Ingles Return From "Down Under" Tour

Gerald and Grace Ingle returned January 29 from a 19-day trip which took them to New Zealand, Australia, Fiji, and Honolulu.

They joined a Contours Travel group out of the Spokane area representing the Spokane Soil Conservation District for an Agricultural tour of these islands. Of the twenty-three travelers, six were from Latah County, including Clarence and Audrey Gilge, Genesee and Martin and Vivian Deeston of Moscow. Others were from Mead, Spokane, Endicott, Fairfield, Latah, Pennsylvania and Hawaii.

Leaving Spokane Airport January 9, on a rescheduled flight due to the snow and icings which closed Seattle and Portland airports, the group flew via Los Angeles to Honolulu.

Aboard a Pan Am flight they were further delayed 1 1/2 hours because of too much water on the runways. By crossing the international date line January 10 was lost. They arrived in Auckland, New Zealand to a temperature of 91-F—quite an adjustment to the 9 degrees when they had left Spokane!

By chartered bus they toured the city of Auckland, the countryside to Mt. Eden, Racecourse Gardens, visited the Villa Maria Vineyards, a large dairy farm and the Danby Lodge Stud. This was a large thoroughbred horseracing property, having over 140 horses, 40 brood mares, and two valuable and proven stallions purchased in England.

Delightful visits were made to the Waitomo Glow Worm Grotto, to the Rotorua Thermal Reserve, and to the Tudor Towers where they were hosted by the Mount Tribe for a concert and tour of their village.

In the Agridome they were introduced to the New Zealand sheep industry and saw the demonstration that was given at Expo '70 in Seattle. A fitting introduction to New Zealand's 60 million sheep. Some of the group assured the rest that they had seen them all before they left!

Following a flight to Wellington they were escorted through the Hutt Valley Management Scheme, viewing other water projects, timber managements, and other local farming practices.

In Christchurch, South Island, as guests of the oldest Land Grant College in N. Z., founded in 1873, Lincoln Agricultural College, they toured their experimental plots and saw their machinery used.

There was so much to see, and the New Zealanders (Kiwis) were such delightful and friendly people it was difficult to leave this beautiful country. But the schedule called for a flight back to Auckland and on to Sydney, Australia.

Sydney, even at 110-degrees was a beautiful city, and a 2 1/2-hour harbor cruise convinced the visitors of the resourcefulness and stamina, and ingenuity of the British people when they used the island of Australia as a place to transport their overflow of prisoners to develop a new country. Many roads and buildings then constructed are still in use today.

During a three bus tour across the Blue Mountains, the group was welcomed by the Mayor of Bathurst at a reception in city hall. There was a luncheon and visit to the New-haven Murray Grey Stud where within in the past fifteen years has been developed a new breed of cattle—a cross between a shorthorn and Angus called the Murray Grey. Other cattle, sheep and grain properties were visited. Wheat farmers also have storage problems—as the group saw 67,000 tons of grain piled on the ground. Sales are handled through a Catchment Board. Final payments are made in three years.

A climb to the Sidling Springs and Mt. Strombo Observatory where the Anglo-Australian Telescope is located, was truly an awe-inspiring sight. This is the fourth largest telescope in the world, and the largest in the Southern hemisphere.

National parks, zoos, etc., were around the Yasawa group of islands picnic lunch while swatting flies, watching the kangaroos and the kookaburras, the cockatoos, elephants, deer, ducks, swans, and others. The museums were filled with historic memorabilia relating to farming in days gone by.

A three-day Blue Lagoon Cruise around the Yasawa group of islands was a lovely introduction to life on the Fiji Islands, with swimming, snorkeling, beach combing, and barbecues all adding to their slow and carefree way of life.

Bus tours into the countryside showed the vast production of corn, sugarcane, vegetables, fruits, produced mostly with hand labor and cultivation by the use of bullocks. At the Agricultural Experiment Station, hog, cattle production was being improved, also grain varieties tested.

A walking tour of the Sydney Opera House which cost 102 million dollars, and seventeen years to build was a delight to see. Performances are already fully booked for the next two and a half years.

Only seven of the group returned home on the 28th. All others stopped off in Hawaii for further "R & R"! For the Ingles—it was great to see, but nicer yet to be back home!

Flintstone Rock Club To Meet Thursday, Feb. 7

The Flintstone Rock Club will be holding its monthly meeting Thursday, February 7 at the Kendrick Fire Hall. The business meeting will begin promptly at 7:00 p. m.

The program will be presented by Lloyd Nye. He will explain the process of gem-faceting. Because it is made specifically for garnets, the faceting procedure is quite fast. Lloyd earns his living by mining, faceting and selling garnets. He is somewhat of a local expert. This will be the first public showing of the machine and should be quite interesting.

It is a good time for all you shy rock hounds and aspiring gold-diggers to come out of the caves and check out the club's activities. Membership is an enriching experience.

Refreshments will be served by the Reibers of Troy.

He has traveled all across America and into Canada singing gospel music in many churches and conventions. Two highlights of his career have been: being the featured soloist at the International Children's Workers Conference sponsored by Child Evangelism Fellowship, which was held in May of 1976 at the University of Illinois; and being a featured soloist at the International General Assembly of the Church of the Nazarene held in Dallas, Texas in June of 1976.

How Does It Feel to Have A Heart Attack?

How it feels to have a heart attack and emergency measures to be taken immediately will be the educational theme of the 1980 Heart Fund Drive. Scheduled for February, the campaign will also attempt to raise $137,000 in Idaho.

According to Dr. Ted Walters, of Boise, President of the Idaho Heart Association, several hundred needless deaths could be prevented each year if everyone was aware of signs of heart attack.

"The problem is," he said, "that many people mistake the warning signs for indigestion, take a pill and go to bed. Others think it could not happen to them and ignore the signs instead of seeking medical help immediately."

Dr. Walters described warning signs of heart attack as "uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of the chest, lasting two minutes or more. The pain may spread to the arms or the jaw and may be accompanied by sweating, nausea, dizziness or shortness of breath."

"Anyone experiencing this feeling should call the emergency rescue service or have someone drive them to the nearest hospital emergency room," Walters said. "Most deaths from heart attack occur in the first hour or two, so immediate action is essential."

Volunteers working in the 1980 Heart Fund Drive will seek contributions to support work of the Idaho Heart Association for the year beginning July 1, according to Lou Florence, State Campaign Chairman. They will also attempt to reach as many people as possible with the warning signs of heart attack.

Funds raised will support programs of CPR training, high blood pressure screening, scientific research and public education for the coming year.

Mr. Koegen presented for the approval of the Council an Ordinance No. 256 specifying and adopting a plan for the construction and installation of improvements to the water system of Genesee, along with a resolution authorizing the issuance and sale of bond anticipation notes in anticipation of the issuance of a water revenue bond of 1980.

Don Mahal attended to ask if Hazel street between Jackson and Birch could be repaired as it is in poor condition. He also questioned why the alley just south of his home is open but blocked at the west entrance.

Mike Johnson has requested a survey on the feasibility of installing a sewer line on Pine. Edwards of R. W. Engineering has estimated the cost at between $15,000 and $18,000. The city has requested a survey be made now that would angle southwest with the sewer line in hopes, it would be less costly and be of a greater benefit to more users.

W-2 Forms Should Be Received By January 31

Boise—Employees who have not received their Wage and Tax Statements (Form W-2) from their employers must still file a tax return by April 15, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

"To avoid delays in receiving the W-2, employees should furnish their current or former employer with a current address," says District Director Philip N. Sansotta. "If employees do not receive the statement by January 31, they should first contact their employer. After February 15, 1980, the employee should ask for help by calling the Boise Internal Revenue Service office. Boise residents may call 336-1040. Other Idaho taxpayers may call toll free 1-800-632-5990."

Taxpayers must have a W-2 form from every employer they worked for during the year. Even if an employee is unable to get a W-2 before the filing deadline of April 15, a timely return must be filed.

COMMISSION APPROVES 11 NEW CONTROLLED HUNTS

Eleven new controlled hunts, including six for deer, have been approved by the Fish and Game Commission for 1980 big game seasons.

An elk hunt has been added by dividing the one in game management unit 66 into two parts with October 1 opening dates. New antelope hunts are in unit 41, opening August 16, and unit 68, September 20.

Two more controlled moose hunts were initiated by splitting unit 312-10 and adding unit 312-11 and by establishing unit 310A, all with September 6 openers.

Other additions approved by the commission include an early archery season for deer and elk in the western part of unit 1 and a general mountain lion season in unit 55, both opening September 6.

The muzzle loader season for deer and elk in unit 3 was replaced by another in unit 4. Opening date is November 22.

Starting in unit 1 in the northern Idaho Panhandle, there will be a new deer hunt starting September 13. The Department of Fish and Game's wildlife bureau, in making the recommendation, explained that the general deer season in unit 1 opens in late October, primarily for white-tails.

But the commission was told there are good numbers of mule deer in the high country west of U. S. Highway 95 and some quality buck hunting should be available on a limited basis with the September opener.

Elk controlled hunt 209 was closed "to give general hunting for bulls in units 9 and part of 7 the best chance for success and later evaluation."

Major boundary changes include a realignment of units 14 and 19 and a larger area for antelope hunt 432.

The department said the advent of the Gospel Hump Wilderness Area made it possible to incorporate the western part of unit 19 with 14 and create a true backcountry unit.

The antelope hunt was enlarged to take in that part of unit 32A south of the Little Weiser River. The commission agreed that this was needed because of a recent change in antelope distribution.

Controlled hunt regulations will be established by the commission when it meets in Boise January 28-29 and general seasons and regulations will be set in late April or early May.

Short-Term Obligations

Boise—The Internal Revenue Service announced final regulations that make interest income on certain short-term obligations, including "money market certificates," taxable when actually received by, or credited to, cash-basis taxpayers.

The new regulations state that holders of six-month non-negotiable time deposit certificates constructively receive at the end of their taxable year the amount of interest that they would have received if the certificate had been surrendered at that time.

The new regulations also provide that amounts earned on these obligations will not be treated as original issue discount, and cash-basis issuers will be able to deduct the interest only when it is actually paid or credited. The final regulations modify the effective date of this change for taxpayers who properly applied the rateable deduction rules for their last taxable year beginning before September 19, 1978. For these taxpayers, the amendment is effective for taxable years beginning after September 18, 1979.

Illegal Big Game Kills Show Needs for Conservation Enforcement

By Hugh Wilson
Department of Fish and Game

The two elk cows and two calves had been shot—their throats cut, teeth torn out and carcasses left to waste.

Department of Fish and Game conservation officers came upon the grim scene last fall in checking a report about the dead animals. But the case ended, with not a shred of information or evidence.

The illegal kills would have been less likely had there been conservation officers with the time for more frequent patrols in the area, according to regional conservation officer Ray Lyon.

Five does were killed in a bucks-only game management unit last deer season. Four officers, diverted from regular duties in one of their busiest times of the year, conducted an investigation that occupied the better part of 5 days and resulted in citations.

Both incidents took place in the department's Region 3, where Lyon heads a 15-man field staff.

"The 15 officers are responsible for conservation enforcement in a region that takes in 10 counties and parts of two others," he says. "Their patrol districts vary from mountainous, roadless areas in the Chamberlain Basin, the Sawtooth range and country west of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River to urbanized Ada and Canyon counties."

Patrol methods utilize horses, backpacking, jet boats, snowmobiles, skis and such conventional vehicles as pickups and sedans.

"Subtract the 15 officers in Region 3 from the department's 73 officers in the field and that leaves 58 for our other five regions," Lyon points out.

One of the most common complaints, he adds, comes from the individual who says he has hunted and fished in Idaho for years and has yet to be checked by a conservation officer.

"That's perfectly understandable," Lyon says. "The department has just one more field officer now than it had in 1975, principally because of budget limitations coupled with inflation."

"And Idaho has added about 95,000 to its population since 1975." The department has asked the 1980 legislature to approve an increase in fees for licenses, tags and permits, effective January 1, 1981.

Much of the additional funds—an estimated $1.4 million a year, would be used to hire an additional 10 field officers.

Region 3 conservation officers share similar duties with others throughout the state.

In addition to conservation enforcement, their work includes supervision of license vendors, issuance of certain types of permits and response to depredation complaints.

"In the course of a day, for example, we could be called up to pick up an injured bird or help a landowner deal with pheasants, that are eating his corn—and there are always the beavers that create flooding problems with their dams," Lyon says.

Polar Bears Turn Green

Scientists were puzzled at first when three white polar bears at the San Diego Zoo turned green. A check-up revealed that algae growing in the bears' pools had found a safe home inside the bear's hollow hairs, explains the National Wildlife Federation.

More Than 850 Qualify For Junior Hunt Licenses

More than 850 boys and girls have qualified for junior hunting licenses under a new law which took effect January 1 and the number grows each day as hunter education courses continue throughout the state.

Milt Williams, hunter education coordinator with the Department of Fish and Game, says 796 youngsters were certified in December, and 60 more have been recorded so far in January. Many of them took advantage of classes that started last year so they could purchase licenses at the beginning of 1980.

The classes are taught by volunteer, certified instructors in virtually every Idaho community. Volunteer instructors total 638. In addition, 86 department employees support and assist the volunteers when needed, Williams says.

Any department office can provide information about course schedules and locations.

The department keeps a computerized record of the young certified hunters. When an individual successfully completes a course, a name, address and certification number is listed along with the month and year of certification and the instructor's name and certification number.

"Some boys and girls tend to lose their certification cards. The computer printout allows us to make a quick check to verify certification and issue new cards," Williams says.

The law, approved by the 1979 legislature and administered by the department, requires junior hunters under the age of 15 to complete a standard hunter education course before obtaining a license.

Each junior hunting license carries a certification number, which is entered when the purchaser shows a certification card to the vendor.

Archerfish

The archerfish, which lives in fresh and salt waters from India to Australia, shoots its meals out of branches hanging over the water, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. Taking careful aim, the fish spits pellets of water at insects and spiders; then eats them as they tumble into the water.

EARLY WILD OAT CONTROL WITH CARBYNE RETURNS EXTRA YIELDS.

Three years of yield trials on farms managed by farmers prove how Carbyne returns extra yields.

What's more, long experience shows, Carbyne application when wild oats are in the critical two-leaf stage enhances returns even more.

For example, 57 wheat growers who compared Carbyne on their farms averaged 8.7 more bushels per acre.

Twenty-seven barley growers who compared Carbyne on their farms averaged 12.6 more bushels per acre.

And now new research by the University of Idaho illustrates just how important timely application can be.

Note that yield losses due to application in the five-leaf stage nearly equal those in an untreated check.

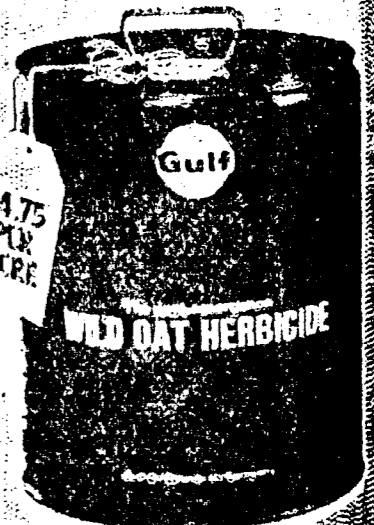

Read label instructions carefully and use Carbyne only as directed.

See your farm chemicals dealer and order your Carbyne today.

Taxpayers Active Participant

Boise—For 1979 taxpayers may rely on the proposed regulations defining "active participant" to determine if they can deduct payments made to an individual retirement account (IRA) the Internal Revenue Service today announced.

The proposed regulations under section 219 of the Internal Revenue Code appear in the Federal Register of March 23, 1979 on page 17754.

Individuals who are active participants in certain types of deferred compensation plans may not make deductible contributions to an individual retirement account, annuity or bond program.

The IRS also said that employers may rely on the proposed regulations to determine what information must be furnished on Form W-2 about an employee's coverage by a pension plan.

Employers should enter "yes" in box 14 of Form W-2 if the employee is considered an active participant in the employer's pension plan.

Food Labels May Include More Nutritional Facts

Clifton Anderson Associate Agricultural Editor

Moscow—Suppose someone in your family is on a low-sodium diet. There is a hypertension problem and this person's intake of salt must be limited. Would you be able to learn which foods contain little or no salt if you were to compare labels on the grocery store shelves?

"Medically important information about the amount of sodium in food is not required on all food labels at present, but it will have to be included if proposed changes in food labeling regulations are adopted," said Marilyn A. Swanson, U/I extension nutritionist.

Protection of the public's health is a major goal of food label reform, Mrs. Swanson explained. Under the proposed regulations, information on food labels would help diabetics recognize foods rich in sugar, and persons allergic to specific flavoring and coloring agents would be able to avoid foods containing those allergy-triggering ingredients.

Advocates of the new food labeling proposals say they want to enable all consumers to select and use products that meet the consumer's individual needs and preferences.

Also, they insist each consumer has the right to know the actual ingredients of food products that have been processed or changed in some way," Mrs. Swanson says.

During the past two years, new guidelines for food labeling have been developed by 3 government agencies—the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, the Food and Drug Administration and the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

The public is now being invited to comment on the new food labeling proposals. Written statements will be accepted until March 20, the nutrition specialist stated.

Mrs. Swanson said comments should be addressed to Hearing Clerk, Food and Drug Administration (HFA-305), Room 4-65, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Md. 20857.

The public comments are expected to include both negative and positive opinions concerning the new regulations.

"All aspects of the new proposed regulations should be analyzed fully," Mrs. Swanson said. "One problem that is causing considerable concern is the potential economic impact of regulations that could be complied with only by food firms having extensive laboratory facilities. Small companies might be adversely affected."

The U/I extension specialist said the new food and nutrition labeling proposals include these key points:

—Labels would show specific sources of fat and oils for foods containing more than 10 percent fat.

—Labels would explain that ingredients are listed in descending order of amounts included.

—There would be an open-date labeling for perishable and semi-perishable meat and poultry products. The label would clearly state the "use-before" date.

—Nutrition labeling would provide information on the amounts of sodium, potassium and sugar in foods. If nutritional claims are made for a product, a listing of total calories, fat, carbohydrates, protein, and cholesterol would be required.

—Significantly ingredients in meat and poultry products would be listed on a percentage basis.

—Meat and poultry products would require complete nutrition labeling if nutrition claims were made for these products or if nutrients were added to them.

—Although official standards have been set up for the manufacture of mayonnaise, ice cream and other products, these standardized foods would need labels listing all optional ingredients.

The terms "low-cholesterol," "reduced cholesterol" and "cholesterol-free" would be defined precisely.

—To make comparisons more meaningful, serving sizes for meat and poultry products would be standardized.

—Agencies are seeking Congressional approval to require listing of colors and spices by name and listing of flavors where appropriate.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Custer of Clarkston were Sunday dinner guests in the Eldon Heimgartner home. Erma Stevens was also present.

Early Birthday for Harold—
On Sunday, Feb. 3, early birthday was celebrated at the home of Wayne and Ruth Heimgartner for their son Harold of Clarkston. Brother Alton and Carlene (Harold's wife) were present, also Leslie and Delores Heimgartner, "drop in" guests who arrived on business and were asked to join the dinner.
Ruth and Wayne visited Leslie and Delores at their home on Thursday evening.

At the Don Hoisington Home—
Friday evening visitors of Don and Elaine were brother Dean Weyen and wife, and on Saturday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Weyen, were supper guests.

Alvin Steigers of the Culesac-Gifford area visited with brother Ernest on Wednesday, Jan. 30 for a few hours during the forenoon.

Celebrate Twins Birthday in Montana—
Lenny Kamiah on Friday, Feb. 1st, at 8 p. m., the Ken Steigers family, accompanied by Ken's parents Ernest and Nellie Steigers, a slow and dangerous journey up the Lochsa River on Highway 12 was made to the Keith Steigers home a few miles from Missoula. On Highway 10, arriving there at 2 a. m., by the travelers watches, and 3 a. m. by Missoula time. Freezing rain, on sheet ice freshly scraped, provided a real skating rink for about 10 or 15 miles on our side of the pass, 20-mile speed. Many grain trucks were in trouble! The return homeward trip on Sunday was all pleasant driving. The visit was a success! Ken celebrated his 47th year, but twin brother Keith, 20 minutes younger, decided he'd be 37 years instead!

A hastily prepared welcome spaghetti & meat ball supper was enjoyed at the Hunt Hatch home before the group departed onward for Montana Friday night; so Kenneth was well fortified for the unexpectedly hazardous driving. Roads were in excellent condition in the Missoula area as Keith had phoned earlier.

At the Glen Stevens—
Pastor John Stillman and family of Cottonwood Creek, accompanied by Rev. Ron Winstanley, enjoyed dinner on Wednesday, Jan. 30, at the Glen Stevens home. On Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Rick Heimgartner, with small daughter Mystie, also of Cottonwood Creek, were guests, accompanied by Mrs. Edgar Hatley, Rick's mother, during the afternoon. On Friday Glen and Margorie Stevens drove to Moscow, to attend the funeral of Lyda Gephart, mother of Evelyn Hatley. Music was played by Mrs. Stevens at the services.

Weather Wise—
The Clearwater ran roily, following early weekend rains, but free of ice. Upper reaches and tributaries were filled with ice jams and banks piled high with cakes and slush on Sunday. Temperatures greatly moderated.

Juliaetta School News—

Campbell Soup Label News
We have just two weeks left to collect all the soup labels we can. As of the last count we have 6,000 labels more than we needed for the filmstrip projector. We have been overwhelmed by the response that we have received this year. Next year we'll have to set our goal a little higher. So keep on saving those labels.

Juliaetta School Library News
The sixth graders cleaned up all their overdue books last week in time to earn their bookmarks. This week the second grade got in all their overdue books. The children are working hard reading lots of books to put on their reading records.

Hospital Notes . . .

Shreffler
Mrs. Esther Shreffler was taken to home. A bad case of flu is the suspected culprit. She plans on being released this Wednesday.
