Farm Elements Of Payment-In-Kind Program Announced

(Editor's Note: This is a report on the provisions of the payment-in-kind culture. The information is from the ed in the alarm. publication "Government and Grain" published by the National Grain and Feed Asociation and was written by built on to it. Randall C. Gordon, Director of Communications and Kendell W. Keith, Director of Economic Services, We thank Perry and MaryBell Larson of Kendrick Rochdale, who provided us with this article.)

Terming it a 'crop-swap", Presiden't Reagan last week, as expected, announced that the administration is moving ahead with its "payment in kind" program.

The president's announcement was followed by press conferences in Dallas by Secretary of Agriculture Block and in Washington at the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It was during these sessions, the latter of which was attended by the National, that many of the program specifics applying to producers were released.

But at this writing, USDA still is formulating the details on the procedures to be used by warehousemen in exchanging with the Commodity Credit Corporation the "letters of entitlement" for given commodities that producers will present in exchange for payment in kind. It is hoped that the National's frequent meetings with USDA on this subject will help to avoid serious problems or market disruptions when the program is implemented.

The payment-in-kind program will apply to 1983 crops of corn, wheat, grain sorghum, rice and cotton. PIK will not apply to 1983 crops of barlev or oats.

Four Farm Program Options With the creation of the PIK program, producers are given four basic farm program options in 1983. They -Elect not to participate in any 1983 farm programs.

-Participate only in the 20 percent reduced acreage and diversion program already announced for 1983 crops of wheat and feed grains.

-Participate in both the reduced acreage and the PIK program. Producers in this category will be able to divert 10 to 30 percent of their acreage in addition to the 20 percent of the base acreage of that commodity retired from production under the previously announced acreage reduction and diversion program. Producers will not be permitted to participate in the PIK program without | cept in return for diverting from also taking part in the acreage reduction and diversion program for age. that commodity.

Bid to withdraw 100 percent of their base acreage. Again, producers accepted will depend upon the signelecting to exercise this option will be required to comply with the 20 percent PIK category. CCC says it percent acreage reduction program for that commodity.

Sign-Up Period

County offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service began signing up producers for the PIK program on Jan. 24. The sign-up period will last until March 11. Sign-up for the already announced 20 percent acreage reduction and diversion program also will end Mar. 11. During that interval, a producer will be permitted to alter or revoke the PIK agreement he signed previously. On March 18, at a public, open meeting at each county ASCS office, the PIK offers for whole farm retirement will be considered and awarded.

A producer may participate in the program for one or more crops under the 10 to 30 percent PIK. Progrown on his farm. Likewise, farmers may enroll in PIK on one or more farms they own. All producers participating in the PIK program on a given farm will be required to sign the contract. Acreage retired under the PIK program will be required to be devoted to conservation use. Farmers who project that they will receive combined deficiency and diversion payments exceeding the current $50,000 limit may request a reduction in the land retirement percentages required under PIK, USDA says. Or, alternately, they may request PIK at 50 percent of the farm's effective yield for the applicable commodity on the conservation use acreage that would have been re-

The 10 to 30 Percent PIK Program The centerpiece of the program is the option given to producers to retire an aditional 10 to 30 percent of their base acreage in exchange for receiving commodities as "payment in kind." USDA says it will require that the acreage diverted from production be land that otherwise would have been planted in 1983. When signing up for the PIK program, farmers will contract to receive a specified percentage of the grain that would have been produced on such land. The payments in kind for wheat will be as follows:

-Wheat producers will receive 95

percent of their normal per acre yield as payment in kind. Payment will be in terms of U.S. No. 1 wheat. In addition, producers who have planted winter wheat prior to Jan. 11 will be permitted to use that land for haying and grazing purposes, and still qualify for the PIK program. For all other commodities, having and grazing will not be permitted during the six principal growing months (Feb. 28-Oct. 31).

USDA said wheat producers will be given a larger percentage of their normal yield as payment because many have already purchased the farm inputs required to plant a crop.

The total PIK payment to a producer will be comprised of the following: the above-listed percentage figure for the commodity ,times the farm program yield, times the total PIK acreage enrolled. USDA says quantity adjustments in PIK payments will be made to account for variations in the quality. USDA says that all payments made under the PIK acreage reduction program will be in the form of physical commodities, and that no cash payments will

For all commodities eligible for PIK, producers participating in the program will receive a "letter of entitlement" from the Commodity Credit Corporation a few weeks prior to the specified date of entitlement at which time the producer may take clear title to the grain. The specified entitlement dates compare roughly with peak harvest dates for the given area. For wheat, the entitlement dates range from June 1 to August 15.

Whole Farm Acreage Retirement A producer wishing to retire from production his entire base acreage for a given commodity will be required to submit a sealed "bid" that yield that he would be willing to acproduction 100 percent of his acre-

USDA says the number of these so-called "whole base" bids that are up level of producers in the 10 to 30 will honor all of the offers submitted under the 10 to 30 percent PIK before considering bids from those producers wishing to retire 100 percent of their farms' base acreage. Because of this, USDA is encouraging producers who wish to retire 100 percent of their acreage to also submit an application to retire 10 to 30 precent of the acreage under PIK. This will offer some assurance to producers that they will be able to participate in the PIK program even if USDA does not accept offers for whole farm retirement in the given county. Producers submitting sealed bids to retire 100 percent of their base acreage will be required to submit a farm program yield bid that is no higher than the payment amount specified ducers whose whole-farm bids are accepted will qualify for the paid diversion-to be paid on 10 percent of feed grain acreage diverted and 5 percent of wheat acreage diverted. Thus, PIK payments for whole farms will be made on 90 percent of the Conceivably, USDA says, if less than 50 percent of a county's acreage is retired through the combined producer participation in the 20 percent acreage reduction and 10 to 30 percent PIK programs, the department will consider the sealed bids submitted by producers who wish to retire 100 percent of their base acreage. However, importantly, the county ASCS office's decision on the number of "whole base" land retirement bids to accept will depend upon the supply-demand situation for each commodity in the area, the farm and "other relevant factors". USDA savs. USDA says it will prepare "guidelines" for individual counties stating under what criteria each county should accept bids for whole base farm retirement. CCC is reserving the right | dahl at 276-3941. under the program to reject any or all bids. If whole farm acreage retirements are considered in the county, USDA says it will honor the of the Lloyd Craigs.

Final Services Held January 20

Final services were held Thursday, iences in the special service at the January 20, 1983, for Mrs. Lillian E. Meske, who died Sunday, January 16 at 11:15 a. m. at St. Joseph's Hospital in Lewiston of cerebral hemmorrhage after being a patient for 9

She was born in Ritzville, Washington, January 6, 1920, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Sielaff. She attended the country grade school 10 miles out of Ritzville. She graduated from Ritzville High School in Nazarene Theological Seminary. It 1937. In that same year, on Nov. 24, she married Theodore Meske, a minister of Cameron Emmanuel Lutheran Church and later of the Juliaetta

In Cameron she served as Sunday School superintendent and treasurer and church organist for many years. She also sang in the choir until her death. She served as president of the she made the large candles for the altar, plus a number of pulpit and altar hangings.

She loved flowers and kept up a strawberry patch. She was known for her quilting skills, making and sewing an endless number of quilts for people in Washington, Idaho, and California. She was also known for the many cakes she made and decorated for weddings and other special occasions. She was also active in craft fairs and had served in several positions at the Nez Perce County For Local Donators Fair including superintendent of the Homemaking Division for the past two years. She was a past president of the Leland-Cameron Homemakers

In her life at Cameron, she witnessed many changes-from gas lights and getting water out of a pitcher pump to electric lights and running water. She saw new churches built in Juliaetta and Cameron and also the building of a new spaious parsonage.

She is survived by her husband at their home; her father at Ritzville; two sons. Ted Meske of Kendrick and Duane Meske of Lewiston; two daughters, Mary Abitz of Seattle and Ann Parks of Kendrick; three brothter Sielaff of Othello and Dale Sielaff of Moses Lake; a sister, Amanda Niederkleine of Ritzville; and eight grandchildren.

The funeral was held Thursday, January 20, at 2 p. m. at Cameron | ily and to both the Cameron and Emmanuel Lutheran Church with the Zion ALCW for the lovely meal Rev. John Blom officiating. HISTORICAL SOCIETY RECEIVES EARLY GENESEE RECORDS

The City of Genesee has donated a valuable collection of early city ical Society Library. Included in Paration. the donation are city council minutes from 1897 to 1917; correspondence from the 1890s to the 1950s: two volumes of city ordinances; Justice of the Peace and police court records from 1894 to 1935; birth ad death records, 1907-1911; city cemrecords from 1892 to 1917; and miscellaneous cash books and other official records. In 1980 the City deposited with the Society correspondence and miscellaneous official records from 1934 to 1970. These two donations now give the Historical Society a very complete record of the development of Genesee from the 1890s to the 1970s. In the coming months the most recent donation will be processed and added to the other Genesee records. Then the materials will be available to researchers at the Society's Library. The Latah County Historical Society actively collects city and business records, diaries, personal reminiscenses, photographs, correspondence and other materials relating to the history of the county. Once donated to the Society these materials are cleaned, processed and placed in acid free storage containers. They are extensively indexed and made available to students, genealogists, archaeologists, historians and others desiring information about the county. Individuals, organizations or businesses which have records they would like to see permanently preserved are encouraged to contact the Society at 882-1004. DEPARTMENT OF Friendship Club-The friendly Stonypoint Friendship Club met on Wednesday, January 19, with Janet Kerby as our hostess. This date was used so Janet might accompany her husband Darrell, on a trip to Boise the following day.

Twelve members were present, and 2 guests, our long-time friend, Alice Dobson Maguire, and our newer friend, Mary Hayhurst of Salt Lake

A full day's work by the quilters failed to complete the lovely spread being done at Janet's, for a friend.

Next meeting is to be held on the usual Thursday, Feb. 3, at the Cottonwood Creek home of Dorothy Partridge.

A fine dinner was served by our hostess.

Freshman Turns 15!

Tony M. Henson turned 15 on January 24. He was born in Moscow, Idaho in Gritman Memorial Hospital. He has lived in Juliaetta all his life. Tony has 2 younger sisters, Marnie and Ohelsie and one younger brother, Chad.

Tony is an active member of the freshman class. This year he has participated in football, basketball, F. F. A. and K. H. S. band, he remains undecided about track participation.

Known for his crazy personality, Tony is always telling jokes and making his classmates laugh. Maybe he gets that from his hobby, collecting comic books.

Happy Birthday Tony! Karen Reil and Marta Jensen

Some time ago, I wrote an article entitled, "Hazards of Chemical Farming." My fears were verified in Wednesday, January 19 issue, Idahonian Palouse Living entitled "Toxic Threats." Quoting from the article, "It is one thing to establish safe levels for individual compounds," he said, "but put hundreds together all at maximum safe concentrations and we may have a big problem."

I congratulate and support Mr. Hayton and the W. S. U. graduate pg m in Toxicology and pharmacology. (Mr. Hayton is chm. of the new p g m).

Again, I suggest the Soil Conser vation District supervisors take a long, hard look at their "conservation tillage pgm." The primary ingredient being chemicals. Is the risk involved worth the gain? es pecially when alternatives are available, organic farming. I further suggest all people interested in perpetuating life on earth consider the potential danger of prolonged use of chemicals and synthetics in addition to those used in agriculture.
