Flintstone Rock Club

Will Meet June 5 The Flintstone Rock Club will meet Thursday, June 5 at the Kendrick Fire Hall at 7 o'clock. Ray Heimgartner will present the program. He plans to enlighten us on the subject of "prospecting." He will be discussing the kinds and value of minerals. He will also tell us the types of rock formations in which they are found and mining techinques that can be used.

Ray will furnish the refreshments. At the last meeting the club decided to go on a gold-panning trip to Boulder Creek. It was scheduled for the morning of May 18—rain or shine. The morning was lovely. Nearly all of the members made the trek. Some of us were lucky enough to find a small nougat or so. The rest worked mostly on technique and to no avail. We didn't quite know why, but Mother Nature called us home Kept in the dark by Mt. St. Helens.

20th Locust Blossom Festival 'Best Ever'

Mt. St. Helens eruption, the ash fallout, cold, rainy weather for two weeks before and discouraging weato wonder about the advisability of holding the 1980 Kendrick Locust Blossom Festival, but once the day began it unfolded into one of the best celebrations ever as a crowd estimated at over 3,000 crowded into town. Almost every event of the day exceeded expectations and previous records.

It did rain during the day, but the first sprinkles held off until after the barbecue dinner. It did not rain again until later in the evening, and then the rain returned Sunday and the weather turned cold again. But for ple who worked so hard for the VBS the Locust Blossom Festival it was nearly perfect.

Although all the bills haven't been paid, it does appear that the Festival was a moderate financial success. The first preliminary count put total receipts at slightly over $3200.00. Between 1300 and 1400 persons filed through the serving line for the noon barbecue beef dinner. The Grange pie house served over 125

homemade pies and used 4 gallons of ice cream as topping.

Parade Was Excellent The parade committee kicked off the celebration with what most spectators felt was one of the "best ever" parades. Thirty-two entries and six riding groups held the attention of the large crowd that lined the streets. Lester and Lilly Wallace were the Grand Marshals of the day. The Kendrick Grange float entry won the grand prize with Grange Master Bill White and nis wife, Ruth sharing the float with an enormous shoe. In the non-commercial category, 1st place went to the Golden Sunset Senior Citizens; 2nd to the Jr. Miss Queen float and 3rd to the Lewiston VFW float. Abrams Hhrdware won the first place trophy in the commercial division; Phil's Food 2nd place and Hedler Oil Co. 3rd place. Best Groomed Horse Group prize was taken by the Nez Perce Sheriff's posse and 2nd to the Genesee Rim Riders. Honorable mention went to

Kendrick Science Fair Was May 15

The first Kendrick Science Fair in many years was held ay 15. Nearly 70 students in grades 8-11 participated. Science projects in obvious that a lot of work had gone into them.

The judges for the Science Fair were Harold Freeman and George Merrick of Juliaetta; Joanne Milet of Troy, and David Wilken of Kendrick. The judging process took about 7 grueling hours. The judges deserve a big thank-you for a job well-done.

Prizes of $5.00 for the blue ribbon winners were donated by local businesses with a vested interest in scientific knowledge.

George F. Brocke & Sons sponsored the prize in the chemistry category. The blue ribbon was awarded to Jenny Mael for her project, "Con-servation of Mass in Chemical Reactions." Red and white ribbon recipients were Linda Williams and Jim Parsley, respectively.

Dean's Electric sponsored Kelly Cuddy's blue ribbon for her project in Energy, 'Solar Heating." Steve Lohman won a red ribbon. Terry Lohman won a red ribbon. Terry Clemm and Charlene Parks both won white ribbons.

Fleming's sponsored Lisa Vallem's blue ribbon in the Physical Science category for her project, "Newton's Laws of Motion." Red and white ribbons went to Ken Bowers and Melva Gibbins.

Lewiston Grain Growers sponsored the Earth Science blue ribbon which went to Jill Rossiter for "Natural Resources." Red and white ribbons went to Amy Noren and Cindy Stockard.

Lyon's Electronics sponsored Vicki Renfrow's first prize for "Ellipses" in Astronomy. David McKnight and Theresa Johns received the red and white ribbons respectively.

The Flintstone Rock Club sponsored first prize for Geology to Colley Jacobs for "Natural Compounds of Iron and Oxygen." Daryl Riedinger and Corey Cooper took home red and white ribbons.

Donna Heinen sponsored the blue ribbon in General Biology which went to Rheanda Wilson for "Plant Anatomy." Jo Heath and Cathy Bryan received the red and white The Red Cross Pharmacy sponsored the prize in Health. Jamie Lohed the prize in Health. Jamie Lon-man was the recipient for her pro-ject, "Comparison of Vertebrate Diject, "Comparison of Vertebrate Di-gestive Systems." Misti Colbaugh and Kathy Nail placed second and Blewett's sponsored the blue ribbon. awarded to Brian Von Bargen for his Agricultural project, "Effects of Fertilizer." Wayne Weidert and Carmine McKnight won the red and white ribbons.

The Gazette sponsored first prize for the Best Reporter. Jill Rossiter received the blue ribbon and Julne Smith was awarded the red.

In the category, "Epitome of the Scientific Method," all three winners were awarded cash prizes. In this category the judges especially looked for originality of the question being explored, development of the experiments, accurate observations and categories ranging from health to data collection and valid conclusions. astronomy were displayed. It was Potlatch Telephoe Company sponsored the blue ribbons awarded to Brian Von Bargen. Teresa Hower-ton received the red ribbon for "En-vironmental Changes and their ef-fects on Goldfish," sponsored by Gem State Lumber. Wayne Deeds won the white ribbon sponsored by Abrams' Hardware for his project Uses of Insulation in the Home.

> Many other students put a lot of effort into excellent projects. Competition was especially stiff in some categories and there just weren't enough prizes for everyone. Students who deserve honorable mention and for their projects are: Brian Thornton, "A Solar; Water Still," Scott Gustafson, "How a Hydroelec-tric Dam Works"; Paula Fliger, "In-ertia," and Kim Stonebraker, "Anatomy of the Human Heart."

All of the students involved and Miss Cozort would like to thank the judges and sponsors for their contributions of time and money. We would also like to thank the community for its support. Next year we plan to have a bigger and better Science Fair. It will be earlier in the year so that more students can be ready to participate in the Lewiston Science Fair. This year several Kendrick students did enter their first semester projects in the Lewiston Fair.

Jill Rossiter won an Honorable Mention for her project, "Anatomy of a Volcano." With continued support, we hope to increase the success of the Science Fair for the academic inspiration of our students.

Some Cherrylane Events-

Tim Steigers, youngest son Keith and Carolee Steigers, with his pal Mike Hanway, riding double on the motorcycle, arrived from Missoula Saturday evening at Cherrylane, spent overnight, and on for a short visit with the Eller grandparents at Lewiston. The boys, headed homeward on Sunday at 3 p. m. warmly dressed for the 200 mile drive. Rain storms are part of the pleasure of the long drive.

On Sunday afternoon, during their high school. Later the group, including maternal grandparents, Mr. and ing lot hasty call were Bill and Morna Garrison of Milton-Freewater and Morna's mother, Mrs. Leland of Clarkston; Linda and Ken Steigers, and 3 of the Ranta young folks. Shortly after, a rubber life raft, bearing 2 well-protected occupants, floated past on the fairly high Clearwater River, darkened on the nearest side by the muddy waters from Pine Creek. This usually innocent stream had caused havoe and trouble in the Leland area following recent heavy downpours!
