

Potato Seed Offers Unusual Adventure
Clifton Anderson
Associate Agricultural Editor

Aberdeen, Idaho—A U. S. Department of Agriculture Scientist says gardeners who enjoy out-of-the-ordinary experiences should try growing potatoes from tiny seeds.

"This year, seed companies are selling true potato seed. You can start potato plants for your garden from a packet of seed," said Dr. Joseph J. Pavlek, a USDA geneticist who conducts potato breeding research at the University of Idaho Research and Extension Center in Aberdeen.

"Don't expect potatoes grown from true seed to yield as well as potatoes grown in the ordinary manner. A small seed won't give the young plant nearly as much nourishment as an ordinary seed-piece would provide. Therefore, the plant take off at a slower rate," Pavlek said.

A potato seed is about one-fourth the size of a tomato seed the USDA geneticist pointed out.

"Potatoes coming from seed are not as vigorous as tomato seedlings. They're slow to get started—very much like ground cherry seedlings," he said.

Pavlek offered these suggestions for growing potatoes from seed: Plant seed in pots or trays indoors. From a sowing in mid-April plants should be ready for transplanting in the garden in mid-May.

—Care for young seedlings like tomato plants. They need to be placed on a sunny window sill or in another well-lighted location. They are highly susceptible to damping-off disease.

—All potato plants will not be uniform and some will lack vigor. It is advisable to grow three plants at each hill. That way, at least one should grow vigorously.

—Consider your spuds-by-seed venture as an experiment and not as a surefire project. You may want to grow some potatoes the conventional way.

To develop new varieties of potatoes, Pavlek sows thousands of potato seeds each year. His seedlings are grown in greenhouses and shade-houses.

"Potato breeders in New York and Minnesota transplant seedlings to their field plots. In more moderate climates, potato seed is sowed directly in the field," he said.

True potato seed may eventually gain popularity in Third World countries, Pavlek said.

"If potatoes are to be planted in areas where seed potatoes are not readily available it would be an easy matter to have true potato seed flown in. We can expect to see more extensive use of true potato seed," he said.

More Students Register For Residence Hall Housing At University of Idaho

Moscow—More than 1,800 students have pre-registered for housing in University of Idaho residence hall for the fall semester, a total that is slightly higher than this time last year according to Ron Ball, assistant director of student housing.

This could be an indication that fall enrollment records will be broken at UI again, Ball admitted, as housing pre-registration is usually a good indicator of enrollment trends. "The students make a $50 deposit to reserve their housing for the fall semester so they have made a financial commitment to attending," he said.

Last year's fall enrollment at UI set an all-time record with 8,998 students at both campus and off-campus locations.

With a residence hall capacity for 2,050 students, there are not many vacancies left, but Ball noted that student housing will continue to take reservations through registration as it has done in the past.

"We usually handle a large number of reservations during registration," he said. "We are prepared for that."

Students wanting to pre-register for residence hall housing should write to the Residence Halls Office, Wallace Residence Center, University of Idaho, Moscow, Idaho 83848 and request a contract.

These residence halls will officially open Friday, August 20, Ball said. The three housing projects operated by the university for family housing are full. Ball noted this housing is usually reserved well in advance.

For off-campus housing information students should consult the Housing Referral Service operated by the Associated Students of the University of Idaho (ASUI). Information is available daily by call-

New Student Orientation At U of I Starts August 20

Moscow—New student orientation at the University of Idaho starts Aug. 20 and is designed to answer the questions of students who will be new to the campus this fall.

Students start moving into residence halls at noon Friday, Aug. 20. Rest and relaxation with refreshments will be available in the Wallace Cafeteria from noon to 4:30 p. m. Campus tours, placement examinations, university information meetings and a variety of social events are planned to last through the weekend.

Events Saturday, August 21, include a chemistry placement exam at 9:00 a. m. in Physical Science III for students planning to take Chemistry 103 or III, international student orientation from 9 to 11 a. m. in room 101 of the University Classroom Center, and a general orientation session at 1 p. m. in the Student Union Building ballroom.

On Sunday, August 22, new students can pick up registration forms at the Library Reserve Room and attend pre-registration workshops at 9:30 a. m., 10:30 a. m. or 2 p. m. in UCC rooms 12 or 13. There is also an orientation session from 10 a. m. to noon or 1 to 3 p. m. at the SUB for National Student Exchange students.

A variety of advising and orientation meetings are scheduled by the different colleges and students should check with the college of their major to learn of events they should attend. Also on Sunday, there will be an orientation session for older returning students 1:30-4:30 p. m. at the Women's Center, an ice cream social from 4:30-5:30 p. m. at the Campus Christian Center and a "Night on the SUB" movie at 7 p. m. at the SUB.

On Monday, Aug. 23 returning students will pick up registration ing (208) 885-6484 and an up-to-date handout list is prepared weekly and available at the SUB Information Desk and the handout list is prepared weekly and available at the SUB Information Desk and the ASUI Office in the Student Union Building.

Additional information may be requested from the Moscow Chamber of Commerce 10... East Third, Moscow, Idaho 83843.

NUTRITION FOR TODAY

Food for thought—and learning

Jodi, like millions of other children in the United States, goes to school hungry.

Otherwise bright and responsive, she often becomes sluggish and irritable by mid-morning. From that point until lunch, her mind wanders and she participates only half-heartedly in classroom activities. Sometimes all she pays attention to is the growling in her stomach.

Jodi did well last year in the third grade. This year, however, the going is a bit rough: her grades have slumped and the teacher has labeled her "an occasional discipline problem."

Children are our investment in the future. And as with any investment, we must give them the opportunity to grow and mature. That means providing them with a safe, supportive and loving learning environment. It also means providing them with proper nutrition.

Nutrition and learning, in fact, may be intrinsically related. Most educators and nutritionists now agree that well-nourished children are more likely to be alert, creative and enthusiastic than hungry children.

Despite this consensus, however, studies have revealed that fewer than 20 percent of the households materials. There will be a full-round of pre-registration advising sessions, with new student pre-registration workshops at 10 a. m. in UCC rooms 101 and 112, a financial aid work-study meeting at 11:00 a. m. in UCC rooms 101 and 112, a financial aid work-study meeting at 11 a. m. room 113, a veterans' meeting at 4 p. m. in the SUB Appalosa Room and handicapped student orientation from 2 to 3 p. m. in UCC room 241.

Other events are being scheduled and students may obtain a more complete list from Student Advisory Services when they arrive on campus.

Registration will be from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Tuesday, Aug. 24, in the Kibble Dome with students admitted according to a schedule prepared using last name initials.

Classes begin at 7:30 a. m. Wednesday, Aug. 25.

in the U. S. eat an adequate breakfast—a meal that provides one-fourth to one-third of the nutrients needed daily. And missing breakfast can leave a child nutritionally shortchanged and underfueled for the energy-consuming learning process.

Through federally funded school feeding programs, many children who don't eat breakfast at home are able to eat it at school. But these programs are on the Reagan administrator's butcher's block and, depending on which way the ax falls, may not be as widespread in the future.

As parents, teachers and concerned community members there are several ways we can observe the Week of the Young Child. One way is to make certain our children have the benefits of a well-balanced breakfast from the four food groups each day—whether served at home or at school.

After all kids like Jodi are depending on us.

The shortest distance between two points may not be a straight line.

The straightest way is usually the quickest to get from here to there. But not necessarily when you're calling say, to Richmond, Virginia.

Your call may make a turn in Boise, speed down to Dallas and then make a sharp U turn towards St. Louis. From there, your call may travel up to Chicago, then turn around again and move down to Cleveland before finally connecting in Richmond, Virginia.

That's a journey of some 4,300 miles, yet it's completed almost as soon as you finish dialing.

Your local telephone operation gives you access to a nationwide "freeway" network of communications lines. A system that chooses the fastest route between your phone and the party you're calling. And it's all done automatically. Faster than you can say Rand McNally.

During its travels, your call goes through the equipment of many different companies. Sometimes there is a traffic jam and the need for a detour. When that happens, your call is re-routed, automatically, and speeds on its way without you feeling a bump.

It goes to prove that sometimes steering a straight course isn't the fastest course to follow.

Carrie Vestal Competed In National AAU Jr. Olympics

Carrie Vestal left August 8 to compete in the National A. A. U. Jr. Olympics Basketball Tournament at Baton Rouge, La.

Carrie is a starting guard on the Lewiston girls center basketball team. The team won their first game beating Ohio's representation, but then lost their next 2 games, one of them to eventual National Champion Potomac Valley of Virginia and the other loss to the California team from South Pacific.

The Lewiston team finished 10 out of 17 teams. Following the tournament, the team spent 2 days sight seeing, including taking a river boat ride on the Mississippi river.

Carrie Vestal accompanied her daughter's team as she was one of the chaperones. Carrie and Carrie returned home August 16.

The Vestals and Lewiston team wish to express their thanks to the good people of Genesee for their help in sharing expenses, making this trip to Baton Rouge so pleasant for the young players.
