife Fund and the University of British Columbia.

Armed with the "cat-tracking" techniques refined in their Idaho studies, Hornocker and Bailey have set up a radio telemetry project on a 135 square kilometer research area in the park. The researchers chose Kruger Park not only because leopards are common, but also because the park's extensive road system and facilities are needed for trapping and radio-tracking. Bailey, who is conducting the field work, said 20 leopards living in the study area have been instrumented with radio collars and are being monitored daily.

Hornocker pointed out that, like the mountain lions he studied for 10 years in the Idaho Primitive Area and the bobcats Bailey studied for three years, leopards are solitary cats. Preferring to live alone, such cats tend to "stake-out" a territory. Leopards appear to space themselves in such a manner, said Bailey, relying on fecal scent and sound to establish territories.

"There is just so much room for solitary cats," said Hornocker, explaining the built-in population control, "and when the territories are full, the un-established cats must relocate." But the researchers point out that spatial distribution is often complicated by "overlap" of home ranges and in the case of leopards,

Safe Workers Awarded With Steak Dinners

For working five years since the last disabling accident, two Potlatch Corporation sawmill departments are being rewarded with steak dinners at the Lewiston plant.

About 90 safe workers from the cut-stock factory and the grading department are dining on Potlatch for accumulating a total of 936,000 hours without a disabling accident.

The cut-stock workers had their dinner Thursday night, and the graders, who perform quality control in many of the sawmill departments, will dine on Potlatch Tuesday.

"The accident-free time accumulated by these men demonstrates what can be accomplished with a union-management safety program when employees like these really cooperate," said William A. Greene, plant manager. "Lost-time accidents hurt everyone involved—the employee, his or her family, the union management. Prevention of accidents benefits all concerned."

territories seem to be entangled according to sex and age classes, season of year, and habitat. More telemetry data is needed to understand the picture completely, said Hornocker.

Limited observations suggest that leopards on the study area feed principally on impala, the most abundant prey species available. The researchers note that the leopard population is part of a complex predator-prey ecosystem that includes four prides of lions, two packs of wild dogs, a female cheetah and her cub and an estimated 75 to 100 hyenas all vying for the impala and other less abundant prey species.

Bailey has zeroed in on the riparian zone of the park, a narrow forested belt bordering streams where leopards live. There he has rigged 10 cage-type traps. Located in trees to avoid capturing hyenas, the traps are baited with the remains of carcasses from buffalo, impala or elephant that are periodically harvested by park personnel.

Captured leopards are immobilized inside the traps, removed and equipped with a radio collar similar to the collars worn at one time by many Idaho mountain lions. Radio tracking of the leopards is done from the ground and air. Data are recorded and will be transferred to a computer for analysis when the field work terminates in 1976, said Hornocker.

The large spotted cats, weighing up to 150 pounds, have seldom been seen by Bailey because of dense vegetation and the leopard's secretive way of traveling its haunt. The researchers say that preliminary analysis of data indicates that the average home range of leopards on the study area is about 10 square kilometers. Bailey plans to increase observations on individual leopards to obtain information on hunting behavior in the future.

Exodus From Farm To City Now Ending —

The long, costly, mass exodus of country people to cities, which cut deeply into the financial and business resources of rural and smalltown areas and reduced the quality of life there, is ending, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Will Erwin.

"One key to this significant change is the remarkable increase in available jobs in rural America. Since 1970, country job openings have increased nearly three per cent a year against a 1.2 per cent annual increase in city areas."

Speaking before the Tri-State Poultry Industry meeting in Fort Wayne, Ind., Mr. Erwin said, "Not only has the urbanward migration of rural people slowed to a trickle—it has reversed itself in some areas. One study indicates that the population in rural nonmetra areas, in 41 states analyzed, grew 4.1 per cent since 1970 while urban metro areas in the same states grew only 2.2 per cent."

Mr. Erwin, who is the Assistant Secretary for Rural Development, added that "People today have new desires as to where they want to live and work. Much of the magnetism for urban life has given way to a yearning for country living."

"Four major national surveys—one by Gallup—conclude that more than twice as many people prefer to live in rural or smalltown areas as now live there."

"This is the most significant turnaround of its kind in the last century," the official stated. "It is bringing new life, vitality, and needed growth to thousands of country towns. These towns, on the average, had lost 30 per cent of their business enterprises since 1950."

"As the population of rural areas thinned over the years—28 million people left U.S. farms during the 26 years following World War II—the load of spiraling local taxes fell on fewer shoulders."

Not what we give, but what we share

Out west in the early times it was an unwritten rule that you shared what you had.

Doors were left unlocked and the wayfarer was expected to help himself to food and firewood. He was careful to leave things in shape so the next man would have something. Life could depend on it.

Times have changed, and we have become accustomed to material abundance. However, it's still possible to run short or out of the things we need. Now we see limits to clean air, water and fuel.

At The Washington Water Power Company we believe that the resources are there to meet the reasonable needs. Developing them won't be easy and wasting them will be unthinkable. The old west traditions of savings and sharing can serve us well, again.

Who said that the old neighborhood spirit had disappeared along with the horse and buggy, husking bees to barn dances? Not so; Thursday morning Frankie and Jo Benscoter looked out their kitchen window and there in their garden was a tractor and plow breaking the soil, nice and deep. They almost started to believe again in fairies and elves but—much too noisy and on closer scrutiny found it was Lawrence Heimgartner, a good neighbor.

Mrs Betty Cowger, accompanied by daughter Linda Barnum and baby, were Thursday visitors in Headquarters.

Mrs. Harold (Carlene) Heimgartner of Clarkston spent the day Wednesday with Wayne and Ruth Heimgartner. On Sunday afternoon Lily McCall and granddaughters, also of Clarkston, were their guests.

Again, ladies of the community quilled in the basement of the Eldon Heimgartner home, quite "unofficially."

Attends Funeral of Last Schoolmate Mrs. Albert (Mystie) Heimgartner, the former Mystie Holsington, attended the funeral of Jane Currier, 89, a former Kendrick pioneer, which was held at the Gilbert Chapel in Orofino on Monday, Nov. 18. Mrs. Currier was buried at the Fix Ridge Cemetery near Juliaetta. Mystie Holsington and Jane Hutchinson were schoolmates when children, on Fix Ridge, and as Mystie sadly informed her own children, this was the very last of her childhood friends who had survived the years! She, Mystie, accompanied her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Steigers, to the services.

Mrs. Clotis Holsington was able and willing to tell of her news this week! Leslie and Delores Heimgartner were Monday night callers. Son Noale and wife, Unis Holsington, were Tuesday callers. Son James and wife and children came on Sunday. On Saturday Vivian Blair and Elaine Holsington were there on a "work expedition." Elaine came numerous times to assist during Bea's recent illness.

On Sunday, Nov. 10, three boys, Loren, Frank and Jim, with their spouses, all came a calling! All of us rejoice, Beatrice feels much improved!

View Accident

Helena Brown and daughter, Merie Cooper, attended the Lenore Willing Workers all-day club meeting held at the home of Lenore postmistress, Mrs. Mary Lou Cook, on Thursday, Nov. 14. The afternoon was shattered by the arrival and passing through of screaming police and ambulance cars, enroute to a fatal one-car accident on the old county grade, just below Agatha, in which a young Lewiston hunter, Fredrick E. Cochran, 34, was instantly killed. His pickup truck rolled down the steep hillside to the railroad track and river border below. His faithful dog survived. Members of the club, returning homeward down the highway, across the river from the scene of the accident, were able to view the activities of the rescue workers.

Sunday dinner guests in the Pine-creek home of Helena Brown included the Don Brown family, Mrs. Merie Cooper and son Richard, all of Lewiston, plus the little dog "Mysty," at present "childless!"

Emma Welchman and Herman Byers are moving to Lewiston, presently from Bedrock. We hope Emma will be happy in her new home.

"Breaking a record 'stay at home'." Nellie Steigers and husband Ernest have been "on the go" again, recently attending the monthly meeting of the District II Idaho Oldtime Fiddlers on Saturday evening, Nov. 16 at Lewiston Orchards VFW hall, and then on to the Washington at their Thanksgiving party and late afternoon Turkey Feast, held at the Clarkston Heights Grange Hall on Sunday, Nov. 17!

The Steigers enjoyed Saturday supper at the Lewiston Orchards home of son Bill and family. Early Monday A.M. "Grandma" called by phone, awakening grandson John Steigers, to give him her love and blessing, before he caught the 6 a.m. plane to fly back to San Diego for another six months in the Navy, and his next furlough home!

Bekalyn Steigers spent overnight with friend Sheila Alford, on "Tom Bell," this weekend.

Family Gathering on Cottonwood Creek Home Sunday

Twenty-six gathered at the Cottonwood Creek home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hoskins on Sunday, Nov. 17, in honor of visiting couple, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Bartlett from Tempe, Arizona. These included the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Agar Swan, Marje Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. Art Pocardt and daughter Carol, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Roberts and daughter Lavonne, and Mr. and Mrs. Vic Hoskins, all of Lewiston. From Clarkston were Mr. and Mrs. John Wansstrom and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kohl. Others were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wolfe of Troy, Idaho, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Johns of Juliaetta, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Brandon, and Mrs. Dorothy Ward, Alfred and Darlene, all coming from Kellogg. This item, of interest to Juliaetta residents especially, was phoned in long distance by good friend Wanda Johnston Hoskins, a girlhood resident there.

Mr. and Mrs. James Holsington and children of Lapwai were Friday evening guests in the Helena Brown home.

Elk, Deer Season Is About Over

Elk and deer hunting is about over for this fall. Sunday evening, November 24, is the final day for getting your deer and elk in the Clearwater region.

Units 16-A, 17, 19 and 20 will be open for antlered elk only, from Nov. 11 through November 24, 1974. A reminder for those who hunt in Unit 19—it is open only in the shaded portion as indicated on your regulation map. So be sure and check your boundary description.

If you haven't got your elk yet, don't feel alone—you have a lot of company. Even in the best years, only one hunter in four or five will get an elk. This year the percentage getting elk will probably be even lower.

We have had a beautiful fall and the weather conditions have provided good camping experiences. However, most of the hunters have not been happy with the weather. In previous years the region has had a considerable amount of moisture and snow in the higher elevations. Hunting conditions have not been good with the dry conditions prevailing through out the season, making movement through the woods extremely difficult. It has also kept the animals high in the more remote, heavily forested pockets and made hunting rather difficult as well as miserable. Every year there is an opportunity for hunters to become directly involved in game management. Two, separate reports are used to help determine the harvest. The first of these reports is the hunter report card, which you are asked to send to Boise when you finish hunting. This is the card which is attached to your tag when you buy it.

It is important to tell us if you did not make a kill as it is if you did. Please fill in the few blanks that are requested and put it in the mail as soon as possible after getting your animal, or after the end of the season.

The other report we use is one called the hunter questionnaire. This request is sent out after the first of the year to five percent of those buying deer tags and five percent of those buying elk tags. It asks questions not only pertaining to big game, but also to bird hunting.

If you should receive one of these forms, please do your best to complete it as accurately as you can remember and send it back in. By using the information from these two sources, we come up with the most accurate number we can relative to the total harvest around the state.

GHS Government Class Held Mock Trial

A mock trial was held on October 28 and 29 in the U. S. Government class at Genesee High School. The class is taught by Mr. Von Hopkins.

The case on trial was Bill Willers vs. Edmund Spence, landlord.

Bill Willers (Patrick Mervyn) attended a party at Frank Todd's (Sheldon Hampton) apartment. The apartment building was owned by Edmund Spence (Mike Becker). When the time came for Bill to leave the party he fell down the steps. He missed several months of work and was in the hospital for some time with a broken arm and leg. He claimed that he tripped on a nail that was sticking up in the stairs and was going to try to sue the landlord, Edmund Spence, for $10,000. He was charged with neglecting to keep his building in proper repair.

The prosecuting attorneys were Bill Myers and Jeff Diehl. Attorneys for the defense were Keith Davis and Dan Musgrave. The judge was Stanley Edwards and the bailiff was Roberta Heath.

Other characters were as follows: Mrs. Hark, a neighbor—Dobby Peterson; Jerry Freed, a witness—Jim Baumgartner; Dr. Greene, Bill doctor—Ralph Stout; Miss Morgan, a neighbor—Cheryl Mayer; Alice Forbes, a housing inspector—Sharon Kamikkeberg; Sam Hammer, a carpenter—Loren Morscheck; Barbara Cook, a witness—Renée Allie. The remainder of the class served on the jury.

The four lawyers spent several days studying Idaho State Code in hopes of finding ways of winning the case for their clients.

Witnesses were heard for two days before the defense and prosecution had rested their cases. The jury deliberated for some time before reaching the verdict. They came to the conclusion that the defendant was not guilty. They ruled that the prosecution based its case on circumstantial evidence. The judge then adjourned the court.

Unemployment Rises In Latah County

The total number of persons seeking jobless payments continues to increase in Latah County. Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow office manager for the Idaho Department of Employment reported that his office is currently processing claims for a total of 305 county residents. This is an increase, he said, over the 264 who were seeking such benefits a week ago. However, the total is still slightly lower than the 324 persons who were receiving checks at this time last year. Hartstein's report indicated that 66 persons filed new claims for benefits reflecting the fact that many persons became unemployed during the week, or at the end of the previous week.

In the immediate Moscow area there are now 133 persons seeking benefits compared with 110 last week, but far below the 183 of a year ago. Fewer construction workers appear to be idle this year than last according to those figures. In the Troy-Deary Bovill area the current figure is 114, a week ago 100 and a year ago 88, reflecting the increase in woods workers filing claims. In the Potlatch area the total is 43, up just one from last week, and down from the 53 of mid-November 1973.

At Genesee the totals are 7, 4 and 16, again reflecting the slightly better condition of the labor market for construction workers. At Kendrick, the totals are 8, 8 and 4. Hartstein indicated that information coming into his office would lead him to believe that woods work may resume sometime in Dec. if weather conditions permit.

Only 5 jobs were filled by the Employment Office during the week, again reflecting the fact that employment is becoming somewhat harder to find. A total of 8 new jobs were listed with the office, and eight remain open at the end of the week. A year ago 11 workers were given job finding help, and 11 jobs remained open at the end of the middle week in November.

Pets are Worth Saving

The city of Lewiston impounds about 800 dogs a year. Less than 25% of these are reclaimed by their owners.

The animal shelter receives about 2,500 additional animals a year. About 400 are placed with new owners. The rest are given euthanasia. The problem grows with each passing year. Please help us reverse this trend.

You can help in two ways:

● BE A RESPONSIBLE DOG OWNER—unless you are a breeder, have your dog or cat spayed, or neutered by a veterinarian. (Yes, the statistics on cats are also painful). Write or call us for a pamphlet on the effects of neutering and spaying.

● SEND US PEOPLE WHO WANT A DOG—The shelter has healthy pets for adoption. If they are old enough we have them spayed. They have had distemper shots.

● If we all just recognize our problem maybe we can solve it.

Pheasants Still Here Despite Problems—

My Milt Williams
Idaho Fish and Game Department

Northern Idaho pheasant hunters have just a few days — through Sunday, November 17 — to wind up their hunting season. In the rest of the state the season has from one to three weeks more to go.

As pheasant seasons progress, a common question is perennially asked by the hunters, "Where are all those roosters?" The best answer is that they are hiding out and will show up after the hunting ends. This is always the case, even in the really good pheasant years. Beset with problems as he is, the wily ring-necked pheasant survives, even in the face of great odds.

It has been told and retold that ring-necked pheasants have suffered habitat problems of increasing intensity each year. This is true of all pheasant states since the same set of circumstances prevails in each of them. Introduced from Asia in the late 1800's, pheasants took readily to the farm lands of the new continent. By the 1940's there were millions of them and they were the most favored game of American bird hunters.

World War II brought a demand for increased production of food and fiber. The tide was turning against Mr. Ringneck as new farm machinery, new farm methods and the introduction of farm chemicals came into use. Grassy fence rows and roadsides, marshy areas and waste patches began to disappear with the advent of modern agriculture. Great demands were placed on the American farmer and he has performed well. Still greater feats are to be expected in future years if the world's burgeoning populations are to be fed.

Idaho farmlands have changed over the past thirty years and that trend will certainly continue. In the Palouse country of northern Idaho wide fence rows and add corner thickets of wild rose and other volunteer plant cover have been virtually obliterated. Weed and brush patches across the southern part of the state have also gone in the face of more scientific and efficient farm production practices.

Fall plowing, widespread pesticide use, concrete lined irrigation ditches and zealous clearing of weeds have taken a considerable toll of our good pheasant habitat. But in the meantime, the pheasant continues to survive. Displaying remarkable tenacity, Idaho populations are down from past highs. However, huntable populations of pheasants will probably exist for a long time to come despite shortages of winter food and cover, disturbances and disruptions of nests, and all the other hazards they must face. Pheasant hunters must realize, though, that they have already had the best, and future pheasant hunting likely will never be what it once was.

Still the most important upland game bird in Idaho, the pheasant receives a large amount of attention from game managers. A series of field checks are made each year, starting in midwinter shortly after the hunting season has ended. This series of trend information documents the ratio of cock: to hens following the hunting season, the comparative size of the spring breeding population, and the resulting brood production.

During the late summer that information is combined and converted into an index of the size of the fall population. This index may be compared from year to year and is the basis for recommendations concerning season length, bag limits, etc. The population index data is also quite useful in examining long term trends on the regional level.

A cross section of hunters is sampled at checking stations on the opening weekend of pheasant season. Harvest information is gathered, including a wing and a leg from each bird checked. By examining the legs, the young to old ratio can be established, and the wings can be "read" to determine, within a week, when the bird hatched. The peak of the hatch, or the high point in the spring hatch can be pinpointed and added to the other data compiled during the year.

Ring-necked pheasants have been the subject of more studies and scientific examinations than any other game bird species. Perhaps this is the result of being the most popular upland game bird, but the fact that they inhabit essentially only farmland and do not migrate certainly helps to make them more accessible to researchers.

It is a good thing, too that they receive so much scrutiny, for if there is any solution to the problems haunting the future of the ring-necked pheasant, it may be brought to light that much sooner.

Welcome You.

be dismissed at 12:20 p.m. right after school lunch, Monday, Nov. 25.
Tuesday, Nov. 26—The Elementary School class group pictures will be taken. We hope all students will be attending school that day. We have had perfect attendance in the past.
Wednesday Nov. 27—Students will be dismissed at 2 p.m. for Thanksgiving vacation and will return to school Monday, Dec. 2.

First Grade

Thank you to all the parents who came for conference. First grade had 100% response; we appreciate this. We sang "Happy Birthday" to John Bryan last week. Our room is beginning to look like it is Thanksgiving time.

Grade Two

We enjoyed watching the fourth grade put on their program of "Hansel and Gretel."

We were busy cleaning our desks and room in preparation for Conference Day on Friday. Our first book order finally came and many students have some new books to read at home. Our room has two with records to enjoy.

In Math we've been measuring with different units of measurement. Neil Oliver had a birthday over the weekend so we have another flower for our garden.

Thank you, parents, for your cooperation in making our conference a success!

Fourth Grade News

Dan Browitt is the Student of the Week this week.

Our "Hansel and Gretel" play was very much fun. And I think we all had fun doing it for the Lions Club. (picture enclosed)

The leaves on the door are starting to burn now.

Willy the Bookworm is on the last wall now.

Our Art pictures are up. They are nice. We had fun doing them. They are pictures of us.

Brenda brought a picture of a cute skunk. It is nice.

Charlene Parks and Dave Browitt got 100 on the spelling test. The other kids tried very hard.

Have a Happy Thanksgiving. News reporters are Lisa Vallem and Charlene Parks.

5th Grade News

We are going to have a division and times tables test tomorrow. We had parent-teacher conference Friday so we didn't have any school. We thank all the parents for coming Friday.

In Social Studies we're in the 1700s. We have learned a lot of things. We get to have a lot of film strips about the Colonial Times.

In multiplication Kathy Nail is class champion. She is very good. Dolly Emery came back from California today. She told us some things about her trip.

In Science we are on communication. Mr. Jones did an experiment with an old telephone.

On Spelling we are on chapter 12. In Health we are studying about teeth.

Mr. Jones' hero is Benjamin Franklin.

That's all for this week. Reporters—Kathy Nail and Bronwyn Manfull

Sixth Grade News

Howdy, This week in Math we're on pages 62-63 on the study of fractions.

In Spelling we're on unit 11.

In Reading we're correcting work books.

In Language we're on page 50. The study of working with sounds.

We also have started sustained reading.

In Social Studies we're on pages 14-15, and we're also going to have a test coming up sometime this week.

In Science there will be a test coming up either this week or next week.

In Health we're on chapter three (safety and first aid).

That's all for this week! Reporter—Cheryl Hutton

Supplemental Reading

Lee Plank

The first grade period has been completed and parent-teacher conferences have been held. In the reading program no grades are given because each child is on his own individualized program. Instead of a grading system that most people are familiar with all progress is recorded on charts.

The child can usually record the daily work on his charts by himself. Since each child has his own program set up to meet his own needs he is competing with no one other than himself. Because there is no competition or pressure; all the students in the program are very relaxed and comfortable. The relaxed situation must be working because their charts are showing a steady gain.

I would like to thank all the parents that came for conference for helping to make our conferences so successful. It is very important to the child's success that parent and teacher work together.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank all my new-found friends and all the dear old friends for all their lovely cards, flowers and prayers when I lost my father.

A special thanks to the ladies of the VFW Auxiliary and my neighbors for all the wonderful food. The whole world could use more of neighborly friendship that I have found since I moved to Big Bear Ridge. Thank you all for being you.—Dorothy Haiseth and the John LaPlant family. 47c

CARD OF THANKS

A heartfelt thanks to all my friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness, their flowers, cards, calls, etc. during my successful visit in the hospital. Words cannot express my appreciation. A very special thanks to those who prayed. He heard. I feel very undeserving yet very grateful for my life to have been touched by the hand of God for the second time in the last few years.—William L. Rogers. 47c

Well Tuned Cars SAVE GAS!

It has been proven that a well-tuned conditioned car or truck provides better gas mileage. With the energy crunch and high prices, motorists just can't afford to pour dollars out of the exhaust pipe.

That's why we recommend keeping your car or truck in the best mechanical shape at all times. And—we can help with a good tune-up job. Why not drop in or call and set up an appointment? It'll mean savings in money and gasoline.
