Grange Serving Committee to Host Supper Feb. 20

The Feb. 6 pancake feed dished up for Grangers by their February serving committee was so tasty and satisfying that the committee has decided to provide a 6:30 soup-and-sandwich supper prior to the next meeting on February 20. The generous hosts are Ruth White, Ross and Inez Armitage, and Don and Peggy Bateman.

Following the business meeting last week, four tables of card sharps competed at pinochle. Coming out tops for the evening were Elsie Onstott and Dillard Stone (a consistently high scorer). Being a player of note, Elsie won a crocheted note pad holder, while Dillard, who obviously has the key to success, went home with a leather key case. Betty Cowger and Art Foster (broken hearted and with their balloons of success popped, left as the low scorers of the evening. Betty Stone enjoyed the sweet smell of success (imported hand soap) for having been the last player to hold the goose during the evening. Ross Armitage provided Lecturer Virginia Jacobson much appreciated help in setting up for the evening.

During the business session—which was highlighted by the return of Lawrence Helmgartner to his very important role of Assistant Steward—the membership approved the budget recommended by the leadership, including funds to take care of some building maintenance needs. It also approved a new policy concerning use of the Grange Hall's kitchen facilities which will limit their use for fund-raising purposes to the Grange only. There is no change however, in the policy that allows for rental of the kitchen facilities by non-Grange groups for social purposes.

Materials for the Local Roads and Bridges project, sponsored by the National Grange, were given to Dick Benjamin for review; he has been asked by the Master to consider chairing a committee to prepare answers to an extensive general questionnaire concerning the quality and importance of local roads and bridges.

Nine individual Grangers and Grange couples were the first to sign up to help circulate and collect the Block Watch questionnaires provided by Warner May and Ed Ulrich. They are Ruth White, Millie Corkill, Leslie and Delores Helmgartner, Ross Armitage, Manning and Elsie Onstott, Wayne and Ruth Helmgartner, Art and Maxine Foster, Frank and Virginia Jacobson, and Betty Cowger. The Grange looks to more of its members volunteering to support this worthy community project and encourages non-Grangers as well to contact Warner May, Ed Ulrich or any Grange officer to offer their help.

Grangers are reminded that they have been invited to meet with Moscow Grange on Wednesday, Feb. 21, beginning with dinner at 12 noon. Please let Master Frank Jacobson know by this Saturday if you plan to go. And, remember, the next meeting here on February 20 begins with a soup-and-sandwich supper at 6:00.

Some Things Never Change

(Note: this is re-printed from the March 21, 1913, issue of the Kendrick Gazette. The article was found by Frank Dammarell who brought it in with the comment that the more things change, the more they seem to stay the same.)

Candidates Chosen

The city caucus was held Friday evening and not a very large percent of the voters of the town were present. It seems as if the people of this town would take more interest in the welfare of the place than they do. The people want a good town, but still they will sit by their side and let a few do what there is to do and then you can hear someone hollering his head off because this or that is not done right.

The following men were nominated for the five candidates for councilmen: E. H. Dammarell, Jody Long, J. F. Brown, Herman Heiber and M. Black.

National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week Proclaimed by Mayor

Whereas motor vehicle crashes are the number one cause of death of children over the age of six months in the United States;

Whereas motor vehicle crashes are the number one cause of the crippling of children in the United States;

Whereas more children under the age of five years are killed or crippled as passengers involved in motor vehicle crashes than the total number of children killed or crippled by the seven most common childhood diseases: pertussis, tetanus, diphtheria, measles, mumps, rubella and polio;

Whereas motor vehicle crashes are the leading trauma-related cause of spinal cord injury, epilepsy and mental retardation in the United States;

Whereas between 1978 and 1988, about 10,000 children under the age of five years were killed in traffic crashes, and more than 500,000 were injured in the United States;

Whereas all 50 states and the District of Columbia have enacted laws requiring the use of child passenger protection systems;

Whereas the latest national surveys show that 82.5 percent of children under the age of five are placed in child safety seats in the United States;

Whereas current nationwide studies estimate that only 56 percent of children under the age of five are fully protected in cars in the United States through the correct use of child safety seats;

Whereas numerous government and private sector organizations have agreed to work together to achieve a minimum 70 percent correct use of child passenger protection systems and adult safety belts by the year 1990;

Whereas research shows that when used correctly, child passenger protection devices are 71 percent effective in preventing injury;

Whereas death and injury may be significantly lowered through greater public awareness, information, education and enforcement;

Now, therefore, I, Jerry Brown, Mayor of Kendrick, Idaho, in recognition of this tragic situation, do hereby proclaim the week of February 11-17, 1990 as

"National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week" and encourage the community to observe the week with appropriate programs, ceremonies and activities to increase correct use of child safety seats.

Luis Mendoza deals with a variety of bizarre crimes and difficult crimes in "Murder Most Strange" by Dell Shannon. The tree measured 38.5 feet tall with a trunk circumference of 174.4 inches with one crown spread of 54.7 feet. The tree had a total index point rating of 227.

Local Groups Begin Collecting Info. for Emerg. Medical Use

Members of Kendrick Grange No. 413, Baker-Lind Post 3913, VFW, and the Search and Rescue Unit are now in the process of distributing forms designed to collect information that would be used to provide more efficient medical service by emergency unit. Members of the Grange, the VFW, and the Search & Rescue Unit are now getting the forms out to the residents in Kendrick-Juliaetta and the area served by the J/K ambulance. The prompt return of these forms is earnestly requested.

Some of the information being asked for on these forms includes:

1. Name of family (head of household).
2. Exact location of where you live, (draw a map, if you wish).
3. Names of those who live with you. Give age, sex, phone number, and brief medical history of each person. If any have a medical problem note this, too, such as heart conditions, diabetes, etc.
4. Name of family doctor.
5. Person to be notified in event of emergency.
6. Location of Electrical Shut off.

Again, we of the VFW want to thank you for all your support of this project, and hope within the next decade someone will pick up the ball and keep this memorial a fitting tribute to the area and the veterans.

Park News

By Jody Smith

Real Winter—

The open December had everyone wondering if winter would ever set in—February has dispelled any doubt. For the first time in years, Park residents were without mail service Thursday and Friday. Thursday the road was drifted shut on the hill and by Friday the snow on the road had turned to slush and made for treacherous driving.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Smith joined about 15 other members of the family and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Smith, Moscow, for pinochle last Saturday evening.

Clinton Smith has entertained the flu bug this week.

Mrs. Dan Willis spent Monday through Thursday with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Shannon McMillan at Colfax, helping as Rhonda recovered from surgery.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Smith visited Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Lewis at Helmer Sunday afternoon. Also visiting were Mrs. Lewis' daughter Lois and her husband Arnold Mael.

The tidal wave caused by the eruption of a volcano on the island of Kratkatu in 1883 reached as far as England.

Tree Caused Power, TV Outage Saturday

A tree in the east part of Kendrick fell across power and television lines early Saturday morning and disrupted service for four hours before the service was restored.

Apparently the tree's root system just gave way in super-saturated soil and with the help of some wind just toppled over taking the power lines nearby with it. The power went off at 4:10 a. m. Saturday morning and it was about 8:15 before crews from Washington Water Power got the service restored.

The tree also took out some of CableVision's newly installed television cables with it and some of that service was not restored until the afternoon.

Tigers Top Culesac 75-64 as District Tournament Begins

With Shane Taylor and Reece Hewett leading the way, the Kendrick Tigers moved past the Culesac Wolves 75-64 Monday night at LCSC Warrior gymnasium in the opening round of the District II, Class A-4 boys' basketball tournament. The two teams had tied for fourth place in the Whitepine League at the end of regular season play.

Taylor was coming back into action for the first time since Feb. 3, after a bout with the flu bug, but he was in good shape Monday night as he pumped in 29 points to lead the Tiger offense.

Hewett added 16 points to the final Tiger score. Both Hewett and Ron Morgan were key factors in the second half as they helped put down a second half rally by the Wolves.

Kendrick, shooting a lot from the field but hitting only 11 of 40 shots in the first half, relied on free throws to stay in the game as they hit 13-of-19 to take a 35-30 halftime lead.

Kendrick kept its advantage in the second half with some improved shooting from the field and some good defensive work from Morgan, the 6-4 Tiger center who blocked seven shots and kept the pressure on the Wolves on the inside.

Tuesday the Tigers face a tough game as they go against No. 1 seed Highland.

Many Applicants For Position of City Maintenance Man

The Kendrick city council met in regular session Tuesday evening, February 13, at the city hall. Present were Mayor Jerry Brown, and councilmen Darrel Brocke, Mike Boe, and David Klatt. Also at the meeting were maintenance man Don Bateman, City clerk Donna Goff, and Mitch Marx, the city's accountant.

The city clerk reported that there have been thirty applications returned for the position of city maintenance man. Don Bateman, the present maintenance man will be retiring on March 1. Mayor Brown said the council was surprised by the number of application received, and added that many of the applicants were very well qualified. Brown said the council is now in the process of reviewing all the applications and will narrow the field down to the most qualified, and then call these men in for personal interviews before the final decision to hire is made.

Mitch Marx, the city's accountant was present to present the council with the annual audit report and to review it with the members.

The council re-opened and approved the budget to include added revenue which will result from a recent increase in water and sewer rates and an increase in fees by the Latah Sanitation which collects the city's solid waste.

The new rates become effective with the March 1 billing and will result in an increase of $5.00 per month. Where the old rates figured out to $20.90, now residents will be billed $26.55. The sewer charge will be increased by $2.25. Water minimums will go up from $5.00 to $8.00 but the minimum use will go from 2,000 gallons per month to 4,000 gallons per month. There will be a fee of 30¢ per thousand for each thousand or fraction thereof over the 4,000 gallon minimum.

Happenings at the Meal Site

"Growing old gracefully" was definitely a sign of the times these past two weeks at the Kendrick Senior Center as important anniversaries were added to the "credits" of Leonard and Corryell Wolff and Mrs. Effie Powell.

Feb. 2, marked the sixty-third wedding anniversary of Corryell and Leonard Wolff. An interesting story came to life again as Leonard told of the trip to town to begin their life together. Thank you, folks, for sharing your day with us!

Feb. 9 was another "day to remember" as Effie Powell celebrated her 92nd birthday anniversary along with her family and the seniors. Her daughters and their husbands, Marjorie and Glen Stevens of Stony Point and Carol and Tom Glass of Boise, brought Effie to the Meal Site plus a beautifully decorated birthday cake.

To top everything, a recitation, "The Wonderful One Hoss Shay" was recited by Effie with the greatest of ease! (she had memorized this poem in high school). Thank you, Effie, for sharing your "day" with us!

Special music completed the program. Lovely piano duets by Alberta Turner and Marjorie Stevens were enjoyed by all the Seniors. (We are looking for a return engagement!)

(Special Note: We, the Senior Citizens, wish the Wolffs and Mrs. Powell many, many more happy anniversaries! Ruth A. White, Site Coordinator.

CARD OF THANKS

A very special thanks to my many friends for their calls of concern, get-well cards, flowers and prayers following my by-pass surgery. Your thoughtfulness has meant so much.

But it was America's first generation gap. Between 1775 and 1880, generation after generation of American settlers plodded through the Cumberland Gap. A natural pass through the Appalachians that became the gateway to the West. It was tough going. The cost was great. In money. And lives. But they paid the price. Because they were

New Book Lays Old Boundary Rumor to Rest

A favorite myth of Idahoans is laid to rest by information in a new history of Idaho to be published in about a year by a University of Idaho historian.

Carlos Schwantes, Pulitzer Prize nominee and professor of history, says there is absolutely no truth to the story that government surveyors were drunk and took a wrong turn when surveying the eastern boundary of Idaho's panhandle.

The truth of the matter is, he says, that Congress determined the location of the boundary when it divided the Idaho Territory into the states of Montana, Wyoming and Idaho.

The actual surveying of the state's borders was done in 1899 for the northern part, and between 1904 and 1907 for the section along the Bitterroot Mountains and the Continental Divide. The surveyors began at the Canadian border and worked south, making it impossible for them to have taken a wrong turning at Lost Trail Pass and head north again.

"I think the most intriguing thing I ran across is how big Idaho once was. Boundaries, I think, were very important in Idaho's history, because of our odd-shaped state. There were many myths that have grown up around how we got these odd boundaries."

The original Idaho included all of Montana and most of Wyoming and was larger than Texas, he says. "I sometimes wonder what it would have been like, if we had remained that big. Whether we would have had a different attitude about ourselves."

Congress had the right to change a territory any way it wished, he says, and "so it did. Essentially Idaho today is the leftovers after they whittled out Montana and Wyoming. We were just a grab bag of pieces that apparently nobody wanted, so we existed by default."

"I don't think there was even any plan as to what Idaho was supposed to be. We had no historical unity. We were an arbitrary, artificial creation."

He says the original Idaho boundary expressed the wish of Washington politicians to "jettison their territory's eastern counties in order to create a more compact Washington that would not jeopardize the status of Olympia as capitol." Congress then extended the area farther east.

The idea of division between north and south, and between east and west existed from the time the state was created.

The Idaho Territory, as it was created in 1863, was so large it was ungovernable, given the lack of reliable transportation or rapid communication. It was almost impossible for representatives from the eastern reaches of the state to travel to Lewiston, the site selected for the territorial government. Federal administrators were held in almost universal disrespect by Idahoans and, in fact, were called "carpetbaggers," according to Schwantes.

The result was that Idaho's first legislature, when it finally assembled in Lewiston in December, 1863, unanimously petitioned Congress to divide the territory to make it easier to govern.

Schwantes says the original huge size and the later combining of sections of unrelated real estate contributes much to the present day attitudes of Idahoans about money, politics and many other things.

"The thing that intrigues me is that some of the things that we live with today could be seen a hundred years ago." For instance, Idahoans were cautious about funding education since there were so many mining camps and they didn't want to tax themselves for education if the town wouldn't be in existence in a year or so.

Making long range plans in early Idaho was difficult, because "for one thing, Idahoans didn't know if Congress was going to take the boundary and re-district them and put some of them in another territory, or if their town was even going to exist. If the gold or silver played out, there was no reason for the town to remain in existence."

"So, as Idahoans, we have been extremely cautious fiscally from the very beginning. We have been divided from the very beginning. We have been outdoor oriented from the very beginning. To me, it is amazing the persistence of traits that we see in Idaho today, that can be observable right from the beginning."

He notes that "Idaho is slow to change, but Idaho has suffered a lot of knocks and bruises and bumps over the years from change that came too fast. I think we are innately cautious as a people."

The Kendrick Gazette, Thursday, February 15, 1990

A cautious nature has been necessary for Idahoans from the beginning, he says, "Because if you went too far out on the limb as a farmer, with your dependence on the capricious nature of the rainfall in the northern Rocky Mountains, you could be destroyed." Similar observations hold true for miners and others, Schwantes thinks.

An expression he heard when he first moved to Idaho sums up that cautious attitude, there are about three reasons why something can't be done in Idaho. "One of them is that there is no money. Second is it has never been done before and the third is, this is Idaho and you can't do that."

He says he thinks Idaho was a hard frontier to settle. People couldn't just "move in and start raising corn on 160 acres. It was a tough frontier to settle and if you didn't have a tenacity and a kind of innate caution, weren't willing to look at things over the long haul, you didn't stay here."
