Grange Sponsored "Stuffed Toy" Workshop July 21

The Stuffed Toy Workshop sponsored annually by Kendrick Grange No. 413 was held July 21 at the Kendrick Senior Citizen Center under the guidance of Ruth and Nell Heimgartner.

Seven young ladies participated with Ruth and Nell as instructors and ably assisted by Karen, Carla, and Debbie Johnson, Nell's granddaughters from Lewiston.

Lunch was served at noon, compliments of Ruth Heimgartner and Ruth White.

Those creating toys were: Angie Ford, Karen Clemenstien, Danette Heinen, Kellie Corkill, Dodie and Andrea Broemeling and Debbie Johnson.

At an earlier date, at the home of Ruth Heimgartner other stuffed toys were created. Jenny Aldrich, Lynn, Leah and Chad Heimgartner, assisted by Ruth and Barbara Heimgartner, spent another productive day.

The annual Polyfill Stuffed Toy Contest is co-sponsored by the National Grange and Polyfill Products by Fairfield Processing Corp. Therefore these two groups lay the ground rules and furnish State and National Grange prizes.

This program is of great worth, as all of the stuffed toys, after judging, are donated to hospitals and children's homes throughout the nation. The toys are given to each sick or lonely child, as their very own. However, all toys are donated to hospitals and children's homes within the state of the respective Granges.

Kendrick Grange wishes to thank the Senior Citizens for the use of their center.

Many thanks, also, to those who so willingly give of their time and talent to make others happy at a time when needed. To receive one of these toys is really a highlight in the lives of the not-so-fortunate child.

Making Beef Jerky, Fruit Leather Topics at Juliaetta Library Demonstration Aug 11

"Dry It: You'll Like It". The book title says it all concerning Wendy Ringe's program at 10:30 next Thursday morning, August 11, at the Juliaetta Community Library. Wendy will demonstrate making beef jerky and fruit leather. The public is invited to attend.

An informal story time will be held for young children (ages 2-5) whose mothers might wish to attend the program.

For more information call 276-7071 or 276-4911.

Knotty Pine Inn To Re-Open Aug. 8

Newly re-modeled Juliaetta's Knotty Pine Inn is scheduled to open Monday morning, August 8, owner Iona Lawson said this week. The restaurant and bar has been closed for the past 1½ years following the death of Mrs. Lawson's husband, Walt, and an accident to her that made it impossible for her to continue operating the establishment.

Now she is feeling well again and has also just about completed considerable re-modeling efforts resulting in improved and enlarged facilities.

Iona said she will be open from 7 a. m. to about midnight each day and will offer breakfast, lunch and dinner menus as well as short orders and beer and mixed drinks.

Assisting Mrs. Lawson in operating the Knotty Pine will be Dennis Lukecart, Mrs. Edna Hamilton will return as cook.

Remodeling work on the building was handled by Doug Sloan and his crew.

Iona says she is happy to be back in operation and looks forward to seeing her former customers and meeting new ones. She plans an official grand opening August 13.

Ruby Osmundson, 86, Former Genesee Resident, Passes July 28

Ruby Belle Osmundson, 86, a native of Genesee and a Moscow resident since 1951, died Thursday at 8:25 p. m. at the Latah Care Center where she had been a patient for two weeks.

She was a former employee of the Moscow Steam Laundry where she worked 23 years.

Clara B. Candler 92 Passes July 26

Mrs. Wade (Clara) Candler, a longtime Southwick area housewife, died Tuesday evening, July 26, at Orchards Nursing home in Lewiston. Death was attributed to causes incident to aging.

Mrs. Candler was born Feb. 18, 1891 at Litchfield, Kansas to Joseph and Catherine Armitage. She was the youngest of eight children. She attended school in Colorado and Kansas. On August 12, 1912, she married Walter D. Bateman in Colorado. They moved to Southwick, Idaho in July of 1916 where they farmed. They lived in Oregon from 1926 to 1929 where Mr. Bateman was killed in an accident. She moved back to Southwick with her daughters to be close to relatives.

On Dec. 23, 1941, she married Wade H. Candler who survives her. Other survivors are four daughters, Edith Wells and Dorothy King of Lewiston, Aletha Brown of Kamiah, and Juanita Reece of Cavendish; eight granddaughters; eighteen great-grandchildren and three great-great grandchildren; six step-children, Ray Candler of Spokane, Wash., Irene Bellemire and Thelma Sudredth of Lewiston, Marie Hedeon of Redmond, Wash., Wade Candler, Jr. of Norwich, Conn., Robert Candler of Boise and many step grand and great-great grandchildren and a host of nieces and nephews. One daughter, four brothers and three sisters preceded her in death.

The funeral was held at 11 o'clock Friday morning at Malcolm's Brower-Wann Memorial Chapel with Rev. James Watson of the United Methodist Church of Cavendish officiating.

Burial was at Southwick Cemetery. The family suggested memorials be made to the State of Idaho, Division of the Blind, Boise, Idaho or to the charity of your choice.

Juliaetta Library's Summer Reading Program Ends

The Juliaetta Community Library's Summer Reading Program "Your Choice of Magic" came to a happy ending with a well-attended carnival in the park last week. Participants enjoyed games and prizes at ten booths, popcorn and pop, and a performance by Kuba the Clown.

Special thanks goes to Gravelle's Juliaetta Orchard for their donation to the apple dunking, to Kuba, the clown, Bybell, the librarian and clown at heart, and to Brent Bostick, Aaron Heady, Chad Sneve, Dodie Broemeling, Tiffany Jones, Leah Heimgartner, Tina Johnson, Lisa Bauer, Carrie Baumer, Erin Nelson and Sally Manfull, the made the fun possible.

As summer reading draws to a close, several readers have completed their goals and have received paperback book for their efforts. The latest include Kelly Holmes, Paul Vannoy, Joy Wegner, Shane Heier, Alyssa Heier, Eric Heier, Ryan Heier, Janel Shove, Katie Bacon, Robert Bacon, Lindsay Groseclose, Sylvia Groseclose, and Darbie Kechter. Congratulations!

Librarians Sharyn Curtis and Cynthia Nye expect August to be a month of R and R (Recuperation and book Rotation). So watch for new paperbacks and fresh reading material on the fiction and non-fiction shelves. Don't miss Wendy Ringe's jerky and fruit demonstration August 11 at 10:30 a.m.

Library hours Monday 3-8; Wednesdays 3-8; Thursdays 10-4; Fridays 10-noon, Saturdays 10-noon.

Safety on the Run

* Avoid running at night;

* Don't run near doorways where an attacker might hide;

* Stay away from trails or sections of trails surrounded by heavy brush or dense trees, especially if the trail is away from the roadway;

* Vary your running pattern and schedule so no one can count on seeing you in a certain place at a certain time of day;

* Let someone—your spouse, roommate, neighbor—know where you're going and how long you expect to be gone. They should alert police if you don't return as planned;

* Wear identification and carry a police whistle around your neck;

* Run defensively and be alert; listen for the sounds of people coming up behind you or beside you, and if you hear something, turn around to check it out. Watch for anyone suspicious or out of place;

* Know your route; this way you won't be unpleasantly surprised by dark or desolate areas set off from the street;

* Buy a large dog to keep you company when you run—or borrow one from a friend or neighbor.

* Take a self-defense course thru your local "Y" or recreation department.

There are 40 million runners in the United States—a very large and significant block of people. If enough runners speak out when crime threatens their enjoyment of the sport, the impact can be considerable. After looking at your own running programs, talk to friends and others you know who run and warn them about potential harm. Alert other local media to the problem and encourage them to perform a worthwhile public service by notifying their audience of potential risks and offering safety tips. Work with other runners in your area to encourage the police to keep runners informed of, trouble areas and to provide better protection and safer trails; ask employers to offer flexible schedules so runners can go out at lunch and make up time before or after work; ask your local parks and recreation department to offer self-defense courses for runners and other pedestrians.

Only if runners let each other—and their community leaders—know that they care will any action be taken. And only if runners themselves take action will they be able to run safely, without fear.

For more information about running, fitness, and safety on the run, write to the American Running and Fitness Association 2420 K Street, NW, Washington, D. C. 20037. A nonprofit educational organization, AR&FA's goal is to help people begin to continue a safe exercise program.

Sponsored in part by a grant from Mutual of Omaha Insurance Company, Omaha, Nebraska, AR&FA's "Safety on the Run" program is one of the Association's many public service and educational programs.

Animals Know How To Keep Cool

How do animals beat the heat?

By doing anything from wallowing in mud to climbing a tree, according to this month's issue of Ranger Rick, the children's publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

When the temperature soars and the sun sizzles, here's how some animals keep their cool

* The white rhino wallows in mud until its body is coated, and then cools off as the water in the mud evaporates.

* By climbing a tree, the brown bear cub is cooled by the passing breezes, which also blow away black flies and mosquitos that add to the misery of summer's heat.

* Snoozing on the beach in the hot sun, the elephant seal stays cool as it molts, or loses patches of hair and skin. It then protects and cools its tender new skin by flipping damp sand all over its body.

* Almost like hibernating, Australia's cyclorama frog digs underground to escape the heat, wraps itself in a cellophane-like sac made of old skin, and stays there until cool rains fall—sometimes for more than a year.

Both the fennec fox and the elephant flap their huge ears to cool off. The bigger the ears, the more blood vessels there are lying close to the skin; heat from the warm blood flowing through these blood vessels then passes quickly from the animals body into the air.

* The laughing gull pants like a dog and fluffs out its feathers to let its body heat escape.

* Because the cougar hunts and eats in the cool of the night, he sleeps all day.... the hotter it gets, the more his body stretches out and the more heat escapes from the body.

* The ferruginous hawk protects its chicks by shading them in the nest with its own shadow while the other parent hunts for food.

* The sand-diving lizard does just what its name implies; it dives into the sand and stays there, protected from the sun's rays, during the hottest part of the day.

COMMISSION INVITES COMMENT ON CLEARWATER NO-MOTORS PROGRAM

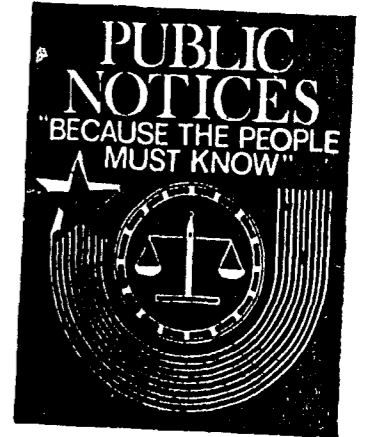

Lewiston—Before you hear from the Idaho Fish and Game Commission next month, the Commission wants to hear from you. By the time the five commissioners gather in Boise August 9 to set the 1983 fall steelhead regulations, they hope to have a good idea how anglers feel about a new proposal to regulate boat fishing.

The 1982-83 steelhead season was so outstanding that fishermen have likened it to the phenomenal 77-78 season. The statistics line up. The respective runs into the Clearwater River each totaled about 27,000 hatchery-raised fish, and anglers took home around 12,000 fish during each season. But one figure doesn't compare: the catch rate. Fishermen took ten more hours to catch a fish last season than five years ago.

This disparity has prompted the Department of Fish and Game to propose a special regulation for the upcoming fall season: a no-motors restriction on boat fishing from Orofino upstream to the mouth of the South Fork Clearwater at Kooskia. Studies suggest the drop in fishing success last season compared to 77-78 was due to an harassment factor—more anglers concentrated in the same river space caused the steelhead to become less susceptible to the hook. With their noise and vibration motorized craft are known to be a chief contributor to the problem.

Since in previous years the Clearwater River has been open only to Orofino, the regulations would not curtail existing privileges. By opening the upper stretch of the river to steelheaders this fall, fisheries managers hope to distribute fishing pressure more evenly along its entire length and provide more angling opportunity. The no-motors rule is designed to further reduce the harassment factor and increase fishing success.

At this stage the no-motors rule between Orofino and Kooskia is only a proposal. Let your views be known by writing or calling the Department of Fish and Game, 1540

Fish Care and Cooking Tips Given

By Stu Murrell
 Department of Fish and Game
 We have a problem in many of our fishing areas when fish are inadvertently spoiled and wasted thru lack of knowledge on proper field care and this is particularly serious during hot weather months.
 A typical situation involves people bank fishing on reservoirs when air temperatures may be in the 90's and the shoreline water temperature heated to 75-85 degrees. Fish placed on a stringer in this warm water rapidly die and the flesh softens or they spoil if allowed to remain in the water. The best method of keeping them under these conditions is to immediately put them in a cold chest.
 Another problem is seen around campgrounds where garbage cans have trout discarded by fishermen who either had them spoil or caught a large number with little thought about utilizing the excess fish. Never catch more than you plan to eat and learn the proper method for releasing the fish unharmed.

There is no minimum size limit in Idaho so any length trout can be retained as your limit. However, if you wish to release a fish, then there are excellent instructions on Department of Fish and Game fishing regulations:

- (1) Do not squeeze the fish.
- (2) Do not hold the gills or hold the fish by the gill covers.
- (3) Leave the fish in the water while removing the hook.
- (4) If the hook cannot be easily removed, cut the leader—the hook will rust out rapidly.
- (5) If the fish is exhausted, hold it in a swimming position in the water and move it back and forth gently until it is able to swim away.
- (6) If you prefer to catch and release, fish with a barbless hook to reduce the difficulty of removing the hook.

Another problem of keeping fish involves the stream or backpacking fisherman who does not have a cold chest available. Under these conditions, field dress the fish immediately upon catching and place it in a grass-lined wicker creel. This keeps the fish relatively cool for the short time needed to return to your vehicle. If backpacking at a mountain stream or lake, keep only enough to eat immediately and do not plan to carry them out a long distance.

Cooking and eating fish can be as rewarding as the catching if they are properly cared for and the meat is firm. For example, a favored fishing experience can be fishing beaver dams or small streams for brook trout. They typically will average 6-8 inches and are excellent eating if prepared quickly. The brook, Dolly Varden (bull), and Mackinaw trout do not keep well and should be prepared and eaten soon after capture.

Carry a fry pan in the vehicle and fry them in butter and a touch of garlic seasoning for a short lunch. Take a loaf of French bread with you, cut in half, toast over an open fire, and melt butter and sprinkle with parmesan cheese for a perfect match with the fish.

Another easy way to cook fish either in the field or at home is in aluminum foil. Place the cleaned trout in the aluminum foil with sliced raw onions, 2 pats of butter, and salt and pepper. Carefully seal the foil so it is airtight and place in hot coals for about 25 minutes. Cooking in the oven at about 450 degrees for about 30-40 minutes works well at home.

Most people will say fish "get soft" in certain waters each year when in reality it is the improper handling that is the problem. Most fish are excellent for eating if the fisherman will go prepared to care for his catch.

HEARINGS TO CONSIDER ISSUES CRITICAL TO IDAHO WILD LIFE

Lewiston—Two issues charged with controversy, wilderness lands classification and sale of public lands are the topics of back-to-back hearings scheduled for mid-August in Lewiston. Representative Larry Craig will conduct a hearing on asset management and the disposal of federal lands August 16, 3 to 6 p. m., in Spaulding Hall on the Lewis Clark State College campus. With nearly two-thirds of Idaho currently under Bureau Land Management and U. S. Forest Service management, a federal government decision to sell off large tracts of public land could have a drastic impact on the state's fish and wildlife resources. According to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, half of Idaho's citizens enjoy hunting and fishing in the state's scenic outdoors. Most of this recreation occurs on public land.

The fate of Idaho's pristine, unroaded areas will be the subject of a public hearing August 17, also in Spaulding Hall at LSCSC. Senator James McClure will conduct the all-day hearing. This meeting is one of several scheduled throughout the state to sample public opinion prior to formulation of an Idaho wilderness bill. The legislation will determine which if Idaho's existing roadless should be opened up for road development and eventual timber harvest.

The Department of Fish and Game has expressed concern that development of certain unroaded areas, notably the Kelly Creek watershed in the Clearwater National Forest, would seriously degrade the high-quality wildlife habitat found there. Kelly Creek is nationally recognized as a premiere cutthroat trout fishery. The rugged backcountry tract also supports substantial elk, deer and moose populations and sightings of two threatened and endangered species, grey wolf and grizzly bear, have been made recently in the area.

Persons desiring to make oral testimony on the wilderness bill at the August 17 hearing must call Senator

GENESEE FFA OFFICERS RETREAT AT DEER LAKE

The Genesee FFA officers left July 11 for a retreat at Deer Lake, Washington. The officers spent a lot of time with their advisor Randy Brown planning activities for the coming year. The remainder of the time was spent swimming, fishing, talking and playing cards.

Present were vice president: Brad Flodin; Sec'y.: Dave Cvancara; treasurer: Matt Becker; reporters, Leslie Danielson and Paul Swanson; sentinel: Dan Nelson; Chaplain: Noelle Mainani; advisor: Randy Brown and his wife, Candi. We would like to extend our thanks to Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Davis for the use of their cabin and to Mr. and Mrs. Randy Brown for making the whole trip a success.

Idaho Building Activity Increases Says Newsletter

Another strong month of residential building permit activity in Idaho was recorded for June said James Hoogland, Jr. and Neal Garner quoting the June Idaho Construction Report a publication of First Security Bank of Idaho, N. A. The report, edited by Dr. Kelly K. Matthews, senior vice president and economist.

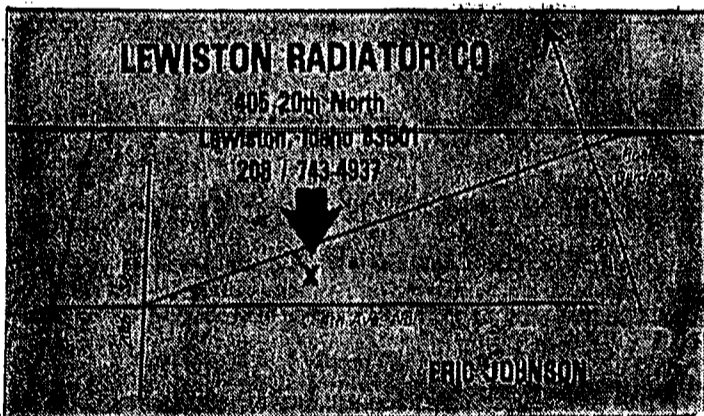

The number of building permits for new dwelling units in Boise nearly doubled relative to the previous month. Mortgage rates, however, edged still higher in June. Currently the FHA rate is 12 1/2 percent with 5 points discount and the conventional mortgage rate is 13 1/2-14 percent. At these levels, some consumer enthusiasm may begin to be dampened.

Total construction value for authorized building permit construction in 54 major Idaho locations in June was 38,803,344, or 95.7 percent above 1982. New residential construction for 441 dwelling units totaled $20,191,580, an increase of 103.2 percent in number and an increase of 155.7 percent in value compared with a year ago.
 Non residential construction valued at $10,633,561 was up 153.3 percent above last year while alterations and repairs totaling $7,978,203 were up 3.1 percent.

Grandma Zumhove will enjoy her special birthday party from 2 to 4 on Saturday, August 6.

Miss Lea Fliger is visiting with grandmother Erma Stevens this week, after Lea and her mother and other sisters traveled to Red Cloud, Nebraska for a visit with the Virgil Stevens family recently.

Mrs. Carol Glass, enroute home, was an overnite guest of the Glen Stevens family. Mother Powell has moved again to the Stonypoint home of her daughter and husband for the summer.

Jerry, son of Gene Heimgartner, soon to have been married, was seriously hurt in a trucking accident, when the brakes failed on an earth hauling grader, on a mountain road being constructed near Baker, Ore. Jerry was able to 'bail-out' but received 3 cracks in his pelvis bone. He was later removed from the Baker Hospital to a Pendleton Hospital nearer his Pilot Rock home. His father, Gene, attending a university in our area, greatly worried, will be returning home soon when college is over. Jerry's planned marriage, sadly, will be delayed a bit. All offer their sympathy, but thankful for his escape from death.

Marie and Everett Custer, according to her sister Gertrude Heimgartner, were served left-over premature birthday dinner on Sunday, July 31. As Gertrude laughingly explained, her birthday dinner featured "Mississippi Mud Pie." (Hard to decipher?)

Mildred Heath's News—

Worker "Pat" was her weekend helper. Each day faithful Gene and Lee check in to see how mother feels. Lee's wife, Barbara rides up, regularly, then walks back down home. Daughter Norma Rugg came Saturday for garden produce. Dorothy Partridge and Mary Hayhurst stopped to visit with Mildred and called on Beatrice Hoisington one day. Work progresses slowly on the Hayhurst home. Probably be September before that home may be occupied.

Harvest continues throughout the area. Our rather unpredictable weather can be obliging at times! While uncomfortable, the extreme heat is welcome in harvesting grain. Gardens do welcome showers.

Weekend camping, fishing, and water fun is enjoyed—when time is available.

The Ken Steigers family enjoyed canoeing on the upper Clearwater and rafting, both on the Middle Fork and Lochsa. Members of the Hatch family joined them for various portions. One canoe upset caused excitement, but no real trouble. One eve, campout was joined by friends Laurie and Tom Jentz, Lewiston, with participation in the 'Greenwood Ridge' Run. later. The rubber rafting on the Middle Fork was very enjoyable for all!

Bekalyn Steigers was able to participate in the early part of the expedition, but returned home to Cherrylane to tend dogs and cats at home and for traveling neighbors Pettits, before her "Enterprise" church work. Campout at Wallawa Lake one night, was enjoyed by the young group and sponsors of the Cottonwood Creek players. The church play was presented at Enterprise on Sunday.

Players Again Travel—

By viewing a complete 'video-tape' of their performance in this year's play recently at the Chris Ferwait residence in Lewiston, the young actors and helpers of the Cottonwood Creek Community Church were entertained and benefited. Their latest appearance was at the Enterprise, Oregon community held on Sunday. This is a very worthwhile summer activity.

At various times during this past week, Ensign John Steigers, wife Laura, his parents, Bill and Mary Steigers of Lewiston, were brief stop-in guests at the E. Steigers home. David Steigers, hot and tired from between repair jobs on old tractors of the 'repair lot' nearby, dropped in on his parents. One time bringing welcome frozen fish from a recent 'catch'. The others, with much less luck, offered to share their catch! The thought counts! John acted as a member of the wedding group for his friend who'd done the same for him at his last season's wedding in Kamiah! Both Navy service men.

Carl Steigers of Seattle, an instructor in schools there, is again enjoying his summer vacation helping his parents Alvin and Mabel

HELPING HANDS

Lewis-Clark Outreach has recently placed a worker in Latah County. Thus, making the services of this private, non-profit program readily available to all persons in the county in need of a helping hand.

This Community Action program (CAP) offers direct service to low income and economically disadvantaged people through the Area Agency on Aging, CAPS Winterizing, Energy program and the Headstart program. Assistance in obtaining the services of all other public and private agencies is given.

The need for adequate housing, fuel, food, clothing, medical care and transportation does not stop because our income is limited. A job and/or training for employment can help us become self-sufficient. Counseling, workshops and classes can help us better understand and appreciate ourselves, others, and our world. The effort to deal with the regulations and forms required by most agencies can cause confusion and discouragement. The Lewis-Clark outreach worker is available to help with any of these problems.

Contact Marvey Davis at 882-2432 Monday through Friday from 8:00 to 5:00.

Steigers in their harvest operations. Carl arrived Friday evening.

A long distance call from Jim Steigers was received from South Idaho last week informing of his well-being, and plans to visit sister Charlotte Sauer and family in Salt Lake before going on to Arizona. Plans for Grand Canyon included, but hot, for such!

The Cherrylane Kerbys do well. Visitors at the home of Mother Pearl Kerby for two weeks were son Mark Kerby and wife from the San Diego, California area.

More family activities are planned for a large family group later. All doing well.

"Up river" again for Delores Heimgartner on Sunday and returning with four "granddaughters", this week fills the Leslie Heimgartner home with fun and laughter. Later in August, 3 younger ones will take their turn visiting grandma and grandpa Heimgartner.
