An elderly couple came into the doctor's office. The man asked, "Doc, can we make love in your office?" The doctor said, "I guess so." The couple came back the next week with the same request, then two weeks later with the same request. Finally, the doctor said, "Why do you come to my office?" The man said, "That's simple. She is married and not my wife, so we can't go to her home. I'm married so we can't go to mine. The price of motel rooms have gone up to $20 or $30. You charge me only $10 for an office visit and I get my back on medicine."

Remember you should never see a woman over 40 how she feels and if you mean it, for it will take quite a while!

A Genesee farmer's combine broke down. He called the dealer, a salesman. The serviceman looked at the machine then took a hammer and gently tapped the machine at a spot and it took off and began running immediately. When the farmer got his bill it was for $100. He hit the ceiling and asked for an itemized bill. He got it. $1 for hitting the machine; $99 for knowing where to hit.

These Genesee farmers get into the damndest situations. One, we know, checked into a hotel and asked for the best accommodations they had, (since the price of wheat had hit $3.00). The clerk recommended the bridal suite. The farmer said "Why the bridal suite? My wife and I have been married for 35 years!" "LOOK" said the clerk, "If I let you have the main bedroom that's all you have to do to dance, does it?"

WINTER FEEDING: KILLING WITH KINDNESS?

By ROYCE WILLIAMS
 Idaho Dept. of Fish and Game

Heavy snows in the high country have driven most of Idaho's deer to their winter ranges, to what field personnel call the "wildlife bottleneck."

Winter tells the Idaho Department of Fish and Game one of nature's not-too-pretty stories, the story of a limited food supply which can trim a deer population.

The answer would seem to be pitching the deer a few bales of alfalfa. Give deer something extra to help them get through the harsh winter, and there will be more deer next fall.

All very simple, but if thinking about the problem stops there, the deer may be in for more trouble than they already have, department studies show.

Idaho game managers say the winter feeding solution doesn't work except in certain emergency situations. Besides being very expensive the department has found winter feeding poor management because only a number of deer can be fed during any feeding operation and their digestive systems are not capable of handling artificial feed if it is forced on them when they are in poor condition.

The department describes its winter feeding policy as an "emergency measure." It is to be done when extended periods of very severe weather threaten the base herd's food supply. It is designed to maintain the number of deer the winter range is capable of holding through an average winter.

Following this policy, however, is terializes—oh oby!

Two broken arms are the result of accidents while coasting during the past few days. Ruth Alice Vanouck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Vanouck broke her left arm above the wrist last Thursday evening while coasting and Cleo Cox, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cox broke her right wrist while coasting Sunday evening.

Wm. Gash left Tuesday for Potlatch where he will be employed.

Mrs. W. F. Jain left Wednesday morning for Spokane for an extended stay. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. James Magee who joined her at Pullman.

School News: Rowena Hanson and Gladys Johnson are back in school after an absence of 2 weeks. Clarence Aherin has registered for work the 2nd semester after an absence of 2 semesters. Saturday, the 7th grade with invited guests enjoyed a sleigh ride to the Roskammer home. The time was spent with games and music and the party topped with an oyster feed. Grownpups attending were Mr. and Mrs. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Will Rosenau and Miss Ouse.

Maurice, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Krier had the misfortune to break his right leg between the knee and ankle while coasting last Friday evening.

The last in a series of three steps.

—Animals will be moved, by baiting or other means, to nearby areas where more natural food is available.

—If there are no nearby areas with the brush to support the deer, they may be trapped and moved to a new winter range.

—If neither of the first two steps are possible, the department will feed wintering game, but only during the critical, severe weather period.

One problem the department says it faces in winter feeding is getting the feed to the deer or other big game animals.

Besides being expensive the "big game winter ranges, though they normally are a small percentage of the total game range, are usually quite extensive," the department said.

The same snow that pushed the deer to the winter range makes it difficult and expensive to get a large quantity of feed to deer that are not readily accessible.

The food is limited to those animals that happen to be in spots where food can be brought in.

The third reason for the department's stand against winter feeding except in emergencies is the fact that deer may literally starve to death on a full stomach of artificial feed.

Nature gives the deer bacteria and protozoans in their digestive tracts that can break down woody fiber found in brush that stays above snow level.

Department studies have found that the specific bacteria used to digest woody fiber increase as winter sets in. There is some danger in feeding the deer hay in winter because the hay simply lies in the deer's stomach undigested. There is very little specific bacteria in the stomachs to turn it into energy.

The result is that the condition of deer declines more rapidly for awhile with some dying before they are able to build up enough bacteria and protozoans to digest artificial food. However specially prepared feed pellets recently developed to hold some promise for a partial solution to this aspect of the problem.

Why not start feeding earlier? Start it in time for the deer to build up the needed digestive microbes.

The department's policy projects full-scale winter feeding into the future and finds nothing but tremendous costs and depleted natural ranges.

Also entering the picture, the department said, is the taming effect of winter feeding. There is a haunting picture of deer without a quality of wildness.

It is cheaper to follow nature's rules. "Feeding just does not pay," the department says. "It is far better to keep the herd to a size that can be supported on natural winter ranges."

This pays off in increased productivity. It has been proved that smaller, well-fed base herds can produce more deer for hunters than a larger, poorly fed herd," the department

MOSCOW-LATAH CO. LIBRARY SHOWED INCREASES

The 1974 year end circulation statistics of the Moscow-Latah County Library showed substantial increases reported head librarian Gloria Gehrman this week. The grand totals for all materials circulated by the library system, including service to the contracting areas of Benewah county and Clarika was 192,046 as compared to 162,670 in 1973 (119,529 in 1972, 105,090 in 1971).

The major increases came in the adult department of the Moscow city library where 94,536 items were checked out as compared to 76,957 in 1973 and for the bookmobile which circulated 31,715 books and magazines as compared to 24,721 in 1973.

If ranges cannot support a reasonable number of deer during the normal winter, it is far better to rehabilitate natural range than to spend lots of the sportsmen's money on artificial feed, the department concludes.

They Did It the Hard Way

You can't hear the stories of the early settler and not have an abiding admiration for their steadfastness and endurance.

They were all too-familiar with hard times and toil. Some barely spoke the language but they struggled and withstood hardship, strengthened by their hope in this new land.

It was better times for their kids and grandkids that lured them, and the dream came true. Half the people you meet out here have roots that go back to those days. The man-killing work of the frontier has been replaced by rewarding careers and fulfilling livelihoods.

Energy that magnifies man's muscle power made it possible, and more energy will have to be found to provide for the needs of the upcoming generations.

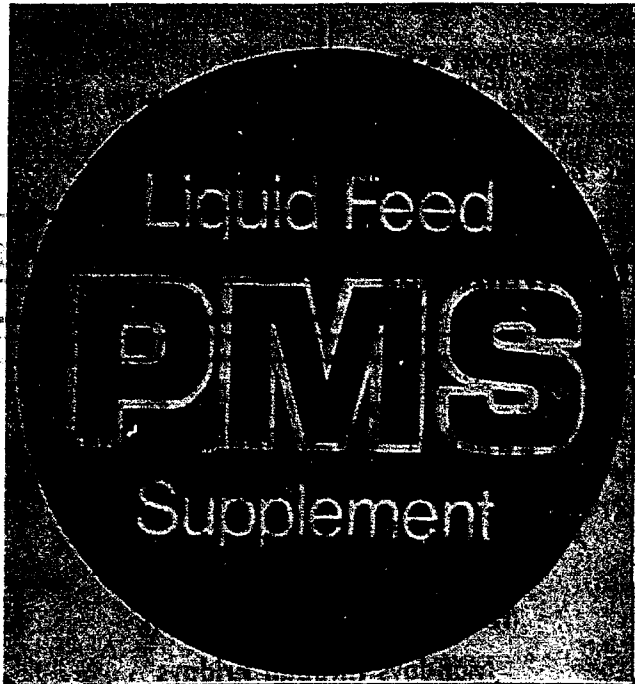

At The Washington Power Company providing this energy is about our most serious concern. We believe that with everyone's understanding and cooperation the job can be done.

Julietta School News Items

First Grade

Half of the school year has gone by already; so quickly it seemed. This week is birthday time in our room again; we have two.

Even though they've gone again from outside, we have snowmen and many pretty snowflakes in our room yet.

We've finished our alphabet books and will be designing our covers and putting them together this week.

Grade Two News

Second Grade received letters from our penpals in Alaska again. It's fun to exchange ideas with others.

We started a new unit on good teeth and good health. We've been brushing daily and we used the red tablets to show if we brushed well or not.

Fourth Grade News

The Student of the Week is Jean Glenn.

Last week we looked through a giant microscope. Brenda Wilson brought some pond water to look at. Ed and Randy did an experiment with two cups and some twine. They hooked the twine to the cups. You are supposed to talk in to the cups.

We all are going to write a letter to Mrs. Meshishnek.

The reading groups listened to a record called "Trumpeter of Krakow," a Newberry award winner.

Willy the Bookworm has 735 books.

For art we cut out a design from paper. We glued the two papers together (not all of it though) and then we stuffed it with newspaper.

We will be getting our new report cards this Friday.

This Wednesday Linda Williams has a birthday.

Reporters—Charlene Parks and Jackie Jones

Fifth Grade

In math we're learning Geometry. We thought it would be fun but it wasn't (We're going to have a rest).

Health: we're studying food. We had a test on them, it was hard.

Science: we're studying foods and what they do for us.

Our Book Tree is growing; it has lots of leaves.

We elected new officers: President, Robin Courtright; vice pres., Mike Carson; sec., JoAnn Heath. Board eraser is Berk Shawver; librarian, Cathy Hamilton.

We're going to make now bulletin boards in a couple of days; it will be fun!

For art we're going to make pencil holders!

We went to the bookmobile and got a book!

Mrs. Plank is reading us "Tom Sawyer." We're at the part where Tom and Becky go to Widow Douglas' house.

Reporters—Shari Harris and Misti Colbaugh

Sixth Grade News

Howdy.

In math we are working with decimals and fractions.

In English we're working on verbs and auxiliaries.

In Social Studies we're on chapter 6. We're studying on San Martin and Simon Bolivar. It's very interesting.

In Science we're on chapter 5, studying about senses and signals. We are just starting the chapter so we have science terms to do.

We had our spelling test and the people who got 100's are Danny Lohman, Dale Wolff, Marie Burdick, Gina Whittinger, Janey Jacobs, Fatty Heath, Cindy Boe, Ronda Conway, Kathy Hadley, Cynthia Millard, Larry Gillispie, Rhonda Wilson, Cheryl Hutton, Brian Von Bergen, and Wendy Williams.

I'm sure everyone knows the old saying "Nobody's perfect." Well that goes for a girl in our class, Teresa Hamilton. She hurt her foot playing basketball.

Bye.
Reporters—Cheryl Hutton and Gina Whittinger

Supplemental Reading

Lee Plank

The end of the first semester was last Friday, which means that report cards will be issued this Friday, Jan. 24. We have adopted a new grading system at the elementary school.

The end of the first semester was which will more accurately report and measure the student's performance. For the students enrolled in the Supp. Rd. program the method of marking the report card will be the same as the regular classes with the exception of initially with an SR which will denote Supplemental Reading.

Some of the students have been showing symptoms of the "mid-year blah's" which is not uncommon. Progress comes with much more difficulty and effort. Our charts are showing the fluctuation very clearly much to our dismay. However, because problems are so immediately apparent on the chart, we are able to correct them more quickly.

CARD OF THANKS

Thank you, friends, for all the inquiries, phone calls, cards, etc. while I was in the hospital and since returning home. Your thoughtfulness is greatly appreciated.

Lester Crocker
