At Kendrick Meal Site

Vol. 93

Wednesday, December 22, was the date of the Christmas dinner held at the Kendrick Meal Site, Eighty-one persons were served a delicious turkey dinner. We sang happy birthday to Ida Fleshman, who was celebrating her 90th birthday anniversary

Very fitting for the day, was that a baby afghan, crocheted and donated by Mrs. Fleshman, was raffled off. Thelma Leister was the lucky winner of the afghan. Second prize of three beautiful clothes hangers donated by Josephine Schupfer, now of Coeur d'Alene, was Olive Fabian. Third prize winner of a loaf of Ruth White's good cinnamon swirl bread was Ila Courtright.

We then enjoyed music of Christmas carols and old time tunes by comfortable chairs, warm fires, the Leroy Ross of Deary and Charles thought of a good book are calling Hyde of Lewiston, both playing the bass violin; Al Lythrup of Ferdinand on the violin; Nellie Neiman, Culdesac and Viola Johns of Juliaetta, both played the piano.

Special dinner guests were Donna, Phil and Scott Heinen. Santa Claus and laughter and treats for all.

Thanks so very much for the beautiful music, the gifts for the raffle and to the Heinens for the many goodies that find their way over to into this area. Many cases of the our table, and also thank you to Santa Claus and your beautiful wife for just being you.

December birthdays were honored at the Dec. 29 meal day. Four senior citizens had celebrated their December birthdays and Ida Fleshman was given the "senior of the month" award, as she had turned 90 years old. A red banner with gold lettering was draped around her. We all

Cold, Snow, Rain, Slush - Now the Flu!

The old year went out in a blast of cold weather; the New Year swept in with a two-inch or better up and rain turned the snow covering to a slushy mess. While all this was occurring on the weather scene, the "flu bug" settled over much of this region bringing misery to a number of local residents.

There was a mild snow fall in Kendrick Christmas evening, but it left little more than an inch of covering on the ground. The temperature remained very cold, with the thermometers dropping down into the low teens, 12 to 15 in Kendrick and Juliaetta and near the zero mark on several nights up on the hills. The weather remained clear and cold untill New Year's day when about two inches of snow fell in the valley. Monday night the skies clouded over and the temperatures rose, but rain fell. The combination of 35 to 40 degree temperatures and rain quickly reduced the snow on the ground made his appearance bringing joy into a sea of slush. Rain was still falling late Tuesday night as the mercury read 35 degrees.

The annual and dreaded "flu season" also appears to have moved flu have been reported in Kendrick, Juliaetta and Genesee and surrounding areas, bringing great distress and discomfort to those afflicted by Members of the Kendrick Volunteer Fire Department got their last fire call of the year about 8:00 p. m. Friday night, December 31, when a chimney fire threatened at the home of Mrs. Elsie Deobald. The firemen responded quickly and little damage was reported.

New Year's Regulations On Steelhead Fishing

Since the 1983 spring steelhead season began where the 1982 fall season left off, it really feels like one, long season. But two important Changes make the new Idaho Steel-

Steelheaders will discover the first Couper. Maternal great-grandmoth- one when they buy a 1983 steelhead permit. Accompanying the permit are two strips of yellow, steelhead tags, one set for the spring season and one for the fall. Whenever a steelhead is caught, one of the these tags must be dated by notching the appropriate month and day and attached directly to the fish. A short piece of finshing line works well, threaded through the pre-punched hole in the tag and looped through the mouth and gills. To complete the bookkeeping, the date of catch, stream, and stream section must be then entered on the permit card.

While the new tag regulation applies to all steelhead fishermen, the second regulation change affects only steelheaders on the Salmon River. Previously, anglers were restricted to fishing with barbless hooks on that stretch of the Salmon from Vinegar Creek boat ramp upstream to Long Tom Creek. In addition, only steelhead with dorsal fins measuring 2¼ inches or less could be kept. These restrictions aimed to protect the wild steelhead by concentrating ver hosts. fishing pressure on the hatcheryraised fish. This year, to increase protection of the wild run, the barbless hook and fin regulations have been extended downstream to take in the segment of the Salmon River from the mouth to Long Tom Creek. Copies of the 1983 Idaho Spring Steelhead Regulations are available throughout the region at sports shops and Department of Fish and Game offices.

Farmers View Asia as Major Export Market

Surveying prospective foreign markets for Pacific Northwest farm products, a University of Idaho agricultural economist sees trade with East Asia gaining increased importance as financial problems overwhelm America's traditional trading partners in Europe and Latin Am-

"Some of our major trading partners have a precarious financial status. The list of countries with financial problems is lengthy and growing." said James R. Jones, in an article in the 1983 Pacific Northwest Agricultural Situation and Outlook report. The year-end report is issued jointly by the University of Idaho, Washington State University and Oregon State University.

The University of Idaho econoplight "seriously maims the credit- offices do not hae a vault to proworthiness of the rest of Eastern Europe."

Pointing to weak economic conditions in Latin America, Jones said many countries in the region have lost the ability to purchase goods from the United States.

"Mexico, Brazil, Argentina and other Latin American customers are experiencing severe problems of foregin exchange rationing and a crisis in debt management. These countries are no longer able to borrow extensively to finance additional imports." Jones said.

City of Kendrick Purchases Former Fire District Bldg.

Barring any last minute complications, the City of Kendrick now owns the building and lot which formerly was the headquarters of the Kendrick Fire Protection District. Kendrick Mayor Wayne Harris said Tuesday afternoon that the paper work has been completed for the purchase and the council will meet in the newly-acquired building this evening, Jan. 4 for its regular monthly session

The building, sheds and land were declared surplus to the State of Idaho after the state moved the headquarters of the Kendrick Fire Protection District from this town to Deary, with the explanation that the new headquarters location would be more central to the area the district

The state put an appraisal value of $7,500 on the buildings, sheds and land, which consisted of approximately one lot. The city council voted to purchase the property and after other administrative costs, such as cost of appraisal, etc., were figured into the price, the total cost to the city was $8,500.

Acquisition of this new property, will give the city greatly increased space for storage and meeting areas. For the present time, records of the mist said Poland and Romania are city will continue to be maintained deeply in debt and their financial in the old building because the new vide adequate fire and theft protection. It is planned that this protection will be installed at a later

Mayor Harris said Tuesday that no decision has been made as to the future use of the old city building, which is located in the alley north of the main business section of Ken-

GOOD SUCCESS RATES RECORDED FOR '82 CONTROLLTD HUNTS

Elk hunters this year had a success rate virtually equal to last year's season and the rate for moose hunters topped the 1981 record by 7 percentage points, acording to a Department of Fish and Game re-

Preliminary results from the department's annual telephone survey of controlled hunt permit holders showed a 2 percent success rate for elk, compared to 43 percent a year

Both success rates were about 10 percentage points above 1980, the survey showed. The 1982 projected harvest totaled 2, 230.

Moose controlled hunts, open to mas dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Idaho residents only, produced a Dale Fry and family on December hunter success rate of 89 percent with a harvest of 139 of the big game animals. The Fish and Game Commission authorized 173 moose permits this year-20 more than in

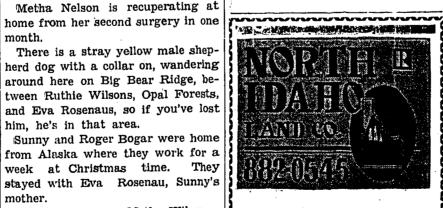

The rates are averages of the permits available and the projected harvests in management units open for controlled hunts. Members of the survey team will be working into February, when they call samplings of archery, muzzle loader and genington, Albin and Metha Nelson. A eral season hunters.

Reasons for not seeing a doctor included high cost, lack of transportation, not knowing a doctor to go to, and inability to get time off from work.

> The most common compliant the researchers found among rural people was having to wait too long in the doctor's office and too long to get an appointment. Urban people complained just as much about waiting in the office.

The youngest group of rural and semi-rural people aged (18 to 24) were most likely to be casual about a doctor when they should have, the researchers found.

Good health habits have been demonstrated to be positively related to good health, Sargeat said.

Other findings were that rural and semi-rural people were slightly more likely than urban people to get strenuous exercise, and three-quarters of the entire sample said they don't smoke at all.

Slightly more than half of the entire sample said they were between 10 and 40 pounds overweight, and few rural or urban people reported having trouble sleeing.

According to the survey, 82 percent of the residents in semi-rural counties are non-drinkers as compared to 70 percent of the entire sample who said they don't drink.

Sargent said that lack of health care personnel and facilities seemed to be the most pervasive problem in rural and semi-rural counties, in turn often related to the population and income structure of rural areas.

Rural people were less inclined to use emergency services, more inclined to delay seeking treatment a day or two. Rural health habits were as good as but not necessarily better than those of urban people the researchers found.

Export Demand Weak for Dry Peas and Lentils

Export sales of Pacific Northwest dry peas and lentils will continue to be slow until the worldwide economic recession shows signs of abating, faculty members of three land-grant universities said in an economic re-

The 1983 price outlook is not bright, according to the report which was issued jointly by the University of Idaho, Washington State University and Oregon State Uniersity. The report said U.S. dry pea production set a new record of 357 million pounds in 1982. Production of Austrian winter peas doubled and the yield of regular and small sieve green peas increased 50 percent. Yelseeking health care, or not going to low pea production was down about 10 percent.

Although domestic demand for peas has been a bit stronger, the export situation has been weak in 1982, the report said.

"Production of lentils has doubled in Turkey and Canada in the last two years and both countries have been aggressive sellers," the report said.

Supplies Hit New High

Wheat prices dipped in 1982 as supplies increased. U. S. carryover supplies were at high levels before the summer and fall harvest. When vested, the nation's wheat supplies eached an all-time high.

"Prices will remain under pressure into the 1983-84 marketing year," agricultural economists three Pacific Northwest universities said in the 1983 outlook report.

The report, issued jointly by the University of Idaho, Washington State University and Oregon State University, said the wheat market would gain strength if China and the Soviet Union were to announce large purchases of U.S. wheat.

Pacific Northwest producers were cushioned from the full effect of the 1982 price weakness, the report said.

"Pacific Northwest wheat production was down and, despite a higher carryover, the region's total supplies were below the levels of the past two years. Pacific Northwest white wheat prices were near yearearlier levels early in the marketing season and were much stronger than other wheat classes," the report

White wheat prices may show limited strength in the next few months, the report said. "The abundant supplies of soft red wheat and corn and other feed grains will keep a damper on how much soft wheat prices can rise," authors of the report added.

With yields totalling 2.81 billion bushels. (U.S. wheat production achieved a new record in 1982, the report said. U. S. supplies were said to have reached 3.97 billion bushels.

Confession Good For the Wallet

Age is not something most of us want to talk about, much less admit to. But confession can be good for the wallet as well as the soul, particularly when buying a hunting or fishing license. For example, an adult combination fishing and hunting license costs $15.50. But for sportsmen 65 to 69 years old who have lived in Idaho for the previous 10 years, the same license is only $3.50—a $12 savings that could go for tackle or ammo. At age 70, hontesty really begins to paid off: licenses are issued residency. An senior citizens aren't the only ones to get a price break, either. Teen anglers 14 to 17 years of age can save $4.00 off the price of an adult fishing license, something parents will appreciate when planning the next family outing.

free to septuagenarians with 10-year

But you have to ask. Every year, hundreds of sportsmen who are entitled to a discount pay full price for their licenses, simply because they don't mention how old they are. Age is everyone's special secret. But one a year, it's a good idea to share it with your license vendor.

On Friday, overnite guests were Bill and Laverne Harri of Clarkston. Roy and Ardythe Heimgartner were also present as supper guests on Frida at Wayne and Ruths, where the group enjoyed a luscious feed of Alaskan salmon, caught on an Alaskan vacation by Bill and Laverne Harri, this past summer.

ZOLA MAUDE NEWMAN, 97 — Mrs. Zola Newman, a continuing member of the Cottonwood Creek Community Church, who recently died at Rest Haven, at Clarkston, formerly lived on the Joe and Agnes Piper property on our Clearwater River was layed to rest in the Vineland Cemetery at Clarkston, on Friday, Dec. 31, 1982. Rev. John Skillman of Cottonwood Creek Community Church officiated. On Sunday, Jan. 2, her grandson, Dr. Willis

Newman, who recently was appointed teacher at the International College and graduate School of Theology, at Honolulu, Hawaii, conducted WILL DO HOUSECLEANING or Sunday services at the Cottonwood Creek Community Church. Present was his wife, and other members of the Newman family. All who knew her, loved her! She was a special friend of our Mildred Heath. The Pipers, who were early pioneer residents of the Leland area, before moving to the Clearwater River area, will be long remembered and loved also! Agnes was a Fleishman, before her marriage to Joe.

Christmas Holiday Travels-

On Monday, Dec. 27, the Ken Steigers family, accompanied by parents Ernest and Nellie Steigers, traveled over the Pass to Missoula, Montana, with a pleasurable journey each way. They returned on Thursday, Dec. 30. While in Montana they were entertained royally. Fourteen adult Steigers and little great-grandson Mathew, on two evenings were gathered together, at various homes.

Carolee (Mrs. Keith Steigers) received an upseting phone call during the visit from her father, Art Eller, of Lewiston, that her mother, Josie Eller, was undergoing surgery for a "pacemaker" insertion. All has gone well, so far. Mrs. Eller is in her 80's, but in this day and age, miracles are performed.

During the E. Steigers absence, several folks called at their home and were greeted by grandson Jim, who held down the home fort. These MORE STONYPOINT included Mr. and Mrs. Earl Partridge of Cottonwood Creek; Leroy Ross of Lewiston and a friend seeking information from Ernest of some early-day resident of this vicinity, and phone calls. Sorry we missed their visits! Gifts of "Christmas Goodies", were left by some!

Harlier, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Steigers and son Tyson; Mr. and Mrs. David Stelgers; and Mr. and Mrs. Rick Steigers, all of Juliaetta came on separate occasions, bearing gifts! Bless them all!

Ernest has been not enjoying the miseries of an ailing hip and leg, recently, but gamely took it with him on his travels.

Cumberland wasn't a free pass.

But it was America's first generation gap. Between 1775 and 1880, generation after generation of American settlers plodded through the Cumberland Gap.

A natural pass through the Appalachians that became the gateway to the West.

It was tough going. The cost was great. In money. And lives. But they paid the price. Because they were

"The Great Gatsby"— The Junior Class is now reading "The Great Gatsby" by F. Scott Fitzgerald in English III. It is about the glitter and romance of the twenties. The story is seen through the eyes of Nick Carraway, a person liv-

When Jay Gatsby enters in the novel, you see him as a mysterious man. Nobody knows much about him. Later, you find him to be a lonely, quiet man who takes a liking to Nick.

After awhile, Mr. Gatsby tells Nick about himself and his past. He even trusts Nick with a secret noone else knows.

The book has a surprise ending, and I would recommend that if you have a junior son or daughter, you take their book and read it. -Paula Fliger
