For Safe Driving— Prepare for Winter

It is too late to think about winter preparedness when you are stalled or stuck or perhaps stranded. Win-ter has a habit of catching people unprepared according to Wayne Fisher, U/I Cooperative Extension Service. The Safety Specialist points out four areas of winter emphasis.

(1)—Have Your Vehicle Ready:— winterized; dependable tires—and

GARLINGHOUSE MEMORIALS

(2)— Carry Safety Items in Every Vehicle—

plastic ice soraper and anow brush; tools, (at least pliers, screwdriver, and adjustable wrench); shovel; tire chains (even if the vehicle has studded snow tires); battery booster cables; tow chain or webbing (20 ft); sack of sand (not excessive amount); highway flares.
Only Carry Extra Gasoline In An

Extreme Emergency—
using a heavy metal can, threefourths full and tightly capped. Escaping gasoline fumes in your car's trunk could explode with the force of several sticks of dynamite. (3): Adjust Your Speed and Driving Procedures According to road

Excessive speed for road conditions causes many winter mishaps. Take time, allowing for conditions. Know Conditions-how to control your vehicle. Stop and start carefully. A heavy foot adds to the problems, Calmly pumping the brakes in an emergency will stop you quicker. Also gradual acceleration will help you get going battery; lights, wipers, and defrest-ers that are working; exhaust are tem in first class condition; refull the turn the steering wheel in the direc-tion of the skid even when the ve-hicle is headed off the road.

(4): Make Extra Preparation Before
You Cross Open Country—
Have a "survival kit" in the car in case you get stranded. Your local Extension Office can supply you with recommendations for a survival kit or write Box 300, Boise, Idaho 83701. Another open country caution is to "know before you go." Listen to weather reports and if not sure of safety, check with the Highway Patrol. When on the road keep in touch with someone at home and with other motorists. C. B. or personal contact at a service station will help you find a travel contact. Don't travel at an unsafe speed to "keep up" and don't tailgate. Travel only close enough together to know all is A-O. K. Winter travel is hazardous especially during holidays. Extra care, planning and preparation will help you avoid many unconveniences and the possible consequences of a motor vehicle mishap. If you are on foot, and in a hurry, remember this—If there is no pedes-trian signal, wait for a break in traffic before trying to cross, especially if you can't move very fast! Never underestimate the speed of a vehicle approaching your intended path of travel. This reminder from the Ida-ho Traffic Safety Commission.

Letters te the Editor . . .

The Kendrick School "Principal's Corner" by Mr. Tracy is in principle, an admirable contribution to your newspaper. It is indeed commendable that the principal would take the time to see that the entire community is kept informed of the events within the school district. However, I do not feel that it is within the principal's area of responsibility to publicly criticize the ac-tions of parents. Each time I read this column, I feel as if I am sitting in a classroom being lectured. This should not be the purpose of Mr. Tracy's column,

Last week's article on "High Attendance Reports," for instance, started out on a very positive note. The first paragraph told us that Kendrick has had a 94.74% attend-ance rate this year. I don't have any figures at hand, but I would guess that, based on a national average we are probably in the upper ten percent for attendance. Good! I like to hear positive reports of this nature, and feel that Mr. Tracy is doing us all service by reporting this fact. However, the rest of that article, over 200 words, was spent criticizing those parents who send honest excus-es to school with their children to explain their absences. I am not sure if Mr. Tracy wonts those people to start lying to him, or if he is unable to contact personally that 5.26% of the parents/students who keep our attendance below 100%. All of the parents who have sent excuses refind more constructive uses for his newspaper column. Any good manager knows that personal contact is Willie Adams and Brent and Don-Certainly if Mr. Tracy operates on family, Mr. and Mrs. Manely Wala daily basis in the same manner, I dron and family of Bovill, Mrs. Joyce see no wonder that his vehicle has

Discipline Report-

Disciplinary cases at the Jr.-Sr. High School for October and Novemper are listed below. The thirty-three disciplinary problems for the past two months bring the total for the year to fifty-six at the secondary

1. Skipping classes and/or leaving school grounds without permission six students.

2. Destroying or defacing school property—three students.

3. Severe classroom disturbances thirteen students.

4. Use of profanity in classroom-

5. Fighting at school-5 students. 6. Smoking on school grounds-

7. Truancy-two students. Parents were notified in writing in all of the above cases stating the offense and the action taken. In addition, many parents were telephoned and conferences with the parents of six students were held to help resolve the disciplinary problem of their child. Five students were detained after school for two hours, four students were suspended from school from one to three days for more severe disciplinary reasons.

For every disciplinary referral that reaches my office, one to three hours of administrative time is necessary to confer with the refering teacher, counsel with the student, write a discipline notice to parents, telephone and/or hold conference with the parents and see that disciplinary action is carried out. As one can see a tremendous amount of time is necessary to modify the behavior of a few individuals. Eight students represent more than a third of the fifty-six disciplinary cases referred this year at the secondary level.

At the Elementary school the fol-lowing disciplinary cases were reported to the principal's office for October and November.

1. Fighting-four students. 2. Misbehavior on the playground
