Santa Visits Christmas Party At Fraternal Temple

Christmas really began at 2:00 this past Sunday afternoon for members of the Grange, Masonic Lodge, Order of Eastern Star, their friends and families. Numbering approximately 120, the assembly was greeted by Grange Master E. M. White, who also presented Art Foster, Master of Kendrick Lodge No. 28 and Crystal Grull and Eugene Taylor, Worthy Matron and Patron of Canyon Chapter No. 67, O. E. S.

The program was then turned over to Nellie Heimgartner and her "assistant", Rev. Steve Caskey.

The Juliaetta Choir, though small, made beautiful sounds as they sang, "There Were Shepherds", and "Glory Be to God in the Highest". The Christmas story as told in the Bible was accompanied on the piano by Sharon Harris and read by Candi Fey; the beautiful little dramatization of the story was presented by the children and grandchildren of Roy and Helen Fey. Mark Harris was Joseph; Deana Brocke, Mary; Lucas Ford, Baby Jesus; Shepherds, Jon Fey, Burton Brocke and Mike Harris, with Jennifer Fey and Angela Ford as the Angels.

The choir from the Kendrick Community United Methodist Church then sang "Jazz Gloria" and "Caroling, Caroling". Much to his mother's surprise, Ray Heimgartner played a guitar solo—and with a sore finger! A short recitation was done by Shane Taylor, who was not daunted by the mike!

Heather Morton played "Joy to the World" on the piano, followed by Heidi and Roberta (when she finally woke up) singing, "Rudolph, the Red Nosed Reindeer", accompanied by their mother, Dee Morton, on the piano. Dee was quite busy during the afternoon, turning then to play background music for Judy Bailey as she "Reasons for Christmas" and "Making Gifts", poems written by her mother, Clara Bailey.

Diane Bailey played a medley of Christmas songs, including, "Away in a Manger", "The First Noel", "Jolly Old St. Nicholas", and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas". Following Diane's flute solos, her twin brothers, Jay and Jim Bailey, joined together to do "The Drummer Boy", with Jim on the drum and Jay singing. Dee Morton provided the accompaniment. They then sang, "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town".

Two little girls in blue, Mardell and Karen Clemenhagen, sang "Silent Night", accompanied by their mother, Joyce Clemenhagen.

Kraig and Karl Galloway of Lewiston played two numbers, "Big Rock Candy Mountain", and "Jingle Bells"—Kraig on the violin and Karl on guitar. A mystery number followed—"A Little Boy's Lament", a recitation by one Peter Pickle (Alias Grace Ingle!).

Lynette and Gina Kress, daughters of Glenda and Jim Kress of Lewiston and nieces of Marie and Harlan Fey, performed solo tap dance routines, as did Barbara Michial, a neighbor of theirs.

Nellie Heimgartner gave special thanks to all who helped make the Christmas party such a success. The children then came up and sang, "Away in a Manger" and "Jingle Bells". Candy canes were given to each child by the Grange. A brief bit of group singing was led by Eugene Taylor, and with "Jingle Bells" here came Santa himself! The crowd enjoyed Santa's humor and fondly watched him distribute gifts to the children. Roy Glenn in particular was seen enjoying himself during these festive moments.

The gift exchange and refreshments followed. Everyone left pleasantly stuffed with cookies, candy and the thought that our "young ones" are great—and will be greater! And, a Merry Christmas to all!

Ambition and love are the wings to great deeds.—Johann Wolfgang von Goethe.

Hill and Valley Garden Club Sale a Success

Last Wednesday the annual fundraising Christmas sale and luncheon, sponsored by the Hill and Valley Garden club, was well attended by residents of the entire community. Hours were from 9 to 2 in the Fraternal Temple.

During the sale, a luncheon of hot soups and chili, pie, donuts and cinnamon rolls and coffee were served under the direction of Mrs. Roy Glenn.

The wintry day possibly helped by bringing customers in for lunch and to look over the variety of evergreen wreaths, swags, table and novelty arrangements; foods, jellies and miscellaneous items for sale.

Club members gathered later for a short business meeting, discussing plans for several spring activities on the club year book.

Dick Cuddy Closes Barber Shop

Dick Cuddy, owner of Dick's Barber Shop, has sold his building and equipment to George Boe of Juliaetta and retired as of Saturday evening, Dec. 10. Dick's retirement at the age of 79 ends thirty years of operation in Kendrick and a barbering career that spanned 62 years.

A native of Southwick, Dick started barbering when he was 17 years old. He attended Spokane Barber College and worked first in Winchester and later in Craigmont. He then moved to Coos Bay, Oregon to work and it was there he met and married his wife, Floy. In 1930 they returned to Kendrick where he worked for Sylvie Cook when Mr. Cook owned the barber shop. In 1930 the Cuddy's moved to Corona, California and he barbered in that state for a year before moving to Kelso, Washington where he accepted a barber job in Cathlamet, Oregon, staying there until 1947. when he returned to Kendrick and purchased the barber shop from Sidney Clemenhagen.

That was to be the Cuddy's last move and since that time Dick has served the community six days a week with the exception of a few days vacation each year. It was one of the last old fashioned barber shops in the area. A gathering place for men of the community, complete with "liar's bench" in front of the shop. Dick never kept pace with the prices other barbers were charging and haircuts were $2 when he retired. At the age of 79, Dick was probably the oldest active barber in Idaho.

With the closing of the barber shop in Kendrick, we now join many other small communities who do not have a full-time barber shop. However, all three beauty shops in the area, The Shear Shop in Juliaetta, The Beauty Nook and Inez's Beauty Shop in Kendrick all do men's haircutting. But if you want your hair cut from one of these three, an appointment is advised or at least recommended. The Shear Shop and Inez Armitage said they would take drop-in trade, but advised a phone call first to avoid undue waiting; Vicki Witt of the Beauty Nook said an appointment is necessary.

The community joins in wishing Dick and Floy many happy, healthy active years of retirement. Dick has given the people of this area many years of faithful service, but more than just this, he provided a popular meeting and visiting spot for the men. But Dick Cuddy has a problem no other man reaching retirement age has faced in Kendrick. Dick doesn't have a barber shop to go up to and sit around.

Land Sale Hearing Held Monday Night

Over thirty persons attended a public hearing Monday night on the proposed sale of several acres of city owned land in the West End of Kendrick. The hearing was called, as required by law, by the Kendrick council after it had passed an ordinance informing the public of its intent to sell the land, which it had deemed surplus.

Mayor Bob Watts, who presided over the hearing, said the council, Jerry Brown, Darrel Brocke, Don Millard and mayor-elect Wayne Harris and himself, were there to "hear the public" and answer questions about the proposed sale.

The audience had plenty of questions to raise during the one and half hour session. Most of the concern appeared to be centered about whether the council would limit the purposes the land could be used for, if sold; whether it would be sold as individual lots or in a block and whether it should be sold at all.

Bill Rogers, who has a home near the land in question asked if there were "any limitations on the sale." Mayor Watts said the council had pretty much set up the sale for future housing use. Bill White, another west end resident, said he wasn't in favor of the sale unless the land was split up and sold as individual lots.

Roger Courtright, who will be seated on the council Jan. 1, said he felt the people of the community "should be aware of the fact that this is the only flat piece of land left in Kendrick."

In answer to the question "why is the city selling the land now," Watts said, the city has no immediate use for the land but there is a need for housing. New homes would mean increased tax revenue for the city.

It appeared to be the consensus of those present that if and when the land was sold, there should be stipulations as to what type of development could be made of it. Watts had earlier explained that if there were objections to the sale, a petition bearing the names of 12 registered voters could bring the question to a public election. This petition would have to be filed with the city clerk within 60 days of the passage of the ordinance or by Feb. 1.

Handcraft Shop to Open In Kendrick

George Boe, who purchased the barber shop building and equipment from Dick Cuddy last week, is in the process of remodeling the interior of the building and hopes to open "The Craftsman Shop" in the near future. The new business would feature handcrafted items such as macramé, leather goods, wood craft and similar items. There will also be a taxidermy shop in the building.

George and his brother, Art, are putting cedar paneling on the interior and George said he was hoping to be far enough along this weekend to open for business. George also said he would be taking other handcrafted items on consignment.

Jim Fey will operate a taxidermy shop from the middle room in the building, Boe said, and he will have his own wood working and carpentry equipment in the back of the building.

The old barber shop equipment, the two chairs, mirrors and cabinets were sold to private individuals almost immediately.

The sale of the building was handled by Merlin Hepler, representing Singler Realty of Troy.

Ruth is now serving in that capacity on the state level as well.

The evening's program consisted of "show and tell". Featured were items made by members as Christmas gifts and as decorations. Those participating were Elsie and Manning Onstott, Inez and Ross Armistage, Nellie Helmgartner, Ruby Craig and Jo Benscooter. Frank Jacobsen read two poems of the season: "Christmas Trees", by Robert Frost, and "The Oxen" by Thomas Hardy.

To top off the evening, the serving committee tickled the palates and warmed the stomachs of Grange members with a zesty homemade stew. It was a cold, blowy night, and Leonard and Coryell Wolff, Art and Maxine Foster, and Stewart and Joy Huggins deserve lots of praise for their bright thought. Betty May also helped serve refreshments during the month of November.

Next meeting of the Grange will be on January 3. The evening will begin with a waffle feed at 6:30. The program for the evening will feature pinochle.

This past weeks meeting between area farmers and Congressman Foley brought to mind a story that really doesn't fit into the "joke" category, but is important at this time and should be published. The setting for this story is Dec. 14, 1997.

School boy: "Grandpa, tell me again what it was like when there were family farms in America—when you had your farm?"

After listening a few minutes to Grandpa recalling those wonderful old days, the school boy asked: "Grandpa, if it was so wonderful, why didn't you and Dad keep the farm for us. Dad never answers when I ask him."

The city miss was visiting a farm for the first time. She was taken out to see the lambs and just had to pat one. She was delighted with the soft wool. "Who would have thought it?" she exclaimed, "They make them out of blankets!"

WALK TO LOSE WEIGHT

Want to lose ten pounds in the next year?

One way you can do it is to walk an extra mile every day. The American Medical Association points out that a walk of just an extra mile per day for 365 days is a simple, pleasant device for shedding an extra pound of fat. In a year this would mount up to about ten pounds. The extra mile means just that—a mile of walking in addition to the customary walking you now do each day. And walking at a brisk clip, not just sauntering along. And without increasing your present food intake.

Once regarded as a major factor in losing weight, physical activity was later accorded less importance. It was recalled that considerable effort was required to shed even 1 pound of extra tissue. Would-be reducers found comfort in some expert opinion that calories expended through exercise would be immediately replaced, due to automatic increase in appetite.

Fortunately for fitness as well as for fatness, exercise has been restored to grace and enjoys respectability. It still takes caloric control to keep weight under control permanently, but exercise helps expend calories; within the usual range of activity, it need not stimulate appetite excessively. The energy output required to offset a pound of fat is approximately 3,500 calories, but the weight need not be lost all at once.

Instead of the exhausting, often impossible, 36-mile hike within a span of hours, a walk of just one extra mile a day for 365 days will get rid of that extra pound. Weight gain is usually relatively slow, and the extra mile will—for most of us—help keep weight down to a reasonable figure.

To be effective in both weight reduction and for general physical conditioning, exercise must be a regular part of your way of life and not some thing that is overdone spasmodically.

You will become as small as your controlling desire; as great as your dominant domination.—James Allen

APPLICATIONS NOW BEING TAKEN FOR SUMMER FOREST SERVICE EMPLOYMENT

Application forms for summer employment with the U. S. Forest Service are available at local Forest Service offices, according to Max Lewis, Clearwater National Forest personnel officer.

Lewis said the Clearwater will fill about 325 summer positions for 1978 using a nationwide computer selection system. A few other positions will be filled from applications made directly to the forest, he said. Applications for these temporary jobs must be submitted by January 15.

On the basis of work experience and education listed on the application form, the computer will qualify and rate applicants for the following position categories in grades GS-2 through 5 ($3.38 to $4.79 per hour); biological, engineering, forestry, hydrological, range and surveying technicians.

Applicants who use the computerized application form indicate a first and second forest preference. Each forest will receive a list of qualified and rated applicants who listed that forest as a preference. The Clearwater will fill its 325 seasonal positions from this list. Lewis said persons who were employed by the forest last summer for at least 60 consecutive days will be given top priority.

Only one application form can be submitted to the Forest Service for summer employment, Lewis pointed out. The computer system is programmed to remove duplicates.

Lewis explained that about 25 temporary positions will be filled directly by the forest. They include equipment and vehicle operator, carpenter, laborer and food service positions paying from $5.64 to $7.13 per hour. These jobs will be available in May or June and will last from one and a half to seven months.

Lewis said persons interested in these positions should apply directly to the Supervisor's Office in Orofino. Related work experience is necessary for these positions. Applicants will fill out regular government application forms as well as a questionnaire.

The recruiting period for both categories of jobs ends Jan. 15. Computer forms should be mailed to the Forest Service Regional Office, Missoula, Montana 59807. The others should be mailed or delivered to the Orofino office.

Further information about both categories of jobs is available from the Clearwater personnel office at Orofino.

HEMORRHAGE OF THE FINGER

When the do-it-yourself repairman hits his finger with a hammer, the result is often a hemorrhage under the fingernail, says the Idaho Medical Association.

An extensive hemorrhage may result in separation of the nail from its bed. The nail will come completely off of the finger. One way to prevent this is to seek prompt treatment from a physician.

It may be possible to drain away the blood while it is still in a fluid state before it begins to clot.

Fingernails are there to protect against serious injury to the sense-of-touch organs in the fingertips.

Nails of fingers and toes grow continuously throughout the lifetime. Fingernails need from four to nine months to complete their growth, while toenails take a bit longer.

Just as a hammer blow can injure the fingernail, ill-fitting shoes can seriously damage toenails. It is important that shoes be properly fitted.

Never esteem anything as of advantage to thee that shall make thee break thy word or lose thy self-respect.—Marcus Aurelius.

Attitude is wait-see on farm strike

by Bob Wherry

It is a wait-an-see time for the majority of Prairie residents, businessmen and farmers as a result of the farmer's strike which went into effect Wednesday, Dec. 14.

Dollars are what its all about. And the ramifications extend from the halls of congress in Washington, D. C. to the mainstreet merchant in Nezperce, Cottonwood and Kendrick. Right in the middle are the farmers. Leading the charge are members of the American Agriculture group.

It is a loosely knit organization with claims of having some 300 strike officers across the nation.

There is no defined leadership structure, no official membership list, no dues and not much organization.

They want one thing-- more money for their crops. Getting the most attention is a call for 100 per cent parity-- this being in theory, the same purchasing power farmers had 40 to 50 years ago when farm costs and prices were seen as being in balance.

There is general agreement on the Prairie that farm prices are too low.

From that point the picture gets confusing and complex.

Decisions on the 1978 crops were made months ago by area farmers. Winter wheat is in the ground.

The majority of area farmers started belt tightening last summer with low yields resulting from last year's drought on top of low prices for what was harvested forming a financial vise.

Farmers with large debts outstanding with their local banker aren't offered a whole lot of alternatives.

What is happening is capital purchases are being delayed, old equipment is being repaired and much of this in the home repair shop.

There are few if any area residents who know the facts who aren't in sympathy with the farmer's plight.

In Cottonwood, Nezperce and Kendrick, when the farmer feels a pinch everyone feels it.

The American Agriculture group has outlined three main strike tactics. These are:

- Not sell any agricultural products.
- Not buy any agricultural products.
- Not buy any agricultural equipment, production supplies or any non-essential items.

The latter has produced the wait-and-see attitude.

To be successful, the strike must gain the attention of Congress. This means getting the attention and support of the general public.

And the lunch bucket carrying worker in Seattle, Spokane, Boise or Lewiston is not all that impressed with the farmer's plight when he sees a string of tractors worth $70,000 to $100,000 each parading down a street.

What the lunch bucket brigade fails to realize is the majority of those tractors are still owed for just like he owes payments on his car, his house and the boat he has in his back yard.

While he depends on his regular paycheck to keep him financially solvent, the farmer is dependant on fickle weather and the whims of the marketplace both at home and abroad.

Will the strike succeed?

Perhaps it accomplished all its going to before it even really gets off the ground.

It has stirred a lot of stories in the nation's newspapers and certainly there are at least a few more people even in Boise, Spokane, Seattle and Lewiston who are aware that it is not all tall clover for America's farmers.

Road relocation ended Westlake's glory days

This old pump has quenched many a thirst on a hot harvest day. With a little prime it still offers up a cool drink to the passerby of this abandoned homestead in the Westlake area.

At the turn of the century the community of Westlake, located five miles from the Salmon River on Craig Mountain south of Lewiston, had high hopes for a bright future.

It was on the main stage road between Lewiston and the Camas Prairie lands of Cottonwood and Grangeville.

Founded in 1896 by J. B. Rice, it had grown to a full-blown town by 1903. It died a quick death with relocation of the main road several miles to the east.

The following account is from the book "An Illustrated History of North Idaho" published by the Western Historical Publishing Co. in 1903:

The townsite of Westlake was located in 1887 by J. B. Rice as a preemption.

There was a general store at this point in 1889 and the postoffice was established about 10 years ago (1893).

At an early period the state road ran through the townsite, quite a number of people coming to the place in 1887.

The town was named in honor of Mrs. Sarah Rice, nee Westlake. It was platted in 1886 and a hotel erected by Charles R. Babcock.

In 1896, Adam Kammers started a blacksmith shop, Smith & Horton a livery barn, and in 1901, (February), Crom & Stewart erected a store building.

They came from Milton, Ore. Previous to the transfer of the townsite Emmet Putnam had started a store across from the present Westlake drug store, afterward selling out to Crom & Stewart.

About this period a flour mill of 20 barrels capacity was erected, Emmet Putnam opened a furniture store and J. B. Rice a drug store.

William Clausen established a general store in 1896 just outside the town limits, on his own land.

The present business houses (1903) comprise the Westlake drug store; two general stores, Clausen's and F. B. Pennock & Co., the company including Crom & Stewart; furniture of Emmet Putnam; blacksmith shop of Orin Eastman; hotel and saloon, conducted by Shaw & Neighbor, who have also a feed barn in connection.

The church of Westlake is represented by the Seventh Day Adventists. A public school with an attendance of 30 pupils is open six months in the year.

The postmaster is James A. Crom, the mail coming via the Lewiston-Cottonwood route every day except Sunday.

Westlake is situated five miles from the Salmon River from which vicinity it receives considerable trade.

Economists weigh fertilizer pay-off

Idaho farmers have tended to use too much fertilizer on corn and too little on beans, hay, vegetables, potatoes, wheat and barley, according to a University of Idaho economic study.

UI economists R. B. Long, R. W. Schermerhorn and L. Sargent investigated use of fertilizer on crops in the western U.S. From data obtained in their research, they have prepared a guide for farmers to evaluate profits obtained from fertilizer use.

The guide is explained in a new bulletin, "Fertilizer Use in Idaho—Too Much or Too Little?" Copies are available at county offices of the UI Extension Service.

Farmer's plans goal of survey

The 1977 wheat harvest coupled with the new farm program, has created an increasing interest in agriculture's upcoming potential.

The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service will conduct a survey in late November and early December to put some solid information on the line as to how many acres farmers planted to winter wheat for harvest in 1978, how many cattle are on farms and ranches.

Another report will cover hog inventory and the number of pigs expected to be born in early 1978 and chickens.

These estimates will be based on mail survey responses from some producers and personal interviews with others.

Overall, a representative cross-section of America's agricultural producers will be asked to voluntarily cooperate in the project.

Richard C. Max of the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service noted that the purpose of the survey and resulting reports is to provide producers and those associated with them with the latest information for reasonable production, storage, and marketing decisions.

Information about wheat acreages and production and hogs will be available Dec. 22, and cattle and chicken data on Jan. 30, 1978.

Copies of the reports will be available from the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service office at 304 N. 8th, Boise, Idaho.

This snag, weathered and beaten down by time stands like a lonely silent sentinel in a meadow near Westlake.

City boys little slow

By W. F. "Bill" Whitton
Somehow the big city newspaper cartoonists and the television artists just can't seem to get the modern picture of the farmer in their minds.

They still want to have him in baggy overalls, with a straw protruding from his lips, and a straw hat on his head. A case in point is a publication by the producers of Sesame Street.

Sesame Street is conducted by the Children's Television Workshop.

It is to their credit that child-behavior specialists are among the many advisors working on these programs and related activities, such as the Sesame Street farm comic book now on the newsstands.

One farm reporter who leafed through the booklet, simply titled, "Down on the Farm," said he couldn't help but wish that the list of Sesame Street advisors had included at least one farmer.

In the comic book stands a "farmer" with overalls, straw hat, and chewing a straw while clutching a pitchfork, tines up.

There is a lot of attention given to haymaking, and so the farmer must have a pitchfork, mustn't he?

Of course, there are lots of horses in the book. Farmers must have horses. And windmills . . . doesn't every modern farm have a windmill to pump water?

Then there's all that good food that farmers get from their gardens. Sure, they get a lot, but, they also go to the store and buy a lot too, just like the rest of us.

Finally, there is the scene showing a little farm girl riding on a tractor while her mother drives it. The error has nothing to do with the mother driving the tractor.

Many farm wives do this, but little children and big farm machines do not mix. Those promoting farm safety have been urging farmers (and their wives) for years to not let little children ride on tractors.

Any farm person could have quickly made this plain to Sesame Street producers . . . had they been asked.

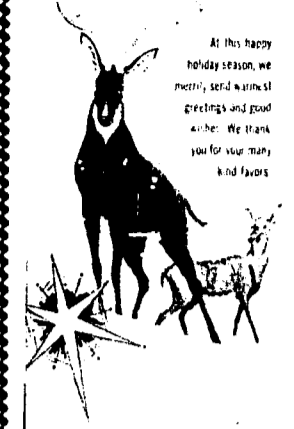

Unfortunately, they didn't ask, and seldom do members of the big city news media. It's too bad. They might find out that agriculture and the farmer have changed since the 1930's and '40's.

Cecil Andrus advises Learn to use land wisely

By Cecil D. Andrus
Secretary of the Interior

A young man I know once asked a grizzled Colorado rancher how he could learn about the cattle business.

"Ain't nothin' to it," replied the old cowboy, "just get yourself a cow and follow it around. In 30 days you'll learn everything you need to know about raising 'em."

I suppose that was good advice in the old days of open range—when grazing herds roamed the West like nomadic tribes, taking every blade of grass they could find and leaving a trail of dust in their wakes.

It certainly conjures up a highly romantic view—perpetuated by Hollywood and a stream of dime novels—of how the West was won.

The truth is, this eat and run philosophy is how the West was almost ruined.

It's a philosophy today's rancher has had to outgrow in order to improve the range while accommodating a host of new demands on the land.

The Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management has worked many years on a systematic approach to range management; one that would give recognition to all kinds of demands, not just the forage needs of domestic livestock.

But the system is far from perfected, as I am personally—and painfully—aware.

As Governor of Idaho, I was keenly interested in BLM's management plans for the Challis planning unit. As the first unit to undergo an Environmental Impact Statement, Challis should have served as a model "how to" project.

An example, to be applied to the hundreds of other such units throughout the West, of how to accommodate a variety of resource uses while protecting and even enhancing the environment.

Unfortunately, this was not the case—at least on the first go 'round. So, we're back at the drawing board, profiting, hopefully, by what was learned in the attempt.

Clearly, one valuable lesson was that we simply didn't have enough basic resource data to make the necessary, discriminating choices among competing demands.

So we are now stepping up our efforts to develop the missing information.

To help spread our limited manpower, we are proposing to reduce, from 212 to 155, the number of Impact Statements to be completed. This would be done by shifting boundaries to group similar areas, not be "leaving out" some areas.

We are also planning to consider the environmental impact of livestock grazing at a much earlier point in the planning stages—long before we begin to develop specific grazing plans for specific allotments.

In other words, we would first evaluate the vegetative resource potential in light of all uses, including livestock, wildlife, wild horses, watershed management, fish habitat, etc., before we try to devise the best ratio of uses.

And we will keep in mind that proper management of one use, such as livestock grazing, can actually improve the land's ability to meet other demands.

We also fully intend to seek fuller public participation in these earlier decisions about the amount of public land vegetation that should be allotted to wildlife, wild horses, and other legitimate uses of public rangelands—and to give both rancher and non-rancher views full consideration.

I believe that other adjustments are necessary in our planning system. In the past, it has relied too heavily on economics. Where it was easier to put a price tag on one use than another, then that use often was given the edge.

I am convinced that the best way to put all competing uses on an equal footing would be to judge them not just on their economic worth, but to weigh their environmental costs as well, with those doing the least environmental harm given higher priority.

It may not be easy to do, and there are undoubtedly some tough choices ahead in properly managing our public land national resources.

Farmer's income said lowest in U.S.

Income is one of the reasons the farmers behind the American Agriculture movement are striking for 100 percent of parity.

According to Ernie Shoaf, the farmers income is the lowest in the United States.

An average income for a man working on the farm is $6,489. For a woman the wage is even lower at $3,553, Shoaf said.

Looking at other jobs and occupations, the highest paid salary is $17,196 for the manufacturing professional or manager, Shoaf said. The highest paid salary for a woman is in public administration managerial positions at $11,155.

All other areas of work are divided into three categories—professional and managerial, clerical and sales, and craft workers and operatives. Shoaf said the farmer is all of these different jobs.

Agriculture, mining and entertainment and recreation services are the three jobs which do not divide into the various categories, Shoaf said.

Only the farmer is combined with forestry and fishery services, the other two occupations stand alone.

American Agriculture is not asking for a profit when they ask for 100 percent of parity, they are asking for a fair chance, Shoaf said.

"These figures prove we are in trouble; the American public has to see the farmer is not trying to take their last dollar."

When the farmer gets 100 percent of parity, Shoaf said, it will not just help his income but will help the entire economy of the United States.

"It has been proven a dollar from the farmers income will change hands seven times after he spends it before it leaves the town the farmer spent it in," Shoaf said.

By striking and not putting their products on the market they believe the government will have to listen.

The farmer would have to develop world crop reporting services so production could be planned and implemented in a supply and demand environment.

Also planned is the dissolving of the futures market in Chicago. The farmers claim the market (the World Board of Trade) is not giving them a fair chance at an income.

Imports would be stopped so long as there is a surplus of production in the United States and the farmers would have control over the percentage of acres grown each year.

Imports would be opened when parity is over 110 percent and closed when parity is under 95 percent.

Their goal is not to gain a great profit but instead to meet their costs of production and be able to live on an equal basis with the rest of the nation, farmers say.

Farmers have chosen parity over government subsidies.

To make Congress realize the seriousness of their problems, farmers have chosen to strike.

Organized labor is protected with wage contracts, businesses are protected with business contracts and workers in all segments of the economy except agriculture are protected with minimum wage laws.

The farmer is the only group in all the segments of the economy who does not receive a price to cover his costs of production, or give him a minimum profit. This is their main goal.

Imports must be stopped in order to help the American farmer receive 100 percent of parity.

One of the demands in their strike is to stop importing beef from various countries. The American public is not getting quality meat when they are buying imported matter, an American agriculture spokesman says.

The farmers blame the federal government for the import problem. The government allows meat animals to be slaughtered in other countries and the meat packaged and brought into

Weak calf syndrome linked to nutrition

Adequate nutrition may prove to be a major defense against the costly livestock disease known as "weak calf syndrome," a University of Idaho researcher told the Pacific Northwest Animal Nutrition Conference. Dr. Richard C. Bull, professor of animal science, said nutritional factors may account for the fact that some Idaho herds have experienced 30 to 40 percent death loss of calves, while other nearby herds have had no reported cases of weak calf syndrome.

Although causes of the syndrome have not been definitely established, inadequate nutrition appears to be associated with the disease, Bull reported.

"In a field study in eastern Idaho, the amount of crude protein consumed by cows prior to calving was highly correlated with the incidence of weak calf syndrome in the herds," he pointed out.

Death losses of young calves increased when UI researchers restricted the energy levels in the rations fed to pregnant heifers, the United States and with American meat, they say.

According to the group of independent farmers, imports are slaughtered in the foreign country and the procedure is not all that enticing.

These animals are slaughtered in unsanitary conditions, without the normal refrigeration and inspection processes as American beef being slaughtered.

A beef is killed and slaughtered in an open pen without any way of keeping the flies and dirt off of the carcass; a normal procedure, American Agriculture says.

The first time the carcass is refrigerated is when it is taken to the port and shipped to the United States.

American Agriculture wants the consumer to realize they are paying the same price at the store for this meat as they are for the USDA graded American beef.

Approximately one million imported cattle were shipped to the United States last year, causing a depressed market in the beef raised locally, American Agriculture said.

Panda Sock Doll

The panda, 11" tall, is made with one white and one black man's dress sock. For stuffing, use old nylon stockings or other suitable material.

Head and Body. Using the white sock, cut off the top (Fig. 1). Turn the remaining sock inside out and sew across the heel so you have a tube-like piece (Fig. 2). Then turn right side out and, with the heel seam toward the back, stuff the toe of the sock for the head. Stuff firmly, making a round head about 3½" high.

To shape the nose area (dotted line Fig. 3), insert additional stuffing so the area protrudes a little. Sew a circle, about 1½" in diameter, around this area, going through the head stuffing. The stitching will help retain the shape.

Gather the sock around the bottom of the head with small stitches; pull and tie securely. Stuff the remainder for the body. Gather the bottom edge of the body, being sure to catch each stitch so the sock won't run. Sew the body closed (Fig. 4).

Following the drawings, cut features and ears from black felt, with an additional white and black circle for the center of each eye. Sew the ears and features in place. The mouth will naturally curve as it is sewn in position.

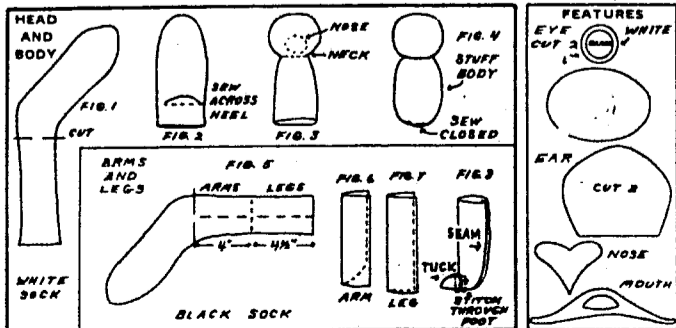

Arms and Legs. Use the black sock, with the foot cut off above the heel, to make the arms and legs. Cut this ribbed portion of the sock (Fig. 5), making two pieces 4" long for arms, and two pieces 4½" long for legs.

On the wrong side, stitch each arm along the dotted line (Fig. 6). Turn the arm right side out and stuff, stuffing it less firmly near the open top. Sew the arm to the body with seam toward body.

Make and attach the legs the same way as the arms (Fig. 7), with the seams toward the back.

To make each foot, bend the end of the leg up and sew a tuck to hold it in position; for added strength, take three or four stitches from the tuck down through the foot (Fig. 8). Finally, add a bow around the neck.

IDEAS & FOOD for thought

Tasty Budget Special

It's the beginning of a brand new year! The holidays are over and all of us have to get back within our budgets. Eggs 'N Au Gratin Potatoes is an inexpensive and ingenious combination of flavorful ingredients your family (and stray guests) will love. Use the leftover ham from your New Year's party, and add a package of au gratin potatoes and a little cheese along with hard-cooked eggs for pizzazz and protein.

EGGS 'N AU GRATIN POTATOES

Makes 6 servings

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1 package (5½ oz.) au gratin potatoes | 1 cup chopped ham or luncheon meat |
| 2 tablespoons butter | ¼ teaspoon marjoram |
| 1½ cups boiling water | ¼ teaspoon salt |
| ½ cup milk | ½ cup (2 oz.) shredded American cheese |
| 6 hard-cooked eggs* (1 sliced, 5 chopped) | Parsley |
| 1 package (10 oz.) frozen peas | |

Place potato slices, cheese sauce mix, butter, boiling water and milk in a bowl; mix to blend. Stir in 5 chopped eggs, peas, ham, marjoram and salt. Pour into ungreased 2-quart casserole. Bake in preheated 400°F. oven 30 to 35 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese. Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Garnish with reserved egg slices and parsley.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

TRADITIONAL BRANDY FLIP

- 2 oz. Brandy
- 1 egg
- 1 tsp. sugar
- Grated nutmeg

Shake first three ingredients well with ice. Strain into chilled glass. Sprinkle with nutmeg.

This season give your family and friends an old-fashioned English Christmas.

Bake a bean cake. In Elizabethan England it was traditional for everyone to eat a piece of a cake into which one bean had been baked. The person who found the bean in his cake was lauded as the bean-king on Twelfth Night.

HAVE YOUR HOLIDAY

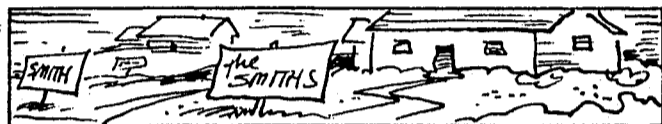

CHEER the old-fashioned English way this year.

If you have a fireplace, put a Yule log on the fire. Place an enormous Christmas candle on a high table and let it burn throughout the 12 days of Christmas.

Serve your guests a traditional English drink made with Beefeater gin. Distilled in London since 1820, Beefeater was first made by James Burrough, who was a true perfectionist. In keeping with a long tradition, a member of the Board of Directors of this family owned company tastes each batch of Beefeater before it's bottled. This season you can get it specially wrapped for the holidays.

If you have the time, make a plum pudding. If not, buy one. Either way you can give it a good old-fashioned look by pouring heated spirits over the warm pudding and setting it ablaze.

Thus we can all have a matchless, traditional Christmas, right out of Merrie Olde England.

The most popular last name in the United States is Smith. Around 2,382,509 people have it.

Tree farmer to be honored

The Idaho Tree Farm Committee will announce the Idaho Tree Farmer of the Year at a Dec. 16 luncheon at the Northshore in Coeur d'Alene.

According to Committee Chairman Carl Haywood, woodland development forester for Pottlatch Corp., Lewiston, the award will highlight the Committee's first annual meeting.

Haywood said the Tree Farm Program, sponsored nationally by the American Forest Institute and regionally by the Inland Forest Resource Council of Missoula, was initiated in 1942 by the forest products industry to promote better forest management on private forest lands.

Nationally, there are more than 33,000 Tree Farmers with more than 77 million acres in the program. In Idaho, there are 460 Tree Farmers with more than 1.2 million acres in the program.

Haywood said the Idaho Tree Farm Committee formed last winter after the industry decided to manage the program on a state rather than regional level.

The Tree Farmer of the Year is one of the Committee's promotions. The Idaho Tree Farmer of the Year will compete in the 1978 Northwest regional competition and the regional winners compete for the National Tree Farmer of the Year award.

Haywood said the Committee also plans to present an Industrial Forestry Award at the luncheon.

"This will be an annual award to recognize outstanding management practices in industrial forestry."

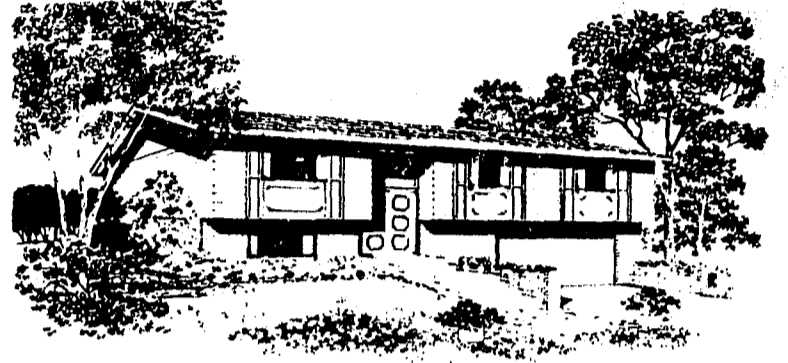

The meeting begins at 10 a.m. Dec. 16 with the showing of "The Idaho Forest" movie. Capping the morning activities will be a discussion of U.S. Forest Service's RARE II (second roadless area review and evaluation).

Haywood said invitations to the luncheon and meeting have been mailed to all Idaho Tree Farmers. Those not receiving an invitation or others interested in attending the meeting should contact Carl Haywood, Pottlatch Corp., P. O. Box 1016, Lewiston, Idaho 83501 or call (208-799-0123).
