4-H'ers CELEBRATE 4-H PROMOTION WEEK
Enthusiastic 4-H'ers helped celebrate 4-H Promotion week by accepting invitations from the Bovill and Juliaetta Elementary schools. They gave project demonstrations, a slide presentation and answered questions concerning the advantages of a 4-H program locally as well as at state and national level.

Visited on October 6 were Catherine Campbell's third grade and Nancy Ponchelton's fourth grade classes in Bovill. In charge of the groups was Kathy Kinzer of the Genesee Livestock Club. Michele Thomas of the Handy Helpers Club, demonstrated the project skills of sandwich making and clothing construction. Mark Trail, of the Mt. View Club, talked with the classes about his culinary skills involving preparation of leg of lamb.

On October 7 Kathy, along with more dedicated people who care about kids. The idea that a person must have expertise in one subject or another is indeed a fallacy. There are resource people and materials available to aid anyone in preparation of a 4-H club or program, so if you wish to lead a club and are interested and believe in young people you qualify. Pick a project you yourself might be interested in learning more about and call 882-8580, Extension 43.

Simple Interest is more than bank talk. About $10 million a day. • With Timeway Simple Interest, you get more than just a loan. You get the best kind of loan.

Winter B.B. Season for Girls

A fall Girls Basketball season could very well be a thing of the past for Kendrick High School and for the other high schools in our area. Beginning next year, we will be joining the majority of school districts in the State by having a winter basketball season for girls. We are essentially forced into this situation for three reasons: (1) The State Board of Control for Idaho High School Activities Association voted in March of 1976 to deny the fall season. (2) If A-3 schools in our league follow the Board of Control's direction, few if any competing schools will participate in the fall. (3) Any school that maintains a fall season for girls could be the subject for a civil rights complaint that they discriminatorily delegate the girls of their district to an inferior season in violation of Title IV of the Education Amendments of 1972.

A civil rights complaint could allege that because the girls basketball season is in the fall it eliminates the opportunity for girls to participate in volleyball and cross country. In addition, a lay-off between the District Tournament (Nov. 18-24) and the State Tournament (Feb. 15-16) does not afford the girls an opportunity to compete at their playing prime. Boys do not suffer the same penalties.

I am totally opposed to a winter basketball season for girls at our school. Considering our limited facilities (one gym), and the number of basketball teams we have (6), scheduling games and practice times becomes extremely difficult. Essentially this would mean basketball games practically every night of the week and also evening and morning practices for the teams. Since few if any schools in our area have volleyball or cross country, a conflict with basketball does not presently pose a problem. The theory that girls are not at their playing prime during State Tournament if they compete during the fall is also questionable. Lapwal won the State Girls Basketball Tournament for their classification last year and compete during a fall season.

It appears inevitable that our girls basketball season will be during the winter next year and to preserve the success of our girls athletic program we will adjust. However, I am disappointed that we are being pressured into a situation that conflicts with our school's individual needs for a totally successful athletic program.

Teach Evaluation
 I would like to briefly explain the District's Teacher Evaluation Policy. The purpose of individual evaluation is to identify any weaknesses in a teacher's performance and to determine districtwide program deficiencies, so that a plan can be developed to continually improve the quality of education for students in our system. This year every teacher will develop student behavioral objectives and will be evaluated by their pupils' performance in each subject or class. This element of the evaluation process will be on a trial basis for this year. In addition to the meeting the stu-
