Mums and Brilliant Hues to Fall Gardens

Clifton Anderson Associate Agricultural Editor

Moscow—Chrysanthemums vary in height and form of blooms but the many hardy varieties all add a great wealth of autumn color to Idaho gardens.

Mum plants are usually cut back early in the season to promote branching and compact growth. They are easy to propagate by division of clumps in the spring.

Each year, the annual show of the National Chrysanthemum Society is held in a different part of the country. This year's show is slated for Yaldima, Wa. Oct. 20-22.

Information about the show and other activities of the society may be obtained from B. L. Markham, secretary, National Chrysanthemum Society, 2612 Beverly Blvd., Roanoke, Va. 24015.

Retroactive Food Stamp Program

A mass notification of the public is being undertaken by the Department of Health and Welfare starting this week in Idaho. The purpose is to try to advise certain households of their entitlement to retroactive food stamp program benefits as the result of a 1977 court ruling.

James C. Wilson, administrator of the agency's Division of Welfare said certain food stamp program applicants may have had their benefits denied or delayed or they may have never completed or made their application because of certain procedures in effect after August 5, 1974.

"Those procedures are declared illegal as a result of the ruling in the U. S. District Court case of Aiken versus USDA, Wilson said. Part of the court ruling, he added, was that states provide retroactive benefits to affected households.

Following is the wording of the notice being distributed throughout the state on flyers, posters, and special mailings:

NOTICE

You may be eligible for additional food stamps as the result of a recent court decision in Aiken v. Obledo regarding emergency issuance of food stamps. For several years, food stamp offices have been allowed to issue food stamps on an emergency basis—without first requiring full proof of need for stamps—to households with little or no incomes (usually less than $90 per month). However, before food stamp office would issue the stamps, they did have to either contact a person who was not a member of the household in order to get some confirmation of the household's need for stamps or have the household itself provide proof of its need. And no household was allowed to receive these emergency stamps more than once every six months. Now a Federal court has ruled that it was not legal to limit a household to emergency stamps only once every six months or to require confirmation of the household's need before the emergency stamps could be issued.

So, if you applied for or asked about food stamps since August 1974, you may be eligible for additional benefits or a reduction in your current purchase price, if you fit into

Building Activity On Increase Says Bank Newsletter

Idaho's building permit construction activity in March increased substantially from the previous month, said James Hoogland, Jr., and Stan Merrill, managers, quoting the Idaho Construction Report. The Report, a publication of First Security Bank of Idaho, N. A. to be distributed this week, is edited by Dr. Kelly K. Matthews, vice president and economist of First Security Corporation.

Despite the increased building permit activity in March, the number of permits for new dwelling units continued to trail last year's pace. Total construction value for authorized building permit construction in 74 major Idaho locations last month was 58,344,150, or 4.3 percent above the same period in 1977.

New residential construction for 1,021 dwelling units valued at $32,194,251 showed an 8.2 percent decrease in number, but a 6.1 percent increase in value compared with a either of the following groups:

(1) You received food stamps at no cost but did not begin receiving the stamps in the same month you applied.

(2) Even though your household had little or no income (this would likely mean income of less than $90 per month), you contacted a food stamp office but did not apply, or applied but did not follow up on your application because you thought there would be difficulty or delay in obtaining proof of your need to receive stamps immediately. (Some although not all of the persons in these two groups will qualify for additional benefits).

If you think you fit into either of these groups, contact the welfare department nearest to you or contact the FNS Regional Office at the following address:

Western Region Food and Nutrition Service, USDA, 550 Kearny Street, San Francisco, California 94108.

You do not have to be currently eligible for food stamps in order to get this month's worth of benefits you lost in the past.

In Idaho, households should contact county offices of the Department of Health and Welfare to learn if they may be eligible for retroactive benefits.

Horseradish Gives Good Yields Here

Clifton Anderson
Associate Agricultural Editor

Moscow—Horseradish, an easy-to-grow root crop, will give good yields in Idaho gardens that have deep, well-drained soil, says Tony Horn, UI extension horticulturist.

A hardy perennial, horseradish is propagated by root cuttings. Roots are dug in the fall and grated for use in pungent condiments.

"The pieces of root you buy to start a horseradish patch should be six to eight inches long and at least the thickness of a lead pencil. In planting, place the cuttings at an angle with their tops near the surface of the ground in a trench five inches deep. Space cuttings 18 inches apart in rows three feet apart," Horn stated.

Good roots for harvesting can be expected at the end of the first year. A few plants should be left in the garden for spring digging. They will provide cuttings for the next year's crop.

"To prevent horseradish from losing its fresh white color, you should preserve the grated roots in wine vinegar," Horn advised.

Enjoy Asparagus Year After Year

Clifton Anderson
Associate Agricultural Editor

Moscow—Low in calories but high in flavor, asparagus is a popular vegetable that performs well in Idaho gardens it is a perennial and, once established will produce delicious spears every spring for 15 years or year ago.

Nonresidential construction valued at $12,235,221 was 37.1 percent below last year. The value of alterations and repairs was up 131.8 percent to $13,614,678, compared to March, '77.

The number of permits for new dwelling units rose sharply in March in Coeur d'Alene and Kootenai Co. Unincorporated areas of Northern Idaho. For the first quarter of 1978 in southwestern Idaho, residential construction exceeded the previous year's total. The number of permits for new dwelling units in southeastern and northern Idaho continues to be substantially below last year, however.

Family Affair—

GUILT—Part II:

In any form, good or bad, conscious or unconscious, appropriate or inappropriate, guilt cannot be measured mathematically or biochemically. But when it strikes, there are few people who do not feel their well-being terribly threatened.

That claying, uncomfortable feeling is neither the product of our genetic inheritance nor the biochemistry of our central nervous system. Rather, it is a learned response. We learn it first from our mothers and fathers, then from the rest of the family, aunts, uncles, grandparents and from friends and teachers, and others in authority in our society.

Guilt is a kind of guiding force in our lives. It keeps us from harm, and makes us conform to the moral and ethical codes of our families, our religions, our governments—all the ruling bodies of our society and culture.

From all these sources, we learn at a very early stage what behavior is expected of us and the consequences of violating those rules of behavior. The initial sanction for the child is fear of punishment and then the feeling of shame if he does not live up to outside expectations. This is true of most cultures but their seems to be a uniquely American way of raising children that leans especially heavily on guilt as a means of controlling behavior.

Difficult societies bring up their children to respond to different forms of approval or disapproval. The one that we are used to in our society is guilt where the children learn to act if a loved and feared parent-figure was present. And even if the figure isn't present, they continue to show the effects of their upbringing.

The end result is to instill a sense of guilt that remains throughout life. Guilt-like feelings are not acquired, however, until the feelings begin to emerge at the age of two or three. True, guilt feelings are not acquired, however until the age of five. The need to instill guilt in children is based upon the concept of the parent as a controller of the child. A parent who feels guilt or anxious about certain kinds of behavior will instill in a child the same feelings and so the child's behavior is modeled after his parents. But guidelines based upon the concept of parental developers of the child rather than controllers or slave-masters, can produce children who are much better adjusted.

With this insight, parents can steer their children through the very guilt-producing stages of toilet-training, leaving home, going to school, and with less damaging effects.

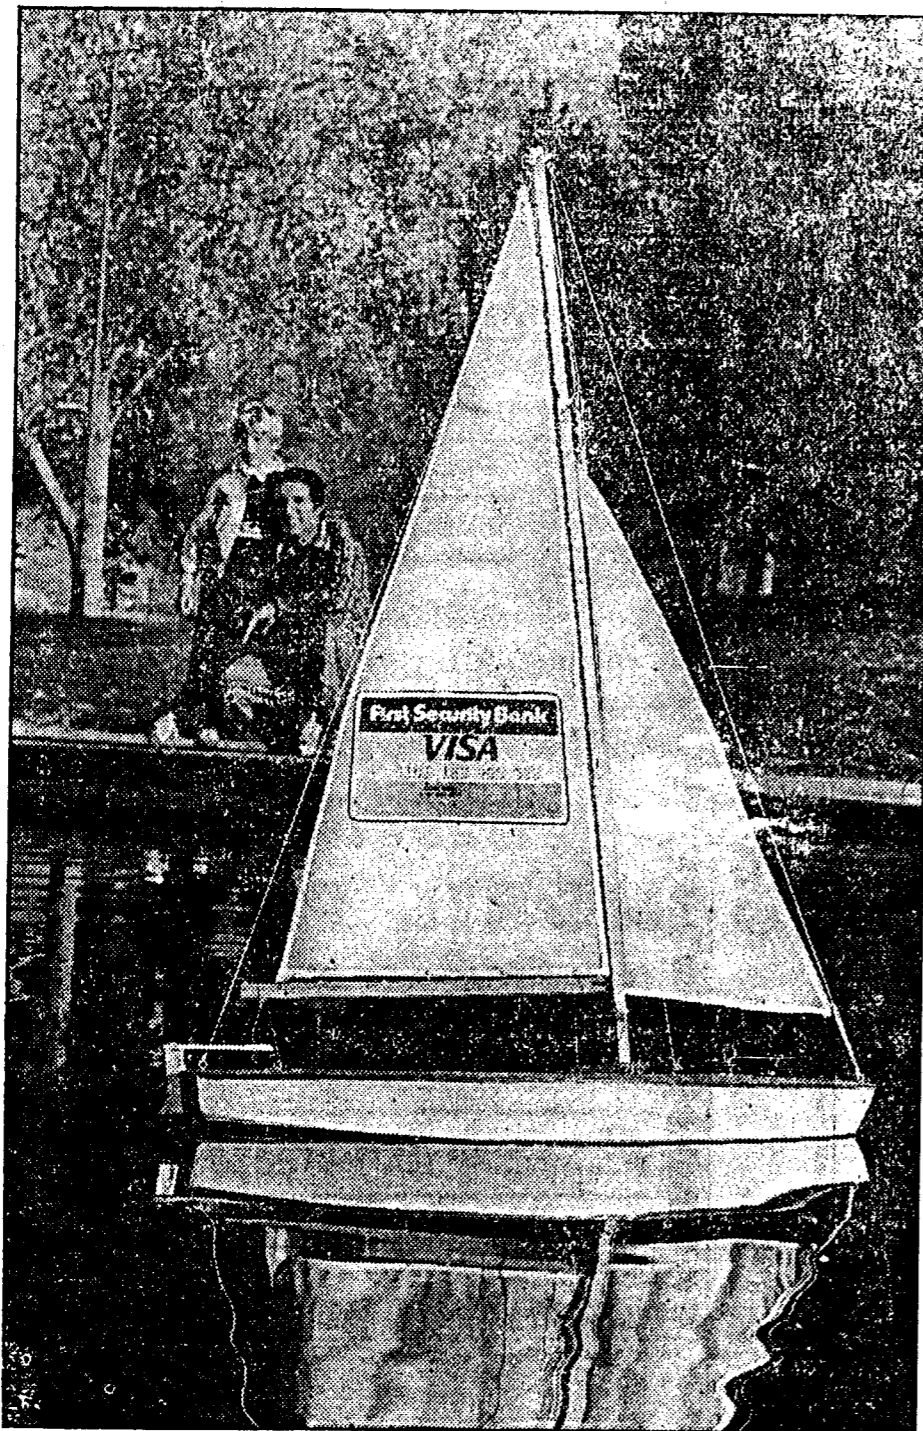

It works like this: suppose a young child is all dressed up for a party. He goes into the street and begins to play. His mother sees him, and fearing for his safety, afraid that he might be hit by a car, shouts at the child to come back to the house. The child does, and the mother, relieved the child is unhurt, but angry at the fear she has just experienced, scolds the child for getting his party clothes dirty. If this kind of incident occurs too frequently and the parent's reaction has been to blame the child, rather than explain the danger of the situation, the child gets the impression that he or she is bad. Eventually the child feels guilty and does not know why.

A far better way to handle such situations is to call the child's attention to the danger. Then, point out that he will have to handle the same situation differently himself in the future. By giving him the responsibility, he will in fact deal with that and similar situations better and not guilty about them, nor develop a sense of guilt for reasons he does not understand.

Unfortunately the use of guilt as a tool to guide a child, is too often inappropriate and the result may be an emotional problem that will stay with the child throughout his entire life.

It is convenient to locate the asparagus bed along one edge of the garden area, advises Tony Horn, UI extension horticulturist. From a crop planted this spring, the first harvest of spears may be made in 1980, Horn said.

It was August 17, 1807, and Fulton's steamboat "Clermont" made its maiden voyage from New York City to Albany.
The skeptics lined the river's edge to witness the sinking of "Fulton's Folly." Instead, Fulton kept his steamboat and his head above water. And helped shape the future of America.

Minor eye surgery for Glen Stevens was successfully performed this last week and will be a thing of the past when stitches are removed. Glen worked at his usual outdoor occupations soon after.

A fine afternoon visit from Nellie Heimgartner one day last week brightened the day for Ruth Heimgartner.

Sunday with Eldon and Gert— Sunday dinner guests at the Eldon Heimgartner home included Mr. and Mrs. Everett Custer and Everett Heimgartner, all of Clarkston; Erma Stevens and Mrs. Albert Heimgartner who is spending the week with them. Alvin and Mabel Steigers were afternoon callers.

Mrs. Pearl Kerby spent some time recently in the Hospital, suffering from "Shingles", which were on her head and eye. This is a very serious condition and causes much misery. All are so sorry.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Blair of Lewiston visited Saturday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cletis Hoisington. Son Neale Hoisington was with them on Monday, May 1. All are well at the ranch.

Another Birthday Girl?—

After 73 years of birthdays, they are fun!—thinks Nellie D. Steigers, who enjoyed hers on May 4th, as usual. Good daughter-in-law Linda came, bearing a most delicious cake and ice cream on Thursday morning, which she, immediately, with Nellie and Ernest proceeded to enjoy immediately, with tea served in the special, fancy, seldom-used, tea cups—gifts from housewarmings, golden weddings, etc. An afternoon trip to Lewiston for refills on prescription, a visit to the County Library for books, supper with the Bill Steigers and on to play at a nursing home, plus cards, letters and long-distance calls made a happy birthday! As always, Charley Craig, her "twin" was remembered!

uncle Floyd Elmer, who passed away suddenly from a massive heart attack mowing the lawn. Overnight at the home of Bill and Marie Straw, on their way, and a brief visit with Grandma Lena Zumhove, returning, (Bill and Marie absent on this trip) helped the pleasant traveling, good roads and weather. They arrived home safely Sunday evening.

Home on Leave—

"Mike" Steigers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Steigers of Lewiston, spent a happy 9-day leave with relatives. A visit with grandparents and brother Jim at Cherrylane, with a trip over to Missoula, Montana was part of his fun. Jim and Mike drove two loads of equipment, etc., to Missoula for the Bridge Repair Crew, spent the night with "Uncle Keith and Aunt Carolee" Steigers there, and were flown back by the company to Orofino the following morning "hitchhiking" down later, thus combining profit and pleasure. Mike returned by car on Sunday to Makaw, where he will remain another two months before the transfer to the Air Force Base near Kalspell, Mont.

The Ken Steigers family spent the past weekend in Missoula, visiting relatives and the "men" entering the "fun runs" held there. Another set of T-Shirts will provide a "change"! Painting progresses on our Cherrylane superstructure. We will change from black to red, to silver! Hopefully—

Employment Opportunities In Latah County

Phyllis Dunn, manager of the Moscow local office of the Idaho State Department of Employment has indicated local employers are seeking workers to fill the following job openings: an experienced brake and alignment mechanic; licensed cosmetologist; lube and oil man to work evenings and weekends; maintenance worker; laundry operator; secretary; parking monitor; numerous openings for waitress/waiter, various shifts; experienced cooks, various shifts; and nurses aides. Anyone interested in these openings should contact the Moscow Employment Office in person.

There are currently 398 people filing for unemployment insurance benefits in Latah county, compared to 388 last week and 492 in the same week of last year. The increase in claims is attributable to the weather, which has hampered construction and logging. Also, the recent contract expiration in an area of the performing arts.

Kendrick Grange Visitation Made to Mt. Deary April 29

On Friday evening, April 28, 21 members of Kendrick Grange No. 413 visited Mt. Deary Grange and were treated to a delicious ham dinner. Following the dinner, the meeting was opened by the officers of Kendrick Grange. Lecturer Nellie Heimgartner presented the program which opened with a repeat of Frank Jacobson and his garden quiz followed by a skit with Jo Benschoter and Lawrence Heimgartner as TV viewers unable to decide which program to watch—resulting in numerous channel changes. The audience was treated to a hilariously interrupted series of programs featuring costumed performers: Mabel Glenn, a gourmet cook; Roy Glenn, a very tough gangster; Helen Fey reading Little Red Riding Hood; Ross Armitage, a football sports-caster and Nellie a speaker for the Grange. It was clever, well done.

Director of Women's Activities, Ruth White gave the members some good news. All but the winning stuffed toys made in Idaho will remain in Idaho for hospitalized children. The winners will go the national judging. She also reminded everyone about the sewing contest judging and tea on May 15 and 16 at the Kendrick Grange Hall.

Inez Armitage provided the music for the evening. A somber and touching note to the evening was the draping in black of the Deary Grange Charter in memory of Olaf Burnvik by members of the Deary Grange.

The meeting was followed by a short "social" featuring cookies and coffee.

Lions Club Met Last Wednesday

It was Ladies Night as members of the K-J Lions Club met for their regular meeting last Wednesday evening at the Fire Hall in Kendrick.

A fine roast turkey dinner was prepared and served by the ladies of the Grange prior to the opening of the business session by Lions president Richard Abrams. Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Cook were the club's Senior Citizens for the evening.

It was announced that the District Lions convention will be in Spokane May 24-28. Under project reports, Dave Jones said that there is still work to be done on the bleachers at Juliaetta and another work session was scheduled.

It was reported that this year's Locust Blossom Festival Buttons would sell for $2.00 each. The increase being made necessary by the rising cost of food served.

Chas. Lyons also reminded that there will be a $15 fee for out-of-town concessions at this year's Festival.

The nominating committee report was also received, with Rocky Smith being nominated as president.

"Doc" Little presented an excellent slide show and talk on the Buffalo Hump area as part of the program. Doc and Flora brought several artifacts gathered in that area to display

Control Snails, Slugs In Home Gardens

John R. Crosier
Asst. Agricultural Editor

Moscow—They enter your garden under cover of night. Their silvery trails, glistening in the morning sun, tell you they've gone. Young plants stripped of their leaves, show you where they dined.

What are they? Slugs or snails. Both of these garden pests have soft, slimy bodies and movable eye stalks. In addition, snails often have a circular shell on their backs.

More than 20 kinds of slugs and snails munch on plants in the Northwest. They feed and crawl slowly over plant and soil surfaces, leaving a telltale slime trail.

Depending on the species and age, these garden intruders range in size from one to six inches long. Some are gray and black; others are green. Slugs and snails key their activity to the temperature. When the weather warms up in the spring, they go to work reaching peak population in early summer.

Concealed, moist locations are favorite daytime hiding places and egg laying sites for all slugs and snails. Mulch, compost, dead leaves, empty flowerpots, plant flats, rocks and boards all serve to shelter.

Clean up these egg laying and hiding places, and you'll be doing a lot to discourage the pests from dining on the leaves and tender shoots in your garden.

Besides these "housekeeping" measures, you may need to spread a slug and snail bait on the ground around plants until the pests are gone. Most stores selling garden materials stock one or more kinds of bait.

Apply the bait according to label instructions, observing all precautions and warning given there.

Beer is another good bait. Many gardeners control slugs and snails successfully by pouring beer into cans set in the ground at three-foot intervals.

The beer attracts the pests which fall into the cans and drown. Beer baits work nicely in a small garden area, but you'll need to recharge the cans with beer about once a week or after each rain.

It matters not what you are thought to be, but what you are.—Publius Syrus

Recently a copy of your Historical Edition dated July 21, 1966 came to my attention in which you quoted articles from the Lewiston Tribune of December 16, 1889 and January 14, 1900 regarding the train wreck and flood at Kendrick. I wish to correct some of the information in the January 14, 1900 article as follows:

My father, Charles F. Hamlin was Kendrick's town marshal and had arranged with a neighbor, Mrs. Benschoter, to take my mother and three sisters with Mr. Benschoter's family in a wagon or buggy to higher ground as my father, on horseback, was warning other residents of the flood. A log or railroad tie knocked the team of horses down overturning the buggy and throwing the occupants into the water. A man on the street corner grabbed my mother, Caroline pulling her to safety but my three sisters, Mattie, Emma and Clara, ages, 6, 4, and 2 were swept away and drowned. They are buried in the American Ridge Cemetery. I was not born until September 24, 1901. My father died August 9, 1909 and is buried in the Kendrick cemetery.

This information was given me by my mother, who re-married after my father's death to a William H. Brown of Moscow, Idaho. She died May 26, 1929 and is buried in Fairmont Cemetery, Spokane. Incidentally, the newspaper above mentioned was loaned to me through a patient of my son Dr. Charles R. Hamlin, M. D. of Lewiston, Idaho.

Pea Pest Decline Signals Legume Planting Opportunity

John R. Crosier
Assistant Agricultural Editor

Moscow—For farmers in northern Idaho and eastern Washington, this could be one of the best years to plant peas and to establish stands of seedling alfalfa, sweet clover and other legumes.

Recently completed field surveys of the number of pea leaf weevils at Moscow, Pollatch, Coyote Grade, Southwick, Nezperce, Winchester and Grangeville indicate that overwintering populations of the destructive pest are considerably below normal for the region. Up to 10 times fewer weevils have been detected this spring compared with surveys during the past three years.

"Apparently, the larval population did not survive well in last year's drought," remarked Dr. Larry O'Keefe, UI associate professor of entomology. "In addition, the extremely wet winter was detrimental to adult survival because it fostered the growth of a fungal disease."

Pea leaf weevils, which feed on and lay eggs in peas and other legumes during May and June, are one of the principal reasons why winter pea production in northern Idaho declined substantially in recent years. From 1974 to 1976, Austrian winter pea acreage dropped from 50,000 to 11,000 acres and yields fell from 1,470 to 620 pounds per acre.

Other factors contributing to reduced acreage and yields include root rot, cultural practices and economic conditions.

Shower Honors Bride-Elect Ellen Wetherall

Ellen Wetherall, bride-elect of Jim Hermann was honored at a bridal shower Thursday, May 4 at 7:30 p. m. at the Genesee Legion building. Many out-of-town town guests and local friends attended.

Ellen and Jim will be married June 3rd at Mountain Home, Idaho.

A large green plant, flanked by double candleabra and green candles, centered the tea table, with the bride's colors of green and white carried out in room decorations. China tea cups, filled with bright spring flowers on the small individual tables added a lovely accent.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Pauline Hermann and Mrs. Claire Wetherall.

Sorority sisters assisted Ellen in opening her many lovely gifts.

Refreshments were served by hostesses Mrs. Mel Moser, Mrs. Tom Boyd, Mrs. Jeff Boyd, Mrs. Fred Morscheck, Mrs. Doug Moser, Mrs. Ozzie Kanikkeberg, Mrs. Andrew Zenner, Mrs. Don Bennett, Mrs. Ray Stout.

tenston entomologist, indicated that in spite of substantially lower populations of the weevil throughout the region, growers should be aware of the possibility of localized problems.

They advised growers to watch their fields closely for any damage from weevil feeding. The next three weeks, as the peas currently being planted begin to emerge, will be especially critical.

GRADUATION -
The Expense has just Begun.
There's more expense to graduation than just buying a gift for the young person, especially if the graduate is your own child who may wish to go on to college or a vocational or technical school. That takes money.
May we suggest that one of the best sources of finance for a college education is from your own savings account set up especially for that purpose. With a saving account at a dependable, reliable bank, such as First Bank of Troy, you'll be amazed at how a regular program of savings will soon develop into a fine educational fund.
Stop in this week and talk to any of the friendly folks at First Bank of Troy.
