City of Genesee, Idaho
 P. O. Box 38, City Hall
 Genesee, ID 83832

Separate sealed Bids will be received by the City of Genesee for the removal and replacement of approximately 1400 square feet of existing roofing on the City Maintenance Building at Tamarack Street and Chestnut Street. Said work will include the roof removal and disposal, straightening of the existing concrete block bearing walls, reconstruction of a new wood truss and sheet metal roof system and roof insulation, and will be received at City Hall, P. O. Box 38, City Hall, Genesee, ID 83832 until 7:30 P. M. (Daylight Savings Time), July 6, 1981, and then publicly opened and read aloud.

The CONTRACT DOCUMENTS may be examined at the following locations:

R. W. Engineering, Inc.
 Consulting Engineers
 101 Thain Road
 Lewiston, ID 83501

City of Genesee
 City Hall
 Genesee, ID 83832

Copies of the CONTRACT DOCUMENTS may be obtained at the office of R. W. Engineering, Inc., Consulting Engineers, located at 101 Thain Road, Lewiston, Idaho 83501. There will be no charge for the documents.

The Contractor shall be required to have a current license as a public works contractor in the State of Idaho in order to submit a bid or proposal on this project.

The attention of the bidders is especially invited to the provision of Sections 44-1001, 44-1002, 44-1008 Idaho Code dealing with labor preferences, prevailing wage scales, as well as the contract Special Provisions describing the proposed work.

As it is the purpose of the City of Genesee to accomplish this contract in the shortest possible time, the possession of adequate equipment and efficient organization on the part of the contractor is mandatory.

PLANT IN THE BAG
 When you're in a hurry, planting the soil bag may be just what you need. This simple process yields generous crops. Buy a bag of potting soil (avoid types with high percentage of peat moss). Punch half a dozen drain holes in bottom, slice open the top, water thoroughly and poke in some vegetable seedlings, says Sunset Magazine.

Raw Milk Use Adds Health Risk

State Health officials warn that persons using raw milk or unpasteurized milk products must accept the added risk of milk-borne disease.

Under Idaho law dairies selling raw milk are inspected more frequently than others. However consumption of unpasteurized milk can still cause some diseases, according to Dr. Charles Brokopp, state epidemiologist.

"Modern dairy practices have reduced the incidences of many diseases," Brokopp said. Pasteurization of milk is credited with decreasing streptococcal infections, diphtheria, hepatitis, salmonellosis, botulism, and shigellosis as well as diseases rare in Idaho dairy cattle such as brucellosis, tuberculosis, and Q fever.

"Disease producing organisms may be transmitted directly from the cow in milk, or milk may become contaminated with organisms carried by humans, cows, or other animals," Brokopp explained.

"While pasteurization may not destroy resistant organisms, toxins, or chemical residue, it is the best way to prevent most milk-borne diseases."

Recently 104 families developed diarrhea, abdominal cramps, and headache after drinking raw milk from a Kansas dairy. The outbreak of intestinal illness has been linked to Campylobacter jejuni, an organism not previously known to make humans sick.

Studies showed that over 70 percent of those who drank raw milk from the Kansas dairy developed gastrointestinal illness lasting to nine days. The illness could have been prevented by pasteurization.

To addition to pasteurization Brokopp said other practices can reduce the incidence of milk-borne infections. These include disinfecting the cows' teats and milking equipment, and avoiding the use of milk from cows with mastitis (inflamed udder).

"Although raw milk may be cheaper than pasteurized milk," Brokopp said, "persons using unpasteurized milk or raw milk products should be aware of the added dangers."

Some Stores Still Stock Recalled Mushrooms

Most stores have removed mushrooms involved in a recent recall from their shelves. However, a few cans still may be on shelves in some Idaho stores, state health authorities report.

Only four-ounce can of mushroom stems and pieces packed by a single, Kelton, Pa., processing plant are involved in the recall. The suspect cans are sold under a number of different brand-names and no-name labels.

If the code stamped into the lid begins with the letters AK, BK, CK, DK, or EK followed by a line with letters P or LP and the numerals 1 and 2, the can should be returned to the store where purchased. Cans with these codes may contain botulism toxin, which can cause serious food poisoning.

District health department personnel and officials of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration will be contacting all Idaho stores that sell canned mushrooms to make sure the suspected cans have been removed.

Health officials also noted that while the presence of botulism toxin has been confirmed in some suspect cans, no human cases of botulism have yet been connected with the mushrooms.

Volcanoes Must Be Watched, 4-H Told

Moscow - Volcanoes of the Pacific Northwest are sleeping giants which may become active with little advance warning, a UI geochemist told 300 delegates to the annual Idaho 4-H Congress.

Charles Knowles said last year's May 18 eruption of Mount St. Helens was an awesome demonstration of volcanic power. The need for monitoring dormant volcanoes became apparent after Mount St. Helens exploded, he pointed out.

"The eruption devastated an area of 250 square miles. Ash from the volcano shot into the air more than 12 miles high," Knowles said.

Delegates to the 1980 4-H Congress came to Moscow a few weeks after the volcanic ash blanketed northern Idaho.

Southern Idaho could be in the pathway of ashfall from a future eruption of Mount Hood or another Pacific Northwest volcano, Knowles told the 4-H'ers.

The glass-like volcanic ash from Mount St. Helens will remain in the environment of the Pacific Northwest for centuries to come, the UI scientist said.

At the annual 4-H Congress, delegates are attending various educational meetings on the campus of the University of Idaho. The conference began Sunday and concludes Friday evening.

Sr. Citizens Attended N. Central Idaho 5 County Meeting

Thirty-five senior citizens of the area traveled to Cottonwood Junction to attend the North Central Idaho Senior Citizens (5 county) Assoc. The group included 25 from Kendrick-Julietta area, 6 from Moscow and 4 from Troy-Deary area with a total of 123 registered.

The tour began with a visit to St. Gertrude's Museum, 2 miles west of Cottonwood. The Museum proved to be of great interest to all. Every one felt to be able to see and enjoy all of the items on display, would take another trip or two. It is truly worth the trip.

A bounteous potluck dinner at 12 noon was hosted by the Cottonwood Senior Citizens in the basement of the Community Church.

Entertainment consisting of lovely vocal music and a monologue added "frosting to the cake."

Guest speaker Ron McKinsey, Superintendent of Cottonwood Correctional Institution of Cottonwood, explained the use and need for this facility. Saying in part, quote: "These small units of correction are much more beneficial to rehabilitation of the offender, as education is featured - high school diplomas are offered towards G. E. D."

The business meeting was conducted by Pres. E. M. White, Kendrick. Reports were heard on legislation with compliments to the 5-county seniors on use of the Hot Line during the legislative.

Greg Heathburg, area planner, area agency on aging reported on senior programs and services. Emphasizing the need to work toward helping to keep these programs maintained, and announcing the State Senior Citizen Conference will be in Area II in the spring of 1982 hosted by Moscow.

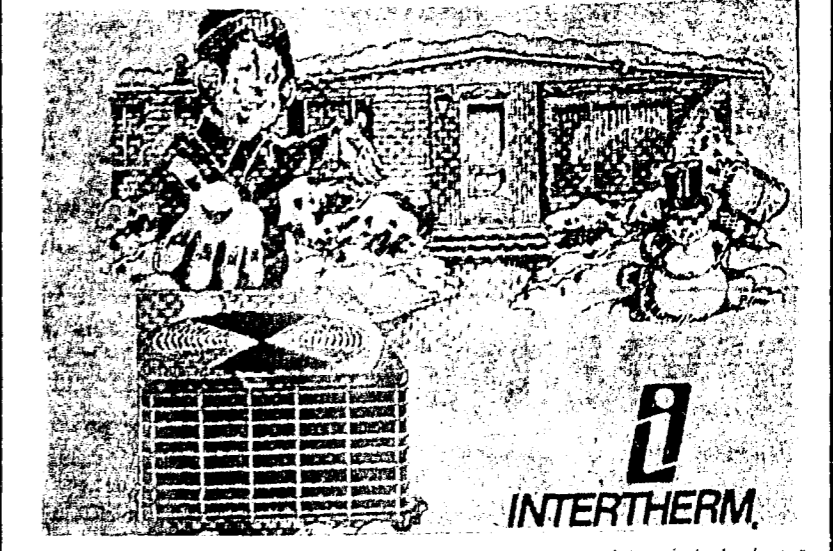

It was a beautiful day! Next meeting will be in Kootenai Sept. 1.

DEPT. OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Serving this area 19 years

She wasn't your sleek, classic beauty, but the Chief and his boys kept her shined up and as spiffy as possible.

Old Number 9.

First you'd hear the siren piercing through the trees. Then Old Number 9 would heave into sight, wallowing down the street and galumphing toward her destination like a dinosaur with flat feet.

She wasn't your sleek, classic beauty, but the Chief and his boys kept her shined up and as spiffy as possible for an aging lady who had put out a lot of fires in her time.

I loved that fire engine. And my grandfather knew it. When he gave me my first Savings Bond, he smiled and said, "Save enough of these, boy, and someday you can buy your own fire engine."

I couldn't get enough of Old Number 9. Even her siren had a special wail that gave me goose bumps. Kind of lonely and yet reassuring at the same time. Sometimes they'd park her out in front of the station, and I'd walk slowly all around her. She'd sit there, all alone, resplendent in her red coat, her chrome fixtures gleaming and winking at me in the sun.

I grew up, moved away, and on to other things. But I never forgot Old Number 9. Guess that's why I joined the local club for fire engine buffs. Turned out there were a lot of us around enough of us to be able to pool our Savings Bonds and go looking for a fire engine to buy.

I finally found Old Number 9. Spending her retirement on the edge of a highway under a big "Mack's Red Hots" sign. But we changed all that. Today, Number 9 has the place of honor in every town parade. She leads the march down Main Street. With me at the wheel, of course.

Bonds can help you build a hefty nest egg for a new car, a house, education or retirement. Happy endings begin with U.S. Savings Bonds.

Take stock in America.
