

Genesee Exhibit Opens At Historical Society

"Welcome to the Garden Spot of the Palouse—Genesee" is a new exhibit now open at the Latah County Historical Society. The exhibit tells the history of Genesee from its founding by Mr. Stone in 1870, its boom as a railroad head in the late 1800's, and its evolution into a small agriculturally-based community in the 1980's.

The original Genesee townsite was established in 1875 about one mile east of the present site. In 1888, the Spokane & Palouse Railway refused Jacob Rosenstein's land price to build its terminus in "old" Genesee. John Vollmer, a S & P Railway partner, bought forty acres located west of the town, sold it to the railroad, and the company built its station there. The new town, also named Genesee, was incorporated in 1889 and slowly the old town was abandoned.

Exhibit photographs and artifacts show many views of the town, its businesses and professions, and its churches and schools over the past 107 years such as the railroad, banks, hotels, creamery, saloons, pool hall, clothing and hardware stores, drug stores, and post office. However, Genesee's main economic base was in agriculture, and the founding of the Genesee Farmers Union in 1909. Events outside Latah County had an impact here, too. The Genesee Militia was called up to help quiet the unrest in the Coeur d'Alene mining riots in 1892 and served again in 1883 with the University Cadet Corps (Moscow) in the Spanish-American War.

The Genesee exhibit was researched and designed by Diane Becker, former curator of collections at the Historical Society and resident of Genesee. Broemeling Welding Shop of Genesee partially funded the display. The public is invited to visit this new display at the McConnell Mansion located at 110 S. Adams St. in Moscow. The Mansion is open Wednesday through Saturdays 1-4 p. m. A smaller exhibit about Genesee will be placed this week at the Latah County Courthouse.

Genesee People Attended Cenex Young Couples Conference in Sandpoint

"Your Cooperative Involvement" was the theme of a three-day Young Couples Conference recently attended by Doug and Judith Moser, Leroy and Beth Zenner and Jim and Ellen Hermann, all of Genesee.

The Conference was held at the Edgewater Inn at Sandpoint. It focused on cooperative principles, responsibilities of co-op board members, managers, and member development. The young couples participated in discussions relating to the co-ops' financial needs, the role of the farm organizations, and shared ideas about their local co-ops.

Stan Lehman, vice-president of Seed and Feed, Cenex, of St. Paul, Minnesota, was the guest speaker at the banquet. The conference was sponsored by Cenex, Idaho and Washington State Granges, Idaho American Institute of Cooperation and local cooperatives. Cenex is a regional supply cooperative supplying 1500 cooperatives in thirteen states.

KEEP YOUR DATES!

Commercially purchased dates do store well: at room temperature for months; refrigerated for as long as a year; or frozen up to five years, says Sunset Magazine. Sugar crystals may form on dates stored at room temperature but this does not affect flavor and can be wiped off with damp cloth.

The Historical Society is located in the McConnell Mansion, 110 S. Adams St., in Moscow. Admission for this program is 50c for general public and free to Historical Society members.

Protect Those Pearly Whites

Poets have compared them to jewels of immeasurable value. Yet many of us treat them like coal, neglecting their importance and assuming they'll last forever.

Your teeth. Without them, you couldn't chew or even speak (too clearly, at least). And your face wouldn't have the shape it deserves. Keeping your teeth is a life-long endeavor—one that entails both sound dental hygiene habits and wise eating habits. These are habits parents must help their child develop at an early age.

That's one reason the American Dental Association has designated February as National Children's Dental Health Month: to remind parents that they're responsible for protecting their child's pearly whites. Even before your child is born, you bear that responsibility. Pregnant women for instance must make certain to eat foods that will provide the developing fetus with the nutrients necessary for building strong, healthy teeth and bones. Those nutrients are calcium, phosphorus and vitamins A, D and C.

Of course, the construction job that begins during the prenatal period doesn't end at birth. In fact, it usually lasts—at least in terms of teeth—the first 12 years of your child's life. So parents should be sure their child continues to get all the nutrients needed to supply the "mortar" for this ongoing building process. That means serving foods from the milk and fruit-vegetable groups—foods rich in those nutrients.

Parents are also responsible for teaching the importance of brushing and flossing. By the time your child's first teeth are completely formed, he should be fully familiar with how to brush and floss. And about this time—usually age three—your child should make his first trip to the dentist.

It's important, too, that your child is given the benefit of fluoride in his diet. A mineral your body needs only in minute amounts, fluoride helps protect teeth from decay. Most communities now fluoridate

MOTOR VEHICLE ACCIDENTS

Motor vehicle accidents are a major health problem in Idaho!

Most people are aware that heart disease, cancer, and stroke are the leading overall causes of death in Idaho and other states. However, when one reviews the leading causes of death in various age groups, other information emerges.

The 1980 Vital Statistics Report shows that accidents are the leading cause of death from age 1 to age 44. In 1980, 605 people died in Idaho as a result of accidents.

Motor vehicle accidents accounted for 351 (58 percent) of these deaths, including 127 Idaho young people between 15 and 24 years of age.

In this age group, there were more deaths from motor vehicle accidents than all other causes combined. If we had an outbreak of a polio-like disease which killed 127 young people in one year, the people of Idaho would see it as a major tragedy and would demand action; however, we seem to take motor vehicle accidents

It should be recognized that we have only considered here one measure of the problem; that is, lives lost. We have not begun to count the disability that we can identify in every community which is also a measure of this very serious problem.

There are many elements to the solution of the problem of motor vehicle accidents. And we are all involved. Some of the key steps include:

- Using seat belts;
- Observing posted speed limits;
- Using car seats for infants and young children;

their water for this reason. If your water is not fluoridated, your dentist may recommend a fluoride supplement. And even if it is, he may administer a fluoride treatment directly to your child's teeth—for added protection.

As parents, many of us have heirlooms—diamond rings, pearl necklaces and the like—we intend to pass on to our children. But we must remember that some of the most priceless gems we can leave them are the ones glistening in their mouths.

Tax Incentives for Rehabilitation of Historic Buildings Workshop

A workshop about tax incentives for rehabilitation of depreciable historic buildings will be held February 1st from 1 to 4:30 p. m. at the Lewiston Community Center at 142 Main Street. Property owners, developers, investors, bankers, attorneys, tax consultants, city officials, architects, planners, and realtors should find this workshop of particular interest. The new 1981 Economic Recovery Act is expected to have significant impact on historic buildings and commercial districts by providing generous incentives to rehabili-

- Driving without the influence of alcohol or other drugs;
- Maintaining vehicles in good working order;
- Planning travel under the most favorable conditions;
- Being alert to others who persist in using the automobile as a weapon instead of as a means of transportation.

Many motor vehicle accidents can be prevented. Each one of us has a stake in the prevention of this health problem.

tate still useful, but often neglected older buildings.

The owner will be able to take an investment tax credit of 25 percent of the rehabilitation expenditures and to depreciate those over 15 years. These tax credits for certified historic rehabilitations apply to depreciable residential and commercial properties. Investment tax credits of 15 and 20 percent are also available for 30 and 40 year-old non-historic, non-residential buildings.

Topics to be discussed include investment tax credits, standards for rehabilitation, the role of historic preservation, and other tax incentives for historic preservation such as easements and property tax abatements. The speakers represent the Idaho State Historic Preservation Office, the National Park Service, and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

The workshop is open to the public, free, and no pre-registration is required.

MUZZLE LOADERS CLUB DISPLAY

The Hog Heaven Muzzleloader Club of Moscow will display weapons from the 1600s to the 1870s at the Latah County Historical Society on Sat., Feb. 13 from 1-4 p. m. According to club member Lorraine Micke, these are the black powder muzzle loaded guns used in the settling of America.

"Muzzle loading as a sport also involves researching the history of your gun and the time period in which it was used," said Micke. "From this research shooting accessories, clothing and camping equipment are made to coincide with the appropriate historical period." Club members will demonstrate of the different skills and crafts needed and used in the production of their items. These include knifemaking, Indian beadwork, historical clothing and pattern making, trapping, and

DON'T LET TIGHT MONEY LEAVE YOU IN THE COLD.

A house that leaks energy can leave you in the cold. Both physically and financially.

By improving insulation and sealing up energy leaks, however, you can start saving from 10% to 45% on your heating bills this winter.

But coming up with the money to make improvements can be tough these days.

That's where our Weatherization Loan Program comes in.

If you've been heating your home with electricity since before November 1, 1981, we'll loan you the money you need to weatherize your house and stop those energy leaks. You pay no interest on this money. No monthly installment payments. And you don't have to pay it back for up to 10 years.

Why interest-free loans? Because the better insulated your home is, the less electricity it takes to heat it. By helping you conserve electricity today we can help hold down the demand for new and more expensive sources of electricity tomorrow.

We'll give you a free home energy survey to show you how and where you can save money and energy, regardless of how you heat your home. And tell you if you qualify for an interest-free Weatherization Loan.

Just send us the coupon. Without obligation, of course.

The sooner you do it, the sooner we can start helping you save money on heating bills!

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH—

Heart Disease: You Can Do a Lot—

We should consider ourselves lucky. Heart disease is the leading cause of death in the United States, but 9 of its 11 major risk factors are within our control. The only ones we cannot do anything about are family history and age. However, these may not be as important as we once thought.

Why do half of us in this country die of some form of heart disease? Because too many of us are either unaware of or indifferent to its causes. We have not been convinced that the inconvenience of changing our habits is worth the increased span of healthy life we could obtain. The following things place us in higher risk: cigarette smoking, diets high in sugar and fat, insufficient activity, obesity, high blood pressure, diabetes, high levels of fatty substances in the blood called triglycerides, stress and not enough of a protective substance in the blood called high density lipoprotein, or HDL.

It is unusual for any of these risk factors to be present alone. Each factor has a way of relating directly or indirectly with another. If we accept these factors as "unhappy fate," fate may deal with us before we are really ready.

We prefer to look at this information as good news. Eliminate or decrease one risk factor, and other risk factors may also decrease. So, which of these heart disease risk factors would you like to weaken today? Only one you say, because only you and your doctor know which risk factors you have. Only you know which one will be the easiest for you to weaken, or defeat completely.

Keep in mind that success against one risk factor will have effects on one or more of the others. I started to wish you good luck, but it is not luck. Most of your risk factors are your choice.

HEART DISEASE IS NUMBER ONE KILLER IN IDAHO

Forty-five percent of the deaths this year will be due to heart disease or stroke, according to Dr. Wayne Wright, President of the American Heart Association of Idaho.

They are among the nearly one million American deaths from heart disease and stroke this year. One of every five of those deaths occurs before the victim reaches the most productive years of life. Dr. Wright said neighborhood volunteers for Heart Month, February will be distributing Heart Association information and collecting contributions. The Heart Association is the only voluntary health agency whose sole mission is to reduce early death and disability from heart disease and stroke.

"With your support and contributions the Heart Association can continue its programs of research, and professional and public education to reduce early death and disability from heart disease and stroke," Wright said.

Harassment Can Be Fatal For Big Game Animals

By Rick Gilchrist
 Dept. of Fish and Game

Put yourself in their place. You haven't eaten a decent meal for weeks. It's cold and it causes you to require more food than normal to supply the necessary energy to keep warm.

Then there's the added problem of trudging through snow several feet deep. It's tough. The last thing you need when you're cold, tired and hungry is to run in a 100-meter dash.

That's the situation many deer are facing at this time of year. With the prolonged snowcover on the ground, the deer are having a more difficult time finding food. Many will die which is one of nature's ways of culling out the weaker animals.

The snowmobile. This machine allows people in increasing numbers to get into areas previously limited to foot travel. Snowmobiles with their speed, noise and human cargo are alarming to deer. Their response is to flee. This causes them to expend additional energy and brings them close to an untimely end.

Dale Von Steen, the Department of Fish and Game regional land manager based in Garden City, points to an example of a problem that crops up in many places throughout the state.

The Boise Front, he says, is one area where deer and snowmobiles are coming into increasing conflict. This 20,000-acre area provides winter range for deer coming in from the length and breadth of the Boise River drainage.

"Because it's closer to town, many people use this area for snowmobiling. With the concentrations of deer on the area at this time, conflicts are inevitable—to the deer's misfortune.

"While we have closed some of the roads it's not feasible, or desirable to close the area completely," Von Steen said. "We therefore ask snowmobilers to go elsewhere, avoid deer areas and if they should happen upon some deer—for heaven's sake, leave them alone."
