

German Girl Will be Exchange Student At Kendrick High School This Term

By Kathy Nail

Daneila Ahrens is a German exchange student from Stade was met at the Pullman airport after a ten-hour flight August 13 by Mr. and Mrs. Horst Reil, with whom she would make her home for the next year in Kendrick.

Miss Ahrens is 15 and will be a junior this year at Kendrick High School. She has one sister, 18. Her father is an administrative director of a home for the handicapped and her mother is a house wife.

Dani, as she likes to be called, was "surprised" at the size of Kendrick and the surrounding area. She is not accustomed to country life, as Stade has a population of 40,000.

"I think it's funny," she said. "The organization (Youth for Understanding) finds homes for its students in rural areas. Somewhere non-violent. But I don't think I could stay here for more than one or two years," explaining that there are more things to do in a larger city. Dani (Donnie) was most impressed with the friendliness of the people of this country.

"(In Germany) they are friendly but you must know them a longer time to see how friendly they are. Here they try to help each other more."

She also commented on our life-style.

"I think Americans take life easier. They look at much TV."

Dani enjoys riding her horse in Germany in her free time. She hopes to do some riding during her stay in Kendrick. In the mean time, "I am sunbathing to get a good tan."

English is a mandatory course in Germany and Dani has been learning the language since the fifth grade. She is looking forward for school to begin, although the credits she will receive here will not be transferred to those in Germany. She has heard that "schools in America are easier" and harbors no apprehensive feelings about attending KHS. She will play volleyball this fall and is looking forward to making new friends.

Dani and her classmates in Germany were told of the Youth for Understanding student exchange program and encouraged to apply. However, many students could not afford it. The non-profit organization provides no financial aid for the students it accepts.

Dani and her family were familiar with the program as Dani's sister spent a year in Florida after being accepted. Dani applied because, "I wanted the experience."

Miss Ahrens and 56 other exchange students spent one week of orientation before arriving, learning Americans customs and history.

"We had to see many films. After every film we had to take part in a discussion." Dani will enroll in American history classes at Kendrick to learn of our historical background.

To be considered as a host family, the Reils contacted the local representative, who provided the necessary forms and information. The representatives visit the homes before and after the student arrives.

The Youth for Understanding was founded in 1951. Its first exchange was that of sending 75 German and Austrian teenagers selected by the Army of Occupation to live in the United States with American families. Today over 75,000 students have taken part in this program in South America, Central America and Japan as well as Germany and the United States.

Dani will return home sometime after July 10 of next year. After living here for only one week with the Reils and their two daughters, she has come to the conclusion that "I think I like this country."

Japanese Agricultural Produce Buyer Had First-Hand Look at Harvest Source

Kazuo Nakai, a young marketing specialist with the Kasuo Co., Ltd. of Nagoya, Japan, received a first hand look at some of the produce he will be buying and selling for his firm, one of the largest of its kind in that Far East nation. Nakai left Monday after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. George F. Broeke, Jr., as guests in their Kendrick home.

The visit to Kendrick and the seed processing plant of Broeke and Sons, Seedmen, was just part of a six-month tour in this country for the Japanese agricultural produce buyer. The tour is designed to acquaint Nakai with growers and their products. But, according to Geo. Broeke, president of the Kendrick seed firm, the American farmers will benefit

Small Turn-out, but Lots of Spirit Characterizes Kendrick HS Football Team

By Kathy Nail

Kendrick head football coach Brian Pendleton said that the Tigers are weak in numbers, but their team spirit could help them realize their hopes for a winning season.

Despite the lack of numbers, the team "has a goal to win the league," a goal that the coach says is possible if the players stay healthy and make the season a team effort.

"It really depends on how well we can play together and be supportive of each other," Pendleton emphasized that the players must adhere to the training rules.

Non-eligibility has prevented as many as ten to 15 prospective players from turning out, leaving only 22 to face their opponents. Since practice began, one player has moved and another has already been injured.

Pendleton acknowledges his team's shortcomings and is concerned with the lack of players.

"I really don't know what the competition holds for us. The injury of one person could break our backs—two would do it."

The Tigers have been practicing twice a day since August 12 and are engaged in a rigorous training program. Running, learning a new offense and weight-lifting are involved. New assistant coach Jay Henderson has provided the team with additional weight-lifting equipment. Henderson coached football one year at Spokane before coming to Kendrick.

Pendleton said that the seniors will have to lead the team and singled out lineman Tony Moran as the team leader.

"Tony exemplifies what we're trying to teach. He works hard at all the drills, is early to practice and has a spirit about him that is contagious."

"Mitch Cuddy is also very much a leader," Pendleton said of the Tiger quarterback. "He is an all-around athlete."

Henderson had praise for running back Terry Hudson, who gained 1620 yards last year, and center Bert Shawver who "has improved immensely and could play a real key role."

Coach Pendleton selected Moran and Hudson as co-captains, basing his choice on their "attitude and response to the summer weight-lifting and conditioning program" as well as their enthusiasm and spirit.

The Tigers' first game of the season will be August 28 at 7:30 on their home field against Prairie.

Both coaches are optimistic about the season, and Henderson summed up their feelings.

"Our team spirit is great. I think we're going to be good."

Area Grain Harvest Rolls Along Under Broiling Sun

No matter how else area residents may feel about the 12-day heat wave that has sent the temperature soaring to 100 degree and over for almost two weeks now, there is no disputing the fact that the broiling summer sun has hastened the 1981 small grain harvest over much of the Inland Empire. Long lines of grain trucks, filled with peas and wheat have formed leading to the unloading facilities of area warehouses this week, indicating that this year's harvest is rapidly nearing its peak.

"Fast and furious" was the way Ada Westendorf of Lewiston Grain Growers' Kendrick facilities described the deliveries coming into that firms warehouses Tuesday. She said some six million pounds of grain, mostly wheat, had come into LGG facilities at closing time Monday night. Cavendish warehouse had unloaded 140 trucks Monday and Kendrick had taken in 107 trucks. The grain continued to look good in both quality and quantity with yields from some fields ranging upward to 102 bushels per acre received from some growers.

Bill Wood, manager of Genesee Union Warehouse in Genesee reported Tuesday that harvest was "fast and furious" in the Genesee area. "Everything's going," Wood responded when asked to describe the harvest situation. He estimated that harvest had not yet reached the halfway mark, but that it would probably be reached by the weekend.

Joe Watts at the Kendrick Rochdale said the storage facilities of that Kendrick cooperative had just about been filled. "If the bins aren't full by Tuesday night, they will be by Wednesday," he said. The Rochdale has been averaging about 135 trucks a day during harvest, but Monday's truck deliveries jumped to 158.

Dean Broeke at Broeke and Sons, Kendrick, said Tuesday that most of the small sieve Alaska peas could be in by the end of this week and that harvesting of Yellow and Austrian peas are just getting started. No lentils have been delivered as of Tuesday afternoon, Dean reported. The Rape seed harvest has also not started.

Much of Nakai's interest was centered around the production of small sieve Alaska green peas. Japan imports about 2500 ton of green peas each year and the Kasuo Co. handles about 1,000 tons of this quota, which is set by the Japanese government. Once the peas are imported into Japan, the Kasuo Co. sells the dry peas to canners who reconstitute them and put the peas up in small bottles or cans for retail use. In Japan these peas are rarely used as a side dish as they are here in the United States. Instead the Japanese housewife or restaurant chef uses the peas as garnish to main courses such as American cooks might use parsley or water cress.

American farmers, through the aggressive marketing efforts of independent seedsmen such as Broeke and Sons, have made excellent inroads into the Japanese market, but both Broeke and Nakai indicated that the main share of the peas imported into Japan comes from the United Kingdom.

Broeke and the Japanese visitor spent quite of time discussing the possible local production of a variety of green peas called "Marrowfat." This is a much larger variety than the small sieve and are used in Japan and other Far East nations as a "frying pea." The Marrowfat is processed in Japan much as American firms treat peanuts: deep fat fried in oil, treated with a variety of seasonings or just salted and then sold as a snack food. This is a popular commodity in Japan, according to Nakai and his country imports approximately 8,000 tons of the Marrowfat peas annually. Presently almost all of this pea comes from England, New Zealand, or in lesser quantities, from Holland.

However, the Marrowfat can be grown in this area and that is what interests Broeke and some agricultural scientist at Washington State University where test plots are now being established. Color plays an important role in the desirable marketing characteristics of the Marrowfat pea. To maintain its sought-after green color, the peas must be swathed at a certain stage of growth, allowed to dry and then harvested.

The Garbanzo bean, or chick pea, is also a legume that the Japanese as well as Americans are interested in. Approximately 80 percent of this bean is imported, with Mexico being the largest producer. Tests are now being conducted to determine the feasibility of attempting to establish this crop in the northwest.

Nakai was impressed with the quality of this year's small sieve Alaska pea harvest coming into the warehouses of Broeke and Sons at Kendrick. "Better than last year," he said. "The size and color are very even, very good," he explained, adding that these are important to Japanese canners.

From Kendrick Nakai went on to Spokane for more tours of warehouses and growers' fields. He will later travel to Nebraska, Colorado, Michigan and into Canada during the six months he is in this country.

Free Lunch, Reduced Price Milk Program Explained for Genesee School District

The Genesee Joint School District No. 282 today announced its policy for free and reduced-price meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals served under the National School Lunch Program.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced-price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted at any time during the year. A simple statement of income and family size is required, plus a signed certification by the parent or guardian that the information provided is correct.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a family has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, they should contact the school.

Under the provisions of the policy George Crawford will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. If he wishes to make a formal appeal, he may make a request, either orally or in writing to Jack Spangler, Rtl. 1, Box 112, Genesee, Idaho 285-1555 for a hearing to appeal the decision. The policy contains an outline of the hearing procedure.

If family member becomes unemployed or if family size changes, the family should contact the school to file a new application. Such changes may make the children of the family eligible for reduced-price meals, or for addition benefits such as free meals if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In the operation of child feeding programs, no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, or national origin.

Each school and the office of the Superintendent has a copy of the complete policy which may be reviewed by any interested party.

Listed below are the mandatory income poverty guidelines for free and reduced-price meals.

God Bless you all and thank you all again.

They traveled through the St. Joe National Forest and saw the white pine trees on their way to Coeur d'Alene, where they had lunch. They then went to the Cataldo Mission and visitors center where they learned the Coeur d'Alene tribe was having their feast of assumption and since the public was invited they joined them for their feast prepared by the Indian women. This feast is always held on August 15 of each year. After the feast there was a pagan and Indian dances with the Indians dressed in their native costumes which they had made. There was also a pilgrimage to the cemetery and Mass in the Mission. They also witnessed the baptism of a baby. We all agreed that this was a most entertaining, educational, fabulous afternoon we had every spent.

Some UI Majors Will Have New Core Courses in Fall

Marlene Fritz
 Asst. Agricultural Editor

Moscow Incoming freshmen majoring in agricultural economics, animal sciences and plant and soil sciences at the University of Idaho College of Agriculture will be taking core curricula in those for the first time this year.

While the UI College of Agriculture has had a general core curriculum for its students, the individual majors had not offered such a structure until this year.

"This will give students a more solid base in the discipline they choose," said Richard C. Dobson, associate dean of the College of Agriculture, "and we'll have a definite idea of the basis they're operating from. It also gives them more flexibility. They can move from option to option more easily."

Most of the core courses can be taken in the freshman and sophomore years Dobson said.

Core courses in agricultural economics include classes in agricultural, English, applied statistics, chemistry, communications, computer science, economics, English, humanities and social sciences, life sciences and physical education.

In animal sciences, they include courses in biology, English, chemistry, communications, humanities & social sciences, and physical education.

Core courses in plant and soil sciences include classes in agricultural mechanics, botany biology, chemistry, mathematics, plant sciences, soils, humanities, and social sciences and physical education.

Dobson said the core curricula had been "in the work" for three years and finally came to fruition with the new catalog.

Perce, by the above named plaintiff, and you are hereby directed to file a written answer or a written motion in defense to said complaint within twenty (20) days of the date of the service of this summons upon you; and you are further notified that unless you do so within the time herein specified, the plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed in said complaint.

The object and purpose of this action is to quiet title to the real property hereinabove described in the plaintiff against the defendants known and unknown, hereinabove named as defendants in the title and caption of this action.

Fighting Bugs With Germ Warfare

Insects can be real pests. They bite and sting us, often passing on serious diseases, destroy our crops, and as California's Mediterranean fruit fly epidemic demonstrates, they can threaten an entire state's economy. But according to the current issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, farmers and gardeners are fighting back without using harmful pesticides by "trying to give diseases to insects."

Many growers use a sort of "germ warfare" to rid their crops and gardens of harmful insects. Their weapons are various micro-organisms such as bacteria, viruses, protozoa, and fungi. The environmental advantage to these micro-organisms is that they are "species specific" meaning they do their dirty work on only one insect species. Unlike pesticides, they don't wipe out all the bugs in their path, some of which may be beneficial to the gardener.

The National Wildlife Federation monthly publication for young people notes that a strain of bacteria called milky spore disease is often used to kill Japanese beetles, a common garden pest. Cotton growers also use germ warfare to fight what is probably the most commercially damaging insect, the cotton bollworm. The insect's larva is buried deep inside the bottom ball, where pesticides can't reach. So nematodes, tiny wormlike organisms usually regarded as pests themselves, are applied to the cotton crop. Carrying with them a bacteria that kills the bollworm larvae, the nematodes consume dead embryos, leaving the plant intact. Certain bacteria-carrying nematodes are also responsible for leveling such insects as corn borers, cabbageworm larvae, and tobacco budworm larvae.

Unfortunately, some strains of micro-organisms can harm beneficial insects, for as Ranger Rick points out, "just like people, insects can be infected with different kinds of bacteria, viruses, and fungi." While we don't usually notice a bug with a bug, the honeybee can be struck by two serious diseases foisted by beekeepers.

"One of the worst diseases bee larvae can get is called foulbrood," says Ranger Rick. The disease is caused by a type of bacterium which kills the honeybee larvae, leaving behind a bad-smelling hive. No cure has been found.

Bird Habitat Impacted By Huge Range Fires

Recent range fires that burned almost 200,000 acres in south central Idaho could result in a cutback on sage grouse limits and seasons for a portion of that area.

"There is a possibility that we have lost a substantial number of sage grouse chicks—the fires could have taken a majority of this year's hatch," according to Bill Webb, Department of Fish and Game. He is a regional supervisor based in Jerome.

Webb said in inspection of the burned areas also showed probably impact on habitat "extremely important" to wintering pheasants and the resident antelope population.

The first fire burned some 73,000 acres north of Minidoka. The second, near Kamama, covered 55,000 acres and the third burn south of Richfield spread over about 87,000 acres.

Damage studies will be conducted in the Idaho State Wildlife Conservation areas, 164 North Madison and 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the Deer Park National Wildlife Refuge headquarters building.

State game bird manager Dick Norrell said the only major recommended change for upland game will be a proposal to close the fall season for wild turkey. Fluctuations in turkey populations lead him to believe habitat for the birds is marginal. "There has been little expansion in the flock over the past two years and we will recommend a closure of the fall hunt," Norrell said.

The department has been supplementing the flocks with birds from South Dakota and Norrell said he wants to see how the populations respond. "We will recommend, however, that the spring hunt for gobblers be continued," he added.

Proposed change in furbearer and trapping regulations include a requirement that bobcat and lynx pelts be tagged, along with establishment of the $7.50 fee for bobcat lynx tags authorized by the 1981 Legislature.

Other recommended amendments would limit nonresidents to taking furbearers by trapping only and require permit holders for controlled muskrat trapping to file reports with the department.

By Nellie Dean Steigers

Home from Houston—James "Jim" Steigers, who has, for over the past 8 months, been employed by "Pennzoil" in Houston, Texas, arrived at the home of his grandparents at Cherrylane during the past week. Weary of the crowded city, he is taking a leisurely vacation, enjoying the scenery at many points along the way. With his car or motorcycle, he perhaps will continue his travels during the rest of the summer months—young and still free!

"Visions Quest" for 40!—On Sunday evening, August 16, a large group of young men, traveling by covered wagon, horse-back and perhaps foot, were seen encamped on the alfalfa fields at Cherrylane. A rehabilitation project, these young people are spending a year, reliving the early pioneer journeys of their ancestors and seeking a new outlook on life. The end of their travels will again be their starting point—Arizona or? (Different than a week ago) when fire threatened! at the same place).

Mildred's News—After the excitement of Mildred Heath's last week's celebration, things are again back to normal. Fay Heath Scoggins flew to her home in California on Sunday morning after a week's stay with her mother. The book Fay has recently edited on her mother's life, and many relatives, is a pleasure to read!

Mrs. Erma Stevens spent Sunday in Moscow with the Ernie Pfleger family. Granddaughter Cindy returned for a week's visit at Stony-point.

Moscow High School Reunion! 1931 - 1981—

As told by John Talbott on Sunday evening, this gathering, at Moscow on the Aug. 15-16 weekend was a great success! According to their printed program, many have died, some could not attend, but a large group could and did! John, himself; our Flora Henth Gibbs; 'Becky' Fleming Olson and husband Lester from Consort, Alberta—to name a few!

On Saturday, at the Cherrylane garden spot, Bob Coffland of Joel, with his son Ed Coffland and little boys Joey and Sam, and Lester Olson were callers to the Ernest Steigers— their ladies had gone shopping in Moscow. 'Becky' Fleming Olson is an older sister of Bob's wife, Nina Coffland. John was surprised to learn Flora has a trailer home at North Cherrylane!

Other visitors in the E. Young Bill and family returned homeward to Utah on Monday morning where he will graduate with his master's degree in Forestry from B. Y. U., as co-valedictorian of his class. He unworriedly informed grandma Nellie that he would have a full three days to prepare his speech, after his arrival home! Said to fill the allotted 7 minutes time might require "ums" and "ahs". He will do well!
