Alyson Had Everyone Looking for Her—

Mrs. Ada Westendahl called Tuesday to thank friends, neighbors and the local search and rescue workers for their efforts Monday night when her three-year-old granddaughter, Alyson Edwards, was missing for over two hours. Ada and Alyson stopped by the home of Mrs. P. G. Candler about 5 p. m. Monday night and Alyson remained outside to play with some kittens while Ada visited with Mrs. Candler. When she was ready to leave, Alyson could not be found. Because of the closeness of both the river and the railroad tracks, the elderly ladies became alarmed and called nearby relatives and neighbors and a search was begun. Even the local search and rescue was called. Alyson was finally located—fast asleep in a back bedroom of the Candler home about 7 p. m. The room had been checked earlier by at least two different people, but somehow Alyson had slipped back in and was napping. Ada said she was truly grateful for all the quick help and the concern she received.

A card was read from the Gruells, Bill and Alberta Turner told of an interesting trip they had to Europe. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and then the group held a discussion about further campouts this fall. Only a few favored another camping trip this fall because of the weather. The club voted to discontinue planned trips for 1979. However, two or three couples expressed the hope that, weather permitting, they might go down the Snake River for a weekend. The "Fiddlers" entertained for a fun evening. Those playing were Alfred Severson, Merle and Ruby Horney, Art and Maxine Foster and Ray Heimgartner. Incumbents Dominate Upcoming City Elections

Barring any successful write-in campaigns in the election set for Tuesday, Nov. 6, the city councils of Juliaetta, Kendrick and Genesee will remain the same as incumbents in all three cities are seeking another term of office. It is the same story in Kendrick as Darrel Brocke and Jerry Brown are seeking another four year term on the council. They, too, are unopposed in their bid for re-election. Council veteran Walter L. Moden is seeking another four year term on the Genesee council Nov. 6. Also seeking a four year term for the first time will be Willis Moser, who was appointed this year to fill out the term of former councilman Leonard Singhosa, who was transferred to another city by his firm. Juliaetta Asks Parent Cooperation in Curbing Motor Bike Violations Juliaetta Mayor Clark Woods this week asked for the cooperation and support of parents to curb an increasing number of underage motor bike riders from operating their bikes on city streets and sidewalks. Woods said there is a group of youngsters, too young to be legally licensed to drive or ride bikes who are using the streets and especially the sidewalks in Juliaetta to operate their motor bikes. Woods said he and the city council would like to appeal to the parents of these youngsters to instruct their children to stop this violation. He said he and the council would much prefer to keep the entire matter on a friendly basis, but if the practice continues the city will have to begin issuing tickets for the violations. The children can be ticketed for illegally operating the bikes, and the parents can be cited for allowing the minors to do this. The City of Juliaetta would greatly appreciate the public's cooperation in this matter.

Genesee, Kendrick Seek Voter Approval to Issue Water Revenue Bonds

Residents of both Kendrick and Genesee will be asked to give the city councils approval to issue and sell revenue bonds to improve the water systems in each city. The propositions will be voted on Tuesday, Nov. 6, in each town, along with the regular general municipal elections the cities will be conducting. Genesee is asking approval to issue bonds in the amount of $530,800.00 to ease the burden of its already over-taxed water system as the city has continually shown a growth in resident population despite the decline of its business district. Kendrick is seeking approval of a much smaller amount to improve its water facilities. The City is asking for $175,000.00 and Mayor Wayne Harris said Tuesday, the council is hoping that that much would not be needed. Much of the bond issue money, if approval is given would be used to construct a new water reservoir. The present reservoir has proven inadequate during the summer months. The possibility of having to replace the present city well near city hall is also present. The well is drawing down too rapidly now and it needs to be determined if the water level is too low, or whether the pipe is in need of repair. A new reservoir, higher up on the hill would also eliminate the need for the booster pump which now must be used to supply water to some of the new houses that have been built higher up on the hill. The election will be from 12 noon to 8:00 p. m. A public meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday, October 30 to explain the bond issue. It will be held at the fire hall.

She married Sherman at Lewiston Sept. 30, 1914. The Shermans lived at Craigmont, Juliaetta, Cottonwood, Kooskia and Stites during their marriage. At Cottonwood, they owned a garage, and at Stites a store. They also operated a ranch in the Kooskia area. Mrs. Sherman is survived by a son, Bruce Sherman of Juliaetta; a daughter, Lois Fliger of Juliaetta and 7 grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren. Another daughter preceded her in death. Bud Adamson contacted the owner of large marmoth Jacks near Denver, Colorado. An agreement was finally made. Bud decided to purchase a spotted one if the owner could get it out here closer in the West. The owner said a man from Colville, Washington was on his way to purchase one and he'd see if arrangements could be made.

After several more phone calls everything was going okay. The fellow would deliver the animal to Missoula. The deliverer called Sunday morning from Douglas, Wyo., that he was on his way—but more unusual than that—these two men were not strangers. John Dawson, his name was a long-time neighbor of the Adamsons at Kooskia, Mrs. Laura Adamson had been his grade school teacher years ago. It was John bringing home the extra Jack!!

The Adamsons did not know John lived at Colville, Wash. They had no idea who the man was they were making arrangements with. Everyone involved got a big surprise!

To Great Falls—

On Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Heimgartner journeyed to Great Falls, Montana, visiting in the home of son Larry and his wife Becky, returning on Monday the 15th. Saturday was spent at Moscow, attending the homecoming football game. Proudly they watched granddaughters Shauna, perform with the Lewiston high school drill team and sister Tia with the Jennifer Jr. High band. Another Heimgartner, Shelly, from Post Falls was a member of the Post Falls drill team, daughter of the Raymond Heimgartners.

Erma Stevens accompanied the Eldon Heimgartners for Sunday dinner in Clarkston at the Everett Custer home. Later in the evening a call was made on Myrtle Heimgartner, seriously ill in Lewiston.

Many of our area attended the wedding and following festivities for Mark Heimgartner and Julie Ann Deobald, held in Kendrick Friday. Joy bells rang!

Friendship Club News—

A most successful club meeting was held at the Mildred Heath home on Hubbard Gulch Thursday by the Stony Point Friendship Club with 13 ladies present, including 3 visitors—Helena Brown, Natalia Heath and Leona Darrington—the latter two

The date of priority of such lien shall be the date upon which such charge becomes delinquent.

Section 8: GENERAL COVENANTS In the event the bonds referred to herein are legally authorized to be issued, it is further covenanted and resolved as follows:

That the City of Kendrick shall not sell, lease, or in any manner dispose of said Water System or any substantial part or unit thereof, until the bonds with interest thereon shall be paid in full. That said City (until all of said Water Revenue Bonds or Bonds and the interest thereon shall have been fully paid) shall not reduce the rates required by it for water services so that gross revenues of said system shall be insufficient to pay for the retirement of the principal and interest of said bond or bonds that at any time the gross revenues of said system, or as hereafter bettered, extended or improved, shall not be sufficient to pay the costs of operation and maintenance and any other charge having a prior right, and the charges thereon created in favor of the bond or bonds referred to in this Ordinance, it, the said City, shall increase its said rates to such rates and amounts as will be sufficient to provide for the payment of all such costs of operation and maintenance of said system and any other charge having a prior right, and of the Water Revenue Bond or Bonds referred to herein and interest thereon and other incidental costs and expenses permitted by statute; that, in order to preserve the priority of said Special Fund, or Funds, the City shall not create or permit to be created, so long as any of said bond obligations shall be outstanding and unpaid, any indebtedness or charge whatsoever which shall be a charge against the revenues of said system superior to the charges which may be created by said City, or authorized by the qualified electors and made payable out of the revenues of said system, (excepting any bond or bonds issued on a parity with this bond issue) shall constitute a charge and lien subject to the charge and lien thereon and to the duty of the City with respect to said revenues.

Marvin Syron likes his chariot racing

Joe Cash does logging with ponies

Gary Campbell family rides together

Chariot races are Marvin Syron's thing

By Susan Tiede

When I first saw the chariot ponies run at the Lewiston Roundup 3 years ago, I knew I had to have some, said Marvin Syron, a Nezperce area farmer with an interest in horses.

A short time later, he found a team of the horses for sale in Lewiston which launched him on chariot racing. He had been interested in gymkhanas for a number of years, but also found chariot racing to his liking.

"We try to keep the horses under 48 inches tall in this area. We'd like to get more people going, so we could have more races," Syron said.

In other areas, they have divisions for the different sizes of horses, but we don't have that many here, yet. A few started at Kamiah then it caught on in Lewiston. At the Asotin County Fair, which is the biggest Chariot event, we have 8 or 9 teams which includes some from Washington, Syron said.

Syron's chariot racing team are half Welsh pony. Eight year old Tina is also half Arabian and Decker, 11, is half quarter horse.

People wonder if the horses can run very fast as they are about the size of a Shetland pony. The horses move right along sliding the chariot around the corners at the races.

Syron drove his chariot team in the Lewis County Fair parade. Some people thought the team was scared by the way they acted. "They weren't scared, they're race horses and wanted to run," Syron said. "As soon as they are hitched to the chariot, they are ready to run."

He wore a western outfit despite his wife, Eva May's suggestion that he get a Ben Hur costume for the parade.

Chariot teams need a lot of driving and he has a variety of things for them to pull.

His chariot is made out of a 500 gallon tank which doesn't tip as easily as ones made out of 55 gallon barrels. They usually build their own chariots with car tires. Syron's fits into his 4 horse trailer.

The inside of the chariot is carpeted as the chariot drivers lean into the chariot as part of their balancing.

Chariot racers come in all ages. The youngest in this area is in his teens and the oldest in his seventies. The one in his seventies also has four teams of the racers.

Last winter Syron had a sled to keep the ponies exercised. He has a wagon he built using buggy springs. It is made out of his scrap iron pile and some metal he bought. It probably is the only wagon in the country that is built with goosenecks off a rod weeder.

The wagon has both a handbrake and a footbrake. "Sometimes they keep you so busy with the lines, you don't have time for a handbrake," Syron said.

He also has his bridles hung on a revolving rack which he made out of horse shoes and pipe. He also uses hames and horse shoes to build decorative items for around the house.

He has another small wagon built on a buggy frame with bicycle wheels, but it is too light to hold the ponies down much.

He also has several sets of harness. A light plain one for racing and a studded one for dress-up occasions.

He has built a hitch so he could drive 4 ponies side-by-side. He had 2 more ponies he was training, but they weren't fast enough so he sold them at a horse sale. He now has another colt he is breaking.

They are easy to break as long as they don't get spooked, Syron said. The Welsh have a different disposition than a Shetland. We used to raise burros too.

Syron uses a snaffle bit and arm muscle on the ponies when they want to run. If he holds them at a walk, they prance along as fast as he will permit.

When he wants them to stand, he drives them up to a fence so they will stand.

The grandkids are a little disgusted with the ponies because they can't ride them, Mrs. Syron said.

Tina is broke to ride, and they have led her around for the kids, but they don't let them ride by themselves. Tina might get a break from racing for awhile as she should foal in the spring.

The pony racing tracks vary according to conditions and the number of teams attending. The length depends on the arena—a hard dirt track is faster and a soft dirt track tires the ponies. Loose dirt races are shorter than a hard dirt or grass track.

There are several ways to run chariot races. Teams run side-by-side or timed. A lot of the races are timed with 2 teams starting across a circle from each other then running two circles around cones that mark out the track.

Last year's Lewis County Fair was the first time Syron had run a race with 3 teams side by side.

If we have a choice, the best way for the races is to have a section of races then some other events so the ponies can rest then another chariot race, Syron said.

The chariot races are really an exciting event to watch, Mrs. Syron said.

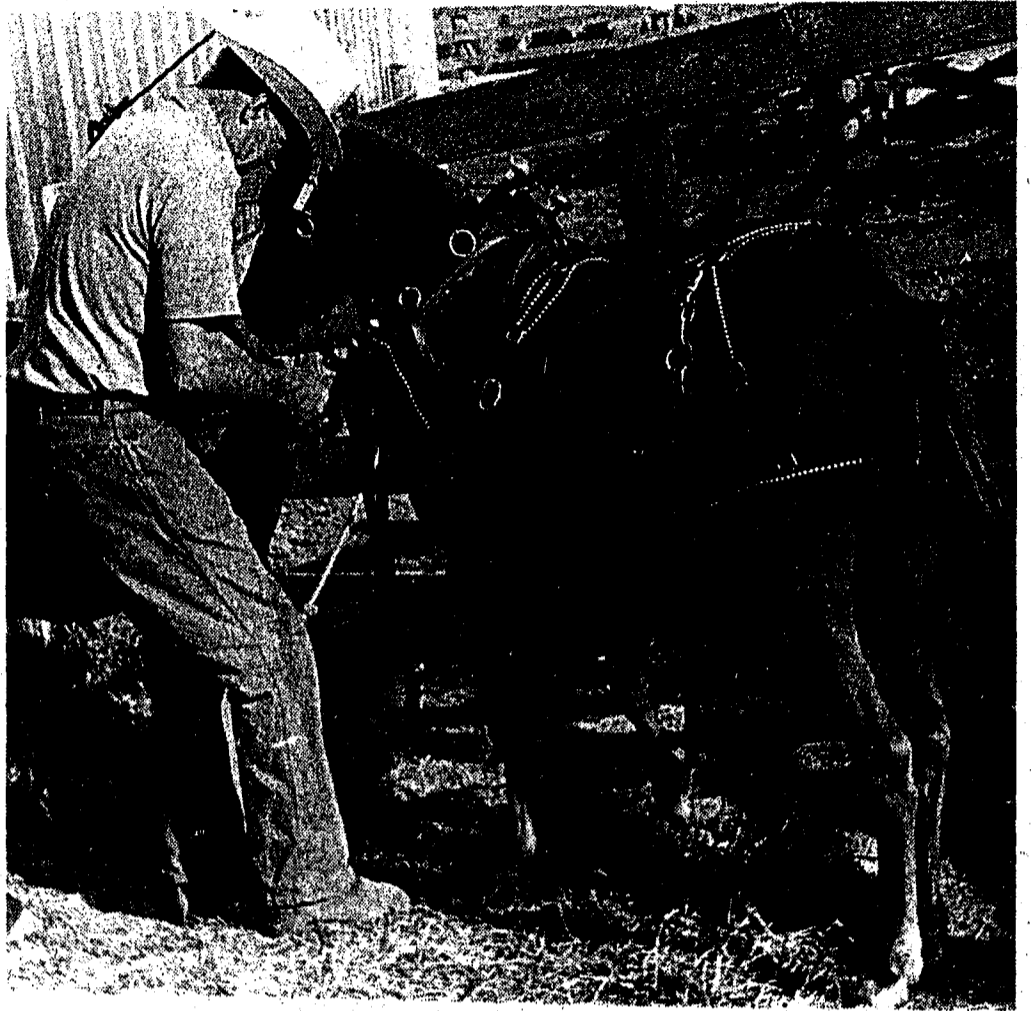

Syron has been around horses all his life. While in high school, he got in on the end of field work with horses. He was hired to do the field work for $1.25 a day. It later included harnessing too.

For those or us whose experience driving horses is as their chauffer, Syron unharnessed the ponies. They have 2 lines to handle as they drive a team of 2. Each line is hooked to both horses in a "y". A short rein is attached to the right side of the near horse and a longer one to the right side of the far horse.

Syrons have both lived in the Nezperce area and horses were the earlier form of transportation. They still use their horses to go hunting on the Lochsa every year. He has quite a collection of moose, elk and deer antlers on the walls of the farm buildings.

He has several pairs of unusual horns on the hoof too. He has some registered longhorn cattle which he bought in the Boise several years ago.

He bought 2 cows and a bull, but didn't keep the bull too long as it got out once and Syron wasn't sure the neighbors would want to meet up with him. He feeds the longhorns separate so their horns don't bother his other cattle. The cows currently have half angus calves--which don't have horns. He's been told the

The longhorns don't bother fences except when cornered, they then jump them like a deer.

She goes along on as many of the activities as she can plus is busy being a grand mother for their son, Greg and Heather Syron's children and their daughter Marva and Sam Cash's one child. She is also active in the Nezperce Christian Church.

A family that rides together could be the motto of the Gary Campbell family of Cottonwood.

Gary and Betty Campbell, and children, Bobbi Jo and Rick Tidwell, are active in O-Mok-See competition on the local, state and national levels. O-Mok-See is an Indian word for games on horseback.

Bobbi Jo is currently a National O-Mok-See princess under 12 and competes in a number of events. She tried out for princess this year and will reign at the National O-Mok-See in Topeka, Kansas, next year.

During tryouts, all princess hopefuls dress alike and do all their own horse work, which made it hectic at times, Betty said.

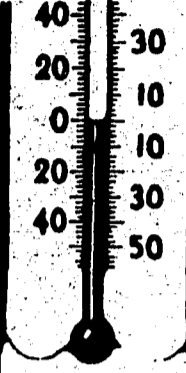

Gary is an Idaho O-Mok-See voting delegate and worked in the ring.

"We didn't have a lot of time between events and Rick and I would have to get Gary's horse ready. He'd meet us at the gate, ride his event, then we'd take the horse to get ready for the next event."

Rick currently holds the National pole bending record for 12 year olds and under. Although he is now 15, he will hold the record set in 1975 until someone beats his time.

Bobbi Jo's princess trophy and Rick's record breaker trophy are some of the special ones they keep in the living room. They also have some trophies in their rooms, such as Bobbi Jo's Border Day's third place barrel racing one. Most of their 200 plus trophies are in their trophy room-porch. Gary, Betty, Rick and Bobbi Jo have also have some overall trophies.

The National trophies are especially prized because there may be 120 contestants and only 2 receive trophies and up to 6 places receive ribbons. They also have belt buckles and lettuce boxes full of ribbons. "We've even U.S. It illustrates the National O-Mok-See spirit. We've been to nationals 5 times, and we've got friends we only see once a year at these events.

Several families are planning a caravan back to the Nationals in Topeka. We travel together a lot, Betty said.

"One time I was driving and Gary was sleeping. It was about time to water and exercise the horses, so Gary said wake him at the next park. At the next park, we got everyone up, but the only water was a hand pump. Gary swore the horses drank more there than they ever do," Betty said.

"In January, we're going to Topeka for the National's business meeting and lining up places to stop with the horses for the O-Mok-See later in the year."

"We take our horses everywhere with us," Gary said. They've been to Yellowstone National Park and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Gary built their horse trailer which Bobbi Jo referred to as the "big white ghost."

He had to learn where the weight should go as he designed it to fit their needs. It was a one time venture. It easily hauls 6 horses, has a tack room, hay rack, box for leg wraps and blankets, and a grain compartment.

The National association has the responsibility for setting up rules and changing them at the business meeting. This year, Gary has been asked to run for a National office in addition to his state delegate duties.

O-Mok-See events are in 165 foot arenas with 30 foot lanes and electronic timing. Local O-Mok-Sees run 2 lanes at once, but nationals run 4.

O-Mok-Sees can get quite competitive, they said, but the state O-Mok-See calendar lists some less competitive events. They draw up a calendar in January with O-Mok-Sees, shows and trail rides for all over the state from April to October.

"You can find something to do every weekend if you want to go," Betty said. "We usually have to travel for events, but there are quite a few in the valley and Moscow."

The whole family goes on trail rides including Mrs. Campbell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Verl Chicane. A couple weeks ago, they all went on a trail ride to Sourdough Look-out.

Betty likes trail rides. Often she "checks" her horse at O-Mok-Sees and

LARGE BOWL

Joe Cash logs firewood with ponies

By Susan Tiede

Maude and Dan aren't as big as regular logging teams which would weigh 1700 pounds each, but they get the job done, said Joe Cash of Winchester.

The Cashes used Maude and Dan to skid in logs for their winter's supply of firewood. We've skidded out four truck loads of wood so far and probably will try to get another load or so, Mrs. Cash said.

They've pulled logs that were 12 feet long and 18 inches in diameter, but they had to get down and pull, he said.

He uses a regular logging harness which has been cut down to fit the ponies. They wear heavy pads to keep the collars from rubbing.

Dan is the smaller of the two and is 43 inches tall. He is half Welsh and half Shetland. Maude is slightly bigger and all Welsh. The horses are slowing down some as one is 22 and the other 18. The 18-year-old also has some breathing problems after a brush with some agricultural chemicals.

Cash has had the team about 15 years and uses them to pull a wagon, sled, logs, plus plowing and harrowing the family garden.

They are also willing and able to double as a lawn mower and fertilizer factory.

Cash hasn't used the team much this summer compared to what he has in the past, so they are a little frisky and eager to go places and do things.

Dan isn't always happy with the jobs Cash finds for him. He had to babysit a three month old colt when the Cashes got it after its mother had been shot by spotlighters. He wasn't mean to the colt or anything, but he wasn't happy. The colt is eating grain and doing well now.

Cash worked in the woods with horses until 1948 and said he would like to go back to it if he had a chance.

He has had horses and worked them ever since he can remember. Vi added that at times they think he is part horse the way he can talk to them and get them to do things.

He builds some of his own equipment for the ponies and has another team he has hitched up a couple of times.

"They aren't trustworthy yet, so I haven't brought them in where I can work with them. In town, you always have a load of kids as soon as you hitch them up, and these aren't ready for that yet."

This could be a scene from the last century except for a few intrusions of this age like the roof-top antenna and the power pole. That is Joe Cash in Winchester on his way to the woods with his logging team.

In some areas, horse logging is experiencing a revival for environmental reasons. Horses do less damage to trees which are left in selective harvest and thinning operations. Horses can turn sharper than tractors and don't need as wide skid trails.

According to Soil Conservation Service figures at St. Maries, a team of two Percherons can deck 10,000 to 12,000 board feet of logs in a good day.

That figure gives Dan and Maude something to shoot for. The Cash's son Rick, refers to them as their miniature Percherons, so they are on their way.

The Idaho Dairymen's Association, Inc., representing dairymen from across the State, will hold their annual convention at Moscow, Nov. 7-8.

According to Rick Waitley, director of legislative and industry affairs for the IDA, "This annual meeting is the time for dairymen from around Idaho to gather for education, to develop legislative policies and resolutions and to handle the official business of the Association."

A host of special speakers have been scheduled for the week, including the keynote address by Dr. Bill Flatt, Director of Agricultural Research and Experiment Stations for the University of Georgia.

Dr. Flatt will be addressing the convention on Thursday morning on the topic, "Agricultural Research - An Excellent Investment."

Of special interest to women in attendance of the Idaho Dairy Wives State meeting held in conjunction with the meeting for the IDA will be a presentation by Mildred Thiemer, County Extension Agent from Stevens County, Wash. She will be presenting a workshop for dairy wives about the life on a dairy operation.

Not all events they go to are serious. The kids participate in junior rodeos. Once a year, they turn the tables and have a Ma and Pa Rodeo with adults doing junior rodeo events.

It was at a Ma and Pa rodeo they got Betty together with Gary Campbell. Campbell had been in the service and was returning home to South Dakota after he visited his brother in Clarkston. He stayed a little longer than expected.

He works on his in-laws' ranch. They have cattle, sheep, chickens, hogs, rabbits and horses. The whole family joins in working the cattle with the horses.

They also break horses to help defray the expenses of their horses and travels to National O-Mok-Sees. Bobbi Jo claims any loose change for the Topeka O-Mok-See fund. They also have a small pig they are bottle feeding. "Ernie" hopefully will add to the fund.

They are also getting a start in the horse business. They have 2 stallions, Sundown Reed and Bill's Four Aces. Recently they bought a quarter horse mare in Wyoming. The kids even ride the stallions. The older stallion is

Weed poisons both cattle, sheep

Hungry cattle may be fatally attracted to a range weed known to be poisonous to sheep, two Idaho veterinarians report.

Although cases of cattle poisoning by the halogeton weed are believed to be rare, Drs. Stuart D. Lincoln and Baxter A. Black gave details about one incident involving 16 head of range cattle in southern Idaho. Their report was prepared for publication in a scientific journal.

Dr. Lincoln is director of the University of Idaho Veterinary Medicine Teaching Center, Caldwell. Dr. Black is veterinarian for the Simplot Livestock Co., Nampa.

The halogeton plant is not very palatable but cattle and sheep may eat it "in toxic quantities after a period of food deprivation," Lincoln and Black said.

"Wet, damp conditions that add moisture to dry halogeton plants in the fall and winter appear to make the plants more palatable to a hungry animal," they added.

In the poisoning incident described in the report, cattle grazed on halogeton during a three-hour trail drive in the desert.

Crop yields on Prairie average to poor

Area crop yields ranged from average to poor for the 1979 crop year, according to county agriculture agents. Lack of summer rains influenced the yields.

Idaho county was average on fall wheat, but below average on spring wbarley, according to Ed Maink, county agent.

"We just didn't get enough moisture in June and early July, he said.

"We need rain now for the fall crops. Seeding is almost completed with lots of fall wheat already seeded and all the Austrain winter peas and winter barley. It is coming up spotted, so far due to a lack of moisture," Mink said.

The range and cattle need rain too for the fall grazing season.

The drought potential is bad. If the grains' root system doesn't get established before winter and hard rains, there is a serious erosion potential, Mink said.

Latah County yields are down quite a bit. Roughly 15-20 percent and up to one-quarter of the total, according to Gordon Dailey, county agent.

Some of the summer fallow did pretty well with yields up to 93 bushels, but there was a lot of 25-30 bushel wheat too. There wasn't as much grain stored out on the ground as there had been in past years.

The hot weather got the peas and lentils.

The fall looks like a repeat of last year, Dailey said Oct. 11. It was as dry as a popcorn ball, but someone is dusting in the fall crop every day. They are 65-70 percent done seeding. The last good rain was about .4 of an inch

DICK LLOYD TAMMANY

The safflowers didn't do well. They looked good, but didn't yield that well, around 840 pounds. They got a late start, but they took off and grew. The hot weather seemed to stop them.

We don't plan to seed them again right away. We used it on set aside. Otherwise we plant all fall wheat.

If they did well, maybe a better variety, we'd like a spring crop in our system to help with weed control.

I liked safflowers better than sunflowers as you don't need the special equipment to harvest them.

(He tried sunflowers last year for set aside with similar results.)

in early September.

Moisture distribution was the problem with the crop year.

"We had the normal amount of precipitation, but none of it came during June, then it got hot and dry," Dailey said.

The frosts have been spotted and the gardens are still doing well.

A little of the grain is up on the set-aside, Dailey said.

Lewis County crops were termed poor by county agent Floyd Gephart.

The county average was about 40 bushel wheat, 300 pound lentils, 600-700 pound peas and 1 ton barley per acre.

"We didn't get the spring rains in June for the spring crops. The fall crops had snow mold and froze out plus some frost in June when the wheat was in bloom, so those heads didn't fill.

"It doesn't look good for the next year. They've pretty well seeded in the dust. The summer fallow is coming up, but the other isn't," Gephart said.

Some of the peas are up and look good. There aren't any bugs yet, Gephart said.

Sunflowers have potential

By Susan Tiede

The sunflowers didn't do too well, about 750 pounds an acre, said Ted Kaschmitter. It wasn't as good as hoped for, but they have a potential.

It was an interesting and good experiment. There was a lot of interest when we harvested them about a month ago. Quite a few of the neighbors turned out and more would have liked to, but we only had one day's notice on harvesting them.

Kaschmitter said "the sunflowers gave me a good feeling to go by the field in the morning with all those flowers smiling at you." He added that he tried them because someone has to try the new crops.

The sunflowers were easy to harvest and weren't hard to handle. We used a header attachment which had flat pointed pans which stuck out about 6 feet in front of the sickle. Those went between the rows and the sunflowers just pushed the plants in.

"We traveled at as high a speed as we could handle the machine on the ground. The plants averaged about 4' tall and the biggest heads were about 10 inches in diameter."

They used their regular combine and set the cylinder with as much clearance as possible on the front and about 3/4 of an inch on the back. The cylinder clearance was so it brushed off the seed and didn't break up the seed head. The cylinder ran at about 325 rpm.

They delivered the seed to the Cottonwood Elevator where they held it until Ag-PRO Associates hauled them to Calif. for processing.

Usually sunflowers either need a killing frost or chemical to kill the foliage before harvest. "We didn't have any problems with harvest, they just ran out of moisture and dried up," Kaschmitter said.

The biggest thing with them was missing the June rains. There was some bird loss too, but it wasn't bad.

He thought sunflowers were susceptible to weed competition and a pre-emergence herbicide might be the best control.

He planted his in 30" rows with approximately 12" spacing in the row. He cultivated his sunflower field, 5 1/2 miles southeast of Cottonwood, twice before the plants got too tall and the roots spread out.

The fertilizer was about the same as for barley and the only additional expense was spraying for head moths.

This year it compared somewhat favorably with spring barley crops at $10.70 per 100 pounds in Calif. It is graded by oil content with 40 percent expected here. Kaschmitters was 41 percent.

They filled well with seeds all around the heads and ranged down to 3 inches diameter where there was weed competition.

"They shouldn't be hard on the soil for taking out nutrients. Seventy-five percent of the nutrients remain in the stalk and foliage which returns to the soil. That's in their favor."

The center of the stalks are like styrofoam and disintegrate easily, so it should decompose easily. Stalks weren't a problem this year.

Kaschmitter has planted winter wheat on the sunflower ground using the same fertilizer as he did on the summer fallow to see how sunflowers would fit into the rotation. It worked out well for seed time and the tap root is a good subsoiler, Kaschmitter said.

Felix Nuxoll, who seeded sunflowers on the west edge of Cottonwood, said his didn't turn out the best, yielding 469 pounds per acre.

Moisture is the key plus that soil wasn't the best. It was a bad year for them, too. They were short of moisture when they were making heads and filling.

Nuxoll hadn't decided if he would try them again or not.

Richard Nuxoll wasn't impressed with his sunflower yield of 770 pounds per acre, but wasn't shutting the door on them this year.

"They were easy to seed, and we need something new in the crop rotation. There are too many insect problems for the peas now."

I had a lot of starling and blackbird damage. We could see where they would roost on top of the head, reach around and eat the seeds. There were a lot of empty shells around."

He planted his sunflowers at the top of Seven Mile, off Highway 62 to Kamiah. They looked good and I expected a better yield, but they were pretty."

Whether or not he seeds them again will depend on the weather next spring.

"To mourn a mischief that is past and gone is the next way to draw new mischief on."

Helpful Tips On Low-Cost Decorating Ideas

MAKING THE BASICS OF GOOD DECORATING WORK

When you remodel a room in your house, the job won't be complete until you furnish and decorate properly. That means selecting and placing furniture correctly, creating a harmonious color scheme and picking the right accessories.

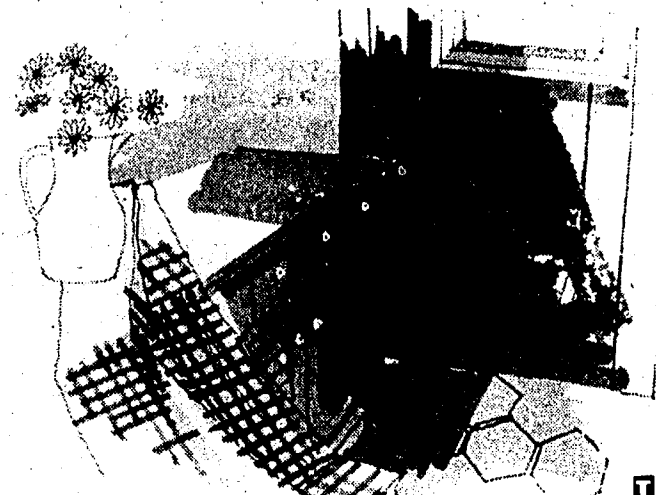

Start by selecting furniture from what you already have and adding just enough to complete the picture. The first rule of thumb: don't overdo it. Help is available from any standard reference work on interior decorating, but you may be able to do the job just as well yourself.

Be choosy and don't clutter the room with too many pieces. Remember that heavy, bulky furniture can make a small room seem cluttered and even a large room crowded.

Though seating pieces should be comfortable, they must be in scale with the room's dimensions and proportions and in keeping with its architectural style.

For instance, a room paneled with Georgia-Pacific's Chateau II Birch has a clean, contemporary look that calls for the contrast of dark-stained furnishings and brightly colored accessories, but the early American feeling of a paneling like G-P's Ol' Savannah Pine seems to need simple antiques and reproductions.

You should exercise care, too, when selecting the coverings for upholstered furniture. Generally the largest items in the room, upholstered pieces tend to dominate the space, especially if covered in bright fabrics.

Bear in mind that both fabrics—which include drapery material and tablecloths, pillows, sometimes lampshades—and colors should be selected with your decorating scheme or style in mind. Generally, traditional rooms require smaller patterns and quieter colors than contemporary interiors, which need bright colors and larger patterns and designs.

When deciding on paint, wallpaper or paneling, remember that smaller rooms should have brighter wall colors and lighter wood tones in the paneling. Dark paneling like Renaissance Tuscany from Georgia-Pacific tends to bring the walls in and can make a large room seem cozier.

Lighter finishes visually expand the room and make it seem larger.

Consider exposure, too. Rooms with northern exposures will look cold and uninviting done in cool blues and greens, while those facing south and west can seem too bright and intense decorated in the warm yellows and orange.

For a full-color, 29-page booklet, called "How to Make Beautiful Things Happen With Walls", send 25¢ to "Beautiful Walls", Dept. NAPS, Georgia-Pacific Corp., 900 S.W. IDEAS & FOOD for thought

Barbecuing History

THEN: Early settlers were taught the barbecue cooking method by local Indians. The settlers passed the art down from one generation to the next and today many favorite dishes from all parts of the country are barbecued. From Western grilled steaks to New England barbecued seafood, regional favorites boast their mouth-watering smoky flavor. Henry Ford made barbecuing even more popular by inventing the charcoal briquet. Coals are a convenient source of outdoor cooking fuel and impart that delicious smoky flavor to foods.

NOW: Today, the four out of five Americans who barbecue are still making history. They've expanded the range of their grills from charcoal broiling foods to poaching, roasting and even charcoal watersmoking them. There's even a National Barbecue Week, August 2-11, to commemorate the tradition. If you get out your charcoal grill, you can be part of it.

Safflower quality good

Most of the safflowers averaged 800-1000 pounds an acre and the quality looked good, said Dean Heinzerling of Culdesac who organized the safflower experiment in the area this year.

The hot weather did them in. There were a lot of empty shells. They are OK up to 100 degrees then the damage started, he said.

The quality looked good with around 40 percent oil. We're starting to ship them from Culdesac now. The price will vary according to the grade, but they are $175 per ton at Culdesac with 7 percent foreign material.

This year, we found out that 25 pounds per acre seeding was too heavy. If we cut that back to 15 pounds, the plants branched more. It looks like a good alternate crop, but this wasn't a good year.

The yields of the spring and fall crops were extremes this year too, Heinzerling said. He is planning to organize a similar experiment next year and probably will have some meetings and slide shows this winter on safflowers.

The following farmers participated in the safflower trials and discussed their observations with the Farm and Ranch Chronicle.

Transportation costs a lot to ship them to Calif. We've had some contacts from a firm at Vancouver and one in Mont.
